Dear Darlene,

Is it true that nice girls never say "yes"?

Male

Dear Male,

Yes.

Dear Darlene,

Last night I got extremely drunk at a party and I'm afraid that I did something wrong. What should I do?

Lost Virtue

Dear Lost,

Read "Everything You've Always Wanted to Know About Sex" and you'll find out whether you did it wrong or not.

Dear Darlene,

I want to thank you for the help and guidance you've given me. Before your column appeared in the newspaper, I was confused and insecure. After reading "Dear Darlene," however, I developed a reason for living. I owe everything to you.

Grateful

Dear Grate,

It's proper for you to pay your debts. That will be one life, please.

Dear Darlene,

Last week I went out with a guy to a movie and to dinner. Everything went fine until we got to the restaurant. Once there, he leaned over and whispered in my ear, "Sigmund Freud said that human beings ooze self-betrayal." What does that mean?

Please Don't Use My Name

Dear Dummy,

It means you dated a wierdo.

To all my religious readers: I want to inform you of the latest version of the Good Book. It's a Bible that glows in the dark. Now you can really "see the light." It's available at the First Church of Sunny Sin. This $1.99 value is now selling for $10.95 so buy now while the selection is hot.

Rev. Martindale Is New Campus Minister

The Rev. Vivan Martindale, an Ordained American Baptist Minister who has been Associate Minister at Main Street Baptist Church in Binghamton, N. Y., has accepted a call to become Campus Minister at UNC-W.

Rev. Martindale has been at Main Street since 1972 coordinating youth, community and counseling ministries and during the past year has served as Interim Senior Minister. Previously he worked as Assistant Pastor in charge of youth at Covina Evangelical Free Church in Covina, Calif., and was a marriage and family counselor at Inglewood Mental Health Center in Rosemead, Calif.

He also worked in the chaplaincy department of the Royal Infirmary in Edinburgh, Scotland.

Rev. Martindale received a BA in psychology from the King's College and a M. Div. from American Baptist Seminary of the West in Covina. He has also studied at Claremont School of Theology and the University of Edinburgh.

A native of Binghamton, he is married to the former Esther Burnside of Maine. They have one daughter, Devon.

Rev. Martindale will be the first full-time Campus Minister on the Wilmington campus with responsibility to develop a pastoral rapport with the campus community, investigate programming possibilities and assist in fostering productive church - campus relationships. He replaces Rev. Milton Boone who very ably served as campus minister and is now full-time pastor at First Christian Church in Wilmington.

He will be employed by United Christian Ministry which functions under the guidance of a board of directors representing the various religious denominations participating in the cooperative effort. These denominations are the Christian Church (Disciples), Presbyterians, U. S., Southern Baptist, and United Methodist. Rev. Martindale can be reached through the Student Affairs Office.

REV. MARTINDALE-The first full time campus minister!!!

ECHOS OF YESTERYEAR

by virginia van velsor

Listening to the youth of today is fun. Unconsciously they echo their adults' yesterday.

Just like teen-agers of twenty, thirty or more years ago, they begrudge restrictions. They resent curfews, speeding tickets, stray pets being picked up, and conforming to parents' opinions on proper attire. They want to carouse, make love and keep up with their older peers. Paradoxically, secretly they want parental guidance even if they buck it.

Television and wheels have given them more freedom than yesterday's children. Also, social mores go in cycles. We hear of Victorian prudery, the wildness of the twenties, back to morality, and now the relaxed standards of today.

However, as these teenagers grow up, they slowly reverse to more conservative ways. Women's lib has not excluded femininity or the desire to marry their "dream boy." And guys want to be looked up to as the "stronger sex." Why not! Nature endowed them with more muscles.

Perhaps job-wise there is a greater demand for equality. This is a step forward in civilization just like the abolishment of child-labor. Women are wearing pants on more varied occasions than their mothers did. Probably because today's fashion designers have combined comfort with grace.

Generally speaking, styles repeat themselves. Knee-highs, two-piece bathing suits, halters, the pajama look, have come in and out in the past forty years. We have also seen bangs, long hair and bobbed hair during this same span of time. Nail polish and eye shadow have also run the same gamut.

There have always been the bohemians and the hippies. Social rebels have always existed. Overall, though, the youth of today, as it approaches adulthood, pattern their lives more like their parents, once having travelled the same emotional paths of their mothers and fathers.

Science has not changed human nature.

FLEETWOOD MAC HEROES ARE HARD TO FIND
Reprise MS-2196

Fleetwood Mac is another group you could write a book about, if you could find all the pieces. Many stories and much truth have been written about them, the latter of which I hope is accomplished in this article.

To begin, Fleetwood Mac was started as one of the many groups to branch from John Mayall's Bluesbreakers in 1967. Peter Green was the founder of the Mac and derived the name from a song he had written. Although blues had been the style music used by the members while in the Bluesbreakers, Fleetwood Mac branched out and ventured into blues and the earlier forms of rock and roll.

By 1968, Cream had hit the US and the second wave of the British invasion brought over many great Blues and Rock bands, the Mac included. Their first album appeared that year and a second in 1969. Then disaster struck as Peter Green, who most people thought made the Mac what it was, left the group.

Record sales dropped for Fleetwood Mac and the 70's found them treading the waters of the rock flood which took place during this time. Sometime during all that, a few good things happened to the Mac. First, they were glad to just tread water. This was good enough for them as they had seen how big promotions and hit singles had destroyed other groups.

Second, John McVie had fallen in love with a girl who most of you may have never heard of, but was then Christine Perfect.

Christine Perfect had been in the same big blues boom as Mayal and in the mid through late 60's was a very popular blues singer in England. Playing solo, with Top Topham and with Chicken Shack had given her all the exposure and experience she needed, but girl singers just could not seem to make it big in the US.

During the last several years the group has seen many changes including the marriage of Christine Perfect to John McVie. Whether the marriage to McVie brought her to the group or vice versa, I do not know. But I do know that her addition to the group had helped their sound.

In early 1974 the group lost many fans as their manager put together a make-do band and toured the US as Fleetwood Mac. Between the court battles and everything else, the real Fleetwood Mac seems to have come out all right, bringing us to the new album, HEROES ARE HARD TO FIND.

With the combination of vocals switching between Christine McVie and Bob Welch, and then the title cut being released as a single, the group's fear of having a hit album and single may come true.

The single has done very well in this country with Christine's vocals and a well-written song as the reasons. The album itself is also excellent and contains some of the best material the Mac have produced. Variety is the main factor in the success the album has achieved.

The single starts side one, with "Angel" and "Bermuda Triangle," both sung by Bob Welch, following. The latter of these two is one of the most interesting cuts on the album and tells the story of the so-called Devil's triangle in which many ships and airplanes have been lost for apparently no reason. The song is excellently worked out, beginning with mysterious congas followed by some of the best guitar work on the album. Ending the side is a remarkable blues ballad featuring Christine on vocals. "Come a Little Bit Closer" is the title and her talents as a singer could not be proven more than on this cut.

Side two opens with a country-rock song entitled "She's Changing Me" sung by Bob Welch. The sound is similar to America's Eagles yet it still remains fresh and clear. "Silver Heels" is also on this side and is very humorous in its story. The guy in the song is somewhat of a rock star who meets a girl with silver heeled shoes and as best said in his words:

If I could sing like Paul McCartney
Get funky like Etta James
I could never change her silver heels ways.

Christine McVie brings the album near an end with "Prove Your Love" and then a funky number called "Born Enchanter." With this we leave the Devil's Triangle and find a "Safe Harbour" to bring the album to an end.

I would recommend this album to anyone with any musical interest. The variety and musicianship alone are remarkable enough to make the album worthwhile.

If you are interested enough, most of their earlier albums, as well as the early Christine Perfect albums, can be found in time. I only hope the success of HEROES ARE HARD TO FIND will not bring the group the trouble they think it may. Till then, ROCK-OUT!

It helps knowing someone is still there. Thanks.

NO MORE MR. NICE GUY

As far as the SEAHAWK is concerned at least, we've played "Mr. Nice Guy" long enough. We tried dropping suits, and then blatant bombs, about the condition of our typesetting equipment to SGA leaders and members of the Finance Committee. If you guess that it did no good at all, congratulations, you've just proved that you know enough about your SGA to run for office.

If you have checked out the scathing editorial on page two of last issue, you will note that we stated the typesetting equipment we are currently working with is running now - but for how long is anybody's guess.

Guess what. If you guessed that one of our machines has taken a turn for the worse, you have just completed the because you're obviously much too smart to be a student here.

The specific problem is that the typewriter ribbon on our output machine (the one that types the very words you are reading) will not advance, meaning that someone sat at that machine and manually advanced the ribbon after each letter and punctuation mark was printed. Is that very time-consuming? You bet your sweet ID card it is - like double the normal man-hours.

We have never asked for very much. What we have asked is that the powers that be listen ten to those who are more experienced than they in these matters. We knew we had around $2000 given to us by SGA a year or so ago which we did not use at that time, purposefully holding back for the rainy days we knew were sure to come. When we saw the problem with the equipment arising, we started action to alleviate the problem before it became crucial.

The instigation of our action was last October. Delivery time on the machine we had our eyes on was three months. That would have meant we would have had our machine to start this semester off right.

Wrong!

Why wrong, you ask. Because first no one could decide who in SGA we should talk to. When that mess was finally straightened out, Christmas vacation was upon us and it was Spring semester before we could talk to the right people.

Naturally, the finance committee meeting came and went without us having a chance to make our proposal in person. The treasurer, of course, knew of our need, and apparently made the proposal for us, and so well that we were voted down before we had a chance to explain where the financing was to come from. We were to do the proposal was rejected because the SGA didn't have the money.

Naturally, of course, no one bothered to tell the committee members that we didn't want any SGA money. All we wanted was someone's signature. A signature on a paper saying that we were authorized to spend our own damn money.

Naturally, all of our originally good tempers were worn thin about this time. When the finance committee finally met again, we were there with knives, daggers, and riot guns (figuratively speaking, of course). Naturally, we had not received any official notification of the meeting. It sometimes seems that the grapevine is the only thing SGA has going for it.

We explained about the money we have gravitating somewhere in one of SGA's three treasurers, and the treasurer said that he would look into it. We still have received no word on that, but we understand that the moneyman told one SGA official that he had ascertained that we do indeed have that money somewhere.

If you're wondering why you never know what is happening on campus, don't feel like you are the only ones. We can't seem to get any answers either. And at this point, we don't want any. When we ask for answers, we get excuses.

Excuses can't print a paper, and neither can we if this continues.

Election Fiasco

At the rate we're going now, we fully expect to see the SGA office turned into an ivory palace shortly, and certain subscribers to that organization parading across campus in royal purple robes. For indeed it seems that some think that a monarchy is much preferable to democracy.

We speak, obviously, of recent Student Body Elections and the discrepancies occurring therein. For our readers who are not sure exactly how that process is conducted, let us enlighten you.

On Friday before elections on Monday, several candidates became aware that the appointed hour for the Constitution Test had come and gone without them being able to participate in that little charade. Naturally, no one knew the identity of 'the freshman chick' who was appointed Elections Board Chairman in the hasty departure of candidate Rick Patton, former chairman.

A lengthy visit with Vice Chancellor or for Student Affairs William Malloy had him agree that something had gone awry and he would step in and waive the test requirement for those who had not been given the opportunity to experience it. They could take it at a later time, he determined.

The issue of the new constitution is another that brings tears to the eye and burning pain to the ulcer. Something which should be as important to Student Government as its new constitution should have been a much discussed, met about and publicized issue. Unless, of course, SGA considers itself unworthy as we are beginning to consider it.

Yet the final meeting to present it to the Senate who held only the week before the election - and at that time, there was not a copy of the proposed Constitution in the hands of each Senator, much less in the grubby paws of any student who might have taken the notion that it's time to start watching the group that decides who spends how much of their money.

On the appointed election day, there was a copy of the proposed Constitution at the polling place - most of the time, at least. But neither a copy of the old constitution (which was not printed in this year's handbook) nor a copy of proposed changes and the rationale behind them.

As a matter of fact - at the meeting to discuss the Constitution, when one of the committee members was questioned about one of the changes, he stated he couldn't remember why that particular change had been made, that it had been done in September. And he couldn't remember.

We maintain that some semblance of minutes should have been kept of meetings as important as that - or at least a few notes as to why changes in particular sections were made. We also feel that at least the Constitution portion of the election was farcical, and that the results should be nullified, with a special election (as the constitution demands) to be held to consider this important subject.

If we don't start asking questions and demanding changes now, we're going to end up with a bigger mess than we're got already. We're tired of having our leaders make arbitrary decisions for us, hiding them behind a facade of election mockery. A change must come.

Now.

It's already, too late.

FACULTY PROFILE: LARSEN SAYS- 'ugly american' revisited

March 14, 1975

by Pete Hager

photos by Neal Huntley

Mr. Curtis Larsen is presently an instructor of Anthropology, Sociology, and Archeology here at U.N.C.-W, and he combines the knowledge of all these areas to achieve his current interest.

He received his Bachelor's degree in Geology at the University of Illinois and later a Master's degree in Anthropology and Sociology at Western Washington State College.

His interest is to relate our knowledge of the environment with that of man; thus, he accepted an opportunity to do just that in a research study in the Bahrain area.

Bahrain is a small island, an independent sheikdom, in the Persian Gulf. Here, Mr. Larsen conducted studies into the environmental history of Bahrain, which includes the changes in the climate and fresh and sea water levels.

Later, this information is used to understand the effects the fluctuating environment had on past civilizations, and possibly to enable researchers to project future relationships between human populations and the environment.

Larsen's stay in Bahrain, in the fall of 1972, proved to be much more than excursion in the name of Science. During those months, he became quite aware of the Bahrain people.

Bahrain is like the Hong Kong of the Persian Gulf. You can buy anything that you could in Hong Kong there, except Bahrain is on a much smaller scale, said Larsen.

Bahrain was the site of the first Mid-East oil field. Because of that fact, Bahrain became very dependent on the production and selling of oil. But now the oil fields are all but dry, and the Bahrain people are searching for other profitable endeavors to support their inflated economy.

Now, Bahrain is industrializing rapidly with the aid of foreign countries. Aluminum smelting and oil refining serve as prominent and lucrative industries, taking the place of oil.

The dry, hot island is populated by Indians, Pakistanis, Arabs, Persians, and Europeans. The middle class non-European of Bahrain does without luxuries because they can't afford them. The Europeans, on the other hand, enjoy a more affluent lifestyle due to their much more comfortable economy.

In addition, Larsen noticed that there's a striking difference between what we in America hear about the Middle East. Out of those students, East and what is actually happening.

"We know so little about the people over there," Larsen said. "We're biased over here because we can't communicate on their level. We can't communicate or deal with them on a one-to-one basis."

In 1972, 800 students in the United States were enrolled in college classes that taught languages of the Mid-East. Out of those students, only one or two per cent probably become fluent in any one language.

As a result of the scarcity of people able to communicate with the Mid-East people, we have become dependent on translators and diplomats.

"I doesn't make any difference if you like them or not," said Larsen. "It still behooves you to know what they're actually saying, rather than what your diplomat says they're saying."

Mr. Larsen will be revisiting Bahrain in the near future before finishing his dissertation for his doctorate at the University of Chicago. He'll once again become aware that the people of the Mid-East are more active and progressive than we are informed of, or want to accept.

Larsen closed his eyes and chuckled when asked if he could project the result of America's inability to communicate with individual Arabs, Jews, Indians, Persians, and others.

"No, no I couldn't answer that," he said, leaning back in his chair. "But personally, I'm pretty pessimistic. We have almost no knowledge of the individual or community. We just don't communicate."

"It's like 'The Ugly American' revisited."

Dr. Cleo Dawson to speak

by paul heuhner

Dr. Cleo Dawson will speak on Campus Thursday night, March 20, at 8:00 p.m., in King Hal auditorium (Education and Psychology Building). She is sponsored by the University Lecture Series; admission is free.

Dr. Dawson has been called the 'dynamo' of the American lecture circuit because of her fast-paced tours which have taken her from Los Angeles to Boston and from Louisville to Seattle.

In addition to her lectures, she has found time to appear repeatedly on such TV shows as Merv Griffin, Steve Allen,

Jack Parr, and Virginia Graham. She has written a novel, 'She came to the Valley, as a memento to her pioneer family's contribution to the developing of the lower valley of the Rio Grande. The book has recently been purchased by a Hollywood movie producer and will be released as a movie in the near future.

Dr. Dawson holds a degree in psychology and specializes in the study of men and women—their joys and sorrow, their faults and virtues. Some of her popular lectures have been reprinted in Reader's Digest: 'Fear Takes a Holiday,' 'How to Manage a Woman,' 'Twentieth Century, Head On,' 'Youth at the Threshold 'The Throughway to Happiness,' 'Love,' and the lecture for Thursday night—'Let's Live and Like it.'

One of her recent targets is the women's liberation movement. Her message to the female segment of her audience in a recent lecture was: 'We're going to have to understand men better. You see men and women feel different about things. They feel different because they are different-and people act and react according to how they feel, not how they think.'

'Men have larger hearts, need more oxygen and die off sooner than women. A man's feelings go in a straight line, up and down,' she continued.

'Women's feelings, by contrast, . . . go 'round and 'round. We have resilience; we have fluidity.'

The Los Angeles Free Press cal 'Dynamic Dawson a cross between Mae West and Billy Graham, a transsexualized Oral
Roberts turned comedienne.' Whatever her topic she generates an energy, an emotional vitality laced with fire and brimstone.

Dr. CLEO DAWSON

CAMPUS HASSLES

I would like to raise a question to the student body of this "GREATER" University. Do any of you know that there is a meeting of the Senate (the people you elected your representatives) every Tuesday at 11:30? Also, do you know what your representatives are deciding for you? If you would like to know how your school is run and how your future is decided, you should go to one of these Senate meetings.

It just so happens that I did go to one of these meetings very recently. As a student of this school, I was very disappointed. I realised that I had been very disillusioned with the way my school had been run. I did not know the people that I had helped to elect were so inadequate. Supposedly these people represent the whole student body, but it seems they decide only for themselves. Honestly, has any Senate member ever come up to you and asked your opinion? Well I haven't ever had one tell me what was going on.

As far as I could tell from the meeting that I went to not very much is accomplished. There is a lot of back-stabbing and quibbling going on that is totally unnecessary. There must be a better way to get things done. If we are to run your school, I and but a handful, I suggest that you take to me newly elected Senators. Let them know that you are interested, and that by all means you would like to know what is being decided. I know it is decided for you. Or Heaven forbid, must get involved and go to the meeting of the Senate. I promise that when you leave you'll be ready to do something.

A VERY concerned student:

A VERY concerned student:

wouldn't you rather come with us?

Last year over 200,000 students summured in Europe. And the travelwise flew on charters because it costs about HALF! This year a 3 - 6 week ticket to London is $512.; 2 - 3 weeks $597. And its $767. for over six weeks from New York. (That's what the airlines say now. Last year there were two unforcast increases!)

Not only do you fly with us at half, but you can just about have your choice of dates for 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 4, 1 week duration during the summer. And all you have to do to qualify is reserve your seat now by sending $100 deposit, plus $10. registration fee. Under recently new U.S. Government regulations, you can now reserve your seat for as long as 11 months in advance. Payment, fifty days before each flight. If you take the June-1 - August 10 flight to London for example, deposit, reserve your seat and April 1 if you send the $100, balance. Just one price for all flights whether you pay the full amount or not. (If you take the regular rate, you pay the peak season surcharge rate.)

So, send for the complete schedule, come by, check it out, and we personalize them. And, if you deposit for one of our "new" weekly deposits, we'll give you a deposit. We'll actually give you

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N. C.

THEY GATHERED AT THE RIVER

Jon Voight and Burt Reynolds had a big job ahead of them filming Warner Bros.' "Deliverance." They had to up-stage the mighty Chattooga River, the white-water rapids tumbling out of the remote mountains of northern Georgia.

When studio location scouts returned after exploring the often treacherous river, they warned producer-director John Boorman that it was almost impossible to make a movie up there on the river, but Boorman, who directed "Point Blank" and "Hell in the Pacific," never flinched. He ordered heavy duty U.S. Navy underwater Demolition Team rafts, outfitted them for cameras and crews, hired some of the best boatmen in the country, trained his stars in shooting rapids, then set out to make "Deliverance."

All crewmembers were outfitted in black rubber wet-suits, knee and elbow pads and extra paddles. There was no way to get to the chosen locations except on the river itself. Getting to the destinations along the overgrown banks is impossible. Large snake populations, cottonmouths, rattlers and copperheads, make land travel even more dangerous than the river, charging its way down 40 or 50 miles of boulder strewn river bed.

The river almost won on points. It dashed Jon Voight's canoe into splinters twice and dumped him into the churning rapids dozens of times. It took Burt Reynolds and his co-stars Ronny Cox and Ned Beatty over numerous medium-sized falls un-announced.

Jagged rocks tore the bottoms out of at least six of the rugged rafts carrying soundmen, cameras and extremely valuable equipment. Many evenings found crewmen and equipment stranded along the riverbank waiting for the pickup raft which made a sunset sweep of the river, picking up stragglers in time for a late dinner.

A stern warning was posted by the production office for all those who were lost along the riverbank. They were not to wander aimlessly, because the forests can swallow them up in no time. Plus a number of stills, for making moonshine whiskey, abound in the area and the owners of the illegal stills don't take kindly to strangers.

So despite stills, roaring rapids, and any number of other adversities, John Boorman brought Warner's "Deliverance" east and crew down the river and back to the Burbank lot without a hitch.

"Deliverance," the motion picture version of James Dickey's best-selling novel, was written for the screen by Boorman and Dickey and filmed in Technicolor and Panavision.

WNCU: AN INSIDE VIEW

WNCU is quite unusual to say the least. It is presently located in Linda Moore's old office in the Pub. The ways we get to you are via transmission in the dorm on 580 AM, Channel 4 on cable TV and speakers in the Pub, Cafeteria, and Snack Bar. We're having problems with the transmitter presently, but that will be remedied as soon as the Physical Plant installs new wiring for it. Reception will then be stronger, cleaner, and more uniform throughout the dorm. Recently, the SGA rescued us from financial problems and we rejoined Cable TV. Now things are looking bright. We are presently receiving promotional albums at the rate of five a day. Some of these are already big hits, but many are very good and perhaps a bit ahead of most stations' airplay. For example, we were playing Phoebe Snow's entire album before it hit the charts or the single "Poetry Man" got airplay locally. We are an alternative listening station so we feel our job is not to imitate, but to be unusual and creative. I apologize if any of you have gotten bad vibes when you stopped by, but sometimes it gets a bit hectic running 24 hours daily with a minor crisis every other day. For the SGA elections we provided free air time to all interested candidates and we offer free ad service to any student or organization who drops their announcement in our mailbox in the Pub. Please use a 3X5 card, typed or neatly printed two days in advance. When we get records that do not fit our format we give them to students rather than box them away to collect dust. At this time, we have given away well over 200 records and intend to continue this practice. Our staff consists of Terry Ward-station manager, Jon Baker-assistant manager and program director, Keith Calder-news and production manager, Hobbs Sutton-business manager, Margaret Monroe-secretary, Linda Alexander, Jon Baker, Tony Creech, Margaret Monroe, Brad Wallis, Mark Leonard, Keith Calder, Sheryl Moore, Greg Larrimore, Robby Brewer, Anthony Hill, Doug Barbour, Rusty Walker, Ray Hyde, Tom Whitfield, David Vann, Kirk Grumbine, Dave Davis, Steve Shields, and Mike Harris - jocks. If you have any suggestions for programming changes, drop us a note or call us at 799-8224. We're responsive, we're honest and we're so cute! Stay tuned!

HOME CONCERT ENDS CHOIR'S SPRING TOUR

The spirited and highly disciplined singers of the 'University by the sea', UNC Wilmington spent spring break in an extensive 2000 mile, ten day midwestern tour. The choir presented the concerts in eight cities along a tour to St. Louis, Missouri and back, culminated by a homecoming concert in Wilmington on March 16.

A mobing and majestic double choir Bach Motet is the focal point of the choir's concert program. It is complemented by outstanding selections of both traditional and modern choral literature.

The Chancel Singers, a select group within the choir, entertains with the light and amusing modern madrigal drama, 'The Fable of Chicken Little', representing a cross section of the University's student body. Members of the 40 voice choir are chosen on the basis of their ability and their interest in singing the great works of choral music.

The Jessie Rehder Short Story Contest, sponsored by ATLANTIS and the English Department, is open to all UNC-W students. First prize is $100, second prize $50, third prize $30, and two honorable mentions - $10 each. All submissions should be turned in to the English Department, Keenan 203. Deadline for entries is March 14. There is a limit of two stories per student.

The contest is held each year in memory of Jessie Clifford Rehder, author and head of the creative writing program at UNC-Chapel Hill for many years. She died in 1967 after twenty years of service and devotion to writing and to young writers at UNC.

Jessie Rehder's own published work includes a well-received novel, 'Remembrance Way,' short stories, a collection of poetry, and two textbooks on writing: 'The Story at Work,' and 'The Young Writer at Work.' She also edited two anthologies: a book of poetry by writers from Randolph Macon and a collection of writing by students and teachers at UNC, published posthumously under the title

'Chapel Hill Carousel.'

In addition to her own literary works, Miss Rehder is probably best remembered for her devotion to her students. As Dr. C. Hugh Holman of the UNC-CH faculty said, "She had an explorer's eye for a talent among her students and friends and a passionate earnestness in bringing that talent into the light of day and encouraging its growth and flowering."

In this light, the Jessie Rehder Contest has been founded. Miss Rehder was born in Wilmington and attended public schools here. She could have felt, no doubt, personal satisfaction at the creative efforts of the Rehder contestants.

This year's judges will include Dr. Joanne Corbett, Dr. John Stokes, both faculty members of the UNC-W English Department and Michael Church, UNC-W graduate and former winner in the Jessie Rehder Contest. Winners will be announced at a reception on March 20 in the SR Theatre.

POWLES DONATE SHAKESPEARE LIKENESSES

A frame of likenesses of William Shakespeare, described and classified in THE STRAND MAGAZINE (September 1894) by Alexander Cargill of Edinburgh, has been presented to The University of North Carolina at Wilmington by Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Powles.

The collection shows all 19

likenesses of the Bard from the apocryphal to those regarded as genuine and is framed in oak and measures 52 by 41 inches.

The gift was presented to Chancellor or William H. Wagoner for the University on February 14 and is currently on display in the first-floor conference room of the William Madison Randall library.

Dr. Marie Powles is an assistant professor of English at UNC-W and has an outstanding collection of Shakespearean memorabilia which will be featured along with pieces from the collection of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. McCall in the March art exhibition at UNC-W.

BALLET

review by Pete Hager

The workings of a successful ballet are both complicated and often incomprehensible to many of its followers. But the Cincinnati Ballet Company's performance Wednesday night, February 25, in Kean's Auditorium extended far past an exhibition of physical and mental strength.

It offered precious glimpses into the future and past worlds of sexual conflicts and frivolous gaiety. All four of the Ballet's programs each equally dividing the two-hour performance, dealt with immensely different views of the human.

The opening dance, 'Diversissement Classique,' exposed just what one might expect from a ballet—young, attractive girls and robust men gracefully sunning, floating, and leaping about the stage. The classic-romantic style music was from 'La Peri' which is so added to the formal ballet stereotype with its flowing and pompous variations and arrangement.

The 'Beloved' followed 'Diversissement Classique' and displayed the blind violence and raging insanity of a religious fanatic who falsely accused his wife of infidelity and later murdered her. Because this dance interpreted an actual early-1900 news report account of the same murder, it was distressingly true and unavoidably a part of the human.

The 'Beloved' began with a distrustful husband and faithful wife sitting at a table, enveloped in low, ominous music. Within minutes, the husband suspected, without reason that his wife has been untrue. Her pleas of innocence were ignored as well as her attempt to reassure him of her loyalty with sensuous embraces and desperate clutches. He condemned her and ironically strangled her without consideration of forgiveness.

The third performance, 'Concerto,' hurried the audience into the dark, forboding unknowns of the future. The dancers adopted bold, black leotards with glittering silver triangles that were inverted on the chests and backs of the costumes.

'Concerto' expressed the impersonal, empty, harsh emotions of the future, along with a distinct inner shell of feelings. The inner part of the human yearns to love delicately and thoroughly as opposed to the outer, visible shell which will be geared strictly to erotic, shallow love.

As both abstract suggestions of love and life would change in dance, the music would change in mood. Harsh, unfeeling music dominated the mythical dances of the erotic love while soft, tender variations added compassion to the conflicting inner love.

'Frevo' Brazil's carnival street dance, was the final performance and clearly the most carefree. The dancers wore brightly colored, Caribbean style dress and danced wildly with the lively samba rhythms. The dancers outwardly enjoyed this unique, happy dance and the audience responded with dazzled grins and occasional bursts of shared laughter.

The Cincinnati Ballet Company has been in existence for twelve years at the University of Cincinnati College Conservatory of Music and is known worldwide. It has toured the Virgin Islands as well as many other parts of the country. And is presently touring North Carolina before returning to Cincinnati.

The dancers performed one encore and received several ovations. Their program was marred only by a sudden slip by a ballerina on the slick linoleum mat, and some other very minor irregularities.

Thus, David McLain, Artistic Director, his twenty-nine dancers, and staff offered UNC-W a glimpse of their particular kind of art and communication. It was a standing-room-only audience and considering the success of the performance, more dance programs seem in order.

MTB OVERCOMES OBSTACLES

Like many Southern bands before them, The Marshall Tucker Band has managed to overcome major obstacles in achieving their notoriety as one of the South's biggest groups. 'We're six people that nobody'd heard of, man,' explains lead guitarist Toy Caldwell from his home (and the band's base) in Spartanburg, South Carolina. 'Take Hydra, they were popular long before their first album was released. We didn't even have that going for us, we just sold this band through our own gigs. We went out there and played our asses off.'

'If you were a group of Southern musicians, up until recently the most you could ever hope to be was a club band. Before The Allman Brothers Band, hell, there wasn't anybody making it from the South. Then Wet Willie and Cowboy made records and now, bands like Lynyrd Skynyrd and Mose Jones are getting their break, too. People are starting to listen. Thanks to the Allmans, a Southern group can do more than just play the hits in some bar or discotheque.'

The emphasis on Spartanburg as The Marshall Tucker Band's hometown is not merely a cute promotional gimmick. All band members were childhood pals from the same South Carolina neighborhood and are deeply rooted in the archetypal country small town atmosphere. Toy and bassist brother Tommy, the group's main forces, are representative.

'My father loved country music, says Toy, 'and it was always around the house. That's the way we grew up. He had a casual band that got together to play square dances every now and then. Tommy and I would always go along and watch. We had a guitar duo. My father would have us play for friends at Christmas parties. We get up and strum all the Hank Williams tunes.'

In their early high school years, the Caldwell brothers decided to make their hobby a profession. Barely teenagers, they formed their first band and traveled the teen club circuit. Toy took the rock & roll route through The Rants ('I never did figure out what that meant'), which also featured George McCorkle on rhythm guitar. 'We were playing R & B songs and Beatles tunes because they were what was happening. Hank Williams didn't seem to make people want to dance so we went into the heavy stuff.' Tommy, meanwhile, had formed an R & B called The New Generation.

Both groups traveled the club circuit until 1966, when the draft called most of the Spartanburg musicians, including the Caldwell's, into the service. 'We all went in about the same time and got out about the same time,' says Toy. Completely detached from music the entire four years, Toy resumed gigging in the first weeks after his discharge. The first song, he penned, 'Can't You See,' was to become The Marshall Tucker Band's first hit single.

Yet, upon returning to Spartanburg, it was back to the discotheque grind again. Toy, along with ex-New Generation Doug Gray and sax-player Jerry Eubanks, formed the Toy Factory. Two years passed before The Marshall Tucker Band was formed with the intention of taking a more creative format. Tommy joined later, bringing with him George McCorkle and drummer Paul Riddle. They retired from the stage for six months to rehearse original material and record demos.

Toy: 'When we formed this band, we said 'Man, let's quit doing all this copy music and try to be a little more original about it all. Let's play what we want to play.' Everybody agreed and that's how this band got started. We all had day jobs. We quit to go for broke. I was a plumber. But we wanted to play what we wanted to play and the hell with everything else.'

I was this determination that began to surface in the band's aggressive and intensive style. Wet Willie, who shared the bill with Marshall Tucker at a Spartanburg nightclub, were impressed with the group's gritty flair. 'They heard our stuff and told us to take it to Phil Walden. Hell, I never heard of the cat. Still, we drove to Macon and dropped a tape off. We got a call the next day telling us to high-tail it down there for a weekend audition.'

Held at Grant's Lounge, the audition was an overwhelming success. As legend has it, Phil Walden danced in the aisles. As fact has it, they were signed the following Monday morning.

Their first album, The Marshall Tucker Band, shot into the low numbers of the charts and the group was thrust to the forefront. The group's position as show-openers for all the Allman Brothers' 1973 tours certainly didn't work against Marshall Tucker's success. 'The Brothers like us to play with them as much as we can,' explains Toy. 'And we love to.

It's the greatest exposure you could have. It's especially good for our band because the music is linked somewhat. Our songs flow right into their song. Those tours we did with them had a lot to do with this band's popularity. A whole lot of people saw and liked us. We sure can't say, 'No, man, we did it all on our own.' It would be a flat-out lie.'

The Marshall Tucker Band's follow-up album, A New Life, was released in early 1974 and did quite well on the national charts, staying on some 25 weeks. Reviewers proclaimed the band as the 'best new band to come out of the South' as well as declaring them 'ready for headliner status.'

And headliner status is exactly where The Marshall Tucker Band is at. A 2-city tour promoting their third and newest album, Where We All Belong, has been coordinated, beginning in early November and winding it up with twilights at San Francisco's Winterland in mid-December.

The dynamic power of a live performance combined with superbly smooth studio tracks makes up Where We All Belong. Sides one and two of the double record LP were recorded at Capricorn Sound Studios with Paul Hornsby producing. All seven recorded selections were written by Toy Caldwell with brother Tommy co-authoring 'Now She's Gone.' The additional six cuts include 'This Old Cowboy,' 'Low Down Ways,' 'In My Own Way,' 'How Can I Slow Down,' 'Where A Country Boy Belongs,' and 'Try One More Time.' Guests include slide guitarists Ervin Bishop and Johnny Vernazza; Charlie Daniels on fiddle; Andy Stein, fiddle; Steve Madaio, trumpet; Sam McPhearson, harp; Jerry Joseph, conga; Earl Ford, trombone; and producer Paul Hornsby on piano, organ, and clavinet.

Sides three and four on the LP were recorded live July 11 and 12 at the Performing Arts Center's Uhllein Hall in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, with special guest Charlie Daniels on fiddle. Songs include live selections from the Tuckers' first and second albums including 'Ramblin', '24 Hours a Day,' and 'Take The Highway,' all written by Toy Caldwell, along with B.B. King's 'Everyday I Have the Blues.' This combination has resulted in capturing the tight melow, fluid, down-to-earth studio selections.

The Marshall Tucker Band came out of the hills of South Carolina three years ago with just their instruments. Today, they have earned a reputation as one of the hardest-working, crowd-pleasing bands around the country. The group's new tour and double album will bring that fact right on home. It definitely is right where they belong.

The UNC-W Concert Committee will present The Marshall Tucker Band and Joe Droukas in the gym on Monday, March 17, 1975. Tickets are now on sale in the Pub and in town.

THE STILL POINT

I appreciate poetry and I would go another step... I enjoy it, but it has never been a mode of expression for me. Milton Boone was into free verse, but I cannot continue that style, though I will share some thoughts with you via this column. It's appropriate at this point to say something else about the gentle white-haired preacher. My reception on this campus has been one of warmth and openness and I must say "thank you" to Rev. Boone. Only a man of his integrity, sensitivity and understanding could have nurtured this new campus ministry through its early growing pains to a point where it will be able to spread its wings and fly. Let me continue with poetry and explain the title for this column. My wife, Ester, reminded me of a portion from T.S. Eliot's work "The Four Quarters."

still point
There would be no dance, and there is only the
dance."

T. S. Eliot has long been a favorite of mine and in the phrase, "the still point" he embodies for me the whole sense of Christian faith and life. The Still Point is anywhere, it is everywhere, it is the center and sense of all life, it is God, it is Christ. We continually encounter The Still Point and sometimes we are aware and other times we are not. All of life comes into focus at The Still Point, highs and lows, joy and sadness, humor and despair. The Still Point is not always where we expect it, but it's there. For me The Still Point brings life into focus and this column will attempt to encounter The Still Point. Some thoughts will be my own and some will be from others as they seem to mesh with our lives here at UNC-W. More later.

All women students who are interested in seeing the E.R.A. passed are invited to attend a conference. The meeting will take place in the Pub--in the men's room.

Secret sources have revealed that some professors are actually computers. Since they're disguised to look human, you can't tell which they are by their exterior. The only way to be sure is if they have a screw loose.

All classes on March 29 have been canceled. The date has been officially entitled "Ford Day" in dedication of our president's recent activities at home and abroad. The rule for the day is "do nothing."

Numerous UNC-W students, in their continuing pursuit of higher education, have submitted plans to the administration that a tree house be built at the entrance to the campus.

UNC-W is fortunate to possess the proficient philosophers, artistic musicians, erudite science professors, and even a few prominent writers which it employs. But added to the list of poets, dramatists, and empiricists, we have within our midst a man of the vine--Dr. Roger Hill.

Dr. Hill admits that he's still a country boy at heart, having grown up in the rural setting of Pink Hill, North Carolina, and hopes to raise his children in the same environment. Thus, in 1970, at Pink Hill, 75 miles north of Wilmington, Hill began an unusual endeavor for an Economics professor--grape-growing. After beginning with only one acre in 1970, Hill now has six acres of a rapidly maturing grape vineyard. His vineyard's production is up to ten tons of grapes yearly, about one third the average annual production of a fully grown vineyard. But Hill expects to reach the mark of 30 tons within the next few years.

Having the economist's background that he does, Hill reaps not only the pleasure of sharing the country with his family from the vineyard, but also financial rewards. Grape-growing is a business.

After each harvest (there are usually two or three pickings a week in late August and early September), the scuppernon grapes are trucked away for sale. The destinations for Hill's grapes are either a winery in Petersburg, Va., fresh markets here in Wilmington and other N.C. cities, or for his personal, home-made wine.

Growers and finds that much of his weekend and summer time is spent maintaining his Pink Hill vineyard.

"It's my golf," he said, smiling. "I used to play golf. But now I spend most of my time in the vineyard."

Hill, a professor of Economics, has been at UNC-W since the fall of 1970. In the fall of 1973, he was appointed to the Chair of the Bank of Finance in the Economics Department.

Hill attained his B.S. at North Carolina State University, his M.S. at Oklahoma State, and his Ph.D. at Michigan State University. He also has done post doctoral work at UNC-Chapel Hill.

Also before coming to UNC-W, Hill spent two years in New York City in market research, three and a half years in the University of Florida faculty, and two years at the University of Georgia.

Though grape businesses have been fairly lucrative in the past, Hill believes that because of the national economic situation grape profits have and will continue to drop. He explains it quite simply.

"If you don't quote me on anything else--make it clear that the law of supply and demand had not been repealed. It's still here, despite what anyone might say."

He leaned back in his chair and continued to casually doodle on his felt pad with his pencil. "We've proven that people are still responsive to the increase of costs. The price goes up--they quit buying--the demand goes down and the price follows."

Hill's view on the national economy are strictly fermented from the economist's standpoint--not the politician's. He feels strongly that there were no fuel, sugar, wheat, or what have you shortages. "There's been no shortages. A shortage exists only at a price."

Hill believes that inflation in this country is coming under control and also holds the view that the recession will bottom out by the end of 1975. However, he feels that the unemployment rate will remain near 5%-7% for several years.

He stated plainly that competition is the key to helping healtheen the economy. Competition will force businesses to become more efficient and lower the costs of their products or at least bring them under control.

Also Hill promotes an increase in national production, tax reliefs for individuals, budget cuts for the Federal Government spending, better expertise on regulating banks, and a moderate increase of the national money supply. Yet, Hill mentioned that the increase in the supply of money in the system will probably result in a 20% inflation rate in 1977.

With the reductions in the federal support of many educational services, the American universities have been forced to tighten their budget belts. "There's no doubt about it. Federal grants and other aid are going to be harder to find," said Hill. "Colleges are going to have to take a look at their programs and have judicious adoptions of any new ones."

Though the present enrollment in public universities have increased substantially, Hill feels that as the unemployment rate decreases over the next few years, youths will leave their relatively inexpensive college lives for those new jobs. Therefore fairly stabilizing enrollments.

Although some administrators see the quantity of alumni as the main college objective. Hill sees it quite differently.

"What we're doing is selling education," he said. "But with that, the principle objective is to stimulate the students into learning. Not how many papers you can shuffle across your desk each day."

The conclusion is simple. Though things appear dismal and precarious, it's nice to know you can settle back and enjoy a wine indirectly provided to you by an optimistic economist.

Buy "Mother Vineyard Scuppernon White" wine. Dr. Hill admits that it's not the best scuppernon wine made, but at least he's honest about it.

THE STILL POINT

I appreciate poetry and I would go another step... I enjoy it, but it has never been a mode of expression for me. Milton Boone was into free verse, but I cannot continue that style, though I will share some thoughts with you via this column. It's appropriate at this point to say something else about the gentle white-haired teacher. My reception on this campus has been one of warmth and openness and I must say "thank you" to Rev. Boone. Only a man of his integrity, sensitivity and understanding could have nurtured this new campus ministry through its early growing pains to a point where it will be able to spread its wings and fly.

Let me continue with poetry and explain the title for this column. My wife, Ester, reminded me of a portion from T.S. Eliot's work "The Four Quarters."

"Except for the point, the

still point
There would be no dance,
and there is only the
dance."

T. S. Eliot has long been a favorite of mine and in the phrase, "the still point" he embodies for me the whole sense of Christian faith and life. The Still Point is anywhere, it is everywhere, it is the center and sense of all life, it is God, it is Christ.

We continually encounter The Still Point and sometimes we are aware and other times we are not. All of life comes into focus at The Still Point, highs and lows, joy and sadness, humor and despair. The Still Point is not always where we expect it, but it's there. For me The Still Point brings life into focus and this column will attempt to encounter The Still Point. Some thoughts will be my own and some will be from others as they seem to mesh with our lives here at UNC-W. More later.

reported by darlene pearsall

All women students who are interested in seeing the E.R.A. passed are invited to attend a conference. The meeting will take place in the Pub—in the men's room.

Secret sources have revealed that some professors are actually computers. Since they're disguised to look human, you can't tell which they are by their exterior. The only way to be sure is if they have a screw loose.

All classes on March 29 have been canceled. The date has been off daily entitled "Ford Day" in dedication of our president's recent activities at home and abroad. The rule for the day is "do nothing."

Numerous UNC-W students, in their continuing pursuit of higher education, have submitted plans to the administration that a tree house be built at the entrance to the campus.

The biology department, after recently completing experimental brain dissections on various small animals, has discovered that they have one brain that's unaccounted for. If you're missing one, contact Ms. Linda Moore of the Lost-and-Found.

MAN OF THE VINE - DR. HILL

UNC-W is fortunate to possess the proficient philosophers, artistic musicians, erudite science professors, and even a few prominent writers which it employs. But added to the list of poets, dramatists, and empiricists, we have within our midst a man of the vine-- Dr. Roger Hill.

Dr. Hill admits that he's still a country boy at heart, having grown up in the rural setting of Pink Hill, North Carolina, and hopes to raise his children in the same environment. Thus, in 1970, at Pink Hill, 75 miles north of Wilmington, Hill began an unusual endeavor for an Economics professor--grape-growing.

After beginning with only one acre in 1970, Hill now has six acres of a rapidly maturing grape vineyard. His vineyard's production is up to ten tons of grapes yearly, about one third the average annual production of a fully grown vineyard. But Hill expects to reach the mark of 30 tons within the next few years.

Having the economist's background that he does, Hill reaps not only the pleasure of sharing the country with his family from the vineyard, but also financial rewards. Grape-growing is a business.

After each harvest (there are usually two or three pickings a week in late August and early September), the scuppernong grapes are trucked away for sale. The destinations for Hill's grapes are either a winery in Petersburg, Va., fresh markets here in Wilmington and other N.C. cities, or for his personal, home-made wine.

Growers and finds that much of his weekend and summer time is spent maintaining his Pink Hill vineyard.

"It's my golf," he said, smiling. "I used to play golf. But now I spend most of my time in the vineyard."

Hill, a professor of Economics, has been at UNC-W since the fall of 1970. In the fall of 1973, he was appointed to the Chair of the Bank of Finance in the Economics Department.

Hill attained his B.S. at North Carolina State University, his M.S. at Oklahoma State, and his Ph.D. at Michigan State University. He also has done post doctoral work at UNC-Chapel Hill.

Also before coming to UNC-W, Hill spent two years in New York City in market research, three and a half years in the University of Florida faculty, and two years at the University of Georgia.

Though grape businesses have been fairly lucrative in the past, Hill believes that because of the national economic situation grape profits have and will continue to drop. He explains it quite simply. "If you don't quote me on anything else--make it clear that the law of supply and demand had not been repealed. It's still here, despite what anyone might say."

He leaned back in his chair and continued to casually doodle on his felt pad with his pencil. "We've proven that people are still responsive to the increase of costs. The price goes up--they quit buying--the demand goes down and the price follows."

Hill's view on the national economy are strictly fermented from the economist's standpoint--not the politician's. He feels strongly that there were no fuel, sugar, wheat, or what have you shortages. "There's been no shortages. A shortage exists only at a price."

Hill believes that inflation in this country is coming under control and also holds the view that the recession will bottom out by the end of 1975. However, he feels that the unemployment rate will remain near 5%-7% for several years.

He stated plainly that competition is the key to helping healtheen the economy. Competition will force businesses to become more efficient and lower the costs of their products or at least bring them under control.

Also Hill promotes an increase in national production, tax reliefs for individuals, budget cuts for the Federal Government spending, better expertise on regulating banks, and a moderate increase of the national money supply. Yet, Hill mentioned that the increase in the supply of money in the system will probably result in a 20% inflation rate in 1977.

With the reductions in the federal support of many educational services, the American universities have been told to tighten their budget belts.

"There's no doubt about it. Federal grants and other aid are going to be harder to find," said Hill. "Colleges are going to have to take a look at their programs and have judicious adoptions of any new ones."

Though the present enrollment in public universities have increased substantially, Hill feels that as the unemployment rate decreases over the next few years, youths will leave their relatively inexpensive college lives for those new jobs. Therefore fairly stabilizing enrollments.

Although some administrators see the quantity of alumni as the main college objective. Hill sees it quite differently.

"What we're doing is selling education," he said. "But with that, the principle objective is to stimulate the students into learning. Not how many papers you can shuffle across your desk each day."

The conclusion is simple. Though things appear dismal and precarious, it's nice to know you can settle back and enjoy a wine indirectly provided to you by an optimistic economist.

Dr. Cleo Dawson to speak

by paul heuhner

Dr. Cleo Dawson will speak on Campus Thursday night, March 20, at 8:00 p.m., in King Hall auditorium (Education and Psychology Building). She is sponsored by the University Lecture Series; admission is free.

Dr. Dawson has been called the 'dynamo' of the American lecture circuit because of her fast-paced tours which have taken her from Los Angeles to Boston and from Louisville to Seattle.

In addition to her lectures, she has found time to appear repeatedly on such TV shows as Merv Griffin, Steve Allen,

Jack Parr, and Virginia Graham. She has written a novel, 'She came to the Valley,' as a memento to her pioneer family's contribution to the developing of the lower valley of the Rio Grande. The book has recently been purchased by a Hollywood movie producer and will be released as a movie in the near future.

Dr. Dawson holds a degree in psychology and specializes in the study of men and women—their joys and sorrow, their faults and virtues. Some of her popular lectures have been reprinted in Reader's Digest: 'Fear Takes a Holiday,' 'How to Manage a Woman,' 'Twentieth Century, Head On!,' 'Youth at the Threshold,' 'The Throughway to Happiness,' 'Love,' and the lecture for Thursday night: 'Let's Live and Like it.'

One of her recent targets is the women's liberation movement. Her message to the female segment of her audience in a recent lecture was: 'We're going to have to understand men better. You see men and women feel different about things. They feel different because they are different—and people act and react according to how they feel, not how they think.'

'Men have larger hearts, need more oxygen and die off sooner than women. A man's feelings go in a straight line, up and down,' she continued.

'Women's feelings, by contrast, . . . go 'round and 'round. We have resilience; we have fluidity.'

The Los Angeles Free Press called 'Dynamo Dawson a "cross between Mae West and Billy Graham, a transsexualized Oral Roberts turned comedienne.' Whatever her topic she generates an energy, an emotional vitality laced with fire and brimstone.

SMITH RE-ELECTED STUDENT NURSE STATE PRESIDENT

UNC-W senior Charles S. Smith was reelected President of the Student Nurse Association of North Carolina at that organization's state convention last weekend in Raleigh.

Smith, who is in his final year of the Associate Degree in Nursing program here, will continue his studies in nursing next year at UNC-Chapel Hill. He was elected President of SNANC last year in Greensboro, the first male ever to hold that office.

In running for a second term, Smith stated that one of SNANC's biggest problems in the past had been continuity. 'There was a complete turnover in state officers every year with the result of lack of continuity in dealing with and understanding of organizational issues and programs.'

He hopes to help effect a continuation to plans and projects during his second term. 'We have a unique situation in that both myself and the second vice president on the state level have served on the Executive Board in those capacities this year. It should mean great things for State.'

Communication between all levels of the Student Nurse organizations is another facet that Smith hopes to continue working to improve. 'People can't get involved in something they don't know anything about.

We just want them to see a little bit about SNA - what it's all about and how much they can learn by getting involved. I think everyone who gets into SNA learns an incredible amount - about themselves, about nursing, and about other people.'

Smith will be competing for the national vice-presidency at the April NSNA convention in Philadelphia, proving that involvement is a perpetual thing. He is involved in SNA on a local district, state and national level.

How does he do it and manage to work full time and go to school? It's not easy, he will tell you, and it's mainly sleep and social events he forfeits. He is a full-time Nursing Technician at New Hanover Memorial Hospital, which keeps him busy five days a week 3-11 p.m.

He feels that what he's learning will enable him to be a better nurse.

Smith was joined at the Convention by several other students from UNC-W. Kahl Beall and Debbie Lewis served as delegates to the convention. Harvey Waite was an alternate delegate from UNC-W. Also in attendance were Mercedes Tan, and Miss Mary Alice Whitfield, Local SNA Advisor and Associate Professor of Nursing at UNC-W.

40 ROCK MUSICAL TUNES IN "AMERICAN GRAFFITI"

A nostalgic look back ten or so years, illustrated through the music of the period, the motor vehicles and the part they played in the lives of the protagonists, and the last 12 hours of night for four high school graduates before going on to new pursuits, form the basis for the hilarious comedy in Technicolor, "American Graffiti."

It stars Richard Dreyfuss, Ronny Howard, Paul Le Mat and Charlie Martin Smith as the graduates, Candy Clark, Mackenzie Phillips and Cindy Williams, as their girl-friends, and Wolfman Jack, the well-known disc jockey, whose broadcast through the night presents the more than 40 rock musical numbers of the era.

George Lucas directed, and wrote the picture in collaboration with Gloria Katz and Willard Huyck. Francis Ford Coppola, winner of the Oscar for directing "The Godfather," produced and Gary Kurtz was co-producer. Lucas admits the story does pay homage to his own youth, and in so doing touches nostalgia in everyone. Now aged 28, he was the same age as the leads in the story 10 years ago when it takes place in a northern California town (Lucas was born in Modesto, California). This is the second feature for the director who graduated from the Cinema school at the University of Southern California. His previous film was "THX 1138" which received critical plaudits as a visual tour de force.

A fast-paced rhythm is set by the radio show's broadcast of rock music provided in the film by deejay Wolfman Jack. He's a secret friend and every kid imagines him differently. The songs represent the hopes, dreams and absurd comedies of the beginning of the JFK-New Frontier — back when kids still looked at the world with awe and the music was sweeter. MCA Records has put all the music into a sound track album, "American Graffiti" was filmed in and around the towns of Petaluma and San Rafael, California, across the bay from San Francisco, in an area which has resisted the encroachment of developers and has not changed radically since 1962.

BUD, ABC ask students to pitch in, clean up

Colleges and universities throughout the country are being invited to participate in the second annual National College Pitch In Week April 7-11.

Instituted last year, the event will again be co-sponsored by Budweiser Beer and the ABC Contemporary Radio Network. It is based on the nationwide Pitch In anti-litter program. Participation may be from the entire student body or approved individual campus organizations.

The basic idea is for college students to team up in ridding their campus and/or surrounding community of a litter problem. This year, participants are also encouraged to consider projects such as tree-planting and park beautification.

Grand prizes consisting of $1000 educational scholarships will be awarded in each of five regions for the most creative and effective Pitch In efforts.

Over 300 colleges and organizations participated in the 1974 effort. The Grand Prize Winners were University of Hawaii, University of Houston, Pennsylvania State University, Kent State University and Florida A&M University.

To enter this year's competition, colleges or organizations should send a letter indicating their desire to participate to: 1975 College Pitch In Week, ABC Contemporary Radio Network, 1330 Avenue of the Americas, New York, New York, 10019.

To be eligible for this year's awards, colleges or organizations must submit evidence of their participation. Documentation of their efforts may be in the form of written summary along with photos, newspaper clippings, audio tapes, motion picture film, official letters of appreciation from civic officials, etc. Reports on individual Pitch In projects must be reported no later than May 16, 1975.

$1000 educational awards, along with five runner-up winners of $500 awards, will be selected by a panel of judges in New York. All entries become the property of ABC Contemporary Radio Network.

The sponsors point out that College Pitch In Week gives concerned students an opportunity to work together on a worthwhile project with both immediate and lasting benefits to their campuses and communities. Research shows that littered areas attract more litter, but clean areas influence people to behave more considerably.

So...

Music Dept. Adds Ping to Teaching Staff

Mrs. Nancy Ping is a new addition to the music department of UNC-W. She came to UNC-W in the fall of 1974.

Mrs. Ping's musical instruments are the piano and flute. She has taught piano lessons for 20 years.

Mrs. Ping received her B.M. from Indiana University and her M.M. from the University of Northern Colorado. Both of these degrees are for Piano. Mrs. Ping is currently a Ph.D.

candidate at the University of Colorado in Musicology.

Originally from Chattanooga, Tennessee, Mrs. Ping has lived in several states and even spent five years in Germany. Mrs. Ping and her family have moved a total of 19 times.

Amazingly, while Mrs. Ping has been pursuing her education she has also been raising three children. They range in age from 7-14. They were all born in the summer, added Mrs. Ping with a laugh.

Mrs. Ping teaches Music of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, Music Theory I, Piano Class and gives private lessons. In addition to teaching Mrs. Ping plays flute in the Community Orchestra and plays piano in various ensembles and piano trios.

Mrs. Ping and her family moved here from Colorado. 'Hopefully this is the last move,' Mrs. Ping finds Wilmington a delightful change from Colorado. 'I love the flora after being Colorado,' Mrs. Ping said.

The family purchased a sailboat recently. 'I haven't even tried it out yet. In addition to the sailboat Mrs. Ping enjoys painting. She has even sold some of her works. Mrs. Ping added, regretfully, 'I haven't had much time lately.'

When asked about UNC-W, Mrs. Ping replied, 'I really like it.' She has found UNC-W a change from a large school like the University of Colorado. Mrs. Ping added she liked the 'close relationship between the teacher and student in a school of this size.' Mrs. Ping said that she 'preferred the kind of atmosphere that UNC-W offers.'

CLUB TO SEE

'CELESTINA'

Spain's National Theater looking forward to the Raleigh in April to attend 'La Celestina,' a classic of the Spanish stage. The performance is sponsored by North Carolina State University and the Division of Public Instruction.

This performance will be at the Stewart Theater on the N.C.S.U. campus in Raleigh, N.C. 'La Celestina' will be shown at 8:00 p.m. on April 1.

The production will be performed in Spanish by the Compania de Teatro Repertorio Espanol of New York.

'La Celestina' deals with the conflict between the aristocracy and the lower classes and between idealism and reality. This work is perhaps the first European drama to honestly and openly treat the themes of prejudice, eroticism and delinquency. It depicts the corruption underlying an apparently prosperous society.

Anyone wanting more information concerning this trip should contact Mr. Carlos Perez in the Modern Languages Department.

Tickets will be $2.00 for Spanish Club members and $3.00 for others. There will also be a small charge for transportation.

UTA adds dragging to intramurals

Arlington, Tex. -- Sandra Tidwell, a junior majoring in business administration at the U of Texas at Arlington, is among many students expected to enter the National College Drag Racing Ms. Tidwell plans on running her '70 Vette 350 four barrel.

The race, sponsored by the Intramura: Department at UTA, will be held April 5 at Green Valley Race City at Fort Worth, Tex.

"This is something that no other college has," said Jim Garrett, UTA Intramural Director. "I think that a program such as this is needed. It gives kids a place to go to drag and compete for awards, and gets them off the streets."

The past three years Garrett and the department has sponsored the "Texas College Drag Racing Championship" for Texas college students only.

In 1972, 163 cars from throughout Texas gathered at Dallas International Motor Speedway for the state and nation's first college drag races. In 1973, participants from 24 colleges and universities from across the state attended.

Last year's Texas champ was Jay Guthrie from SMU driving a stock 73 Pinto. The 73 winner was Jerry Richards of Tarrant County Junior College, and the winner in 72 was Mike Dunn of UTA.

The race is for male and female college students only and will be governed by American Hot Rod Association rules. All types of cars may enter from hayhauling pickups to rail jobs and each has the same chance to win. A current school ID card or driver's license with photo will be required at the inspection station at the track. Racers without IDs will be eliminated.

The car and pit entry fee is $3. Spectators fee is $2 and will be paid at the track. Official entry will be the day of the race. Pre-entries are not required.

Time trials will be the day of the race starting at 9 a.m. Finals start at 2 p.m. The total number of entries will be divided into eight equal elapsed time brackets according to time trials. To make all cars equal in each bracket a handicap will be used by letting the slowest car of the two racing have a head start.

No cars will be eliminated during the time trials.

Winners of the eight divisions will be awarded trophies, tee shirts, and merchandise certificates or gifts and then run for the top eliminator trophy and the National College Drag Racing Championship.

DAVID

Finally, after getting things together as the Seahawk is going again, it is nice to be back and attempting to let you know what some of the newer LP's are like. With the first two articles this semester pertaining to albums recorded in 1974, (Electra Light Orchestra, Jan. 22 and Fleetwood Mac, Feb. 27), I had plans to start the '75 year with the new Led Zepelln LP. Unfortunately, the album has sold out around town and so Led Zep fans will have to wait until the stores are restocked.

As for now, the BOWIE, YOUNG AMERICANS LP is the closest to being as good as any album released this year.

YOUNG

"I heard the news today, oh boy"
I got a suit and you got defeat.
Ain't there a man who can say no more?
Ain't there a woman I can sock on the jaw?
Ain't there a child I can hold without judging?
Ain't there a pen that will write before they die?

Ain't you proud that you've still got faces,
And ain't there one damn song that can make me break down and cry?

Bowie
"Young Americans"
1974

1974 was the year all the superstars attempted massive tours of the globe. Bowie included. With his summer-fall tour, Bowie was gladly received by many and concluded his tour with his only double LP DAVID LIVE. The live album received almost every type rating possible. Janis Schacht of CIRCUS magazine said, "The versions of the material . . . are so totally unlike any version David's ever put on record before and maybe it's because there are songs such as "All The Young Dudes" and "Knock On Wood" never recorded by David before that I'm happy with this set."

On the other hand, Rolling Stone gave the album a bad review as it said, "Bowie also indulges the greater weakness of taking himself too seriously."

This year has found Bowie in some trouble in his home town. As his image has changed from album to album, groups like Sparks and Roxi Music have constantly given him a fight in chart possession and will continue to do so.

In America, we find people who do not know if they like Bowie or not. Here again we find that they like him very much on one LP and hate him on another due to the image change.

With YOUNG AMERICANS as his first 1975 album I think most will find image not that important and music the deciding factor.

"Young Americans," the single cut and title song is one of the strongest written Bowie songs ever. This song may even top anything from his Ziggy Stardust LP. The lyrics are the best yet and produce an excellent portrait of American life today. Nixon, bills depression, and anything else going on in the U.S. is in the song. Lines like "Well it ain't that Barbie Doll, Her hearts have been broken just like you" as well as the verse at the beginning of this article may one day be studied as good examples of twentieth century literature.

This is not to say anything about the musical quality of the song as this too contributes to its greatness.

The most noticable addition is that of the sax, played by David Sanborn of the old Paul Butterfield Blues Band. Then the backing vocals are noticed and prove to be the best controlled on any Bowie LP.

The second cut, "Win," shows the pace to that similar to a John Lennon song and may have been influenced by Lennon as he later appears on the second side.

Once again Bowie proves an excellent lyricist, making the song inferior to its fore-runner only musically. Then again, when not compared to "Americans" you find "Win" just as strong and very soulful.

"Fascination" and "Right" close side one with the latter containing the best of Bowie's soul sound and worst of his lyrics. It almost seems as if he used the song as foil to show the excellence of the other tracks.

Side two opens with "Somebody Up There Likes Me" and Bowie returns to well written and performed material. He's got his eye on your soul, his hand on your heart. He says "Don't hurry baby Somebody up there likes me."

and this is what the song is all about. "Across The Universe" is the next cut and is an old Beatle song. It is similar to the material on Bowie's PINUPS LP, but is recorded much better. Lennon plays guitar on this one, adding an extra fizz to the number.

The only true slow track on the LP is next and is entitled, "Can You Hear Me." The song is nice and adds variety to the album even if it is not needed.

Ending the album is a first in that "Fame" is written by Bowie, and yes, John Lennon. The song is very unusual yet the most interesting on the album. Lennon once again joins in on guitar and vocals. Another backing vocalist is Jean Millington, who is presently singer and bassist for the female group, FANNY.

The lyrics of "Fame" are very similar to those of "Time" on the Aladdin Sane LP, but the music is definitely a combination of Bowie and Lennon. The song must really be heard to be appreciated.

To conclude: the YOUNG AMERICANS has got to be one of the best albums of 1975. The recording is excellent. Almost all the lyrics are very well written, and the music very well performed. There is something the album has that is never tiring and could interest anyone who likes both rock and soul music. If Bowie's image is the factor that makes the record bad it can be blamed on the narrow-minded listener and not the LP itself. Till then, Rock Out.

THE STILL POINT

Easter is past as a holiday and no chance to put any thots in writing before-hand, so I belatedly share these mental meanderings with you. Charles Dickens has written many books and stories but I think my favorite has been A Christmas Carol. I have frightening but warm memories of a children's storybook rendition and the fascinating old television adaptations of clanking chains and Scrooge's dreams. Recently, I enjoyed it even more when Esther and I went to one of the openings of the British film "Scrooge" while we were in Edinburgh. It brought back all the 'neat' feelings and memories which have surrounded that story for me.

All of this moves on to say we might rename the story at least in our imaginations if not in actuality 'A Christmas Carol' might also be titled, 'An Easter Anthem,' Titter, Titter, you say; but wait and let me finish. Scrooge was as mean and selfish an old skinflint as it is possible to imagine; his heart was cold to every generous impulse and kindly emotion. In the course of the story, however, he is led to see how hateful and hard he has become and in the end his old spirit dies and a new spirit rises within him.

Scrooge inhabits the same body, but he is no longer the same man. He was a withered old miser, and was transformed into a kind-hearted and loving old gentleman. It is the story of the resurrection of a dead spirit; and after all, is that not what Easter is all about?

A Christmas Carol? - An Easter Anthem? It can happen anytime.

DEAR DARLENE

BY DARLENE PEARSALE

Dear Darlene,

All my friends used to be worms. I loved to be surrounded by them - especially earthworms. I took them with me to all of my classes and kept them on my desk while studying.

One day, however, one of my little friends wiggleed up close to some french fries I was eating and ended up covered in catsup. Well, the worm looked so appetizing that I couldn't resist eating it. Ever since then I've been eating worms anytime and anywhere I find them. Can you help me? Worm-eater

Dear Worme,
I can't help you unless you tell me your problem.

Dear Darlene,
I'm in love with ten women all at the same time. It used to be a lot of fun but now I feel like settling down and getting married. The problem is that I don't know which one to marry. I love them all equally. What should I do?
LoveLorn

Dear Lovelo,
I've heard of laws against someone marrying two people at the same time but never against marrying ten. Go ahead and marry all ten. What have you got to lose except a little sleep?

Have you got a problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write Dear Darlene in care of the Cherry Mental Hospital.

FACULTY PROFILE: DR. JAMES MEGIVERN....

by pete hager
photos by neal huntley

A Dedication to Liberal Learning

The United States has always boasted the privilege of flying the brilliant flags of honor and Christian brotherhood above its government buildings. Yet the nation constantly finds itself engaged in grotesque wars, political corruption, racism, and the armament of foreign armies for additional wars. Hopefully, at one time or another, one will stop and ask why.

Dr. James Megivern is the Chairman of the Philosophy and Religion department at UNC-W, and just happens to be a very qualified person to discuss the problems.

Dr. Megivern admits that for the most part the Vietnam War was an absurdity, and that the United States approaches its problems pragmatically and with little foresight. Though he believes the national government lacks long-range planning ability and often muddles its way through one crisis to another, he also states that this day-to-day approach has its strengths at times—such as in the Cuban Missile Crisis.

Megivern looked away and gazed out the window in solemn concentration when asked about youth's different outlooks toward the government in the present seventies as opposed to the hot, anti-war sixties.

"I think the exposure of Watergate, the Ellsberg Break-in, Pentagon Papers, the CIA and FBI involvements, and everything else has helped restore some confidence in the system," he said, assuredly. "We checked it before it went too far. We saw it vomit up its sickness and we didn't let it fester and become totally cancerous. It made everyone more realistic and aware that the system is fragile, and that in all human affairs things are easily broken."

In the late sixties, in the heat of the Vietnam War, Megivern attended antiwar demonstrations in New York where he realized the intense frustrations of the demonstrators.

"I found myself in sympathy with much of the protest—not completely, but considerably," he said.

But there were few ears "attuned" to the protestors' shouts of war atrocities and political corruption. Yet now people are quick to believe exposures of secret bombings in Indo-China and illegal political campaign antics.

In 1972, Megivern attended the counter-inauguration in Washington D.C.

"I was at the counter-inaugural at the same time Nixon was being sworn in. It was an armed riot then. I never would have thought a man with that much power could have fallen so quickly under legal government process. I can't think of that happening anywhere else—except maybe England."

Because of the partial restoration of trust in the national system of government, Megivern feels that the outlook of today's youth is more keen to real problems because they are better informed of government fragilities and abilities than the concerned youth of the sixties.

There are three priorities which Megivern hopes the UNC-W Department of Philosophy and Religion can continue—as begun by Dr. B.F. Hall:

Effective teaching through worthwhile classes that stimulate real learning, is the first goal. Three ingredients Dr. Megivern believes are vital to an effective teaching environment: mutual respect between the students and instructor, full competence of the instructor in his field, and an instructor's real commitment to making the classroom experience significant for the student.

A second priority is the effort at objective presentation of subject matter by the instructor and the absence of advocacy.

"I'm not there to tell them what I think," said Megivern, showing a warm smile which constantly puts you at ease. "On the basis of academics, I'm there to present the basic insights of a given area as understood in contemporary scholarship and research, and to discuss different viewpoints concerning the material."

As a result, criticism is an other essential ingredient in the learning experience. Megivern feels that in the pursuit of scholarship, constructive criticism of all areas is needed to "expose intellectual weaknesses."

Thus it is just as important to raise objections to the extremism of the far right, such as Ayn Rand, as to the extremism of the far left such as in Karl Marx.⁶

After having been educated in Pennsylvania, New York and Europe, Megivern earned his doctor of theology at the University of Fribourg in Switzerland, where he graduated summa cum laude. He received the S.S.L. degree in Rome for post-doctoral biblical studies.

Following four years as Chairman of the Department of Theology at Saint John's University in Jamaica, New York, he was named to the University Honor Society. He was also made honorary Doctor of Divinity by the Moravian Theological Seminary in Bethlehem, Pa., as well as being elected to a monthly New Testament Seminar, which is sponsored by the Columbia University faculty.

In addition, Megivern directed for four years a training program for para-professionals in the South Bronx district of the New York City Board of Education. He also taught part-time at Queensborough Community College, Fordham University, and in the graduate program at Manhattan College.

Most of Dr. Megivern's teaching emphasis is placed upon history. "The broad spectrum of courses in this University reflects the great Western ideal of a 'liberal education,' meant to free us from the chains of ignorance, prejudice, and error. In this process of enabling us to become truly free human beings, knowledge of history plays a crucial role."

"Unless we know where we've come from, we can never hope to know who we are or where we might yet go in the future."

PI KAPPA

Around campus, students quite frequently discuss fraternity living. As in most situations, some like it; some do not.

how do the majority of the students "really" feel about fraternities? Are fraternity brothers looked up to and respected as much as it seems, or is this played up a bit? How some students feel about this subject is revealed in the following responses.

Debbie: "What is your opinion on fraternities in general?"

Jenny: "I think they're fine. I guess, but I'd just as soon be living in the dorm. It's easier to stay clear of trouble that way!"

"In the dorm, there are specific rules to follow. If we don't, they'll crack down on us—mildly, though."

Debbie: "How do you feel about fraternity brothers?"

Jenny: "Girls are forever getting themselves hung up on some brother who is by no means interested in anyone but himself and his so-called 'title.' I can't see it! There's too many other guys around to end up crying over some dude who doesn't care."

Debbie: "Do you think fraternities are as prestigious now as they were in the past?"

Sue: "Yes, I think so! Most people have a lot to say about fraternities, but in most cases, it's just jealousy. I'd be proud to date a brother. At least they prove that they try by keeping high averages. Most of them are dedicated, too. They stick together."

Debbie: "Have you ever been to a fraternity party?"

Sue: "Yes, I've been to a few. I thought it was a lot of fun, kind of like one big happy family."

Debbie: "How do you feel about fraternities?"

Jim: "I don't need them! It's not that I'm envious of them, but I have no intentions of ever joining one."

Debbie: "You sound as if you're definitely against them. Is there any particular reason for this dislike of fraternities?"

Jim: "I feel it's just like any other big position. For example, take President Nixon. He got in there as a real big one, but in my opinion, by thinking his name tag could free him from any outside hassles, he developed an overinflated ego. He came down though, and hard!"

"These fraternity brothers act like they're special, the title bit and all, but one day they'll realize the truth."

Debbie: "Who do you feel are more partial towards fraternities, the male or female students on campus?"

Ted: "Probably the females. In their eyes, dating a fraternity brother is like dating Mark Spitz. I mean, it sort of symbolizes integrity."

Debbie: "Would you like to become a member of a fraternity?"

Ted: "Sure, who wouldn't? In all honesty, I don't think there's a guy around that would actually turn the opportunity down. Most of them brag that they don't need them, but that's only from a childish, one-sided point of view!"

Debbie: "In other words, do you feel that by being a member of a fraternity, you would be honored by the position?"

Ted: "Well, yes and no! I'm not crying because I'm not a member, but I'm sure not knocking it, either."

Debbie: "How do you feel being in a fraternity affects most guys today?"

Ann: "I think living in a fraternity is, or should be, an honor, but some guys get big-headed about it. I really don't think too much about them."

Due to limited space, all of the interviews have not been included in this article. The outcome of the interviews showed that six out of ten girls were basically in favor of fraternities. The other two were totally "down" on the idea, having nothing pleasant to contribute. The remaining two girls had no opinions on fraternities and apparently were not interested.

Surprisingly, the male interviews were quite different. Five out of ten of the male students felt fraternities were a total waste of time and money. The remaining five were in favor of fraternities and found absolutely no fault with them.

The UNC-W baseball team split a 2-game series with the Maryland Terrapins March 22 and 23.

On Saturday, the Seahawks won their seventh game of the year by defeating Maryland 5-2. Phil Lambert was the winning pitcher. Bo Pittman drove in the Hawks first run and Ivey doubled home two in the second after Howie Edgerton singled home Randy Ourt. The Hawks scored their final run in the fifth inning when Pittman singled and drove in Edgerton.

In the 2nd game with Maryland, the Hawks suffered their 5th setback of the season, losing by a score of 2-0. In the other games last week Dartmouth defeated the Hawks twice by scores of 10-8 and 8-2. UNC-W defeated Dartmouth once, 9-5, and East Stroudsburg State 9-4. The Hawks travel to Fayetteville April 3 for a 2:30 p.m. encounter with Fayetteville State University.

Julie's

In intramural volleyball, the best team by far has got to be the co-ed team of Coach Julie Barden. Julie's Jubilees are undefeated after four games, having played the Six Million Dollar Men, Pyridines, Phi Kap, and the Sky Rockets (by forfeit). These "all male" teams apparently thought it would be a cinch to beat Julie's Jubilees, that is, before the game. Pre-game smirks were often heard when the guys found out that they would also be playing against girls. Ok, all other teams, watch out, cause JULIE'S JUBILEES ARE PURE DYNAMITE! Members of this team are Pamela Brown, Jan Donahue, Taimsi Alford, Janis Hoke, Jerry Dixon, Kim Lee, Kent Flowers, and Charles Ashton.

Fishy!

The fishing team of UNC-W, which was just organized two weeks ago, went to Myrtle Beach, S.C. to compete in the 2nd Annual Coastal Carolina Invitational Fishing Tournament and won. Serving as a replacement for Notre Dame, the Hawks reeled in 267 total pounds of fish to edge out Yale University, University of Western Ontario, Coastal Carolina, and defending champion Francis Marion. Members of the newly formed fishing team are Dennis Steele, David Willis, Ted Kainen, Tim Heywood, and Coach John Scalf.

COFFEE HOUSE?

The White Whale, The Rathskellar, The Place... whatever the name at whatever the school, coffeehouses are popular campus places.

Usually open during the evening hours only, coffeehouses offer a limited menu but a wide range of things to do. Low budget entertainers are booked on certain nights, along with student performers. Magic shows, ventriloquists, poetry readings - you name it, and college coffeehouses offer it. Sound like a good idea? The Student Activities Office thinks so, and is now working on plans for UNC-W's own coffeehouse. To be located in the old Seahawk office on the first floor of the Pub, the coffeehouse will utilize the plumbing and electrical connections left there when the snack bar moved from the Pub to its present location in early 1972. Horizon Associates, a local design firm, will help plan this area to be as efficient as possible. Later expansion of the facility is expected.

Student input as to atmosphere for the room is needed now. Have any ideas? Do you prefer Old English, a rustic look, or something modern? Stop by Ms. Linda Moore's office in the Pub soon, and plan to attend the designing sessions!

SGA OFFICERS INSTALLED

The new SGA offices were held March 25 at "Tuesday's." The ceremony was presided over by the Attorney General Robert Moore.

The formal affair officially installed Mr. Steve Houos as SGA President, Miss Carol Moore as Vice-President, and Miss Sharon Davis as Secretary.

Hobb's initial speech in the Presidency stressed the need for "cooperation and unity" in SGA. He also pointed out that "a feeling of mutual understanding must be established between all members of SGA."

Included in the installation of the new officers, was also presentations to the staff and faculty of the University. Mr. Swink received the faculty award for Outstanding Service to SGA and Dr. Malloy was presented with the staff award for commendable service.

Members of the faculty and staff present at the ceremony included Vice-Chancellor Charles L. Kahil, Mrs. Betty Jo Welch, Dean Helena Cheek, and Miss Linda Moore.

"THE FABLE OF CHICKEN LITTLE"

On the afternoon of March 19, the UNC-W Concert Choir presented its most dynamic and inspiring program of the season.

Fresh from their 975 Spring Tour to St. Louis, Missouri, the choir and its director produced a balanced and cultural program consisting of various styles and periods of music.

The opening selections were heavily classical pieces, all sung in Latin. Such works as Palestrina's "Tenebrae Factae Sunt" and William Byrd's "Ave Verum Corpus" which depict Christ's painful death on the cross, were poignantly touching.

The entire selection for the second portion of the program was a rendition of J.S. Bach's "The Spirit Also Helpeth Us," written for double-choir formation. The divided choir maintained the beauty of these pieces and even intensified the balance with the ending chorale.

A salute to the hundredth anniversaries of Arnold Schoenberg and "Psalm 99" by Ives, performed with bells and chimes, exuded an atmosphere of man's profound search for truth and his eternal disappointment. Complementing these two composers, the choir performed, with synthesized tape, "Leviathan," written exclusively for the choir by Paul R. Jacobson, a young

New York composer.

From his optional list, the UNC-W Chamber Singers chose to perform the lightly modern selection "Masterpiece," followed by a delightful rendition of "The Fable of Chicken Little," a modern musical drama composed by Greg Smith. This drama was both performed and acted, with the Chamber Singers creating their own props and sound effects.

The Choir concluded its 1975 Spring Concert with two magnificent moving traditional hymns. The first,

"My God How Wonderful Thou Art," with bass solo by David Bass, was entirely satisfying to all the senses. This hymn and the last, "Beautiful Savior," with soprano solo by Margaret Brooks, were both performed with an intense depth of emotional understanding which far surpassed the music's functional perfection.

The effect of the choir and its program was truly vivid. Certainly more concerts should be instituted for this fine choir.

Blood & Guts

When was the last time a really entertaining movie was released? Anyone who didn't see Mel Brook's "Young Frankenstein" missed one of the most fun movies in a long time.

Being filmed in black and white is a great asset to the movie's effectiveness. Mel Brook's used scenes from almost every Frankenstein movie ever made.

Gene Wilder played the leading role, while Marty Feldman was an absolute genius as Igor, Dr. Frankenstein's assistant. The performances of both Wilder and Feldman would have been enough to make this movie worth seeing.

Since this film is a satire on the old Frankenstein movies, it is evident from the first scene that everything that never happened in those old movies will happen in this one.

The plot begins with the young Dr. Frankenstein, grandson of the famous Dr. Frankenstein, receiving his great-greatfather's will and venturing to Transylvania at once to stumble across his grandfather's library and begins to reanimate dead tissue.

The rest of the movie follows the monster from his death, to his being brought to life on the stage in a tap dance routine, and finally to his marriage. The action that takes place between these scenes is a work of genius.

Without a doubt, this movie's true value will be overlooked and it will be classified as another funny movie.

It is probable and unfortunate that no one will see this film, while a blood-and-guts movie is being shown in the same theater.

SKILLS

A sailing course offered this summer at UNC-W. The course will give you one unit of physical education credit and will be taught Monday and Wednesday afternoons both summer sessions, at Wrightsville Beach.

Basic sailing skills will be taught and/or those interested there will be a chance to participate in small boat and ocean racing. The number of students in each class will be limited, so please pre-register if interested.

If you desire any more information, please contact William Baggett at 256-3145.

"towering inferno"

If disasters turn you on, surely the Oleander Cinema has just your cup of water.

"The Towering Inferno," an Irwin Allen production, is a disastrous movie.

The plot basically consists of the tallest building in the world catching fire and a group in the "penthouse" trying for a quick elevator to the basement or a quick step-it to the roof.

Irwin Allen, who began with television's "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea," also produced the Neptunian escapade "The Poseidon Adventure." But after "Inferno" sink he should be leery of sticking his head from the water.

The box-office success of "Inferno" does not match that of "Poseidon," which consisted of a gripping escape from a capsized luxury liner. Perhaps if "Inferno" had been filmed upside-down, it too might have been interesting.

Most all of the performances were good but with the caliber of actors--Paul Newman, William Holden, and Faye Dunaway--how could that department seem watered-down?

The all-star cast is split into two sections: those trying to get out and those trying to put out--the fire, that is.

Feeling put on and put out for wasting admission, it became necessary to get up and get out and get in my car and go home, which I DID, THOROUGHLY DISAPPOINTED.

The film is technically fine if you exclude plot from technique. My advice: wait until it is shown on television and watch it with the volume off so you can at least enjoy the visual qualities.

SUPB presents SUPER SUNDAY

Super Sunday, sponsored by the SUPB, track and field meets on April 20. It will begin at 3:00 with a bicycle, boating and other sporting goods stores in the area. (That's why they call it a Sports display.) There will be no selling-only showing-so you don't have to bring any money.

Assured games will range from 3:00 until 7:00. They will be such all time favorites as foot races, sack races, and other inter-murals. Prizes have been donated by the faculty and staff. They don't include answers to final exams, but they do offer the next best thing—a sixpack of beer, a car wash and cakes-to list.

Starting at 4:15, the Mission Mountain Band will provide free entertainment at the front entrance to the cafeteria. They'll be playing from 4:15 to 5:00, 5:15 to 6:00, and 6:15 to 7:00. (In other words there will be two fifteen-minute breaks-after all, band members have to go to the bathroom, too.)

The Mission Mountain WoodBand plays a combination of bluegrass, rock, country-western, and folk. The band members are audience orientated and their performance shows it. They've performed at universities and colleges across the country.

They're a professional and very entertaining group. While playing at East Carolina University for example, they received three well-deserved standing ova-tions. The last thirty minutes of the show had everyone on their feet and "clog alongs" joined the band on stage.

In the meantime, there will be a cookout near the cafeteria from 5:00 until 6:00. It's $1.25 for all you can eat among hot dogs, hamburgers, potato salad, and other culinary delicacies if you don't like American food, the Spanish Club will be offering tacos and other foreign foods before 5:00 and after 6:00. (That way you'll have time to eat in both places.)

The evening will end with free movies at the pub from 7:30 until 10:30. They include such intellectual classics as "The Longest" and "Road Runner" cartoons.

Thus, the whole day of fun is absolutely free-except for the food (and you can bring your own if you're cheap). That's why it's called Super Sunday.

All students, faculty, staff, and friends and relatives are invited.

FOOLISH FRIDAY — POSTPONED UNTIL WED.

The Residence Union Team of the dorm is planning a big day of fun and nonsense on Foolish Friday, the first day of the Azeles Festival. The foolishness will begin at 3:00 p.m. with various team and individual competitions ranging from a tug of war to a "Cool Hand Luke" contest. Other activities include a 10 person pyramid, a V.W. stuffing contest, a beer chugging contest, a sleeping bag change of clothes race as well as various other relays and games. The basic idea will be an old fashioned 4th of July celebration to be held on April 11. (Can you think of a better time to celebrate the 4th?) The festival will include a cookout for everyone to be held behind the dorm. The evening will be capped off by a series of film "Short Subjects" with W.C. Fields and the Marx Brothers, which will be shown outside on the lawn of the dorm.

Entries in the competitions will be limited to dorm students only. They are encouraged to come on out, kick off your shoes and "Do it till you're satisfied." P.S. B.Y.O.B.

All events are free except the cookout which will begin at 6:00 and will cost non-dorm students $1.25. Teams will be coed with the 1st and 4th floors comprising 2 of the teams. Other teams will come from pairing one wing of each men's floor with one wing of each women's floor, making a total of 6 teams. Points will be awarded on a 10-7-5-3 basis with the winning team receiving a keg of suids.

Cool Hand Luke contest will be a contest to see who can eat the most boiled eggs in 10 minutes. The chugging contest will be a race to see how fast one can consume a pitcher of beer. Sdytag is against the rules.

Other events include 3-legged races, sack race, and a tug of war in the mud. The sleeping bag change of clothes will be a change of female participants from a sweatshirt, pair of jeans, socks and tennis shoes into a two-piece bathing suit, all done inside a sleeping bag. There will also be a car push with the fastest car around the dorm parking lot being the winner.

WITHDRAWAL

The following dates for withdrawal have been determined and will apply during the Spring semester 1975. A student may withdraw from the University or from any course during the period of registration (January 6 - January 10) without having the course entered on his record.

Students who officially drop an individual class or classes or withdraw from the University from Monday, January 13, 1975, through Wednesday, April 23 1975, will have a grade of WP or WF entered on their record. A grade of WF does count as hours attempted and consequently will affect the average.

Any student who finds it necessary to withdraw from the University must give written notice of his intention to the office of the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs. A student who fails to give notice of his intention to withdraw will receive a grade of F in all courses.

Students withdrawing from an individual class or classes or from the University Thursday, April 24, 1975, through Wednesday, May 14, 1975, will have a grade of F recorded for each withdrawal. A student wishing to appeal a grade of F may do so by submitting a pertinent information to the Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs. The Vice Chancellor's Advisory Committee will serve as the appeals committee.

SENATE MEETING

A regular session of the UNC-W Senate was called to order by Carol Moore on April 15 at 11:30.

Lance Ferrell gave the invocation.

The minutes were read. Ricky Patton moved that the rules of order be suspended for this meeting. The motion was seconded and passed.

President Hobbs addressed the Senate. He recommended that Bill Wilkey be appointed as Chairman of the Dance Committee.

Mark Kelley made a motion to accept Mr. Wilkey as Chairman of the Dance Committee. The motion was seconded and discussion followed.

Lance Ferrell moved that Bill Wilkey be appointed as Dance Committee Chairman. The motion was seconded and passed.

President Hobbs also recommended that Walker O'Quinn be appointed as Chairman of the Concert Committee.

Mark Kelley moved that Mr. O'Quinn be accepted as Chairman. Discussion followed, during which Kevin Beard suggested looking in to the possibilities of having outdoor concerts on Brooks Field. The motion passed.

PRES. HOBBS

Service to the University is the slogan of the newly elected SGA administration. "my only purpose in running," said President Steve Hobbs, "was the desire to contribute something to the University and therefore to the students on campus."

When asked about the election race, Hobbs replied, "There were a lot of problems and inconsistencies in the election. This administration hopes to have an Election chairman and committee that will meet, draw up, and enact a fair set of rules by which the elections will be constructed."

"This will avoid last minute decisions which are very argumentative and arbitrary as we had in the last election."

President Hobbs has recently completed his selection of chairpersons for SGA's standing committees. Frank Wullenwaber, of the Delta Epsilon Fraternity, will be head of the Election committee. Leroy Oakly, the new SGA Treasurer, will also chair the Finance Committee.

Ms. Beatty Price will organize the Telephone Directory again this year, and Ms. Jo Jones will begin to organize and institute SGA's Off-Campus Housing Service.

The newest organization set up by SGA is The Internal Relations Committee, composed of various members representative of the groups, organizations, and minorities on campus. President Hobbs feels this committee, "will promote harmony among the students."

Concerning this administration, Hobbs stated, "Our biggest was when our administration took over and received very little assistance from the past administration and becoming oriented as to the work load of the executive office. We seem to have gotten off the ground and are on the way to a successful year."

"We received a large amount of advice from key people in the faculty, with minimum help from the past administration, but we now seem to have this problem solved and are moving ahead."

LAW

So, you are going to law school. The Law School Preparatory Seminar can increase your chances for staying there and being graduated.

Historically, only one law student out of every three entering freshmen have been graduated. The other two have left because of the intense pressure, low grades, or their inability to successfully cope with the special nature of legal studies.

SEMINAR

The Law School Preparatory Seminar is designed to optimize the performance of each law student before even beginning classes in September.

L.S.P.S. offers a nationwide series of eleven day seminars for students who have already been accepted to law school. Five hours of each day will be devoted to the classroom. Exposure to the tools of law libraries and lucerne discussions with the local members of the bar, will complete the day.

Seminars are held for Los Angeles, New York, Atlanta, Chicago and Washington, D.C. They will be held during the months of June and August, 1975. There will be a maximum of forty students in each L.S.P.S. section, with law school professors, practicing attorneys and current law school students contributing to the instruction of each student.

Tuition for the program is $600.00, including the extensive materials necessary to complete the seminar. Housing accommodations can be arranged through L.S.P.S., if necessary.

INVITED

Students involved in Chemistry Directed Individual Study (CHM 291 or 491) or Honors (499) will be presenting short oral reports of their semester's research progress on Friday afternoon, April 25, beginning at 3:30 p.m. in C-114. A program listing titles of the talks is attached. The public is invited to attend.

NATIONAL VOLUNTEER WEEK

APRIL 20-26

"How do I help?"

"How do I help?"

The Cape Fear Voluntary Action Center and its campus branch at UNC-W are in the 1st sponsor local recognition of National Volunteer Week. With the theme "How do I help?" the week is designed not only to recognize active volunteers but also to increase public awareness of volunteer opportunities. Two agencies each of which welcome and use many UNC-W volunteers have planned open houses this week. The United Cerebral Palsy Developmental Center, located in the First Christian Church, Oleander Drive, will be open Friday from 8:30 to 3:30. The Child Development Center at St. Andrews Covenant Church, 15th and Market, will be open Thursday from 10 a.m. till noon. Other agencies, of course, welcome observers if pre-arrangements are made through the director.

As many of UNC-W's students know firsthand, volunteering is an exciting way to get extra course credit to learn about a job field and to learn about yourself. Susan Cole and Joe Patterson are two of the more than 200 students volunteering this semester.

For an answer to "How do I help?", see Linda Moore in her office in the Pun.

JOE PATTERSON

Few people ever realize what they really want from life and what their reasons for being are -- and even fewer people ever have the opportunity to achieve their goal. For one to find a satisfying experience and actually share the good fortune with others is, to say the least, rare. Yet, Joe Patterson seemingly has done just that.

Joe Patterson is a sophomore at UNC-W and is an elementary education major. He has previously attended High Point College for two years where he was a music education major and also a student of photography. After six years in the Navy, Patterson came to UNC-W to continue his studies and to gather his thoughts and decide upon his objectives.

He is presently enrolled in Dr. Bradley's child psychology course, which Patterson considers a major steppingstone to his recently found interest in children.

Their personalities are just starting to form. Their minds are very imaginative; there's nothing what they'll come up with. But I have to put their ideas into proper guidelines, according to our social norms and value system. I mean, we don't want another Charles Manson."

Patterson grinned momentarily and stared off into the grass. He said the children would constantly tease him with playful threats of putting him in jail. "You don't get your supper, you've been a bad boy," they'd say. And their home lives always come out in their conversations.

"They're really encouraging me in this field, and I love them. They need someone to relate to and to go through some learning experiences with."

Patterson hopes to advance further into elementary education and has already planned to work with six to eight year olds, this summer at the Winter Park center.

Patterson volunteers several hours on Tuesdays and Thursdays at the Winter Park Pre-School Academy as a project for his psychology course.

But his volunteering has gone much further than merely class work. He has become immensely involved in the preschool center, and he has grown to love the children he helps, who range from the ages of two through six.

After getting out of the Navy, I really didn't know where my head was at," he said. Patterson feels there is little connection between his past experience in music and photography and his present work at the center. "That's really no explanation for me. I'm doing what I am. Working with the children seems to help me combine all of my past education, so I can help them.

Kids are little people. Kids are curious. I take them outside once in a while and they ask me: Is that a cat? Is that a butterfly?

Maybe I'm a child at heart. I hardly ever get rejections. I usually have to fight them off. It can really make you feel good. I just can't do enough."

There are a lot of people out there that express concern over the less fortunate.

But rarely do you see anyone concerned enough to actually help these people. Susan Cole, a sophomore at UNC-W is not talking about helping people--she's doing

Ms. Cole is part of the Cape Fear Youth Action Program. She assists a professional teacher, Kirt Redmond, in a preschool deaf classroom. The school for the deaf is held daily at the Baptist Church. The school is qualified in teaching these children. Susan Cole is currently taking a course in sign language. She is being taught by Linda Moore at Cape Fear Youth Action Center.

Though her class only required 48 hours observing these children, Susan Cole has now assisted with the program over 60 hours and plans to continue.

When asked if she thought the program was worthwhile, she said, "I think it's good for the kids. It will help orient them for the school in Wilson."

So says Ms. Cole who works with the children, one can easily understand why she enjoys her work. During a morning at the school, she helps teach them their basic signs. They are also instructed in the alphabet and are given a lay period.

The school is constructed as a regular classroom. Communication is through sign language. Ms. Cole is currently taking a course in sign language.

Such class is also open to the parents of deaf preschoolers. With the aid of sign language, the children can progress more rapidly.

There is no cost for attending Satellite program. The class is very small, focusing attention on each child.

Ms. Cole explained that there were slightly different methods of teaching used with different children. A speech as well as the sign language.

VET'S
NEWS

The Office of Veterans Affairs at UNC-W would like to remind all individuals eligible for Veterans Administration Educational Assistance to please come by the OVA to certify for Summer and Fall semester enrollment. Most of our certifications will expire May 15, 1975. Therefore, if you wish to continue to receive VA Educational benefits, you must be recertified.

During this Spring semester 1975 our veteran organization continued to function thru the efforts of a very few individuals. There seems to be a significant amount of inactive veterans.

of participation by the veteran population. To continue having a viable veteran organization, you must participate.

Lecture Series
features Dr. Clauson

The University Lecture Series will feature Dr. Carl Clauson on April 29. The lecture will be at 8:00 p.m. in King Hall.

Dr. Clauson is a member of the Texas Antiquities Committee in Austin, Texas. Dr. Clauson is an underwater archaeologist and most of his work has been with the recovery of Spanish Galleons in the Gulf of Mexico.

The lecture will also include a film question and answer period, and the opportunity for any interested persons to meet Dr. Clauson. There will be no admission charge for the lecture.

GRADUATE DISPLAYS ART WORK

Art work in various media by Jack Potter Paul of Belhaven will be on display in the Fayetteville Museum in the Old Market House from April 6 - 30.

Among the items to be exhibited will be sculpture, prints, paintings, weavings and hand-crafted items, including a brightly colored patchwork wall hanging and a folding screen with white woven panels of unusual textures.

Paul is a student in East Carolina University's School of Art, where is a candidate for the BS degree in art education with a studio major in painting. He plans to continue his studies on the graduate level.

Before enrolling at ECU, he studied at UNC-Wilmington, where he was awarded the Bachelor of Creative Arts degree in 1973. He has done additional study at the Smithsonian Institution, where he received a Congressional appointment for special studies in display and exhibiting, and at Central Carolina Technical Institute where he studied art and architectural drawing.

Paul is a member of the N. C. Art Society, the Belhaven Memorial Museum and Alpha Phi Omega fraternity as well as professional art educators' organizations.

His previous exhibitions include one-man shows and feature exhibits in Sanford, Belhaven, Wilmington and Mount Olive.

He is the son of Mrs. Thorne Hunter Paul of Belhaven and the late Mr. Paul.

In 1971 he was a member of the staff of the noted Belhaven gallery "Edith's Little Corners of the World."

SUMMER STOCK

The 1975 Straw Hat summer theater will begin its eighth season June 24, 1975.

Doug Swink, a member of the UNC-W department of drama, and producer of the Straw Hat Theater has prepared an exciting summer of musicals and dramatic plays.

"We try to give dramatic artists, in the area a cultural outlet during the summer," Swink said purposefully. "We wish to expose our patrons to unique dramatic opportunities."

The summer stock will include: "Oliver," June 24-29 in Kenan Auditorium; "Hot! Baltimore," July 1-6 in the S.R.O. Theater; "Harvey," July 8-13 in Kenan Auditorium; "The Mad Show," July 15-20 in the S.R.O. Theater; "Little Foxes," July 22-27 in Kenan Auditorium; "Story Theater," July 29-August 3 in the S.R.O. Theater; and "Tenderloin," August 5-10 in Kenan Auditorium.

Tryouts for the plays will begin on June 4. Rehearsals will begin on June 8.

Swink will be directing some of the plays. Cam Haid, of the UNC-W drama department, will be directing "Little Foxes." Visiting director Tony Rivenbark, a former student of Swink's will be coming from New York to direct "Tenderloin." Rivenbark is currently in professional theater in that city.

Details on the directors of the other plays are not available at this time.

Frank Hall, another former student of Swink's, will be coming from New York to play the role of Elwood P. Dowd in "Harvey." Hall is currently playing in an off Broadway play.

Participation in these plays will be open to all students and person in the community.

This will be the Straw Hat Theater's seventeenth season and its fifth season of summer plays. It began its first summer season in the Isaac Bear Hall in 1957.

The Straw Hat Theater is an arm of the UNC-W drama department. It is financed mainly from its box office. Some materials, however, such as props, sets and costumes, are provided by the drama department.

Seasonal tickets for admission are $15.00. This includes the seven plays.

READER CONTEST WINNER

"This is a well-constructed suspense story. Miss Shell has a gift for dialogue and for building suspense," commented Doug Swink after reading the first place story in this year's Jessie Rehder short story contest. Miss Cindy Shell was overjoyed when it was announced that her story, "A Counter Intelligence," had been chosen for the first prize - $100.

This year's awards ceremony, held in the S.R.O.,

Theatre, was enhanced by the reading of passages from the stories by Doug Swink, professor in the drama and speech department.

The brother of the late Miss Rehder, Henry Rehder, made the presentations. A second prize of $50 went to Lance Smith, Jr., for "Captain Eddie,"; third place, $30, to Jay Tilley for "Mr. Trueblood's Dream Come True - Almost,"; honorable mentions - $10 each - to Beth Hunt for

"The Saxton Legacy," and to Peter John Hager for "Beautiful Rosemary Tubbs."

The contest was funded by the UNC-W Jessie Rehder Memorial Fund, and by the "Atlantis" through a N.C. Arts Council grant.

The judges were Dr. Joanne Corbett and Dr. John Stokes, faculty members of the UNC-W English department. A third judge was a former UNC-W graduate, Michael Church. "Atlantis" provided $100 and the UNC-W Jessie Rehder Memorial Fund provided the rest.

The annual contest is held in memory of Jessie Rehder, a Wilmington native, author of a novel, numerous short stories, a collection of poetry, and two textbooks on writing. She headed the creative writing department at Chapel Hill until her death in 1967.

A colleague at UNC once said of her, "She had an explorer's eye for latent talent among her students and friends and a passionate earnestness in bringing that talent into the light of day and encouraging its growth."

Miss Shell's talent was revealed as Swink read passages from "A Counter Intelligence." A suspense story about two men escaping from a mental hospital, Miss Shell makes good use of dialogue and holds the reader in suspense as the question of insanity or political intervention hangs in the balance.

DONATE YOUR DENIM FOR THE COFFEEHOUSE

Foolish Friday was not on Wacky Wednesday and a riot was had by all. The festivities began at 3:00 on the athletic field and finished on the lawn of Galloway Hall.

Over 250 spectators and participants enjoyed those races between the co-ed teams from the various floors of the dorm.

Da Muddahs (guys and girls half of third and fifth floors) dominated the events with a total of four first place finishes, including a hard fought victory over the Pointers and setters in the grueling tug of war.

The Super Subs finished second in the overall competition and took a first place in the V... stuffing contest, with 21 people crammed inside. Less than a point separated the next three teams.

The Whiz Bang Kids from fourth floor held their own by finishing in a tie for last place with themselves.

Two of the most popular events proved to be the "Cool Hand Luke" contest and the beer chugging contest. In the "Cool Hand Luke" contest, Big Ernie Lynn was awesome as he and his partner fired down 32 1/2 hard boiled eggs in ten minutes.

In the beer chugging contest, John Porter and Robin Ruslik jumped out to an early lead, but their chances were "blown" when big John's stomach rebelled. This allowed the pre-chug favorites, Jody Travers and "Spider-Man" Edmonds to pull away from the field. They were the only duo to finish their gallon.

Fun and foolishness was had by all with Da Muddahs amassing 95.5 points to win a free keg of Schlitz. Thanks go out to the athletic department for the use of their equipment and to the Residence action Team which made the whole thing happen.

Special thanks are owed to Dr. Rogers of the Speech and Drama department for the mini film festival he showed after Friday nights' cocktail.

WE NEED YOUR PANTS

The Coffee house Committee is well underway with plans to reform the old Seahawk Office on the first floor of the Pub into UNC-W's first coffeehouse. The results of last week's survey overwhelmingly favored a country barn atmosphere. Rough paneling of some kind, booths, tables, chairs, and mini-bars will all be in keeping with this decor.

To help raise money for this project, the Coffeehouse committee is conducting a denim drive. Any pieces of used denim can be used: the bigger, the better. Collection boxes will be placed in the dorm, cafeteria lobby, Pub lobby, and library entry. To encourage donations, the committee has designated Thursday, April 24 as Cut-Off Day. All students are encouraged to wear cut-offs, and to donate their cut-off denim. This material will be sold (we have a buyer!) and the proceeds used to help furnish the coffeehouse.

The committee needs your suggestions on food, decor, hours, etc. They meet every Thursday at 1:30 in Linda Moore's Office in the Pub. Stop by anytime for more details, and remember Cut-Off Day!

MAGGIE BELL
SUICIDE SAL
SWAN SONG SS8412

MAGGIE BELL AS SUICIDE SAL

Many people the name Maggie Bell stands for one of a performer. Over the past four years she has built up a remarkable reputation and has become somewhat of a performer performer.

Maggie Bell began reaching for the top in about 1970. She was with STONE THE CROWS as their lead singer. With THE CROWS, she became known as a rock singer and her group was often being called "the English band." In England, they became one of the best things going.

At first, it was not hit with a rock-album as was England. As a result, Maggie never made it big in his country.

STONE THE CROWS released an album, "All in England," in America to find out the world. These albums, but it is not tracks almost as good as they were released in 1974 for $3.99 to $10.00. The first of these was "STONE THE CROWS," which has a guitar. Maggie Bell was the album's lead singer. The group played a lot of the best songs ever recorded. "The Touch of Your Loving Hand" and the BEATLES' "I Am the Walrus" were the best songs on the LP and could have become big singles, yet they did not and were never released.

Following this was "TEEN-AGE LICKS" in 1972. This was an even stronger LP, but once again nothing happened. Dylan's "Don't Think Twice" was an excellent cut as was "One Five Eight," yet promotions were not done and the LP ended up selling for $5.99 at discount stores, continuous perior.

MAGGIE was released that year and ended up on the racks with the others.

The rock singer strike and the release of STONE THE CROWS. As the group played, they were one night an evening, so-called "killed guitarists" Les Harvey. This affected the members so much the group fell apart.

After a short rest, a few of the members joined the American White band and Maggie Bell started as a soloist. Her first solo album, "Queen of the Night," Atlantic (1974) gained her much attention as did her role in the rock opera TOMMY. Maggie seemed to have found success overnight as many rock magazines had featured her about her and the album. "Queen of the Night" was a very good album, but it was not nearly as good as the STONE THE CROWS albums. Maggie was just not ready to hit big and the album stands as the proof.

On SUICIDE SAL Maggie Bell has gone back to her best material, the blues. The album has great vocals which will probably live up to what was expected on the Queen of the Night LP.

The album is a mixture of rock songs and blues songs with Maggie's vocals at their top. Music-wise, the LP is also good with Led Zep's Jimmy Page playing guitar. "Crashing Wall" and the "I Put the Album" of the LP. So far, Maggie sings in a southern style and her earlier LP's "Suicide Sal" is the better of the two and was written by Bell. "I'm loving this is a ballad type song. "I Was In Chains."

Next is "If You Don't Know," featuring a guitar solo by Jimmy Page. Bell's vocals are at tops on the cut and the blues-rock rhythm make the song a good contender as the best song on the album. Bell sings in her rustic blues way which is very similar to her STONE THE CROWS work.

"In My Life" brings side one to a soft close only to be totally forgotten with the beginning of side two. "Comin' on Strong" starts the side and it is just that, STRONG. Once again Page takes over on guitar and helps the song rock from beginning to end.

Another very good song is on this side as Maggie has an excellent version of the Beatles' "I Saw Her Standing There." The song proves to be four minutes of solid rock, Maggie Bell style. Excellent piano work is done on the song also as Peter Wingfield adds his contribution to the cut.

To sum up, I think it can be said that Maggie Bell has lived up to her expectations with SUICIDE SAL. Now, it only takes you as her listeners to realize she is one of the greatest female blues-rock singers alive today. Often hearing this album I do not think you could not consider this fact. Till then. ROCK-OUT.

CHANCELLOR DELIVERS IMPACT STATEMENT TUITION INCREASE!!

The pending subcommittee recommendations for the funding of higher education currently under study by the North Carolina State Legislature will have great consequences for The University of North Carolina at Wilmington. The proposal to increase tuition while simultaneously eliminating funding for enrollment changes poses a major concern for the Wilmington campus.

The recommendations suggested are especially severe for those campuses like The University of North Carolina at Wilmington which are still increasing in enrollment at a high annual percentage and in program development. Wilmington is a Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area (SMSA) as designated by the United States Census Bureau. Because it is a rapidly changing community The University of North Carolina at Wilmington must continue to grow and develop to meet the expanding needs of its constituency. In addition, the SMSA serves as a cultural and economic center with unique needs.

If the recommendations are accepted from the Senate's subcommittee for the funding of higher education both expanded services and diverse offerings to the people of southeastern North Carolina may of necessity be severely curtailed.

A major increase in tuition at this time, coupled with no appropriated funds to allow The University of North Carolina at Wilmington to provide facilities and services for the increasing number of southeastern North Carolinians who wish to avail themselves of the opportunity for a college education, will strike an unusually heavy blow against continuing economic and educational development of a major tuition increase and the lack of funding for enrollment changes will surely push higher education and training beyond the reach of those who have stretched as far as they can. Higher tuition will probably eliminate many of our students who come from marginal economic backgrounds. Citizens of this type are among those that higher education has traditionally tried to reach.

For those students who enroll at UNC-W, the elimination of funding for enrollment growth will adversely affect their educational opportunities. Without this increase in budget to take care of the additional number of students who wish to enroll, the size of classes will increase, support services will decrease and the library will become inadequate.

The adoption of the committee's action could force the university into the undesirable alternative of cutting further admissions when the registered number of students equals the number funded by state appropriations. For students and residents of that part of southeastern North Carolina close to the coastal area who have no other senior college or university, public or private, within a hundred mile radius this would tend to negate the university's stated purpose.

AREAS AFFECTED BY THE SENATE RECOMMENDATIONS

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington has grown dramatically over the past five years and is to continue to grow in both enrollment of students and in service to a region extending from Clinton to Jacksonville to the South Carolina line.

An increase in tuition would require an additional annual payment of $515,000 by the UNC-W student body. Since approximately 70% of our new freshmen enrollees come from the southeastern counties of North Carolina, the economic impact would be directly felt by this geographic area, one which already lags behind the remainder of the state in per capita income and in the percentage of college age citizens who enroll in higher education.

This increase in tuition coupled with corresponding decrease in student financial aid could result in a decreased enrollment in terms of both new and continuing students. Presently 600 students per year seek financial assistance due to low family income and 400 of these students receive tuition support. Part-time employment opportunities off campus have decreased by 75% during the past year, thus reducing the amount of supplemental support available to students. This fact compounded by the apparent slump in projected summer employment may lead to decreases in expected fall enrollment. A portion of this projected enrollment increase will result from continuing expansion of adult registration. This rapid expansion in enrollment of adults has been due, in large part, to the general citizen's desire for expanded educational opportunities. A tuition increase, if enacted, may prohibit many of these adult working people from taking courses which they need for the jobs they hold.

The present budget provides for 148.3 FTE teaching positions. Funding for enrollment changes would provide for 13.1 new teaching positions in 1976-77. If the institution is not funded to take care of an increasing number of students new faculty positions will not be funded. The deletion of these funds may also delay the implementation of programs now planned for the 3500-plus public school teachers in southeastern North Carolina as they work with their community for the general improvement of public education.

A decrease in funding for enrollment changes would have a serious impact on the efforts to keep the physical plant in proper condition. Delays in maintenance or equipment replacement would present a major problem for future campus operations. It would also result in a higher cost for the institution to have the same work or replacement done at a later time.

If funding for enrollment changes is decreased the gravest impact for UNC-W would be our inability to increase the number of faculty members on our campus. This would be a serious situation for our university and students.

"DON'T SHUT ME UP!"

On April 10, UNC-W had representation by the crew of the Mondocivitano. I was the middle aged guy by the door who spoke up enough in rebuttal that one heckler told me to "Shut up." I have to admit that when someone is trying to make the young people of this country feel embarrassed about being an American I am going to speak up.

There were enough statements made in that presentation that were false, that I had to question anything else that was presented as a fact by these "experts."

It was stated that this country is indifferent to the rest of the world. I have seen us respond to famine, flood, and other disasters around this planet to get angry when we are called indifferent. Hope you will remind anyone who condemns us that we respond more than any other country to such catastrophes.

As to the preaching of passive resistance in time of attack, I believe the Jews tried that for awhile with Adolph Hitler. Would you really want to depend on it in this hostile world? I would rather quote Teddy Roosevelt, "Speak softly but carry a big stick."

The main speaker made the statement, "If our oil companies owned the sun we would be using solar heat!" Since our country does not own the sun why haven't other countries converted to solar heat if it's for the taking?

In rebuttal to the young speaker who flatly rejected nuclear power; at a time when our conventional scarce we should be exploring all our alternatives. If you are really interested read Nuclear- Power Reactors: How Dangerous? by Ralph E. Lapp, nuclear physicist in April Reader's Digest.

I enjoyed talking to the young man in the cafeteria later that day who admitted he was confused. I believe it shows a certain maturity to make that admission. A lot of young people will probably be relieved to know they don't have to shoulder all the burden of the world at this stage of their lives. Your turn will come, don't be in too big a hurry!

In response to the heckler if I don't flunk out you may have to put up with me again. George Feehley

REPRINT

WHO PULLED THAT PLUG?

Well UNC-W, it has happened again. One more step has been taken in spreading your popularity across the land.

That was a keen idea, having Super Sunday and all. The Mission Mountain Wood Band made the day a great one. It was kind of them to share with all of us their music and thoughts.

Their was, however, a foolish act that occurred and that act will go down in UNC-W's history as being one of the most blundersome. The time was approximately 7:45 and the Mountain Boys were hot. Their were about 50 people out in front clogging and were probably being the most fun ever seen on this campus. Suddenly the sound went out completely, the people stopped dancing, and an air of bewilderment was evident among the crowd. Everyone was stunned. What had happened? Then, out of the second floor cafeteria window, directly above the band, popped the smiling face of our very own blue capped and silver badged Security Officer. In his grasp was 10 yards of electrical cord. He had pulled the plug! The spirit had not left the band members for they kept on playing as if nothing had happened. Their sound man, being very alert, got things rolling again by rerouting the sound through a downstairs outlet.

Now, why did this happen? The band was scheduled to quit at 7:00 p.m. This time was extended to 7:30 because not only the uniqueness of the entertainment but because everyone was enjoying it so. Yes, something worthwhile was actually taking place on the UNC-W campus. It is so rare that quality entertainment such as the Mission Mountain Wood Band even passes by this place, much less stopping and playing. I can think of nothing so embarrassing than to be halted in the middle of a performance; in the middle of a song! I sympathize with the band members and respect them greatly for not losing their cool. I apologize to them on behalf of UNC-W for that act of ignorance displayed to them.

I am not pointing the blame in any one direction. It is true that "Captain P" committed the act, but he was following the strict orders of "Mr. O" to have the cafeteria building totally secured by 7:30. Logically, to the "Captain" anyway, this meant pulling the power plug since it led into the building.

Couldn't someone have notified the band so that they could have ended their own act?

There is no excuse for embarrassing a top notch entertainment group and stopping so abruptly the fun that was being had. I speak not only for students, for several faculty members and administrative personnel were enjoying the show. For instance, our own Dr. Ned Martin had his clogging shoes on. Negotiations should have been made to extend the use of the cafeteria building and I suggest that in the future a sign be chosen where time is not the critical factor, for concerts of this sort are not ended precisely. R. Kubo

THE STILL POINT

Sever danger is an experience which has plunged into few of our lives and I say this realizing there are probably some in our midst who have. As the world around us faces hunger beyond our wildest nightmares Christians are faced with an ethical dilemma. . . Where does my faith fit?

Garrett Hardin proposed his "Lifeboat Ethics" in Bio Science: "Each rich nation amounts to a lifeboat full of comparatively rich people. The poor of the world are in other, much more crowded lifeboats. Continuously, so to speak, the poor fall out of their lifeboats and swim for a while in the water outside hoping to be admitted to a rich lifeboat or in some other way benefit from the 'goodies' on board. What should the passengers on a rich lifeboat do?"

The Christian's answer has been quite simple; namely, "Feed the poor." This is the foundation for nearly all of our relief and caring programs. But listen to the other voice, that of William Paddock: "It's true that we can support a great many more people than we are supporting today. If the United States turns completely vegetarian, our agriculture can support 800 million people instead of 200 million. But the world is increasing at 90 million people per year, so that only gives us nine years. What do you do for an encore after nine years?"

The moral question hidden beneath this statement is whether or not letting people starve may be a more humane way of acting than lending every effort to sustain life simply to make possible a future greater starvation. By sustaining life and this continuing the birth rate, we simply promote future misery and starvation on a monstrous scale.

Confusing? You bet your bippy it is. We Christians inherit a real problem when we give our allegiance to God revealed to us in Jesus Christ. There are no easy answers but then no easily won future is promised. There are a multitude of solutions offered with all the appropriate justifications included but let it suffice for this time to share the question with you.

Peace,
Vivian Martindale

TUITION INCREASE

Please communicate to the student body presidents that we share their commitment to a strong University of North Carolina. In these times of economic hardship we must hold the line on expenditures throughout state government. One alternative to reducing services is increase receipts. Your suggestions on alternative approaches to the university's budget are always welcome. Suggestions on economy which would not impair the basic functions of the university would be most useful. All decisions made so far including the tuition increase are tentative. Only if a tuition increase does come about, your suggestion of mitigating its effect on those least able to pay it would be very constructive. We thank you for the concern you have already shown and ask for your support in maintaining a strong university. Senator D. Livingston Stallings--Chairman Appropriations Sub-Committee on Education

Don't look now, but there is a RAT living in the dorm! Actually it is the Residence Action Team which is alive and well. Initiated in the fall by Dave Robertson, the Dorm Daddy, the group consists of twelve elected representatives, two from each floor. Although the team serves a variety of functions, its main responsibility is to make the dorm a more enjoyable place to live.

Considering the short time that it has been in existence, the RAT has managed to make numerous improvements in the residence hall. With funds obtained from student fees and supplemented by a share of the profits from the dorm's vending machines, the RAT has made great strides in fulfilling the needs of the students.

An example of this is the installment of a large capacity ice machine. This has virtually eliminated the drinking of warm Gatorade and Yahoo in the dorm. In order to appease those few industrious residents, a one time storage room has been painted and carpeted to serve as a relatively quiet study room.

Realizing, however, that all work and no play turns students into basketcases, a game room has now been constructed. It offers such therapy as pinball and pool. (Just please don't tell your mothers!)

One of the RAT's final activities before the end of the semester will be to hold a ceremony where the dorm will be dedicated in memory of Edwin R. Galloway.

All in all, the RAT has accomplished quite a bit this year. With all the improvements and wild events such as Wacky Wednesday, life in the dorm now consists of more than sitting and watching the mail being put out.

Although a new committee will be elected next fall, plans have been drawn up for many needed changes. It is hoped that next year's RAT will give these items priority.

Topping the list of these priorities is the construction of an underground parking garage, which will hopefully be followed by the establishment of monorail service to the campus. Plans have also been approved for a 40 horse stable which will be adjacent to the Olympic size swimming pool. Finally, due to the closing of the cafeteria, the RAT has persuaded the McDonald's Corporation to establish a franchise on campus. The exact location is still undecided.

SENATE MINUTES

A regular session of the UNC-W Senate was called to order by Carol Moore on April 22 at 11:30.

Lance Ferrell gave the invocation.

The minutes were read. A motion was made to suspend the rules of order for the meeting. The motion was seconded and passed.

Chancelor Wagoner addressed the Senate and talked about the proposed $200,000 increase in tuition. He discussed why the $200,000 increase was proposed and the effects it will have on the campuses and on the students if or if not it is adopted.

Linda Moore presented the editors chosen for the three publications on campus: Seahawk Editor-Robert Maxey, Fledgling Editor-Darlene Pearsall, Atlantis Editor-Sam Barbee.

Lance Ferrell made a motion to accept Robert Maxey as Editor of the Seahawk. The motion was seconded and passed.

Gary Shipman made a motion to accept Darlene Pearsall as Fledgling Editor. The motion was seconded and passed.

Gary Shipman made a motion to accept Sam Barbee as editor of the Atlantis. The motion was seconded and passed.

Leroy Oakley addressed the Senate and presented the proposed budget of 1975-76.

John Crawley moved that the Fledgling allocation of 410,000 be accepted. The motion was seconded and discussion followed. Mr. Crawley called for previous question. The motion was passed.

John Crawley made a motion to accept the Seahawk allocation of $8240. The motion was seconded. Discussion followed. The motion passed.

A motion was made to table the Atlantis allocation until next meeting. The motion was seconded and passed.

Haddon Clark made a motion to adjourn the meeting. The motion was seconded and passed.

GALLOWAY HALL DEDICATION TODAY

The dormitory dedication to Edward Galloway has been scheduled for 3:00 Wednesday in the lobby of the UNC-W dorm. Edward Galloway was a former student at UNC-W when he died in his freshman year from a tragic accident, here on campus, in the fall semester of 1974.

The dedication will feature a pen and ink drawing of the dormitory by a very skillful student-artist of UNC-W, Odell Knight. The drawing will be presented to the parents of Edward Galloway by Steve Kukis, Ed's long-time highschool friend and college roommate.

An inscription of the name, E.R. Galloway, will be inscribed on the frame in tribute to the fond and endless memories Edward Galloway.

Henceforth, the UNC-W dormitory will be referred to as E.R. Galloway Hall. The dedication ceremony is being planned totally by the dorm residents, who are also responsible for originating the homage to Galloway. Upon the dorm students requests and urgings, the UNC-W senate constructed a proposal for the dorm dedication. Dr. Malloy then presented the proposal to the UNC-W board of trustees, who quickly approved the request unanimously.

Dr. Wagoner will be on hand at the ceremony to offer greetings while Rev. Martindale will be present for the invocation. Dr. Malloy will serve as the dedication's moderator.

STUDENTS RAP TUITION PLAN

University of North Carolina at Wilmington Chancellor William H. Wagoner told a student rally April 22 that tuition increases proposed for the 16-campus University of North Carolina system would in no way be beneficial to growing institutions such as UNC-W.

Wagoner pointed out that the proposal to increase tuition would not affect older, larger universities as much as it would the newer, growing institutions like UNC-W.

"Universities, like ours, with increasing enrollments, are allotted additional state funds," said Wagoner. "These funds would be el-minated if the bill passes because our enrollment would result in larger number of students per class and a curtailment of new or expanding curriculum, according to Wagoner.

Similar rallies were held Tuesday on the campuses of all the state supported institutions of higher learning.

More than 2,500 students staged an orderly demonstration at East Carolina, listening to an array of speakers that included representatives of the Greenville City Council and the Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

In Fayetteville, approximately 350 Fayetteville State University students turned out to stage their protest.

Carrying signs, one of which read, "Robin Hood took from the rich and gave to the Poor - But N. C. Legislature takes from Needy to give to the Greedy," they expressed concern about the unpopular proposal.

"The state is trying to put the gravy in the pot," student body president, Tommy Mitchell said, "and this gravy is costing in-state students $300 a year."

"The private colleges are going to walk up the pot with their plates and go away with the gravy we paid for - and they're going to get big and fat. And you know what's going to happen to us? We're going to get thin and die because we don't get any gravy we're putting in the pot."

LANGUAGE COURSES OFFERED

The following is a description of the intermediate language courses (French 201-202, German 201-202, Spanish 201-202) to be offered by the Department of Modern Languages for the first session of Summer School 1975: Intermediate level. 6 hours. An innovative short-session approach to the study of the language for the student who has completed the 102 level or equivalent and is willing to dedicate several hours a day over a short period of time to his goal of acquiring speaking, writing, and reading competency in the language. The course will include a grammar review with emphasis on conversation, composition, and reading.

It offers the distinct advantage of giving the student considerable immersion in the spoken language while he completes a two-semester sequence in only five and one-half weeks. The same material will be covered in these classes as would be covered in the traditional two-semester or two-summer-session sequences.

Students wishing to take one of these courses should pre-register for both 201 and 202 which appear separately on the IBM print-out.

The instructors for the courses will be: French, Prof. Beeler; German, Prof. Lowe; Spanish, Mount.

Classes will meet from 8 till 12 MTWTF with breaks.

UNC-W EXPANDS CAMPUS

UNC-W administrators are expecting a large enrollment increase within the next few years and thus are preparing for the expanding student population. Several campus buildings are already under construction to help answer the needs of UNC-W's growth.

The new dormitory, now under construction next to the present dorm, is set to open for residence in the fall of 1976. The new dorm will house 200 students, as opposed to 400 students the present dorm houses, and the rooms will be in suite design. Revenue bonds will fund the new dorm with a cost of $1,450,000.

The new Receiving Warehouse and Central Storage Building situated at the corner of Street F and Riegel Road will be used mainly for storage and college security offices. The total cost for this building will be $320,000 and is expected to be completed by the fall of 1975.

A new and quite novel development which will be added to the UNC-W campus will be the $75,000 greenhouse, to be located next to the Marine Science Building. This structure, scheduled for completion by the fall of 1975, will provide research and instructional facilities for biology and related fields.

Although most of the other buildings will be funded by revenue bonds, the Kresgee Foundation has granted all the funds for the greenhouse.

A swimming pool, research laboratories, classrooms, offices, diving tank, locker rooms, and a massive gymnasium will all be included in the new Health and Physical Education Building. This sports complex is due for completion for the fall of 1977 and will cost approximately $300,000, which will be funded by private gift contributions and revenue bonds.

The gym's seating capacity, 6,000 will triple the present gym's capacity, having one-half the seats permanently fixed with the remaining being bleachers.

Other future projects the administration hope to make reality are: parking lot expansions, a new roof for the library, possibly another dorm, and an additional general classroom building.

For the marine biology program, extensive development of a UNC-W owned, 56-acre lot on Myrtle Sound Road is being considered. This lot has a 720-foot front on the Inland Waterway.

There are a lot of people today that express concern over the less fortunate. But rarely do you see anyone concerned enough to actually help these people. Susan Cole, a sophomore at UNC-W, is not talking about helping people--she's doing it.

Ms. Cole is part of the Voluntary Youth Action program. She assists a professional teacher, Kitty Redfern, with preschool deaf children. The school for these children is held daily at Grace Baptist Church.

To be better qualified in helping these children, Susan Cole is currently taking a night class in sign language. This class is being taught on Monday night at Cape Fear Tech. Ms. Redfern is the instructor for this speech as well as the sign language.

Though her class only required 48 hours observing these children, Susan Cole has now assisted with the program over 60 hours and plans to continue.

When asked if she thought the program was worthwhile, she said, "I think it's good for the kids. It will help orient them for the school in Wilson."

Seeing Ms. Cole work with the children, one can tell she obviously enjoys her work. During a morning at the school, she helps teach them their basic signs. They are also instructed in the alphabet and are given a play period.

The school is constructed very similar to a regular kindergarten class. Comparing her students to students who can hear, Ms. Cole says that she thinks they're a little more affectionate.

A special class is also taught for the parents of these preschoolers. With the parents' knowledge of sign language, the children can progress more rapidly.

There is no cost for attending Satellite program. The class is very small, focusing attention on each child.

Ms. Cole explained that there were slightly different methods of teaching used with different children. A child that is not totally deaf is guided to work on their class also.

The school for the children is designed to teach them the basic signs. Hopefully, with this fundamental knowledge they will be better qualified when they start school at the Eastern School for the Deaf. Located in Wilson, N.C., this school starts at the first-grade level.

This program to help the children is called the Satellite program. Ms. Cole became involved with the program through her child physchology class here at UNC-W.

Ages of children in the school range from three to five. Presently there are only four children attending.

Ms. Cole will be transferring next year to Atlantic Christian College. There she plans to get her degree in deaf education. She says she likes what she is doing and wants to continue.

THE SHOW WILL GO ON!

Yes, there will be concerts for you music mongers in the 1975-76 school year. Contrary to campus rumors, our concert series has not died in committee or in the Alderman Building.

In our continuing quest for the perfect show, we hope to bring to the students of UNC-W a variety of musical talents to suit the taste and desires of all.

Under a new concert policy, some of the shows will be scheduled in Kenan Auditorium which will benefit those talents in its beauty as a concert hall. This beauty must not be blemished. Along with the privilege of using this first rate auditorium, comes the responsibility to all those involved for its proper upkeep and treatment before, during, and after all shows.

According to our new policy, the concert series will be restricted to UNC-W students and one guest. This measure is being taken with the hope of alleviating some previous problems.

Proposed by the concert committee chairman are a total of six or seven dates for the 1975-76 school year, with 3 occurring before the break for Christmas. The remainder will follow in the spring.

It is our intention to provide a broad range of entertainment including comedy acts, female vocalists, good 'ole rock'n' roll, single acoustic artists, and bluegrass music in hopes of increasing student participation and furthering the cultural development of us all.

Animal Behavior

The Animal Behavior Society was formed "to promote and encourage the biological study of animal behavior in the broadest sense, including studies at all levels of organization using both descriptive and experimental methods under natural and controlled conditions." The society will hold its national meeting on the campus of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington from May 22 to May 23, 1975.

Leading behavioral scientists from all parts of the United States and Canada, and possibly Europe and Australia, will participate in the program. Aubrey Manning will deliver the keynote address. Aubrey Manning is a prominent biochemist from the University of Edinburgh. Biologists and psychologists who are interested in animal behavior are invited to attend, regardless of whether they are members of the society.

LIBRARY SCHEDULE

In order to accommodate students who need a little more study time for exams, Randall Library will have a special schedule during exams.

Beginning Sunday, May 4, the library will be open until 11:00 p.m. to provide students with additional hour in the evening. On Friday and Saturday, however, the library will close at 5:00 p.m.

The library will also be open until 11:00 p.m. Monday May 12 and Tuesday, May 13, the final days of the exam period.

During the two weeks between Spring semester and First Summer session, the library will be open Monday through Friday, 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.*

The regular schedule will resume for summer school on Tuesday, June 3.

"YOU'VE COME A LONG WAY, BABY!"

In keeping with the current interest in women's rights, the display case in the lobby of Randall Library is now showing an exhibit entitled "1975: The International Year of Woman."

The basis of the exhibit is a resolution adopted by the Assembly of the United Nations which declares 1975 the year to promote equality between men and women. The resolution, not an enforceable law, was designed to bring to the attention of countries around the world the existing state of women's rights—or lack of them. The United Nations has issued an invitation to all countries who do not recognize women's rights, to do so now.

Contained in the exhibit are books written by women about women. Some of the more well known books are "The Executive Suite: Feminine Style" by Edith M. Lynch, and "Movers and Shakers: American Women Activists, 1900-1970" by June Sochen.

The factual information includes several charts showing a breakdown of the percentages of women in the work force as related to men holding the same jobs.

A history of the movement for women's rights is depicted by samples of periodicals and news publications from the early "Suffragette" days. These publications show pictures and articles concerning the movement in the 1920's.

The theme of the exhibit is summed up with a poster in the upper left hand corner of the window: "You've come a long way, baby!"

BISHOP TO PLAY WITH O. M. D.

On May 1, 1975, 8:00 at Brogden Hall, ELVIN BISHOP and the OZART MOUNTAIN DAREDEVILS will appear in concert. Tickets are $5.00 in advance and $6.00 at the door and are available at Record World, G Hops, Down Home LTD, McGraths, WGNi, WCNU, 4th Corner, Paynes, Party PX

The concert should really be good as both groups have recently had LP's and singles high in the charts. Here are several articles written about Elvin to give some idea of what his music is all about.

Macon--In a club permeated by the smell of perfume, beer and factory air conditioning, a very unique event was taking place which, on the surface, seemed to be a regular occurrence for the enthralled gathering of music fans who clung like wet tissue paper around the stage. The event, it should be pointed out, was a jam session at a club called Uncle Sam's involving some of the finest and most well known musicians not just in the Macon area (location of the jam), but in the world.

The prelude, a teaser of sorts, had been an absolute killer of a set by recently signed Capricorn artist Elvin Bishop. Bishop and band literally rung the rafters down with dazzling displays of musical pyrotechnics based mostly on the new product Capricorn has released on them, an LP entitled "Let It Flow."

After playing a solid hour, the Bishop band disappeared into the backstage area with Elvin promising that there was a treat in store for anyone who wanted to stick around. Not one knowledgeable fan moved from his or her seat as the countdown began. Soon there was movement around the dressing room door and then spontaneous applause as Bishop came back on stage with none other than Gregg Allman, Butch Trucks, and various members of super Capricorn heavies Wet Willie, Marshall Tucker, and Grinderswitch.

The music began the way the Bishop set had left off--with a frenzy. Allman worked the organ and sang like a man possessed. The guitar interplay between Elvin and his other guests was tasteful, and the keyboard (perhaps the best miked instrument in the place) served as icing on the musical piece of cake. After three numbers (and an hour's hard playing), Allman got up to leave, but congenial Elvin talked him into just one more and he sat down to an inspired version of B.B. King's classic "The Thrill Is Gone." Anyplace else it's a rare occurrence indeed when musicians of such high caliber make impromptu appearances, but not in Macon.

Most people have a nice, convenient stereotype filed back in their minds when they think of ELVIN BISHOP. If they remember Elvin at all, as he himself puts it, they think of the sizzling 12-bar raver who was part of one of the most incredible electric bands that ever made records, the legendary Paul Butterfield Blues Band. While a case can be made for the Butterfield Band's contribution in turning innumerable record players from folk to electric music during the early Sixties, the group's introduction of Paul Butterfield, Michael Bloomfield, and Elvin to mass audiences alone earns it a place in rock history.

Elvin knows the association is there, because his new record company president, Phil Walden of Capricorn Records, was one of those who had the wrong idea about his music. Elvin's switch to the Georgia-based label--which has released his first Capricorn album, LET IT FLOW, this summer--employed a well-known middleman, one Richard Betts of the Allman Brothers Band. Elvin and Dicky have known each other for some years, but it was at a New Year's Eve's '73-'74 concert in San Francisco (one which featured the Allmans and was broadcast over Capricorn's nationwide radio network) that Betts introduced Phil Walden and Elvin Bishop.

"I was shopping around for a smaller label at the time," says Elvin, "and that gave more attention to its individual acts. Well, Phil heard some of my stuff and found out that I wasn't still playing the blues stuff that I'm known for." Contracts were signed and after recording a few tracks at Saulsboro's Record Plant West, Elvin headed for Macon to finish the album with Capricorn's Johnny Sandlin at the controls. What came out of the Macon sessions is going to turn the heads of anybody who thinks they know where Elvin Bishop is at.

NEW EDITOR...NEW IDEAS

Students can look forward to an improved school paper under the new editorship of Robert Maxey. In a recent interview, Maxey voiced hopes and plans for next fall's Seahawk.

Maxey served as sports editor last year, witnessing changes both good and bad affecting UNC-W's weekly media.

The major concerns of the new editor are the quality and subject matter of the Seahawk. Next year's paper, thanks to the O.K. of the UNC-W Senate, will be published with newly purchased type machinery costing approximately $7,000. Many of the faulty type sections in the present issues can be eliminated with the new machinery.

Maxey plans to use the front page for articles. Hopefully, next fall's paper will be expanded to sixteen pages. It will provide more detailed coverage of the university senate meetings. Previously, only the minutes have been published.

In addition to enlarged senate coverage, sports will receive at least a full page or possibly two pages. Maxey feels that this area has needed much more attention.

Students have a tremendous interest in the school's sports activities, be it the university teams or student intramurals. As the new editor stated, greater attention to sports would be well received by Seahawk readers. This would include the incorporation of photographs.

A "Fun Page" might be an addition to next fall's paper. This, as Maxey explained, would make use of comic situations on campus, crossword puzzles, funny photos, and generally deal with student humor.

Maxey concluded that he planned to retain as many of the present staff members as he could, but wants new students for the fall Seahawk also. As incentive, he plans to give each section of the staff their own weekly page to work with and let them cop the story, photos and do the general layout.

Anyone interested in working with the Seahawk should contact either Robert Maxey or other staff members in the Seahawk office upstairs in the Pub. The paper may continue to run through the summer, so if you are interested, contact either Linda Moore or Robert Maxey.

ELECTRONIC MUSIC CONCERT

An Electronic Music Concert will be presented Thursday, May 1, in the S.R.O. Theatre in Kegan Hall at 8:00 p.m.

The Electronic Music class, under the instruction of Frank Wiley, makes extensive use of the electronic music synthesizer in composing their untitled tapes. Speaking of electronic music, Wiley said, "A great deal of electronic music differs from conventional music in aesthetics as well as technique." Wiley also added that "electronic music is sufficiently significant to have had a great deal of influence on contemporary performed music."

Electronic music may be defined as music using the music synthesizer and other sources such as records and pre-recorded material on tape. The final composition is recorded on tape.

The UNC-W music department uses the Synthesizer: AKS which is an electronic music synthesizer made by Electronic Music Studios of England.

The synthesizer is a voltage controlled synthesizer which means that various parameters such as pitch, rhythm and other musical aspects are controlled by changes in the electrical voltage source. These changes are produced by oscillators which in turn produce pitches. Pitches are then acted upon and altered by various controls including a keyboard which actually functions as an electronic switching device.

In producing electronic music, sounds from the synthesizer and other pre-recorded sounds are also altered by using tape manipulation techniques - tape recorder speed change, playing tape backwards etc. and use of other sound altering equipment.

The May 1 concert is admission-free and open to students and the general public.

WE NEED YOUR PANTS! Adrienne Rice and Neal Huntley, members of the Coffeehouse Committee, take direct action to contribute to the denim drive. Cui-off day last Thursday was a big success, but more used denim is needed. The cloth will be sold to a local dealer, and some of it used to recover the furniture in the Coffeehouse, which will have a country-barn decor. For more details, ask Adrienne, Neal, or Linda Moore. BAHA'I FAITH

The Baha'i Faith is one of the newest of the world's religions, having its beginnings in Persia in the year 1844. It has since grown into a major world wide religion, encompassing peoples of all racial, religious, and cultural backgrounds.

Its basic teachings include the oneness of God the oneness of religion and the oneness of mankind. Baha'is believe that God has progressively revealed Himself to mankind through chosen messengers. These manifestations of God come progressively, reinforcing previous truth, and revealing new religious teachings for the growth of mankind. Baha'is believe that the manifestation of God for today is Baha'u'llah. Baha'u'llah has renewed religion and has given teachings necessary for the advancement of mankind. He is the promised one of all religions, and fulfills Hindu, Jewish, Zoroastrian, Buddhist, Christian, and Islamic prophecy, regarding the one who would establish the "Kingdom of God on Earth."

ENGLISH COURSE ADDED

THE COFFEEHOUSE

The English Department at UNC-W will introduce a new course in the fall semester of 1975. The course, English 339 or Modern British and American Drama, will deal with contemporary dramatists in Great Britain and the United States.

Mrs. Elizabeth Pearsall will teach the new course, which tentatively includes such playwrights as George Bernard Shaw, Eugene O'Neill, Edward Albee, Noel Coward and Harold Pinter. It is indefinite which works are to be read because the texts has yet to be selected. The approach is from a literary as well as a historical standpoint. Major events of the day, as reflected in the plays are to be brought out.

The Great Escape To Freedom

Words from a wise sophomore, Debbie Lewis

You're a new batch of college students. Boy! are you excited. Fresh from the halls of high school glory into the jungles of the university campus. Expectations of freedom, loafing, beer, and cutting classes dance in your heads. Although some of you dream of an actual learning experience, many never realize the big step that you are about to take.

Since the beginning of high school drudgery in the ninth grade you, as students, have heard you should be readily prepared for college. You were led by your noses up the college ladder through each individual high school year. Teachers played in such roles as mothers, fathers, aunts, uncles, sisters and brothers. You were pushed, spoon fed and threatened to stay in school. You were directed along the path toward a university by counselors and teachers trying to help the best way they knew how. Then it happened, the Graduation day and you were set "free"—what a relief or was it?

As you now walk onto the university campus astounded by your new found freedom, do you really understand that this is a false freedom? The time has come for a little less group work and a lot of individual discipline. You will find that the university has counselors to help with problems. There are student advisors and professors galore. But, when it comes down to it, everything depends on the individual. There is not as much, if any, personal attention from professors because there usually isn't time. There is no following up on your work as was in high school, when the teacher walked around and checked everyone's homework.

It's maturity time now. There's that word. Everyone thinks that high school grads are immature. That may be true, but time will only tell. It's time to be yourself. You will have to keep up and study on an individual self-disciplined basis. As a student, you are going to have to take it like it comes and handle it. That's what college is all about. You're motivated now and don't stop, just keep your head above the water and be aware as to what is happening to you.

This is not meant to scare people or degrade universities. It's only meant to tell you that this is where it's at. You are where it's at. Are you going to be a conscientious, unapathetic college student or not? Maybe you will stay awake and you will turn out to be a.....

Financial Aid Available

There are many different sources from which a student may obtain money to finance his education. Steve Medlin, the Director of Student Financial Aid, can offer information on the various types of financial aid. He has ideas as well as applications forms for the programs listed below. Stop in and see Mr. Medlin any time!

There are three major classifications of student financial aid: Grants and scholarships, work, and loans. A grant is a gift from the government, the institution, or an individual, but a loan must be repaid. The following is a listing of the major financial aid programs available to students attending UNC-W.

The Basic Educational Opportunity Grant Program provides direct grants from the government to the undergraduate student for educational expenses. The student must apply directly to the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare for a grant. If HEW certifies that a student is to receive a grant, it is the responsibility of the institution that the student is attending to make certain that payment is made.

At UNC-W, Basic Grants range in value from $112 to $962 per year.

To be eligible for a basic grant a student must not have been enrolled in post-high school educational institution before April, 1973, and must be a citizen or resident of the U.S. All eligible students are required to apply to the Financial Aid Office at UNC-W.

The Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant Program provides aid to students who have an exceptional financial need. To receive an SEOG a student must apply to the Financial Aid Office at UNC-W.

At UNC-W, Supplemental Grants range in value from $200 to $1,000 per year.

To be eligible for a grant a student must be enrolled for at least 12 hours, and must be a citizen or resident of the U.S.

UNC-W Tuition Scholarships provide needy and worthy students with grants equal to the cost of tuition at UNC-W. To receive one of these scholarships a student must apply to the Financial Aid Office.

The Athletic Department, the Music Department, Speech and Drama Department, Atlanta, the Flying, and the Seahawk also offer tuition scholarships. Inquiries should be directed to these organizations.

To be eligible a student must be enrolled for at least 12 hours and show academic or creative promise. Upperclassmen must maintain a 2.0 average in order to renew these scholarships.

Several privately funded scholarships are available through the Financial Aid Office. These include the Eliza Collins Scholarship, and the Belk-Beery Scholarships, Lucille Murchison Marvin Foundation Scholarship, the Rotary Club of Wilmington Scholarships, and the Sue McCall Boone Scholarship. All inquiries regarding these scholarships should be directed to the Financial Aid Office.

These scholarships range in value from $200 to $500 per year.

The College Work-Study Program provides funds to employ needy students on the UNC-W campus. Students are paid at an hourly rate equal to the minimum wage, and may work up to a maximum of 20 hours per week. Applications for Work-Study should be made to the Financial Aid Office.

To be eligible for Work-Study a student must be enrolled for at least six hours and be a citizen or resident of the U.S.

The Work-Assistance Program provides funds to employ students on the UNC-W campus. However, there is no need factor involved in the selection of students for this program. Students interested in the program should direct inquiries to the departments in which they would prefer to work.

The Plan Assuring College Education (PACE) provides jobs near the homes of North Carolina students. It assures eligible Work-Study students of summer employment with the understanding that 80% of the earnings must be saved for college expenses.

The National Direct Student Loan Program provides needy students with long-term, low interest loans for educational expenses.

Under this program the student borrows money to finance a college education, and repays the loan after graduation. Repayment begins 9 months after graduation, and the borrower may take up to 10 years to repay the loan. The interest rate of 3% does not begin accruing until the repayment period begins. All or part of the loan may be cancelled to teaching or military service. To receive a NDSL a student must apply to the Financial Aid Office.

National Direct Student Loans range from $100 to $1250 per year at UNC-W.

To be eligible for a NDSL a student must be enrolled for at least six hours, be a citizen or resident of the U.S.

The Federally Insured Loan Program (College Foundation, Inc.) provides students from middle income families with long-term, low interest loans for post-secondary educational expenses. Under this program the student borrows from College Foundation, Inc., and repays the loan after graduation, and the borrower may take up to 10 years to repay the loan. The interest rate is 7% and begins accruing when the repayment period begins. Applications for Federally Insured Loans should be made directly to College Foundation, Inc.

The maximum amount that a student may borrow under the program is $2,000 per academic year.

To be eligible for this program a student must be enrolled for at least 12 hours and be a North Carolina resident.

The North Carolina Prospective Teachers Scholarship - Loan Program provides assistance to prospective North Carolina teachers. The program provides a $600 per year loan, which will be cancelled if the student teaches in North Carolina public schools after graduation. The program is administered by the Department of Public Instruction.

and inquiries regarding the program should be directed to them or the Financial Aid Office.

To be eligible for their program a student must be enrolled for at least 12 hours and be a North Carolina resident.

Career, placement services available to students

The Placement Office, located in Room 113 of the Administration Building, is basically designed to assist students in obtaining employment.

This office arranges and coordinates job interviews between graduating seniors and employer representatives who are scheduled for campus visitation. Seniors interested in securing employment should register with this office early in the academic year so that they may receive relevant information and material.

Employment opportunities for other students at the university are also available through this office ranging from part-time to full-time positions. Students who are interested in gaining employment should register with the Placement Office, listing the type of work desired, special skills, qualifications and hours available for work.

Hopefully, in the very near future the services of this office will be expanded to include career planning, an avenue by which an individual will be assisted in developing as complete an understanding of the world of work as possible, as complete an understanding of himself as possible, as complete an understanding of the world of work as possible, and then assistance in integrating those aspects so that effective decisions can be made.

Things Freshmen

Shouldn't Forget:

1. Declare majors in Office of Academic Affairs in A114 Alderman Building.
2. Change of name or address fill in form in Registrar's Office room 117 Alderman Building.
3. In order to receive credit for the quality points earned by repeating a course, a form must be filled in and signed in the Registrar's Office prior to repeating the course.
4. Request for transcripts to be sent are $1.00 each after the first. (Registrar's Office)

5. DROP/ADD procedures
 - a. To withdraw from an individual course pick up a drop/add card from the instructor. Have the instructor sign and put a grade on the Drop/Add card. The Advisor also must sign the card and then the student should return the card immediately to the Registrar's Office.
 - b. To officially withdraw from school contact the Office of Student Affairs. Failure to officially withdraw will result in the student receiving "F" on all his courses.

Counseling Services For Students

Counseling and Testing services are available to all University of North Carolina at Wilmington students without charge. Counseling is designed to assist students who have questions concerning their educational-vocational training or personal problems which prevent them from realizing their potential. Counseling involves confidential interviews with a professional counselor and use of psychological tests when appropriate.

In addition to individual counseling, the Counseling and Testing Center offers personal growth experiences through group participation. Emphases include decision-making, study-skills, assertiveness, communication, and rational-skills.

For students and faculty seeking information about other colleges and universities, the Center maintains an extensive collection of undergraduate and graduate catalogues. These and many other sources of information concerning careers, majors, etc., are available for use in the Center.

The Counseling and Testing Center also administers group testing programs. These include entrance exams, placement tests, and tests required by professional and graduate schools.

Appointments for interviews or inquiries regarding information may be made by visiting the Counseling and Testing Office in Room 217 of the Administration Building or by phoning extension 242.

The SEAHAWK

Due to the Paper Shortage in the past year, The Seahawk, the official UNC-W newspaper has been used for many purposes such as students favorite toilet paper (a little rough but it gets the job done), posters, spit balls, and some of the more refine students finds it a source of good reading.

The weekly media is full of on campus blurs, student life, sports, and photos. Next fall's Seahawk will see many new changes including more sports coverage, student government coverage and a fun page for students to put down on paper their emotional feelings towards that "favorite" professor, caricatures, cartoons, and puzzles.

The Seahawk is a student supported organization which gets funded through our activity fees and through advertisement. Through advertisement, the students receive special discounts and deals from the local advertisers. Make use of these discounts and deals and you will find that the Seahawk is a real bargain.

We still need additional help. Freshmen always provide the best source for fresh new ideas.

We still have openings for typists, cartoonists, writers and many other things. Join our growing organization and get the News first hand. See Robert Maxey, editor, Debbie Lewis, associate editor or Ms. Linda Moore, advisor for a position or more info. You will find us hiding behind a typewriter upstairs in the Pub.

Video Tape Committee

The NOW medium of video tape is here on campus. The Video Tape Committee, managed by David Brickley and Mark Leonard, is building a good basis for full production this year. They have the know-how, and are getting the equipment needed to produce tapes here on campus.

The format for the fall semester will consist of ordered tapes from New York, a campus newscast, editorials concerning problem areas on campus, and taped events occurring here, such as the University Theatre productions.

In connection with Drama Department, the Video Tape Committee hopes to build into a studio set-up, and a short newscast on local public television informing the community of the happenings on campus. This, of course, is still in the future, but not only possible, quite probable.

If you would like to join in on a growing, learning thing, contact David Brickley through any of the following sources; Linda Moore's office.....PUB, Drama Department Secretary..... Kenan Auditorium, Any set-up of equipment around campus.

You do not have to be an electronic genius to work with this equipment. An interest in the medium is all that is needed. Please check us out.

ATLANTIS publishes student writing

Atlantis, the UNC-W student literary magazine, is published twice a year. It features short stories, poems, essays, and art work by students at UNC-W.

All UNC-W students are invited to work with the magazine. It offers a particularly interesting extracurricular activity because it involves direct contact with the creative efforts of other students on this campus.

All students are invited to submit material for publication. Likewise, all students are invited to join the Atlantis staff and help select the material that is to be published.

Working with the magazine involves selection--reading the stories, poems, and essays students have submitted and deciding which will be published. Students are also needed to help with the art work--choosing pictures to be printed, arranging layout, etc. During the five years of its existence, Atlantis has attempted to set a high standard for quality. The magazine has achieved acceptance among the student body and is supported by a grant from the Student Government Association. It has also received grants from The North Carolina Arts Council to be used for promotional purposes.

Atlantis is distributed free to UNC-W students. Copies are also sent to college libraries and to the staffs of other student literary magazines throughout the state.

Test Yourself

Do you want to:
make new friends?
learn more about the campus?
become involved with the school?
learn how to draw straight lines?
be famous?

If you answered yes to one or more of these questions, then you should join the yearbook staff. No experience is necessary. It's a great way to meet people and become involved with your school.

The following positions are still open for the taking: sports editor, feature editor, faculty editor, student life editor, art editor, and photographer. We only have three deadlines a year so you won't be pressured for time.

If you're interested If you're interested, come by the Fledgling office upstairs in the pub during freshman orientation or when classes begin--in the fall or leave a note on the door anytime.

The '76 Fledgling wants you!

PRES. HOBBS WELCOMES FROSH

A word of welcome to each of you who are considering the University of North Carolina at Wilmington as your institution of higher learning. I hope that your stay on our campus for the next few days will be rewarding as you prepare to make the transition from high school into college.

The Student Government Association functions to uphold the best interests of the students attending our university. Our student government appropriates student activities fees to various student oriented programs, speaks the opinions of our constituents, investigates and questions complaints concerning our campus, and helps coordinate programs concerning our university and students. We encourage and entertain the ideas of everyone who wants to help make our government responsive to the needs of our campus.

Who is involved in the UNC-W student government? Individual students who are interested and concerned about academic and social affairs of our student body are the members of the student government. You can become a member by running for one of the eight Freshman class offices, or becoming a member of a committee or organization that represents the student body. The members are volunteers who want to contribute their ideas, services and time to benefit the needs and desires of their fellow students, university and campus.

Listed below are some of the committees that need hard workers who want to get involved in the SGA:

- (1) Popular Films Comm.
- (2) Special Events Comm.
- (3) Concert Committee
- (4) Dance Committee
- (5) Homecoming Committee
- (6) Finance Committee
- (7) Video Tape Committee
- (8) Athletic Committee
- (9) Board of Elections
- (10) University Lectures

These are not the only committees that function within our student government. Many others exist and others can be created to investigate the new desires, expect-tations, and needs of our student body.

On Monday and Thursday this week, there will be a "SGA Welcoming Table" in the lobby of the Pub. If you are interested in the student government or have any questions concerning college life, take advantage of this opportunity to ask the various members of the SGA for assistance. We are here to serve and help you in whatever way will benefit you.

I would like to encourage and invite each of you to become involved in the student government because of the many opportunities for participation in activities that will become valuable in your college life.

STUDENT UNION PROGRAM BOARD

The Student Union Program Board is a group of student activity programmers who concentrate on bringing low-cost, innovative activities to campus. In the past year and a half of its existence, SUPB has sponsored a hoedown, a billiard exhibition, a folksinger - in residence, a comedy team, and Super Sunday.

During orientation, SUPB will be showing a video tape in the lobby of the pub. Entitled "Son of Movie Orgy", this hour long free show takes the viewer back to late fifties and early sixties TV - excerpts from old commercials, the Mickey Mouse Club show, Nixon's "Checkers" speech, Superman, and many more. Don't miss this show, nor the opportunity to ask any Program Board member what they have planned for next year! Membership in SUPB is open to all.

Some Extra Time?

have booths set up to tell you more about what they do. Staff members from the radio station, newspaper, and yearbook will be available.

-Pool, ping pong, foosball, chess and checkers are all free.

-The bookstore welcomes browsers (until 3:30 P.M.)

Tour the campus:

-Ask to see the salt water aquariums in the Marine Sciences Bldg.

-The library has quite a rare book collection. The Computer Center on the second floor of Hoggard is an interesting place.

-Check out the residence hall, even if you won't be living there this fall.

-Any of the upperclass students helping with Orientation will show you the Nature Trail.

-The Chemistry-Physics Bldg. has several well-equipped laboratories.

-Ask someone in the Psychology Department (second floor of the King Bldg.) to show you the psychology lab. Don't miss the camens and gerbil!

-Rehearsals have begun for Jean Genet's "The Balcony", scheduled for presentation August 14-16. Want to help backstage? See Dr. Rogers in the Drama Dept. (second floor of Kenan Auditorium) for more details.

-Stop by the lobby of Kenan Hall and see art work by James Dudley. This is his one man show, a requirement of all UNC-W art majors.

FINE ARTS COMMITTEE

The UNC-W Fine Arts Committee is specifically designed to encompass all forms of student contemporary entertainment, with the exception of rock concerts.

The committee's broad range of functions includes one of the finest popular film series to be offered in the entire University system of North Carolina. Films are shown on the average of once a week in Kenan Auditorium. These films include such Academy Award winners as "The Sting", "Nicholas & Alexandra", "Cabaret", "Papillon", and the controversial "Last Tango in Paris". On the lighter side of films, the series will host "Groove Tube", "Blazing Saddles" and "Young Frankenstein," among a total of 25 movies offered in the fall and spring of 1975-76.

The Fine Arts Committee will also hold several live attractions which appeal to every aspect of student entertainment. This variety ranges from Carlos Sanchez in an evening of Spanish guitar to an encore performance of Divided We Stand specializing in "college humor."

The live attractions are free to UNC-W students and admission to the film series is by season.

Is by a season pass or a small charge at the box office of Kenan Auditorium. The Fine Arts Committee takes this opportunity to invite you to this unexcelled program in student entertainment for the fall and spring of 1975-76.

Debate Team

Giving students experience in public speaking, argumentation, and research the University Debate Team participate in a number of tournaments. Advisor Mrs. Betty Jo Welch has several trophies on display that our team has won over the years. In addition, our team hosts two tournaments-one each spring for high school debators, and the Blockade Runner Invitational each fall for college teams.

Financed through the Student Government Association, the debate team has openings for novice or experienced debaters. Membership is open to all students with no experience necessary. Contact Mrs. Welch in Bear Hall, Room 205.

UNC-W ORCHESTRA

The UNC-W Community Orchestra seeks to give citizens as well as students the opportunity to use their musical talents in a cooperative endeavor. Four concerts are given during the school year.

Rehearsals are held each Tuesday evening from 7:30 to 9:30. UNC-W students receive on credit hour per semester. Interested students should contact William Ascock in Kenan Hall, Room 116, for information on auditions.

The office of Counseling and Testing will administer the Advanced Placement and College-level Examinations just before and during fall registration, August 25 and 26, 1975.

Students planning to take the tests must register with the Office of Counseling and Testing, Alderman Building, Room 217 by June 27, 1975. Office hours are 8:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M. Monday through Friday. Incoming Freshmen may register by completing the registration form, enclosing a check to UNC-W for the service charge, and mailing them to the Counseling and Testing Center.

UNC-Wilmington, Wilmington, N. C. 28401.

Any incoming Freshmen or currently enrolled student seeking source exemption, college credit, or both, may register for the tests. The Advanced Placement Examinations are, however, intended for students who have had college-level instruction in high school.

The Advanced Placement Examinations are available in 16 areas, including American History, Biology, Calculus AB, Calculus BC, Chemistry, Classics, English, European History, French Language, French Literature, German, History of Art, Music, Physics B, Physics C, and Spanish.

The CLEP general examinations will be offered in English Composition, Humanities, Natural Sciences, and Social Sciences.

There will be a $5 service charge for each Advanced Placement Test for which the student registers, and a $5 charge for enrolling in one CLEP test, and a $10 charge for taking two to four of the CLEP tests.

If you plan to take any of these tests, be sure to register with the Counseling and Testing Center by June 27, 1975.

PI MU EPSILON

Pi Mu Epsilon is a national honorary mathematical fraternity whose membership is open to all who achieve distinction in mathematical work. Its purpose is the promotion of scholarship in mathematics among students. To this end, the N. C. Zeta chapter at UNC-W conducts initiations, sponsors mathematical talks, and runs the Pi Mu Epsilon problem corner in the Chemistry Building. Every two weeks the corner contains a new problem, and the first correct solution wins a prize. Problems have no prerequisites beyond high school mathematics, all students are invited to enter these problem contests. The national fraternity publishes the Pi Mu Epsilon Journal, filled with mathematics done by undergraduates and available in the UNC-W library and conducts national meetings. Zack Cox, local chapter past president, will speak about his honor society in mathematics at the Pi Mu Epsilon national meeting in August at Kalamazoo, Michigan.

a listener who cares!

Vivan Martindale is campus ministeer at UNC-W as a Christian presence for relating to students, faculty and others at varied levels of interest and concern. He works under the direction of a cooperative board of directors, United Christian Campus Ministry, sponsored by a member of denominations in Wilmington. The long range goal is to promote an atmosphere in which growing persons can discover strength and meaning in Christian faith and where a recognizable Christian community may emerge to become a positive influence in university affairs and in the life of the total community.

Our minister is a listener who shares your religious interests and personal concerns with understanding. He has no office to hide him and functions best on the sidewalk, in the dorm, under a tree or behind a cup of coffee. You can also leave messages or make contact through the Student Affairs office in the administration building. This is a full time position and he is available Monday-Friday and for emergencies or personal crises at almost any other time. Held it to meet you so introduce yourself since their are more of you than of him.

Love It...

PRaise the Lord!
We Love You!

This is the theme of the UNC-W Campus Christian Fellowship. Before I go any further about the fellowship, I would like to give a brief summary of how we came about. Three years ago a dear friend of ours, Bill Brooks, who was then Student Body President, felt led of the Lord to start a Campus Christian meeting. So by his efforts, prayers and Jesus Christ's strength he was able to stand up in front of over 600 incoming freshmen and say "If I have any questions or problems I can't cope with as SGA President I'm going to ask the question. What would Jesus Christ do?" After making that statement he then said if anyone wants to meet with me tonight and discuss this form of government further meet in Kenan 103. Since that night, we have the Campus Christian Fellowship.

We, the fellowship, are a inter-denominational group who believe in putting Jesus first and denominations second. We don't have any planned programs every week but we just meet, sing, share, pray and Praise the Lord. We don't believe in shoving a Bible or Christ down your throats but just introducing you to him and you make your own decision. We have cookouts, sing songs and have a good time getting to know people for who they are.

So, we, the fellowship, extend an invitation to you, a new UNC-W freshman, to check us out and to rap with us. Meetings are on Tuesday nights at 7:30 in Kenan 103 (not the auditorium). Everyone is welcome no matter what you look like or who you are.

We love YOU!
The Fellowship.

Students given free medical treatments

Anyone not having health and accident insurance is strongly urged to consider the coverage plan available under the Student Hospitalization and Surgical Insurance Plan. All students are eligible to participate, at a cost of only $33.00 per year, and receive coverage 24 hours a day from August, 1975 through August, 1976. Applications are available in the Student Affairs Office in room 113 of the Alderman Administration Building.

Dance Committee

The S.G.A. Dance Committee has at least four dances planned for the coming school year, and will welcome new members to help organize these. Any students interested in being on the Dance Committee should contact Linda Moore in the Student Activities Office in the Pub, or Bill Wilkie, Chairman. Wilkie will be present at the dance Monday (or Thursday) night and will be happy to tell you more about his plans.

Intramurals

The Physical Education Department organizes and administers the intramural activities for both men and women each semester. This past year, competition was open in frisbee tossing, surfing, and horseshoe throwing, as well as the usual campus sports. Watch for the announcements.

55 agencies seek eager volunteers

Want to do "something"? Want to grow, not just exist? Want to help people? Want help deciding on a career?

These and many other questions may be answered with involvement in a volunteer program. Approximately 55 area agencies have requested help in a vast assortment of situations. Whether you decide to assist the handicapped, elderly or children, to work with a group or just one individual, to be an assistant or leader, to help with academics or recreational activities--the choice is yours.

Working in conjunction with the downtown Cape Fear Voluntary Action Center, Ms. Linda Moore, Director of Student Activities, is able to give students detailed information on opportunities in and around Wilmington. 'A large amount of time is not required," stresses Ms. Moore. "As little as an hour a week, for instance, would be most welcome. Clubs and organizations could arrange a one-time project to suit member needs and interests."

Check out the variety of opportunities available by contacting Ms. Moore in her office in the Pub, or by calling Mrs. Sue Colson at the Cape Fear Voluntary Action Center, 762-9611.

A P O

Alpha Phi Omega is the national service fraternity for college men and women. Its Purposes include the development of leadership, friendship, and service, and the furthering of the freedom that is our national, educational and intellectual heritage. Upsilon Nu Chapter at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington received its charter in May, 1969.

Alpha Phi Omega's well-rounded program of service projects and social events provides involvement in meaningful experiences. In recent years Upsilon Nu Chapter has raised thousands of dollars for national organizations such as the Peace Corps Schools Partnership Program, The East-Seals Foundation, and the Heart Association. On the local level projects have supported the Handicapped Bowler's League and the Ogen Rescue Squad. Services to the campus have been given in obtaining finances for additional volumes for the William Randall Library, and through campus clean-ups. Among the social highlights of the year are numerous parties, and the annual chapter awards banquet. Membership in Alpha Phi Omega shall be open to men and women of all races, colors, and creeds, (irrespective of their course of study or other fraternal affiliation), upon the approval of the respective college chapter and after fulfilling the membership requirements prescribed by the national fraternity and that chapter.

THE PURPOSES OF DELTA UPSILON
THE PROMOTION OF FRIENDSHIP
THE DEVELOPMENT OF CHARACTER
THE DIFFUSION OF LIBERAL CULTURE
THE ADVANCEMENT OF JUSTICE

Delta Upsilon

Delta Upsilon, formerly known as Delta Epsilon is a social fraternity with numerous attributes. Many different people find fulfillment in the DU brotherhood. Some find challenges in leadership and others simply find lifetime friendships.

Meetings are formal and by-laws are strict. DU does not hide behind veils of secrecy; however, meetings are closed. Any brother will proudly relay the history of the fraternity to any interested person.

Delta Upsilon does not consider itself the answer to world problems, but the organization is concerned with what it can offer a student in the way of broadening his education. A college education, important as it is, is no substitute for experience in dealing with people in a social setting. Ask any fraternity brother.

The brothers of Delta Upsilon are consciously aware of the university's coming of age, and we are schooling our members to take a leading role in making the University of North Carolina at Wilmington a school to be respected.

Delta Upsilon is proud of its fraternal heritage. Stop by the house at 5223 Market Street any time for more information.

TKE oldest social frat

Tau Kappa Epsilon Fraternity is the oldest social fraternity on campus. Our international fraternity has over 300 chapters with many in North Carolina, including one at nearby Pembroke State.

Our chapter, Mu Chi, is very sports conscious, and very active in school functions. Programs for the year include campsouts, a ski weekend, beach weekend, water skiing parties, cookouts, concerts and band parties.

The brothers of Tau Kappa Epsilon invite all men and women to come by our houses at 4505 and 4507 Wrightsville Avenue and jive with the men of TEKE.

Pi Kappa Phi

The Brothers of Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity wish to extend a cordial welcome to all new students, both freshmen and transfers, to UNC-W. We hope your experiences here will be both rewarding and fulfilling in your search for higher education. We also hope that you will consider the prospect of becoming a brother in one of the three Greek fraternities we have here on campus.

The Pi Kappa Phi National Fraternity was founded on December 10, 1904 at the College of Charleston in Charleston, South Carolina. Since that time, Pi Kappa Chapters have sprung up across the nation. We now have close to one hundred chapters plus colonies from coast to coast. The national headquarters are located in Charlotte, North Carolina.

The UNC-W Chapter, Gamma Theta, was installed on February 28, 1968; the first national fraternity on campus. Since then, Gamma Pi Kappa Phi's highest chapter award, Grand Master

Kappa Phi's have won four of the last five IFC scholastic trophies. Athletically, the Gamma Theta Raiders have excelled in both IFC and intramural sports. This past year alone, Pi Kappa Phi captured the football, basketball, and softball IFC championships by "clean-sweeping" the other two fraternities.

Pi Kappa Phi serve the community through different projects such as our annual Christmas and Easter parties for underprivileged children, we also serve the school with different improvement projects. Our social calendar includes Rose Ball (our formal dance) a beach weekend at Myrtle Beach and our rush programs.

While a closely-knit group of men, Pi Kappa Phi prides itself in being "a very personal fraternity". The Pride of the South invites you to come by the house at 120 Yorktown Drive or call 763-6632. We hope to meet and

Sigma Alpha Beta The PROFESSIONAL

Sigma Alpha Beta, a professional business fraternity, was organized in the spring of 1973.

The purposes of the fraternity are to help members develop professionalism and understanding of the organization of business.

Two meetings are held during each school month; a breakfast or dinner meeting on the second Tuesday of the month, and the other meeting on the fourth Thursday of each month at 11:30 a.m. in room 112 of the Isaac Bear Hall to conduct business. The dinner and breakfast meetings feature a guest speaker from the business community.

The annual calendar for the group includes workshops for the campus community, several social events, and participation in intramurals.

The organizational structure of the fraternity is patterned after a large corporation and the fraternity is operated in business-like manner.

Working as a member of Sigma Alpha Beta prepares business students to function in the business community. Membership is open to all male students in business which meet SAB's minimum scholastic requirements.

Anyone planning to seek a career in business is encouraged to consider joining Sigma Alpha Beta. As graduation approaches and job prospects arise, extra curricular activities will become important. Prospective employers will ask about college activities.

Since Sigma Alpha Beta is a business fraternity, we all have something in common, so let's get together and talk over the advantages of being a member of the fraternity.

Computing Center

The Computing Center, located on the second floor of Hoggard Hall, is equipped with a high-speed multi-leaving terminal transmitting at 600 cards per minute and receiving at 1100 lines per minute. A card punch and a plotter are also attached. The UNC-W terminal is connected to the Triangle Universities Computation Center by a dedicated telephone circuit.

The university has access to the full resources of TUCS's IBM 370/165 computer, including two million bytes of core storage and 800 million bytes of on line storage. In addition, supports all standard languages and many special purpose processors.

The university has several conversational terminals located on campus. CPS, BASIC, and APL are available to faculty and students through these machines.

The university encourages the use of the center for individual and class projects. Key punches, reference material and assistance are available to students and faculty in the User Room.

The Computing Center has a Xerox copy service available to all faculty and students at 5¢ per copy. Material to be copied should be left with the Dispatcher in the User Room.

This will mark the 17th season of the S.R.O. Straw Hat Theatre which operates as the artistic and cultural outlet during the summer months on the campus of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

In the summer of 1959, the first of the S.R.O. Straw Hat Theatre productions was mounted in the old Isaac Bear Building on Market St., the original home of Wilmington College.

During the summer of 1968, summer stock was originated on campus with six productions being presented in a six-week period, approximately from July 1 through August 10.

This season, as in the past four, seven productions will be staged beginning June 24 and ending August 10. Try-outs for the 1975 season, held on June 4 and 5, were open to all students of UNC-W and residents within the area.

Since its inception, the S.R.O. Straw-Hat Theatre has presented original, Broadway, classic and musical plays. This program exposes students of UNC-W and other branches of the consolidated university to the unique educational experience of working under summer stock and professional conditions.

The program this year will offer as its first production, from June 24-29 in Kenan Auditorium, "OLIVER!". This is the charming and warm musical version of Charles Dickens' immortal "Oliver Twist".

From July 1-6 the hottest comedy of the season entitled "HOT L.BALTIMORE" will be mounted in the S.R.O. Theatre in Kenan Hall.

"HARVEY", the celebrated comedy concerning a six foot white rabbit, will next be presented in Kenan Auditorium from July 8-13. Frank Hall, a former UNC-W graduate, is returning from New York to appear as guest performer in this production.

The fourth production of the 1975 summer season will be "THE MAD SHOW". This will be staged in the S.R.O. Theatre from July 15-20. It is a musical revue adapted from the put-downs, take-offs and parodies by Mad Magazine.

Following this will be "THE LITTLE FOXES" by Lillian Hellman playing in Kenan Auditorium from July 22-27. This has long been considered a milestone in American theatre.

July 29 through August 3, in the S.R.O. Theatre, "STORY THEATRE" will be presented. This is an evening for the entire family, so if you are an adult, bring along a child.

The seventh and final production of this season's summer stock will be the fast moving musical "TENDERLOIN". This zippy and zesty musical of New York during the Naughty Nineties will be mounted in Kenan Auditorium from August 5-10.

All plays start at 8:30 PM and run nightly, except Monday, throughout the season.

Season tickets are now on sale and will be offered during the first week's production at the box office. Individual tickets may also be purchased at the box office. Reservations may be made in advance by calling the box office in the Sarah Graham Kenan Memorial Auditorium from 2-5 PM Monday through Friday at 791-9695, and by calling 763-7922 on Saturday and Sunday.

In addition to the regular summer stock season, last year the S.R.O. Straw-Hat Theatre initiated a series of Saturday and Sunday afternoon performances for children. Last year on successive weekends "THE COWGIRL AND THE TIGER" was presented with tremendous success and to rave reviews. Again this summer another children's play will be presented. The actual play and dates are to be announced.

Drama and Speech Dept. promotes University Theatre

The University Theatre is the producing unit of the Department of Drama and Speech. Its major function is to provide the opportunity for all students to participate on all levels of theatrical activity. It is an extension of the drama program as developed by the faculty of the drama department. The plays provide a live practice of the history, theory and experimentation of world theatre. In many instances U. T. provides a practice ground for original ideas from the student body. For the past five years U.T. has placed major emphasis on an all student produced major productions. This project has taken different forms depending on the ideas of the more advanced students.

The University Theatre season is composed of four major productions a year and each one averages around six weeks of preparation. The first three are directed and produced by the Drama Department with the last play being the all student production with the support of the Drama Department.

This year's plays will be: Maurice Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird" October 10, 11, 12, 13. The musical "Celebration" November 20, 21, 22, 23, 24 and Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest".

These plays are open to all students of this University. Any student who wishes to become a part of any of the University Theatre's productions is invited to participate. This participation can be for one play or for as long as the student wishes to be a part of U.T. The University Theatre is always open and any student can be a part of it for as often as they wish.

All of the University Theatre productions are free to all part-time or full time students. We are supported by the Student Government Association and feel a duty to serve our students. The SRO Theatre, which is our major facility, is small and we urge students to make reservations early before the opening of our plays. If we fill up we will then continue to hold over until everyone has seen the play. We want students to see the work produced as well as participate in the production of it.

U.T. welcomes all new students and hopes to see you on stage or in the audience. We will produce a summer production and we invite you to become a part of it. The rehearsals will be held in the evening and the play will be presented for any student who attended either or both sessions this summer or who is a regular student but did not attend summer school. The summer play will be presented August 14, 15, 16 in the SRO Theatre.

Wind Ensemble lends instrumental experience

The Wind Ensemble is organized each semester in order to provide instrumental music experience for those students who desire it. Membership is open to any student who has had instrumental experience, with the approval of the director, and any participant may earn credit. The Wind Ensemble and its smaller ensembles regularly provide music for University functions, civic groups, church groups, and radio and television.

Participation by non-music majors may be supplemented by private lessons, also for credit. Participation in either a vocal or instrumental organization is required of all music majors.

The University Wind Ensemble presents at least two concerts a year and participates in the large stage productions of the Music and Drama Departments.

Faculty and student recitals and special senior recitals are presented free of charge by the Music Department. The public, and especially all students, are invited to attend.

CHORUS: a vocal ensemble

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington Mixed Chorus is organized each semester to provide vocal musical experience for those students who desire it. Membership is open to any student in the university with the approval of the director, and any participant may earn credit.

The University Mixed Chorus and its smaller ensembles regularly provide music for university functions, civic clubs, church groups, radio and television. The small ensembles or groups depend on the composition and interest of the complete mixed chorus.

Participation by non-music majors may be supplemented by private lessons also for credit. Participation in either a vocal or instrumental organization is required of all music majors.

The University Mixed Chorus presents at least two concerts a year and participates in the large stage productions of the Music and Drama Departments. In addition, the University Mixed Chorus and its smaller groups have acted as ambassadors to many of the high schools in the surrounding area.

Tabulating quality points?

To determine quality point averages for a semester or for total time at the university, do the following:

Add the number of quality points earned so far; each letter grade earns a set number of quality points. At the university the system is:

- A - 4 points
- B - 3 points
- C - 2 points
- D - 1 point
- F - 0 points

Divide by the number of hours taken.

Library emphasizes service to students

Service to students is emphasized at the William Madison Randall Library, a spacious and inviting facility, which opened in Jan. 1969. To serve the students by providing material support to their individual study programs and to help them develop skill in using the library resources are the primary goals of the library staff.

With a seating capacity of 600 spaced throughout the comfortable, two-story building, the floor plan is designed in such a way as to create an appealing atmosphere in which the readers and books are pleasantly intermingled. In addition to traditional seating, numerous individual seating and study carrels are provided as well as small group study rooms and comfortable

Conveying service is available through two co-op operated copiers - one for duplicating printed matter, and the other for processing microfilm. Another feature of the building is a listening center, available for classroom assignments or for personal use.

The library collections, growing rapidly, now total over 100,000 volumes with more than 50,000 government documents and a variety of periodicals and indexes. Staff members are eager to answer questions and to assist students in gaining maximum benefit from library resources.

I.D.'s needed

It's like a dime to a pin-ball machine. It's like a key to a car. It's like a toilet to a restroom. It's important. It's an ID card.

While you're here, be sure to get your mug shot taken for your ID card. They will be ready for you to claim when you return in the fall.

What does an ID card do? Well, it gets you into ball games and fun things like that. It also allows you to check out library books, to cash checks in the bookstore and to eat in the cafeteria

(If you're a dorm student). It serves many purposes in the community as well as on campus. You know, suppose you have an accident and are critically injured (for instance, if you're broke). You can use that card to see the University physicians and die in peace. No joke!

What it actually does is prove that you're who you say you are and that's vital. Make sure you have your picture made so you can do neat things next fall-- like be a college student.

SNA

broadens nursing experience

The Student Nurse Association of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington was organized in the fall of 1967 and became a member of the Student Nurse Association of North Carolina. The purpose of SNA is to promote high educational and professional standards among students and to serve as a channel of communication between the student nurse and various units of graduate professional nursing organizations.

Some of the activities of the club have included a 'Get - Acquainted Party' given by second year students to honor the freshmen the state convention, where for the past two years UNC-W has proudly filled the state presidential seat.

In 1969 the SNA initiated the Big Sister Program for freshmen nursing students. The objective was to give encouragement to each little sister and to help make the nursing program more than attending classes working in the hospital.

The SNA not only provides outside activities for nursing students, but also gives them insight into the legal and ethical aspects of their future nursing careers.

Coffee—house to Come!

The White Whale, the Rathskellar, the Place.... whatever the name at whatever the school, coffeehouses are popular campus places. Usually open during the evening hours only, coffeehouses offer a limited menu, but a wide range of things to do. Low-budget entertainers are booked on certain nights, along with student performers. Magic shows, ventriloquists, poetry readings—you name it and college coffeehouses offer it. Soon UNC-W will have its own coffeehouse. The Coffeehouse Committee, working with the Student Activities Office, is well along with plans to turn the downstairs meeting room in the pub into a comfortable area for eating, talking, and having fun. A preliminary floor plan has been drawn up, and a country-barn style of decor has been agreed upon. Entertainment ideas are being discussed, and a budget set up. Want to be in on these plans? Stop by the Director of Student Activities Office in the Pub (room 105) and ask Linda Moore for details.

Open Monday through Friday from 9 a. m. - 2 p. m. the Student Health Center has a family nurse practitioner, Ms. Hood, at disposal, and a physician is on call 24 hours a day. Students enrolled for five or more credit hours per semester are eligible for treatment of illness or any type problems. The center is located adjacent to the main lobby of the residence hall.

In case of an emergency at the university between 9 a. m. and 2 p. m. on Mon. through Fri., the university nurse should be contacted at extension 339. Ms. Hood's office is located adjacent to the main lobby of the residence hall.

At all other times, the Wilmington Health Associates should be contacted at 763-8251. These doctors are on contract with UNC-W.

Of course, in case of serious injury, requiring immediate attention, the injured person should be taken to New Hanover Memorial Hospital as quickly as possible. A private car, UNC-W campus security vehicle or the Rescue Squad can be contacted for aid. Be sure to call the Wilmington Health Associates and ask that a physician meet the student at the emergency room. Otherwise, an emergency room fee will be charged.

BOOKSTORE

The University Bookstore, located in the Student Services Building, (Pub) stocks required textbooks, varied interest books, art and general school supplies, as well as examination blue books. At the end of each semester, the bookstore will buy back used books.

Campus clothing and gift items are also available. The bookstore is open between the hours of 8 a.m. and 3:30 p.m., Monday-Friday.

Upon presentation of a University I.D. card, the bookstore will cash small checks for students.

CLUB TIDBITS

Wantu Wazuri welcomes freshmen

The Wantu Wazuri club of the University of N. C. at Wilmington expresses a most sincere welcome to all incoming new students. We invite you to become a part of our organization!

Our purpose is to provide representation for Blacks on campus, to promote cultural programming which would add to the general cultural atmosphere of our campus, and to promote social entertainment.

We are looking forward to meeting you in the near future. Drop in on our meetings every Tuesday at 11:30 a.m. in room 121, Kenan Building, or visit our table in the Pub this week.

Mamie Amos, Secretary

PSYCHOLOGY Club

The purpose of the Psychology Club is to further the interest of psychology. In connection with this aim, the meetings feature programs with invited guest speakers.

At present, membership in the club is open to those students who are interested in the field of psychology.

E. EUGENE WILLIAMS SOCIEDAD D' ESPANOLE

The Eugene B. Williams Spanish Club is open to anyone interested in the language and culture of Spanish speaking countries. Projects and activities for the year are of various types.

During the year 1974-75 the main activities were: a collection and donation of $500 to the Honduras Relief Fund (for the victims of Hurricane Fifi), a "Here comes Christmas Party" for the University students and towns people at the Holiday Inn at Wrightsville Beach. Food and refreshments were of typical origin. More than 150 people attended.

Taco and bake sales were held on campus to collect funds, a trip to Raleigh to view the presentation of the Spanish Masterpiece, "La Celestina"; a year end banquet with paella, sangria and other delicious spanish foods, gave donations to the Randall Library for a collection of books and a magazine.

The fellowship and opportunities to make friends are some of the main assets of our club. Come and try it! It is fun, rewarding, and entertaining.

Business Club

Welcome to UNC-W campus. We are the local Business Club. Our membership consists of students interested in the fields of accounting, economics, management, and marketing. Our activities and influence encompass not only the Department of Business, but also the campus and community in general.

In the past school year we conducted two Used-Book Sales, participated in the Wilmington-Jaycees-sponsored Bike-A-Thon, presented an electric typewriter for use by UNC-W Business students, held a dinner meeting, sponsored two semester-end parties, and co-sponsored (along with Sigma Alpha Beta) a Homecoming Queen candidate and intramural football basketball.

SNCAE provides growth opportunities

The Student North Carolina Association of Educators is the professional association for college and university students preparing to teach. The responsibility of the Student NCAE program to its individual members is to provide opportunities for (1) personal and professional growth; (2) development of leadership skills; (3) understanding of the history, ethics, and programs at local, state and national levels, and (4) participation in professional activities at local, state, and national levels.

For information about membership you may contact Sheila Barnes, Pres.; Eileen Sternberger, Vice Pres.; Susan Hall, Sec.; Lyn Smith, Treas.; Paula Williamson, publicity chairperson or the Education Department, King Hall.

UNCW Math Club

Membership in the UNC-W Math Club is open to all those interested in any aspect of mathematics, computer science, or statistics. It is not restricted to majors nor those enrolled in a mathematics course. By belonging to the Math Club, students can find others, both students and faculty, willing to share similar ideas.

Over the years, activities have ranged from interesting talks and movies concerning mathematics of a general interest nature to socials such as beach parties, oyster roasts, and get-togethers at homes of faculty members. Mathematics professors from UNC-W and from other universities have presented talks which have been on topics of interest to freshmen as well as seniors. The socials have brought students and faculty members together informally-faculty members get to know students not merely as numbers, and students find out that their teachers are human too.

The Math Club also sponsors

student tutors for those taking elementary mathematics, computer science, and statistics courses.

The president of the Math Club for 1975-76 is Ronnie West, a senior math major, and the faculty advisor is Dr. Fletcher Norris. Anyone interested in joining the club may contact either of these or anyone in the Mathematics Department. The dues are 50 cents a semester. There will be a social event in the early fall, so keep a look-out for the announcement.

COFFEEHOUSE SOON TO BE REALITY

The Coffeehouse Committee has been hard at work over the summer, continuing with plans to turn the old Seahawk Office downstairs in the Pub into a Coffeehouse. (A coffeehouse is a gathering place offering a limited number of food items, but a wide range of things to do.)

Working with a country barn theme, the committee has chosen to use used lumber to panel the walls, rustic, heavy-looking furniture, and a small "hay loft" to hold a color T.V. set. The room will seat about 75 people, and will be open all day.

The lumber was donated in the form of an old tobacco barn located near Hampstead. David Brickley supervised its dismantling earlier in the summer, and nine students have helped to date with the tedious job of cleaning and de-nailing the lumber. As soon as a fire-retardant varnish is received from Raleigh, Will Witson, the student employed to do the carpentry work, can begin paneling the room.

The denim drive last spring netted the Coffeehouse 142 cut-off legs, 17 shorts, and 35 pairs of whole jeans. This cloth is being stored until the furniture for the coffeehouse arrives. It will then be used to cover seat cushions on the chairs and bar stools. (Incidentally, more material can still be used. Turn it into the Student Activities Office in the Pub.)

A small, professional theater type lighting system has been ordered, and a sound system is under consideration, to give the small stage area as much versatility as possible. In addition, both lighting and sound systems can be used elsewhere on campus—even outdoors—benefiting all student activities.

The committee has decided to buy a membership in the Coffeehouse Circuit, enabling UNC-W to contract with professional, but yet reasonably priced, coffeehouse entertainers. Appalachian, Clemson, Davidson, UNC-Charlotte and Mars Hill are some of the North and South Carolina schools who buy talent from the Circuit. Local and campus talent will be encouraged to perform, also. Campus activity groups will be reminded of this unique facility in which all kinds of entertainment may be presented. Debates, short plays, mime performances and poetry readings are some of the activities the coffeehouse will host. In addition, the Video Tape Committee will supply campus newscasts, original programs filmed here on campus, and rented tapes for viewing on the T.V. WCNU will be broadcast in the room, also.

To supplement all this entertainment, a small snack bar offering popular food items will be open each evening. This operation will be contracted to a local snack bar or restaurant operator, who will probably employ student help. Pizzas, hot dogs, hamburgers, and submarine sandwiches are the items the committee feels will be best sellers. Tentative approval has been given to allow students to bring their own beer into the coffeehouse on weekends!

Any student may help with any aspect of the coffeehouse. Ideas on entertainment are especially sought. Stop by Linda Moore's office in the Pub, or contact any committee member: Craig Parker, Robert Masey, Neil Huntley, Rick Dennis, Ann Nesbitt.

traditional behavior, alcohol use is obviously very traditional."

That's the way the trend is explained by Dr. Karl Ullis of the U.C.L.A. Student Health Service. Ullis keeps in touch with college student problems through his work as an advisor to an unusual program there called Student Health Advocates.

"We've trained students to deal with minor health problems in dormitories, sororities, fraternities and married housing. They do counseling, take care of colds and sore throats in their units, things like that. The Advocates can dispense aspirin or cough medicine. We meet with them every two weeks for more training and discussions of problems. This concept started at the U. of Nebraska and is being done at only a few other campuses."

Ullis, who also has done research on adolescent alcoholism in the Seattle area, says alcohol use has increased as drug use has become less fashionable. He says he's even noticed an increase in student alcohol problems in the past year paralleling the return to other "traditional things like nostalgia."

The Gadfly:

Well, it's happened. The summer of '75 is over, just about. School is suddenly upon us. And the GADFLY returns.

Welcome back fellow scholars. This year should be like no other. After all, look at the pessimistic attitude that prevails over the domestic scene today. Everyone seems to have that Domsday feeling. The movies certainly reflect the national disquietude.

JAWS". "EARTHQUAKE". "TOWERING INFERNO". and "SWARM" all seem to say that somehow things are getting worse.

So, now the summer is over and a good movie maker could make a few good despair movies right here at good old UNC-W. A few choice gems might be "Driving to Class", "Finding a Parking Spot", "Registration", "Drop-Add".

Of course you will find that you got the professor everyone says to avoid. You will lose the registration to your car just before you go to get a parking sticker for you heap. And if the fates really have it in for you, the computer will lose you somewhere in the circuitry and you won't find out until final exams.

Now that I have reinforced that hardy feeling of returning to the academic world let me lighten your load just a little.

After all, things are not totally rotten, but just about.

The Seahawk now has a new printing machine so you will be actually able to read my column, providing I can get my copy in on time. Maybe you will actually be able to find a copy of the paper this year. After all, we have a new editor and new editors are always fired with enthusiasm. Unlike an old Gadfly column writer.

There will be flicks, plays and maybe a musical group or two will wander through this fall. Maybe you will even expose yourself to some of this culture.

At any rate, look in on this column when you can. Maybe returning to school will also return some of the satire to my veins that has leaked out during the summer. After all, fall session can't be as bad as summer school. And I should know, I was there.

WELCOME BACK, I THINK!

point

I think I shall use this first column for mostly information. For those of you who have not quite figured out what campus ministry is or where it came from, allow me to clarify. United Christian Campus Ministry is cooperative effort on the part of Christians in Wilmington to provide a campus minister to the student community on a full time basis. This means I operate with a pretty broad ranging role which often defies concrete definition. It does mean first of all that I am available to ALL faculty, students and administration. It is not only a ministry to the "believers" on campus but it also means I am available and interested in those who come at life from different perspectives.

There is one element which is extremely important to my relationship with this campus and that is confidentiality. Whatever is said to me need go no farther than that conversation because I am not tied into the hierarchy; I have no vested interest at stake in the structure. Many people at each level of the university have already utilized this aspect of the ministry and I shall continue to listen. Members of the university community may also call me in times of crisis, or emergency such as death, sickness, trauma, hospitalization, etc.

Campus Ministry is also activities, and we shall attempt to make several available to the campus community. There will be a concert on October 3, featuring a fantastic Christian rock group from California, THE ARCHERS. They have a superb blending of the best in contemporary music with a sensitive but not "pushy" sharing of a faith and way of life that is very real to them. Plan to attend! It will be at 8:00 P.M. in Kenan Auditorium and the cost will only be $5.50 with a valid I.D.

There is also Christian Fellowship which meets Tuesday evenings at 7:30 for a time of singing and sharing, and it is open to all students. Another group called The Marketplace meets for breakfast on Thursday mornings in the cafeteria. The purpose here is to examine some of critical ethical issues we now encounter or will encounter once outside the cloisters of academia. Out in the Marketplace (as different from the Upper Room) is where we must make decisions, clarify values, discover our own roles, where we love and struggle. Issues range from values clarification to sexual dilemmas to vocational responsibility to Christian faith and academics. There will probably be a Bible study group available and some lectures later in the year in addition to the possibility of an on campus worship experience. Watch for more information.

That is enough to digest for now.

The Campus Minister may be contacted through Dr. Malloy's office, Student Affairs, ext. 219.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS SAID LACKING IN ACADEMIA

Freedom of the press does not now exist, nor has it ever existed, in any private or public high school, college or university.

This can be clearly demonstrated by examining the operation of student newspapers. First, in order for a student newspaper to exist, it must be granted permission to operate by the school administration; and this permission can be cancelled at any time. Second, students in many colleges and universities are required by the administration, via mandatory student fees, to purchase a subscription to the student newspaper, and if a student should refuse to pay the fee, he is not allowed to matriculate. Also, since the administration collects the mandatory fees, it holds the purse strings, and we all know about the power of the purse.

But even more importantly, schools have a committee or individual (usually a member of the faculty) for the purpose of "supervising" the operation of the newspaper. This committee or individual really acts as a censor, causing the staff of the newspaper to be forever fearful of publishing some item which might offend the censors or the administration. If such an item were published, it could result in the removal of the editor, or a censure or complete shutdown of the newspaper.

Now just suppose that the newspapers in Richmond had to operate like those in academic institutions. First, the newspapers would have to receive permission to operate from the local government. Second, all citizens who come to live in Richmond would be required, by law, to purchase a subscription to The Richmond Times-Dispatch or the other newspaper, and would not be allowed in the community if they refused. Third, the government would collect the money for these subscriptions, thereby holding the purse strings, and would also set up a committee or appoint an individual to "oversee," that is censor, the Richmond press.

It would be quite apparent to most people that a free press would be non-existent in Richmond if the above conditions existed. But what these same people fail to realize is that such conditions do exist in institutions of learning and thus freedom of the press is completely absent in the academic realm.

Now that the non-academic press is under severe attack, with reporters being fined and imprisoned for not revealing confidential sources of information, and when we read that national polls indicate that more and more people do not consider freedom of the press as necessary, we can better understand the reason why. For when the youth of the nation have been raised on the idea and practice of a controlled press in an authoritarian academic community, one could expect nothing else. THOMAS L. JOHNSON, Professor of Biology, Mary Washington College reprint from Richmond Times-Dispatch

Some scholarships are available.

DELTA UPSILON

The brothers of Delta Upsilon welcome each of you to UNC-W. We know that you will strive, as we do, to make our campus the best in the state. Along with the other two fraternities here, we believe that association with the Greek system enhances your college career. With that thought in mind, let me encourage each of you to come by our house at 5223 Market Street and participate in our fall rush program. We pride ourselves on being the newest international fraternity at UNC-W and also in the fact that we are non-secret and non-hazing. Please note our fall rush schedule and make plans to attend. ANY BANK THAT'S ONLY OPEN WHEN YOU'RE IN CLASS MUST NOT WANT YOUR BUSINESS VERY MUCH.

Take a look at your class schedule. Then take a look at the business hours of the average bank.

You'll probably notice some remarkable similarities. Because the only time most banks seem to be open is between nine and five. On school days.

Well, at NCNB, we think you should be able to get your money at the times when you're most likely to need it. Like Saturday nights. Or at four o'clock on a Sunday afternoon, when your wallet is as empty as your stomach.

So, when you open an NCNB checking account, we'll give you an NCNB 24 card. It lets you use the NCNB 24 money machines to do your banking any time of the day, any day of the week. Just by pushing a few little buttons.

And it's so simple, you don't even need to be passing math to do it.

So, when you pick a bank, just remember:

The only time you can't get money out of your NCNB account is when you don't have any money in it.

WE NEVER CLOSE.

DEAR DARLENE

Dear Darlene,

I have reason to believe that my new boyfriend is connected with the Mafia. What should I do?

Dismayed

Dear Disma,

Whatever he wants.
Dear Darlene,

I have become frustrated and confused. I need your help. I'm beginning to wonder if it's worth staying in college. I have several working friends who never got past high school yet they're making as much money as some college graduates. Should I stay in school or should I drop out and get a job?

Hungry for Adventure

Dear Hun,

A decision of this nature is a very important one since it will affect your entire future. Thus, no person should tell you what to do. There's only one logical way to decide—flip a coin.

Dear Darlene,

I'm single and not in the least bit interested in marriage. I do, however, believe that one should live life to the fullest. Therefore, I wish to no longer be a virgin.

Since I am unmarried do you think a doctor would consider me strange if I asked for "the pill."

New Hobby

Dear Darlene,

Things just aren't going right for me. My girlfriend broke up with me. I'm flunking out of school. And my parents told me that I'm their mistake. I'm seriously considering jumping out of a window. What should I do?

Forlorn

Dear Forlo,

First of all, open the window. Suppose you live-then you'll be all cut up.

Have you got a problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write Dear Darlene in care of the Cherry Hill Mental Hospital.

Happening in Morgantown, Penn.!

On August 13 at 6:30 A.M., eleven of us left Wilmington, N.C. to travel to remote Morgantown, Pennsylvania. Well one would ask what could possibly be happening in such an ungodly place as Morgantown, Pennsylvania. Well between August 14-16 Morgantown became Godly. Some 30,000 people from all races, places, and denominations gathered to give their love, praise, and thankfulness to Jesus Christ. This was the third year that this event has been held and each year it grows larger and larger. It was titled "Come Alive Jesus '75".

It was held on a large Mennonite Farm in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania. We arrived at 10:30 P.M. Wednesday night only to find there was six inches of mud on the ground which complicated setting up tents. Everyone camped out and the whole event was held outside. One really felt the oneness and love from the people as everybody pitched in to help everyone else set up tents and to push your car out of the mud. It was really great to observe this kind of concern and love today.

There were newspaper reporters from all over the U.S. covering the event and it was quoted by one Philadelphia news reported that when he inquired from some of the people there what they thought of the happening they just replied Praise the Lord!

During the week we attended seminars and teachings by such speakers as Tom Skinner, who is also chaplain for the Redskin Football team. Mr. Skinner clearly pointed out the differences of a genuine Christian and a phoney. The difference being one who lives the life of Christ moment by moment instead of Sunday by Sunday. He shared that the world will know the genuine Christians by the love they have for one another.

Another very interesting aspect of the three day event was the Christian Rock groups that were there. The first group to appear were the Liberated Wailing Wall, a Messianic Jewish group. A Messianic Jew is only who has accepted Jesus Christ as the Messiah. This group was ver good and very talented.

Phil Keaggy, a solo guitarist who is ranked by Christian rock groups as equally as talented as the Jewish group, and Duane Alman of the Alman Brothers.

The exciting part of the whole week was meeting people from all over the U.S., who are normal acting people but who have a peace of mind and excitement in their lives that only Christ can give. Even though there was a lot of rain, and mud, it did not seem to dampen the peoples interest and excitement to learn and grow from the event, in a world which has tried to mock, ridicule and destroy the very life of one man who merely keeps saying "I love you" is that O.K.?

It was good to see people live together in a huge menonite farm sharing problems without being put down, loving without expecting anything in return and helping one another without ever being asked to. It was truly a growing experience, just ask any one of the 30,000.

PRaise the Lord!

CHRISTIAN STUDENT UNION

Students from all Christian groups (Protestant, Catholic, and otherwise) are invited to a preliminary meeting to investigate the feasibility of forming a C.S.U. at UNC-W.

Some of the purposes would be to coordinate religious activities on campus, give input to United Christian Campus Ministry, sponsor activities and examine the implications of being a Christian in an academic setting.

This kind of effort can only truly be successful if there is representation from a broad range of groups; Roman, Greek, Baptist, Pentecostal, non-denominational, Episcopal, Methodist, etc., etc., etc.

Counseling and Testing Center

The Counseling and Testing Center will offer students again this year opportunities for personal growth through group participation. Group topics for the fall semester are: decision-making skills; communication skills; study skills; and values clarification. The purpose of the decision-making group will be to provide students with an opportunity to learn more about themselves and others by helping them learn how to develop and apply decision-making skills. Choices of major and career are but two of the many typical and real-life situations considered through short readings, discussions, role-plays, and simulations.

The purpose of the communication group will be to focus on the verbal communication process in an attempt to increase group members interpersonal skills. Consideration will be given to both the listening and message sending skills, as well as to the feelings and effect connected with the process. The format will be largely discussion, demonstration and practice of situations relevant to participants.

Study skills and communication skills groups will be announced later.

Groups will meet in Room 202, Administration Building.

Organizational meetings for the groups will be:

Decision-making skills
Wednesday, Sept. 16, 2:30-4:00 P.M.

Communication Skills
Thursday, Sept. 17, 2:30-4:30
Study Skills announced later

Value Clarification announced later

Drs. Newton and Slager, leaders of the groups, will be happy to answer questions or give additional information about the groups. They can be reached at the Counseling and Testing Center, Room 217, Administration Building or by telephone, extension 242.

Dracula is Coming

The Student Union Program Board will hold its first meeting on Thursday, August 28, in the office of Ms. Linda Moore, Director of Student Activities, in the Pub at 11:30 a.m. All incoming freshmen and transfer students are invited, as well as any other interested student.

Our objective, in case you've forgotten or never knew in the first place, is to supplement the activities provided by the Concert, Dance, Video Tape and Fine Arts Committees of Student Government. We're the people who brought you Jack White, Super Sunday, Divided We Stand and Chuck Mitchell, just to name a few of our activities. Student input is really needed to maintain our constant variety and to let us know what you want.

More on Dracula as Halloween draws near.

"THE BALCONY"

The University Theatre will reopen Jean Genet's "The Balcony" August 29, 30, and 31 in the S.R.O. Theatre on the UNC-W campus.

This play is a superb blend of modern philosophical thought and classical theatricalism.

The thought may seem dark and murky on the surface but on a deeper level it is a very true and honest attempt by Genet to cut into the various levels of man's facades and search for the elusive essence that all men seek. As Genet cuts into man's layers of conceit he discovers the modern horror of emptiness. Maybe there is no essence. Maybe man has enveloped himself in so many covers that he has lost or smothered his uniqueness or his true nature. Man may then sense that he has lost himself in the reflection of roles he receives from all people around him. At this point he is faced with the decision of how to recapture or return to his essence. But society has created the problem and therefore cannot supply the answer. Because of Genet's bizarre life he arrives at a strange or rather a horrific view that man's only recourse is to plunge into man's evil nature and thus engulf himself in the worst crimes known to man. For Genet this is man's way of deifying himself.

This philosophical thought is presented through the distance of classical theatricalism. The costumes are larger than life. The production uses the classical footgear - catshuani and the headdresskonkos. The roles and colors are classical in their concept. The games that are played out are of the nature of the bizarre plots of the Greek classical plays and they are played out against the classical Greek chorus.

The play is colorful and unique and can present a total theatrical experience for its audience. "The Balcony" will run through Sunday and reservations can be made by calling 791-4330 ext. 332 Monday through Friday between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. There is limited seating for this production and children should not be encouraged to attend. All University students are admitted to all University Theatre productions absolutely free.

SEAHAWK SOCCER '75

The UNC-W soccer team begins practice this week in preparation for the upcoming season. The Seahawks compete in District 29 of the NAIA. Other members of the district are Campbell College, Pembroke State University, Methodist College and Atlantic Christian College.

Other opponents include Duke University and North Carolina State University of the Atlantic Coast Conference and East Carolina University and The Citadel of the Southern Conference.

The UNC-W soccer program has grown rapidly over the past few years due mainly to the efforts of Coach Calvin Lane. The Seahawks have nine starters returning from last year's team which won the regular season district title.

The team travels to Chapel Hill this Saturday for a scrimmage match with the Tar Heels. The season officially gets under way on the twelfth of September when the Seahawks participate in the Pembroke Invitational Tournament which they won last year.

The Hawks open at home Friday, September 19 against East Carolina University. Students are encouraged to come out and support the Seahawks.

Artist conception of new gym

NEW GYM UNDERWAY

Construction has begun on the Raiford G. Trask Health and Education Building here on the campus of UNC-Wilmington. The $4.3 million facility is being financed by an appropriation from the North Carolina General Assembly made in 1974. Additional funding is being received from private donors, the UNCW Foundation, and revenue bonds.

The gymnasium section of the new building will accommodate 6,000 spectators. There will be 2,816 bleacher seats on the playing floor level, and 3,295 permanent seats in the upper level. Also in this area will be three classrooms, a 150 seat lecture room, a physical measurement laboratory, five handball courts, administrative and faculty offices, storage areas, and shower and dressing rooms.

The main feature in the natorium wing will be an eight lane swimming pool and a separate diving tank with one and three meter diving towers. The tank will be a great boost for the marine and oceanography departments. First aid and hydrotherapy rooms, a central training room and a coach's office will also be located in this area.

ID's need Validation

I.D.'s need validation stickers. Returning students seeking validation stickers, as well as new students seeking I.D.'s, will find them in the Student Affairs Office, Alderman 113, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Catalogs will be issued at this time, and addresses and phone numbers taken for use in the student directory.

Hanover Hall, the existing gymnasium, will be incorporated into the new facility. It will be used primarily for men and women's physical education classes and school intramurals.

The new building will be of immeasurable value to UNC-W. Not only will it aid the expanding physical education department but it will also prove to be a great incentive to potential students.

BASEBALL

CHAMPS

After a slow start, the UNC-W baseball team finished strong winning 14 of their last 18 games to capture the Summer Baseball League championship. The Seahawks' overall record was 20 wins and 13 losses.

Other teams participating in the league were UNC-Chapel Hill, Methodist College, East Carolina University, and Louisburg College.

The Tar Heels got off to an extremely fast start which enabled them to hold first place throughout regular play. UNC-W finished second followed by Methodist and ECU with Louisburg being last and thus eliminated from the tournament.

In the first round of the double elimination event UNC-W defeated Methodist 4 to 1 and Carolina downed ECU 1 to 0.

The second round was held at Chapel Hill. In the first game Methodist eliminated ECU. Game two between the Seahawks and the Tar Heels was halted in the eighth inning because of rain. The Seahawks were trailing 6 to 5 but were threatening with two runners on base and two outs. The game was resumed the next morning and although the Hawks failed to capitalize on the eighth inning opportunity they came back in the ninth and pushed across two runs to win the game 7 to 6.

In the afternoon contest it was Methodist College 5, UNC Chapel Hill 2.

In the championship game that evening, UNC-W defeated Methodist 4 to 1.

Surprisingly only two Seahawks made the all-star team. They were pitcher Parker Davis who was placed on the first team and shortstop Swain Smith who made the second team.

SEASONS "75"

BY: JW

THE CRAZY RAVERS COCKNEY REBEL

After a semester in which nothing seemed to go right with the Seahawk, and then a summer without a paper whatsoever, it is really comforting to sit down and write an article (whether good or bad) I know will be in print. Although the paper was at a standstill, music was not and many very good albums were made which I feel you should hear about.

In my attempt to review

these albums this semester, as well as keep up with the tempo, I hope to do two or more LP's a week. This, I think, will produce a better more rounded music page.

Remember, these are my reviews and opinions used in the articles. You have your own and these are the ones I would like to hear. I urge you to write and let me know what you think of what's happening in the music world. Due to a lack of space all letters cannot be printed but I will try to make space for the best ones. A mailbox will be provided outside of the Seahawk Office.

Now to get down to it. I would like to take you to England, and introduce a group that has done very well there. COCKNEY REBEL.

Although COCKNEY REBEL has not had such great success in America, their first two LP's, THE HUMAN MENAGERIE and THE PSYCHOMODO, have made it to our shores. In England, they are very popular and the British press has printed many articles about the group. A third album has been released there and they have had hit singles from all three albums.

Most of Cockney Rebels' popularity is attributed to the unusual lead singer, Steve Harley. The first album was released in 1973 and the single "Hideaway" rose rapidly in the charts, making the group and especially Harley the latest fad.

As time evolved, Harley decided he was too good for the group and he quickly began to expel most of the original members of Rebel and replace them with persons he thought more suited for the positions.

The Second Cockney Rebel album was released in 1974 and another hit single came out, "Mr. Soft." Even as the single was rising on the charts, the British press began to condemn Harley for his harsh dismissal of the group members.

Melody Maker, the English rock newspaper similar to our Rolling Stone, was particularly harsh to Harley as the August 24, 1974 edition reported him as the "rebel without a Cause." By October, they came to the conclusion that Rebel was "past their peak" and were ready to dismiss the fact Harley was a rock star at all.

1975 set the release of the PSYCHOMODO in America and a tour to coincide with the album in January. Although the tour consisted of only five dates in just the major cities, Harley and Cockney Rebel were well accepted.

Now the new COCKNEY REBEL album, THE BEST YEARS OF OUR LIVES, has been released in England and two hit singles were released during the summer. America should get the album by the end of the year.

As for the type music of the group, it is very different from what is going on in America these days. It is at times heavy yet sophisticated as much English rock is these days. Harley remains the center of attention on all three albums and has a voice which varies from weak to strong, depending on the mood of the song.

PAST

Let's go now to the first album THE HUMAN MENAGERIE, EMI ST-11294

Even here you can tell everything is done to make Harley's vocals the most outstanding things on the album. Yet the electric violin played by Jean-Paul Crocker and keyboard work by Milton Reame-James come out to make the album beautifully balanced.

The LP opens with the English hit "Hideaway". The song is one of the best on the album as the violin and backing vocals blend together to form the very mellow rock sound characteristic of Rebel.

"What Ruthy Said" and "Loretta's Tale" are about model and a whore respectively. Both songs are somewhat boring musically but interesting lyrically.

Ah, teach me to rock, I'm

Cool and sharply.

"Crazy Raver" is the next and best cut on the side as Rebel breaks lose with a real rock. (Harley must be singing to himself again.)

Lazy stage-star; wanna be a raver

You've gotta make it all happen insane

Crazy raver; wanna be a big star

You've gotta make it happen again

You want it easy but you

"Sebastian" ends the side and is very over orchestrated.
At times it sounds as if it is part of a Russian symphony yet it is not half as good as Renaissance on "Mother Russia" (which I think could have been in a Russian Symphony).
The song just does not fit on the album, unless Harley is trying to say he has always wanted to be in an opera.

Opening side two is "Mirror Freak", an excellent cut to that it is all COCKNEY RE-BEL. With its slow moving start the music builds up to a powerful finish. "My Only Vice" follows and has a Mexican type sound which Rebel seems to use very successfully. The song is once again about a girl and as the chorus goes:

Oh she's a lady from a background of pearls Who's tormenting and bending my world
My only vice is the fantastic prices I charge for being eaten alive...

"Death Trip" ends the album and is the most different song I have heard on a rock LP in a long time. Once again the music is over orchestrated but Harley makes it work this time. Although the lyrics are repeated throughout the ten minutes of the song, they are very good as Harley matches the music with the lyrics perfectly.

PRESENT

THE PSYCHOMODO,EMI
ST-11330, is very similar to the first LP in its makeup yet is different in the fact that Harley is now top dog and it is very obvious.

"Sweet Dreams" and "Psychomodo" begin this one excellently. "Psychomodo" is tops as the off the wall music, paranoid violin and nervous piano give the true feeling that someone is out of their head.
The lyrics are exceptional as Harley says:

i've been losing my head
i've been losing my way i've been losing my brain cells at a million a day
i'm so disalusioned
i'm on suicide street

The English single, "Mr.
Soft" follows and sounds similar to a Hungarian Rapsody.
here, Harley takes over with his Cockney accent and hit the air with a well performed cut.

The "Ritz" ends side one as a good sound song, yet once you listen to the lyrics, you find Harley begging for sympathy, obviously from the critics who condemned him.

The other single from the album is "Sling it!" which is good yet reminds me of something ROXY MUSIC might have rejected on their first album. Moog work is good on the album but ROXY'S ex-ENO would never have been so tense with his work.

FUTURE

The future album for America is THE BEST YEARS OF
OUR LIVES. The album starts with "The Mad, Mad Moonlight" and is about a guy who gets picked up by a "big big big girl big girl". As it ends he says, "she weighed 203 but it was OK by me, there was lots of action", so, it can't be all bad.

The big hit of the summer in England is next as Harley does one of the best songs on the album. "Mr. Raffles or Man, it was mean". Here again he uses the Mexican - Spanish type sound as on the earlier albums.

"Panorama" is a nice song on side one also. Backing roll Rebel tune.

Murder follows me like a leech from sunset, hard on my heels to the midnight beach.
Multitudes of every skin, around the glowing sparks they begin to sing
Everybody is watching the dancer, all the way from Barcelona
Teddy Boys are farming, it's all a little alarming

I felt forty-five and was barely alive
I saw a Human Tribe and was terrified

The other hit single from the album is "Come up to see me, Make me smile" and is my favorite cut on the album. As for the rest of the songs on the second side, they are all boring and a waist of time.
The title cut is one of the worst songs I have ever heard and really a let down after hearing the many cuts I think are great.

To sum up, STEVE HAR-LEY & COCKNEY REBEL are an interesting upcoming English group.

Their first album was excellent to have been a first LP.
Their second album was Steve Harley who is Cockney Rebel.
Although some of the ideas of the sound is borrowed from other English groups, Harley has proven he can write good lyrics and make old ideas come off. The album to come is not as good as a whole as the first two, but the good songs are remarkable and show new directions for Rebel.

It is groups like REBEL who I think will definitely influence music in America in the future. Things here have gotten so stale that I am sure something has to happen (and soon hope). At that time, REBEL should be in there. Till then, ROCK-OUT.

DORM NEWS:

FROM LABS TO DACHSHUNDS

Your attention please! There are two new dogs on campus, Heidi and Hans. Heidi and Hans are two long-haired dachshunds. If you see these dogs on campus please stop them and say hello to their owners.

Dave Robertson, the former Dean, accepted a new job at Wake Forest University as Director of Student Activities. "It was a hard decision for my wife and I to make," said Dave. "we liked it very much at UNC-W, with the baby coming and all, we had to think about the future. It would be hard living with a baby in a dormitory, although we had no intention of leaving. Then this job was offered to me. The people at Wake Forest have been extremely nice," remarked Dave. "we have a house off campus and I have a new office in the Student Union which is also the Administration Building."

"I came a long way with the students at the dorms and I will miss UNC-W."

Surely Dave Robertson and his wife, Karen and dog, Heidi will be missed around the campus scene. The Seahawk sends congratulations on the new job and wishes of much success.

As for Charlie, man! Everyone should make him welcome. He is the six foot one inch, long haired one with the moustache behind one of those leashes.

Why? Because the people behind the leashes are also new to this campus. They are Charlie and Sherry King. Charlie is the new assistant Dean of Resident Life at Galloway Hall.

He is a graduate from Appalachian State University with his masters degree in Student Personnel. He is extremely friendly to everyone and should be graciously welcomed to UNC-W.

He was once a driver's education teacher at Appalachian. He and his wife, Sherry, have been married for two years and are the proud parents of the dogs, Heidi and Hans.

Asked why he chose UNC-W, Charlie replied, "Sherry and I sent out many letters after I graduated all to the coastal schools. We both like the coast. Then, Dr. Malloy called me for an interview for this job and when I stepped on the campus I knew it was what we wanted. This is a beautiful campus."

Charlie does hope that he can get to know a great deal of the students here, especially in the dorm.

He is enthusiastic with the accomplishments that Dave, the Residence Action Team (RAT) and the dorm students have made. He hopes that the dorm continues to improve and that everyone gets along with each other. He has already begun to inquire about new and useful projects for the dorm.

Therefore, the Seahawk would like to say "hello" and come by to see us to Charlie and Sherry. You're part of the Seahawk clan. Welcome to UNC-W.

UNC-W GROWS

Founded in 1947 as Wilmington College with a total enrollment of 160 students and an assorted faculty and staff composed of approximately 23 members, teaching at both high school and college levels, the University of North Carolina at Wilmington has grown by an estimated 2031 per cent in 22 years.

Director of Admissions and Records, Dorothy P. Marshall, predicts total enrollment for the fall 1975 semester at 3250 plus. Overall number of students enrolled at the institution has not been computed to date, the last day of registration being September 3. Figures include incoming freshmen and transfers.

In 1965 fall enrollment had increased to a whopping 1055, and in 1969, Wilmington College became one of six, including the Universities of North Carolina at Greensboro and Charlotte, North Carolina State and Ashmore-Biltmore College, to receive university status, as "constituent institutions" or sister campuses to the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

As of 1971, when the North Carolina General Assembly met in special session, 10 additional institutions have been promoted to university status, including Appalachian State, East Carolina, Western Carolina, Elizabeth City State and Fayetteville State, North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State, North Carolina Central, North Carolina School of the Arts, Pembroke and Winston-Salem State, making a combined total of 16.

The merger resulted in a state-wide multi-campus university effective July 1, 1972. "Growth" is UNC-W's maiden name. From 1973 to 1975 (fall term) the number of students attending the university rose from 2547 to 3250, a marked increase of more than 700. These figures include 540 freshmen and 332 transfers (1973 figures). Loss of students for a given year runs somewhere close to 1400 through graduation, drop-outs and flunk-outs, according to Mrs. Marshall. In-state transfers equalled 230 for the 1975 academic year. While the number of non-degree students has risen, auditors have remained basically the same, she estimates.

Even with the increase in

enrollment, Dorothy Marshall laughs that "her staff has not grown enough; not nearly enough in comparison." Mrs. Marshall was also registrar in 1957.

Although a prediction at this time is hard for her to make, she feels very optimistic about the future growth of this university: "There is no reason to believe there won't be an increase in enrollment over the next 10 years like we have been enjoying over the past 10."

"Perhaps UNC-W's greatest calling cards include her marine biology and biology departments, the business and educational departments." For Mrs. Marshall, dealing with the students is a variety of problems—with concentration on registering for classes—"knowing when and where to go," she grins—grades and graduation.

"Mrs. Marshall as director of admissions is observing how the student fits in with the classes. I handle the mechanics."

NO MORE YEARBOOKS!

by Darlene Pearsall

If you haven't already picked up a '75 Fledgling, you're too late—there are no more.

For the first time in Fledgling history, the school has run out of yearbooks. Numerous students who want and have paid for a yearbook will not be able to receive one.

Both In-state and out-of-state students pay $70.50 in activity fees. Approximately $10 of this pays for a yearbook for each full-time student. This money does not go directly to the Fledgling—instead, it's given to the Student Government Association for them to allocate "appropriately and intelligently" in the best interest of the students.

Last year, only enough money for 1,100 yearbooks was allocated to the Fledgling although there were over 2,000 students. Subsequently, there aren't enough books to go around.

This will obviously happen again. Only enough money for 1,200 books has been issued to the '76 Fledgling, although we have experienced a record enrollment of over 3,000 students.

It needs to be stopped now or next year you may be the one to not receive a yearbook, even though you paid for one.

Talk to your class senators or the SGA officials. Let them know that you want what you paid for.

Facts About Syphilis

HOW IT SPREADS

The syphilis germ is usually passed during SEXUAL INTERCOURSE or intimate body contact. The fluid oozing from an open syphilis sore (called a chancre-pronounced shanker) is highly infectious. Chancres are usually found on the sex organs, occasionally around mouth, throat or rectum.

THE GERM

Syphilis is caused by a spirochete called TREPONEMA PALLIDUM. It requires warmth and moisture to survive. It moves on its own, corkscrewing its way through skin or mucous membrane, then spreading through the bloodstream.

THE SYMPTOMS

Signs and symptoms are not dependable—infected person may not have them.

FIRST SIGN

A sore, usually painless, forms 10 to 90 days after contact. It will disappear in one to five weeks.

SECOND SIGN

From one to six months after infection, a rash may appear, possibly with low fever, sore throat, sores, falling hair. Some people have none of these symptoms.

THE CONSEQUENCES

After about one year, the syphilitic usually won't infect others—but women can still pass it on to their babies (congenital syphilis).

IF UNTREATED, syphilis can lead to—destruction of the skin, heart, brain or other organs, paralysis, insanity, heart disease and death.

SYPHILIS CAN BE STOPPED. BUT THE DAMAGE ALREADY DONE CAN'T BE UNDONE.

There is a problem afoot on campus or should I say on wheels! The problem involves parking space. With the increase in student population of several hundred, many of you late arrivers will be crying over parking space and with due cause. We are told that there are plenty of parking places on campus but finding one is another problem. The campus police say that there is always parking spaces available in the lot by the tennis courts but if your class is way over in the Marine Science Building, may I advice you to get a good pair of hiking shoes.

Presently the "campus cops" are handing out pretty pink warning slips for those of you who are parking your vehicles on the grass or in "no no" parking spots. Those parking spots marked in yellow conveniently close to each building are "no no" parking spaces reserved for our most prominent profs, administrators, and staff. Those pretty pink slips, however, will stop being pretty pink warning slips but become a $5.00 hard cash parking ticket violation.

By now most of you know how expensive college can be with tuition, clothes, books, supplies, and even a $10 fee for a sticker on your car which permits you to park on campus! With approximately 3,300 students on campus this year that's alot of dough going for parking. Why not take this money and build more parking spaces or conserve space and build parking decks.

You fortunate people who get to dose an hour or two extra each morning might soon discover the nightmare of the parking space blues.

A word from the wise might be sufficient: The early bird catches the worm or in this case the early firebird wins the parking space!

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

From Day One

My first day at the University by the sea-wow, look at me Mrs. McRae's son at 44 years of age, going to college-who would have thought it! Registration day went by O.K. At least that's over now, on to the next step. The day before classes start, a friend tells me that the subjects English 101 and child psychology, in his opinion, are a bit heavy for a summer course. Class day I had to drop two subjects and pick up two. I pick Introduction to Sociology and Music, now what? I have to get each teacher to sign the slips and get them back to the office. Damn, this is the most walking I've done in 7 months. Every teacher is in a different building and two of them are not where they are supposed to be. Damn, I'm tired, my back is hurting. English 101, the first college class I've seen in session. I'm standing outside, the teacher is rapping to the class about things to come. What the hell is he saying? Damn, he's heavy. I'm glad I dropped this one. Now the music teacher. I present him with the pick-up slip. He says to me would you step into my office, please-oh, shit, what Clyde, he says, what have you done in music? Just listened to it, I replied. He inquired about my school background. After hearing me out, he most tactfully tells me he thinks it would be better for me to pick another subject. I got the impression this man don't want me in his class. So be it. I drop Music and pick up

Criminal Justice. First class day over and I did not get to sit down. What a day-IM BEAT. Now I'm getting second thoughts-is this school bit the right decision? That first day was hell. Second day of class. First class, 8 o'clock to 9:40. I still have to get two pick-up slips signed and back over to the office. Criminal Justice-I get to the class about 8:10, the teacher is just closing the door. I reach for the knob, the goddamn thing is locked. What in the hell is coming off. Am I supposed to knock or what-hell, I better wait. That lady who works in the office, bless her, asked if she could assist me in any way. I was right at the point of giving it up altogether. I told her my problem, she advised me to go knock upon the door, which I did, and presented the pick-up slip which was signed. That's better, things are changing. After signing the slip I told him I had to get another one signed, would it be okay if I started class later. Sure, he says, come back if you finish up. Wow, this is the first decent dude-teacher, that is that I have come across. My life style being what it has been since the age of sixteen, U.S. Army four years, Marine Corps three years, Civil Service Employee for 13 years. First thing, being late is not tolerated. With this feeling I step into Mr. Al Sharp's class-damn, I'm late again-what's his reaction going to be? I say excuse me, and give him the pick-up slip to sign. He signs it and hands it back. I asked is it all right if I sit in. He replies sure you are going to be here, aren't you? Did I detect a note of sarcasm there?

Well, what do you know, my first class has started. I haven't got a notebook. Somewhere in my early years I had gotten the impression that all college teachers were addressed as professors. Here Mr. Sharp tells the class he is to be addressed as Al or whatever. He raps a little more about himself and then he asked the class to do the same, feedback he calls it. Everybody in class tells a little about themselves. Now he inquires how many students' names can I remember-oh, hell, I can't remember but two, second thoughts again. That's over, let's get down to business, at this time I would like to interject. In my circle, many people would say I have quite a gift for gab. Now Mr. Sharp starts his shit. The first word he puts on the blackboard, Acculturalization, oh my nerves, socialization, re-socialization, what the hell is this, what have I gotten into, this guy don't speak the same language. I feel just like a complete ass. Class day over. Whew, I don't know if I will make it back tomorrow. How was your Day One? Clyde McRae

Health Service Center

As a student at UNC-W taking 5 or more hours of courses you are provided general outpatient medical services at the Health Service Center. This article will help you in securing these services and will help you in securing these services and will assure you the fastest possible medical attention should a medical emergency arise.

LOCATION AND HOURS OF OPERATION:

The Health Service Center is located in the main lobby of the dormitory. The Center is staffed by a Family Nurse Practitioner of Physician's Associate each weekday the University is open, from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. The phone extension is 339.

SCOPE OF SERVICE:

The University has entered into an agreement with Wilmington Health Associates to provide general outpatient diagnostic and treatment services similar to those provided in their general office.

These services include diagnosis and treatment of general medical disorders, common infections, diseases, and minor trauma. Outpatient professional services provided by Wilmington Health Associates in the Health Service Center, dormitory, emergency room, and general offices of Wilmington Health Associates are covered by the agreement. Laboratory work, chest X-rays deemed necessary to determine injury or illness, medication and supplies normally provided for patients as a part of an office visit are also covered by the agreement. Endoscopic procedures, medication and appliances not usually stocked in the general office of Wilmington Health Associates, prolonged courses of medication and inpatient hospital expenses are not covered by the agreement.

EMERGENCY PROCEDURES

1. Notify The University Nurse at Once. (Mrs. Jasinski and Ms. Vangellow are located in the Student Health Center which is adjacent to the main lobby of the dormitory. The extension is 339. She is on campus from 9:00 a.m. until 3:00 p.m. daily, and at other hours or on weekends call The Wilmington Health Associates at 763-8251.

2. Students involved in serious accidents or who appear to be seriously ill and/or require immediate hospital emergency care should be taken to New Hanover Memorial Hospital as quickly as possible by private car or by Rescue Squad. Campus Security personnel can also be of great assistance to you in these emergency situations. In all such cases, it is imperative that a physician from the Wilmington Health Associates be notified immediately and be requested to meet the student at the hospital emergency room. Contacting a Wilmington Health Associates' physician will enable the student to avoid the fee charged by the New Hanover Memorial Hospital emergency room doctor. However, in all cases the student will be charged by New Hanover Memorial Hospital for the emergency room fee.

STUDENT IDENTIFICATION

To assure that you receive the medical services you are entitled to without receiving a bill, it is necessary that you be prepared to show your student ID card. This is especially important when you are referred to the general offices of Wilmington Health Associates by the University Nurse.

DEAR DARLENE

Dear Darlene.

I'm a female junior. I met a really nice guy in school today that I think would make a great friend. The problem is that he wants to be more than just a friend. He's constantly asking me to go out with him, and I simply don't want to. What is a polite way of declining his dates while still keeping his friendship?
Just Friends
Dear Just.

Dear Darlene.

I'm 65 years old and still a freshman. I started college when I was 18 but things have gone kind of slow. Am I eligible for any type of retirement benefits?
Turning Gray
Dear Turning.

No, you're not. But you can receive what most college graduates are-unemployment checks.

Have you got a problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write Dear Darlene in care of the Cherry Hill Mental Hospital.

Tell him that you have a special disease and you're cutting down on dates so that it won't become an epidemic.

Dear Darlene.

I have a great figure and a nice complexion but I seem to have an unusually large nose. It's larger than Barbara Streisand's and Bette Midler's put together. What should I do?

Dear Big.

I wish to share with you a little known exercise which is guaranteed to make your nose smaller. (1) Lie down on your stomach on the ground. (2) Find a large sharp stone and place it under your face. (3) Press down as hard as you can until your nose falls off. It works every time.

Fences = Inside & Out

Leo Tolstoy has that peculiar ability so often evident in Russian novelists to perceive the shadows cast by men's actions. In a pamphlet to the working classes of all nations, he says,

"I see mankind as a herd of cattle inside a fenced enclosure. Outside the fence are green pastures with plenty for the cattle to eat, while inside the fence there is not quite enough for the cattle. Consequently, the cattle are trampling underfoot what little grass there is and going each other to death in their struggle for existence."

"I say the owner of the herd come to them and when he saw their pitiable condition he was filled with compassion for them, and thought of what he could do to improve their condition. So he called his friends together and asked them to assist him in cutting the grass from outside the fence and throwing it over the fence to the cattle. And they called that charity."

"Then, because the calves were dying off and not growing into serviceable cattle, he arranged that they should each have a pint of milk every morning for breakfast. Because they were dying off in the cold night, he put up beautiful well-drained and well-ventilated cowsheds for the cattle. Because they were going each other in the struggle for existence, he put corks on the horns of the cattle so that the wounds they gave each other might not be so serious."

"Then he reserved a part of the enclosure for the old bulls and old cows over 70 years of age. In fact, he did everything he could to improve the conditions of the cattle."

"And when they asked him why he did not do the one obvious think-break down the fences and let the cattle out-he answered, If I let the cattle out, I should no longer be able to milk them."

We raise fences. Religious fences, academic fences, bureaucratic fences, emotional fences, and others, often with little or no willingness to understand how the fences came into being.

Sometimes we raise a fence around ourselves in an effort to safeguard our well-being, keeping out those ideas and activities which might force us to change our boundaries. Faculty erect departmental boundaries which isolate not realizing that all the fences are built in the same meadow. They serve to keep self in and others out. It's secure. Students build special fences made of speaking the right language, frequenting the accepted places and drinking the brew, performing academically, relating or not relating sexually, etc., on ad infinitum keeping "us" in and "them" out. Bureaucratic herds lounge behind mahogany desks and reinforce their fences with mounds of red tape, signatures and counter-signatures, memos and counter memos until they can't be seen let alone approached.

Religious persons construct most elaborate and elusive boundaries which often seem to shift with wind and whim; keeping those outside wondering where they are and engulfing others before they realize they have entered the inner circle. Races (all of them, mind you) throw up barriers with cultural padlocks whose secret combinations for entry and acceptance are everywhere hidden, maybe lost, within the fence. On and on the fences stretch like the stockyards in Omaha, each herd mirroring themselves from within their stockade.

The Stillpoint, wherein does it enter and where is the center? The challenge, actually the risk, is to at least look over the top rail but maybe make a door in our gateless enclosures. There is a call for openness, even a sense of living in ambiguity in relationship to our own feeble fences. Venture out, start a pilgrimage. Openness does not mean acceptance in the sense of agreement but a mutual respect and a commitment to examine other fences and to leave yours open for inspection by others. There is where education ought to be! There is where our Christian faith ought to be: first an ability to look and listen only then to build shelters, not corrals. Vivan Martindale Campus Minister

CRISIS LINE

Crisis Line - 763-3695 is a 24 hour answering service for people with problems. It is a place for people who need a listening ear or who need information about where to go for specific problems. Crisis Line is manned entirely by volunteers. If you are interested in learning to do this type of volunteer work, two opportunities are being offered.

Two training classes for Crisis Line volunteers will begin on Wednesday, September 10. Anyone interested in this training is urged to come either to the morning class at 9:30 a.m. at St. James Church or to the evening class at 7:30 p.m. at the same place. Crisis Line training is primarily training in listening skills. Volunteers often say that it helps them in their personal relationships as well as in their work on Crisis Line. COFFEEHOUSE under way

This lumber from an old tobacco barn in Hampstead will soon be a permanent part of UNC-W's first Coffeehouse. Construction has begun in Room 104 of the Student Union, changing the former Seahawk Office, former cafeteria, into a lounge with a country barn decor. Slated to provide entertainment, food and beverages, it will offer students a unique place to congregate and enjoy themselves. An opening date cannot be set at this time, but the middle of October is seen as most feasible.

The original coffeehouse committee has divided itself into two separate groups, to better accomplish the pile of work that has yet to be done. One group will concentrate on seeking, scheduling and evaluating all the various activities the Coffeehouse will host (video, radio, live concerts, drama to name just a few). The second group will concern itself with the room's construction and decor, its management, policies and food. All students are welcome to join either committee—just ask Linda Moore about the next meetings.

'Last Tango In Paris,' Starring Marlon Brando, To Open Here

(General Advance)

Certainly the most talked-about film of the decade, if not in the history of movies, "Last Tango In Paris," will have its local debut here in the KENAN. . . Theatre starting Sept. 9th. . . The United Artists release unites the acting talent of Marlon Brando with the directional wizardry of Bernardo Bertolucci, the Italian writer-director whose recent film, "The Conformist," won him the Best Director Award of the American National Society of Film Critics and many other honors.

fascinating character to his gallery of screen roles, which have included an impressive list of films ranging from the memorable "Streetcar Named Desire" to the recent and equally memorable characterization in "The Godfather."

Maria Schneider, a 20-year-old Parisian screen newcomer, is excitingly cast opposite Brando. Jean-Pierre Leaud, the hero of many Francois Truffaut and Jean-Luc Godard films, and Massimo Girotti star.

Other principals are Catherine Allegret, Jean Luc Bideau, Laura Betti and Maria Michi.

Filming simultaneously in English and French entirely on location in Paris, the film is an Italian-French co-production by Alberto Grimaldi for P.E.A. (Rome) and Les Productions Artistes Associes (Paris).

Vittorio Storaro, who received Best Photography Award in 1971 from the New York Film Critics' Circle for "The Conformist," is director of photography.

COACH BROOKS RECEIVES HONOR

Baseball coach Bill Brooks has been named National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) Area Seven baseball coach of the year.

This is the third time Brooks has received this award. He also serves as athletic director at the university.

The 1975 Seahawk team advanced to the NAIA national finals in St. Joseph, Missouri and the summer baseball league team won the championship.

Coach Brooks and seven other NAIA area coaches are now eligible for national Coach-of-the-Year honors which will be announced September 5.

Brooks is the only baseball coach and athletic director UNCW has ever had.

SOCER

LANE OPTIMISTIC ABOUT SEASON

by Jim Braswell

The Seahawk Soccer team traveled to Chapel Hill this past Saturday for a scrimmage with the University of North Carolina. The teams played six twenty-minute periods and substituted every period. Coach Calvin Lane was pleased with the team's performance. This is the first year that the Seahawks have played the Tar Heels even up in their annual scrimmage. UNC-W had numerous effective scoring attacks and the total number of shots on goal were fairly even.

Lane was very optimistic and stated that "the Carolina varsity was as good as last year, thus we should be improved."

The Hawks are long on experience this year with eleven returning lettermen. They include Nino Flerry, Tim Willette, Steve Paul and Gonzalo Rado who were named to last year's first team of the all-district 29 team and Gene Berowski who was named to the second team. In addition, they will benefit from the play off senior transfer student, Carlos Escobar from Montgomery Junior College in Rockville, Maryland. David Wychel of Wilmington is the only other senior member of the team.

There are six freshmen on this year's team. Four are from Peary High School in Rockville, Maryland and they are Brian Boyd, David Kovack, Joe Camarano, and Mark Willette. The other freshmen are Eddie Brock from New Hanover High School and Tom Golden from Willow Street, Pennsylvania.

The freshmen played a big part in the Carolina scrimmage. Brock had a goal and an assist on a goal by Boyd. Golden had the assist on Brock's goal.

Lane feels this year's team has better overall speed, much better depth and has more skill and better knowledge of field positioning than last year's team.

The Seahawks begin their season on September 12 when they will participate in the Pembroke Invitational Tournament along with The College of Charleston, Methodist College and Pembroke State University.

The Hawks home opener will be September 19 when the host East Carolina University. Coach Lane urges all students to come out to matches and to cheer in a positive manner for the Hawks and not against their opponents.

Wilmington Youth Council

WILMINGTON YOUTH COUNCIL is sponsoring a tutoring program whereby UNC-W students may be employed to tutor high school students in various fields of study. College students will be student aids in the extended aid program at the two county high schools. Pay scale is $3.10 per hour and all tutoring will be done at the high schools after 2:30 on weekdays. Schedules will be set by the principals of the schools and the Youth Council. Tutors are needed in Art, Physical Education, English, Math, Science, Dance, and Social Studies. Pick up applications in the Student Affairs or Financial Aid Office in the Administration Building.

DANCE with Arthur Brown

ARTHUR BROWN

DANCE

Call GULP-1006 (Import)

This album is none less than terrific. From start to finish it is one of the best albums I have heard this year.

For a brief history, you may go back and remember THE CRAZY WORLD OF ARTHUR BROWN and the hit single "Fire" from the year 1968. In those days Brown was known to have one of the wildest stage shows to ever hit America and was predicted to become a big rock star.

As usual, things did not go as expected and "Fire" turned out to be but a small spark of the first and last single. By 1969 or 1970 The Crazy World of Arthur Brown broke up, with organist VINCENT CRANE going on to form ATOMIC ROOSTER and BROWN formed his KINGDOM COME.

KINGDOM COME made at least three albums which sold fairly well in England but barely made the charts in this country. Now Brown has released his solo LP and the single, "Dance", almost made it to number one in England, as did the album itself. The album has yet to be released in the States.

DANCE displays some of the best vocals Brown has done to date. The music is recorded very well as are the backing vocals. In fact, everything is so smoothly done that I honestly think it is one of the most perfect albums (quality wise) ever recorded!

Opening the album is the Animals mid 60's hit "We've Got To Get Out Of This Place". Moog, played by Pete Solley, gives this version an extra kick as do the backing vocals by the Thunderthighs (who did the backing vocals for the last Roxy Music and Bryan Ferry LPs).

"Helen With The Sun" follows and is one of the most beautiful songs on the album. Brown's vocals are perfect in the song as he moves in and out of the octave with ease. "Take A Chance" and "Crazy" are next with the latter being somewhat nostalgic as the 1930's sound is employed in the song. Sax work on this cut is well done also and gives the song a very bright, fun-loving air.

"Hearts And Minds" ends the side and has very good lyrics as Brown describes life as a game with the heart and mind controlling the action.

The single and title cut opens side two and Brown invites us to "Dance".

Let your bodies go inside the music

Bodies like to feel

That they're alive

Now you've found it now's the time to lose it

Flowing glowing growing

All the time

Jagger's "Out Of Time" and Brown's "Quietly With Tact" follow with "Quietly" containing some of the best guitar work on the LP. This side also has a gospel song on it, complete with a gospel choir, which is fairly good.

As for my recommendations, I would say that there is something for everyone on this album. When it is released in America, it should put ARTHUR BROWN back into the running. Till then, ROCK-OUT. Or should I say DANCE.

Question: Was that Arthur Brown in the Monroe scene of TOMMY or were my eyes playing tricks on me again?

CLIMAX BLUES BAND
STAMP ALBUM
Sire SASD-7507

Being a dedicated CLIMAX BLUES BAND fan, I am glad to present their latest adventure, the STAMP ALBUM. I am also glad that I can say this is their best album released since the RICH MAN LP in 1973.

To give a short history of the group; 1) they are English 2) they have been making albums since the late 60's 3) they were first brought to the attention of the American people two years ago with the release of the RICH MAN and F M LIVE albums. Their music is as their name, the blues.

STAMP ALBUM opens with "Using The Power", a rock-blues type song done in the traditional CLIMAX way. Strong vocals and good guitar work make this song one of the best cuts on the LP.

"Mr. Goodtime" and "I Am Constant" are also on side one and are both very good examples of the way CLIMAX uses clear, smooth and simple blues form. I must point out the sax work on "Constant" as Colin Cooper has to be one of the best sax men in the business these days.

"Sky High" opens side two and would make an excellent single. This song is very interesting in that it shows how CLIMAX have advanced in their vocals. Some of the early material lacks the closeness they have produced on this cut.

Another cut worth talking about is "Loosen Up". The song is different from most of their material and adds much color to the album. This could be the cut that saves the LP for those of you who like variety in an album.

If you have not heard climax blues band, give this album a listen and you will know what the group is all about. Do not expect anything flashy for CLIMAX is not that type band. They play simple blues-rock and with a style all their own. I have a feeling once you have heard them, you will look for their older albums also.

NEXT WEEK:
Mannfred Mann and Fleetwood Mac.

When I Have Fears

John Keats

When I have fears that I may cease to be
Before my pen has gleaned my teeming brain,
Before high-piled books, in charact'ry
Hold like rich garners the full-ripened grain;
When I behold, upon the night's starred face
Huge cloudy symbols of a high romance,
And think that I may never live to trace
Their shadows, with the magic hand of chance;
And when I feel, fair creature of an hour,
That I shall never look upon thee more,
Never have relish in the faery power
Of unreflecting love!—then on the shore
Of the wide world I stand alone, and think Till Love and Fame to nothingness do sink.

This is to be a new weekly feature of the Seahawk. We plan to choose a poem by a famous author that is in some way applicable to college life, or college students. Each week there will be a different poem, suggesting a different aspect of our lives. This feature is not aimed at the English major, who will probably recognize all of the poems chosen, but to the math major, marine biology student, physical education majors who have had little more than English 101. We hope these selections will be meaningful to you, and that in later years, or right now, you will be able to say "I'm glad I read that."

"Glass Moon"— "Colours"

The '75' school year really started off right with the "Glass Moon"—"Colours" concert last Tuesday. The concert began at 3:00 in The Pub to the great sound of Glass Moon. Their stage, lighting and even their clothes seemed to accent the atmosphere and season the music in a way that awed the standing room only crowd. It seemed that each member of the band was a man of many talents. They really got into their music which made the applause and cheers of the audience much louder. They are, says Bob Douglas, "the best band in North Carolina." Jerry Williams, the sound man of Glass Moon said, "Wed really like to get back here again soon. The crowd seemed to like us and we liked the crowd. We dug it!"

When "Colours" arrived on the scene, half the crowd was gone. And besides that, most of the people left were expecting more hard rock, so the crowd's response to the music was not very good. "Colours" seemed to be putting forth a lot of effort for a group that had just been "400,000" miles with the temperature in their van "185 degrees F" at least. (I got these last few facts from Jim Ratts, one of the lead singers who could probably make it big by himself.) According to Greg Larrimore, "Glass Moon" was good but I could sit around and listen to this kind of music all day long. I hope they come back." (So do I!)

Rabbi Martin M. Weitz: lecturer-in-residence

Rabbi Martin M. Weitz, (Ph.D., d.d., d.h.l.) is a native of Denver, Colorado, and is Rabbi of Temple of Israel, Wilmington, North Carolina. He has served congregations in Wisconsin, Iowa, New Jersey, Arkansas, Long Island in New York, in more than three decades since his graduation from the Hebrew Union College and the University of Cincinnati. His interfaith episodes in the Northern Solomon Islands, during World War II, were retold in several books on the war, in which he was called "Sky Pilot" of the South Pacific.

He has authored eight books, about fifteen booklets and manuals of Jewish and general themes, and has edited magazines since college days. Over 200 articles and essays by him on a wide range of subjects were published in a score of magazines. He has been guest-speaker on many college campuses, and held resident-lectureships at Drake University at Des Moines, Iowa; the State University of New Jersey-Rutgers; the New York Institute of Technology (Manhattan Center); and Lincoln University at Pennsylvania. He currently serves at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington as lecturer-in-residence and director of a recently established Resident Lectureship in Judaic Studies.

While in Atlantic City, he helped establish the Atlantic Community College and is a past president and founder of the Atlantic County Board of Rabbis. He was on the Executive Board of the Central Conference of American Rabbis and has served as Historian for the Alumni Association of the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion. He has edited several Manuals for the World Union for Progressive Judaism. In recent years, he has traveled extensively through Israel, a number of European countries, Africa, and more recently, Japan and the Far East, New Zealand, Australia and the South Pacific. He was invited on five missions to Berlin and Germany of which reports were published in "The Congressional Record" and other periodicals. Summer of 1968, he conducted a study-tour of seven countries on three continents for nine weeks for twenty-four University folk, and from 1969 through 1973 conducted tours to Europe, Mexico, Israel, Spain and Morocco, and the West Indies.

The 1968 tour included a private audience with Pope

Paul VI, and visits with Golda Meir in Israel, the mayor of Berlin, the daughter of President Kenyatta in Kenya, and others.

He is active in many civic causes as Rotary International, International Platform Association, National Conference of Christians and Jews, Central Conference of American Rabbis, Jewish Chautauqua Society, Wilmington Historical Society, New Hanover Brotherhood Council, and Ministerial Association.

He has received Honorary Doctorates from Hebrew Union College, Northern Colorado University and Lincoln University of Pennsylvania in recent years.

The Stop To The Tuition Increase

By the conclusion of the Spring semester '75, the North Carolina General Assembly had proposed a tuition increase for all college students which threatened a $100 increase per semester. Not only would this type of increase be astronomical for the majority of the students' personal budgets, but likewise the enrollment would more than likely be forced into a drastic decrease. This became a major concern for S.G.A. President, Steve Hobbs as he began his administration for the 1975-76 school year. On Thursday, September 4, 1975, I asked Steve about some of the major problems which confronted him in fighting the tuition increase.

Q: What were a few of the major reasons for the proposed tuition increase?

Steve: The major reason was that the General Assembly and the Senate Appropriations Committee were concerned about the lack of State funds. They were afraid state expenditures would exceed the state's revenue. The increase was considered among many other proposals such as: 1) not buying any state school buses for one year which would save $9 million, 2) not buying any state school buses for two years, saving $18 million, and 3) increase tax on cigarettes.

Q: What were your efforts in preventing this increase?

Steve: When the President is elected he becomes a member of the N.C. Association of Student Governments which is made up of the student body presidents from the sixteen branches of the consolidated University system. In April we met with the chairman of the State House Appropriations Committee and the State Senate Appropriations Committee. We discussed the impact that the increase would have on the students. We discussed their reasons for the increase which I previously mentioned. I encouraged the legislators as well as other representatives and senators to consider other ways of obtaining the necessary funds. It was my concern that the enrollment of UNC-W would be affected if the increase in tuition for all students had passed.

Q: Was the tuition increased for out-of-state students?

Steve: Yes.

Q: Why?

Steve: State legislators felt that the out-of-state students as well as their parents should pay an increase since they do not pay North Carolina taxes to support the University system. In lieu of this and the problem with the state fund, the tuition for out-of-state students was increased $100 per year or $50 per semester. I encouraged the other legislators to work on another method to obtain the necessary funds.

Q: Did you receive any help from the UNC-W administration?

Steve: Yes. The administration was also concerned about the after-effects of the tuition increase on our University. I would like to thank Dr. Waggoner for his efforts as our chancellor to represent the student body in fighting against the tuition increase.

Facts about Gonorrhea

HOW IT SPREADS

The gonorrhea germ is almost always passed during SEXUAL INTERCOURSE or intimate contact.

The infection is usually localized on or near the reproductive system or rectum. Infection is possible but less common in the mouth throat or eyes.

THE GERM

Gonorrhea is caused by a gonococcus called NEISSERIA GONORRHOEA.

It can't live long in contact with the air, and can enter the body only through the mucous membranes that line body openings.

THE SYMPTOMS

(Usually show 3 to 8 days after infection.)

MEN--discharge from the penis and/or burning when urinating. Many have no symptoms.

WOMEN--may have burning when urinating or discharge. About 80% have no symptoms.

THE CONSEQUENCES

IF UNTREATED...

...IN MEN* urination becomes more difficult. The disease can cause sterility.

...IN WOMEN* chronic abdominal pain, pelvic inflammation, and the biggest danger--STERILITY--may develop.

...IN BOTH* once in the bloodstream, gonorrhea attacks the heart, joints, brain, etc.

WILMINGTON--The Office of Continuing Education and the Department of Political Science at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington are sponsoring a lecture and discussion series this year called "Politics-1976." The program will bring a host of local, state and national figures to the campus to discuss issues of importance that concern Wilmington and its surrounding areas.

U.S. Senator Robert Morgan, (January 31, 1976), Presidential Candidate Terry Sanford, Secretary of the Department of Human Resources David Flaherty (September 16, 1975), Campaign organizer and professional pollster Walter De Vries (March 9, 1976), are just some of the speakers coming for the series. Seventh District Congressman Charlie Rose (October 20, 1975), past N.C. State Senator and Chairman of the North Carolina Milk Commission Hamilton C. Horton, Jr., of Winston-Salem (October 6, 1975), State Senator William G. Smith and representatives B.D. Schwartz and Tom Rhodes will be featured in other programs.

The program will begin on

September 10, 1975, at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of King Hall. The topic of discussion will be the use of nuclear energy--especially as it relates to the nuclear plant in Southport.

Dr. Tom Ellerman, Chairman of the Department of Nuclear Engineering at N.C. State University, David Owen of the CP&L Nuclear Plant in Southport and someone who will speak in opposition to nuclear energy will lead the discussion.

This topic is expected to be well attended because of the recent controversy over the possibility of the Southport plant being located in a position that could prove dangerous in the face of an earthquake.

The second scheduled program will be on September 16, 1975 at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of King Hall. David Flaherty, Secretary of the Department of Human Resources, will be speaking on the Welfare and Medicare Programs.

All "Politics-1976" programs will be structured in such a way as to allow questions from the audience. This will provide maximum participation from those in attendance.

All programs will be open to the public and there will be no charge. This type of program gives the public a chance to meet those who make the decisions that affect their daily lives.

Other programs scheduled will be announced at a later date.

The Gadfly:

"The Good Old Days"

Well, I didn't make it last week. My nervous system finally succumbed and I neglected to do my bit for journalism. I had my reasons, however.

Two sessions of summer school left me considerably weakened and not quite in possession of all my marbles. Then I paid for tuition and then I paid for books. My limp wallet was a perfect match for my limp frame. So I packed up all the pieces I could find and went home to glue myself together. As a result, I am here this week, slightly cracked, but here.

Shortages are here again. Enough to gladden the heart of any masochistic pessimist. Just try to park your car so you can go to the 1975 annual you paid ten hard-earned, highly inflated dollars for. The Impossible Dream, without a doubt, was not impossible. I don't suppose the SGA would be willing to give us a rebate if we didn't get an annual?

Speaking of shortages, it would seem that our fearless leaders in Congress have a sure cure for fixing economic woes. Put simply (in non-political language) the cure is to barely cut off funds for higher education. After all, who needs a group of enlightened voters? Pulling off big boobies like last year's wheat sale (or maybe this year's) and Watergate wouldn't be so bad if there weren't people smart enough to know they had been had. After standing in lines and filling out forms for four years, the average college graduate can recognize the run-around when he (or she) hears it. To almost any politician this means college students are a species that ought to be endangered.

So, when more money is needed for unemployment or welfare checks, the knowing servant of the people merely whacks the educational budget. How much can or will be whacked remains to be seen. There are limits, hopefully. More money was spent on comic books than college last year.

If the cutbacks in low interest loans, scholarships and educational grants become popular with our elected officials it could bring back the "good old days" when only the rich could afford college. That would certainly make it easier on those who would like to distribute the wealth on a "three for me, one for you" basis.

Democracy depends upon an enlightened populace. In simpler times, it was enough to be able to read and write. Today, to make an intelligent decision in shaping political futures requires the ability to sift fact from fantasy and to foresee the result of what appears to be a good solution to a problem. And we certainly have enough problems to solve.

So this is no time to throttle back on the brain power. Any well-educated person could tell you that.

Contemporary

Theology??

Woody Allen was named theologian of the Year (no one sure which year) by a California publication called The Wittenburg Door. Their choice was based on a survey of several seminary ampuses and some scholarly work by Allen appearing in "The New Republic" called "The Scrolls." Rumor has it that Mr. Allen stumbled over some wine bottles in Central Park and upon closer examination of the inside discovered the scrolls. It is appropriate at this point to quote from Allen's astute translations.

Number Three

...And it came to pass that a man who sold shirts was smitten by hard times. Neither did any of his merchandise move nor did he prosper. And he prayed and said, "Lord, why hast thou left me to suffer thus? All mine enemies sell their goods except I. And it's the height of the season. My shirts are good shirts. Take a look at this rayon. I got button-downs, flare collars, nothing sells. Yet, I have kept they commandments. Why can I not earn a living when mine younger brother cleans up in children's ready-to-wear?"

And the Lord heard the man and said, "About thy shirts..." "Yes, Lord," the man said, falling to his knees.

"Put an alligator over the pocket."

"Pardon me, Lord?"

"Just do what I'm telling you. You won't be sorry."

And the man sewed on to all his shirts a small alligator symbol and lo and behold, suddenly his merchandise moved like gangbusters and there was much rejoicing while amongst his enemies there was wailing and gnashing of teeth and one said, "The Lord is merciful. He maketh me to lie down in the green pastures. The problem is, I can't get up."

If you are a student of the BIBLE or if your Sunday School New Testament just happens to be in the back left hand corner of your bottom dresser drawer you would do well to read the rest of Allen's work in the August 1974 NEW REPUBLIC.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

I have just received my yearbook but unfortunately many other students did not get one because enough were not ordered. I would have been truly disappointed if I had not received mine, especially when the money for the yearbook is taken out of the activity fee that everyone has to pay. I think it is a shame that everyone was not able to receive one and that this matter should be looked into so it will not happen again. By the way, I am curious to know where the other money went?

Business Club

The USED-BOOK SALE sponsored by the Business Club of UNC-W ended Tuesday, September 2, 1975. Due to a deficiency in communications, many consignors failed to receive their property. In an attempt to correct this situation, the Business Club will open the sale for one day, some time in the week of September 15-19. The exact date will be posted in the Pub and in the Business Building. If we still have your books and/or money, please come by to receive it. It is imperative that you have your yellow copy of the consignment contract in your possession. Used books will be up for sale. We will have another Used-Book Sale in January, 1976. The schedule will be posted later.

SIGMA ALPHA BETA

Sigma Alpha Beta is the oldest professional fraternity on campus. The fraternity consists of serious minded members that try to bring the business world closer to the academic society. SAB stresses the need for a closer relation between the individual student and situations which he will come in contact with later in his business career. In order to satisfy these needs the fraternity has been active in various civic activities. A bike-a-thon was held to raise money for the heart fund. A variety of speakers from local businesses present programs at the monthly dinner meetings. This gives the members the opportunity to meet people in their prospective career.

With these thoughts in mind, please do not hesitate to contact members of Sigma Alpha Beta. Members may be contacted through the business department. You will be an asset to SAB and SAB can help you towards your goal.

Senate Minutes

A regular session of the UNC-W Senate was called to order by Carol Moore on September 2 at 11:30.

Clark Sizemore gave the invocation.

The rules of order were suspended for this meeting.

Carol Moore suggested forming a football committee. The possibility of forming the committee from those students who play actively in the Pub is being looked into.

Ms. Moore announced that by September 23 all committees should meet and give a report.

Steve Hobbs addressed the Senate. He suggested that Robert Moore be appointed as Chairman of the Board of Elections.

Gary Shipman moved that

Robert Moore be accepted the Chairman of the Board of Elections. The motion was accepted and passed.

LeRoy Oakley reported. bill for $314.48 was received from Radio Shack for the radio station, which overexceeded its budget for last year.

Haddon Clark made a motion to take the money out miscellaneous expenses and pay the Radio Shack bill. The motion was seconded and passed.

Steve Hobbs suggested forming an Election Committee. Discussion followed.

A motion was made for adjournment. The motion was seconded, passed, and the meeting adjourned at 12:20.

Respectfully submitted, Sharon Davis

The RAT is taking over the dorm! Really it is the Resident Action Team, fearlessly led by Charlie King of the Dorm. Twelve elected representatives, two from each floor, do their thing to make the residence hall inhabitable.

Last year the RAT installed an ice machine and is responsible for the pool table, pinball machines and study room (yacht). All these comforts give students something to do besides reading letters from home and stuffing paper in their ears to keep their brains from running out.

Already this year, the RAT has instigated a beer party in the dorm. Finally, the freshmen. Now we have someone to blame our corruption on. Who knows what delicious evil they may have in store for the rest of the coming year!

CRISIS LINE

Crisis Line - 763-3695 is a 24 hour answering service for people with problems. It is a place for people who need a listening ear or who need information about where to go for specific problems. Crisis Line is manned entirely by volunteers. If you are interested in learning to do this type of volunteer work, two opportunities are being offered.

Two training classes for Crisis Line volunteers will begin on Wednesday, September 10. Anyone interested in this training is urged to come either to the morning class at 9:30 a.m. at St. James Church or to the evening class at 7:30 p.m. at the same place. Crisis Line training is primarily training in listening skills. Volunteers often say that it helps them in their personal relationships as well as in their work on Crisis Line. Also, part of the training is in the use of community resources and agencies for referral purposes.

Going through the training does not obligate you to work on the line. If you feel that this type of volunteer work is not for you, we urge you to freely say so.

If you have any questions you'd like to ask, call Frances Thornton at 343-0144 or Crisis Line at 763-3695.

THE "REEL" THING

"Video Tape has primarily one function - entertainment for students!," so says David Brickley, leader of the Video Tape Organization.

"It will serve as another media on campus. We will have a variety of programs, including a daily newscast every two hours.

The news will consist of campus problems and activities plus, on occasion, uncensored editorials."

This year the Student Government Association is willing to appropriate the needed money for the $1750 camera. "Operating without a camera is like the radio station operating without a mike," Brickley commented.

Operation of the camera is simple. It would take someone five minutes to master all the technical aspects," David said laughing. Brickley, who has done all of this year's work at his own expense, will choose a station manager to take care of paperwork and is now seeking a male or female as cameraman.

The tapes cost between $45. for interviews, up to $180. for the recent "Son of Movie Orgy," starring everyone from Clark Kent to Mighty Mouse.

"I'll split up the viewing schedules next fall. One evening the dorm will have them, two days the pub, and two days in the cafeteria lobby." This way entire classes can attend if the films are pertinent to the subjects they are studying.

David has plans, when the quality of his tapes is high, to send tapes to the local television stations. Perhaps a ten-minute spot on Sunday afternoon TV can be arranged, to let the Wilmington community learn more about our campus.

"I enjoy this type of thing. I just can't wait to jump on it," David smiled. This is certainly a jump in the right direction for the entire school.

The flies were graciously donated by the biology department.

Remember when Hoggard Hall was the refuge for the Biology coalition? Conveniently close to the cafeteria, for subtle reasons. The snack bar provides a testing ground for new strains of flies which have been bred for specific characteristics, all in the advancement of science.

I returned to the snack bar to see if I could observe erratic behavior in flies and biologists (to substantiate my theory). Behold, there exists a fly which can eat only hot dogs with ketchup. Three flies have two short legs for holding onto the side of the cup and four long legs to splash in one's coffee.

Yes! There was even one fly which could actually digest cafeteria food!

Facts About N.C. Association of Education

As we begin making our plans for association activities in the fall of '75 I want to share with you the urgency I feel in providing protection for student teachers who will be entering North Carolina classrooms, just as liable as teachers would be for any accident or incident which might occur while they are in the classroom.

Those student teachers who are members of the Student North Carolina Association of Educators chapters receive $100,000 professional liability coverage as a benefit for membership. It would not be possible to get this kind of coverage personally for anywhere near the modest $6.50 membership fee. There are many other benefits which membership in the association provides: for example, free subscriptions to three professional magazines and monthly meetings with professional education speakers. Membership in the student association offers a fine opportunity for launching our prospective teachers into professional service through their participation in programs geared toward their professional development. Many of our NCAE leaders have enjoyed early experiences in the student activities which they feel have prepared them for more effective service in their chosen profession. Sincerely yours, Dean B. Westmoreland, President NCAE and Sheila Barnes, President SNCAE at UNC-W

"Today, Tomorrow and the Day After"

The Student Government Association will soon begin publishing and posting the "Today, Tomorrow and the Day After" bulletin. The purpose of the bulletin is to let the students know what events, meetings, lectures, films, special programs, etc., are happening on campus. Bulletins are posted on all the bulletin boards on campus and are, therefore, highly visible. If you have an item of interest that you would like publicized, please call the SGA office at 799-2105 or come by the office upstairs at the Pub and tell us about it. If we're not there, please leave a note on our door.

NATIONAL TEACHER EXAMINATIONS

PRINCETON* NEW JERSEY-Students completing teacher preparation programs may take the National Teacher Examinations on any of three different test dates announced by Educational Testing Service, a nonprofit, educational organization which prepares and administers this testing program.

New dates for the testing of prospective teachers are: November 8, 1975, February 21, 1976, and July 17, 1976. The tests will be given at nearly 400 locations throughout the United States. ETS said.

Results of the National Teacher Examinations are used by many large school districts as one of several factors in the selection of new teachers and by several states for certification or licensing of teachers. Some colleges also require all seniors preparing to teach to take the examinations.

On each full day of testing, prospective teachers may take the Common Examinations which measure their professional preparation and general educational background and an Area Examination which measures their mastery of the subject they expect to teach.

Prospective candidates should contact the school systems in which they seek employment, or their colleges, for specific advice on which examinations to take and on which dates they should be taken.

The Bulletin of Information for Candidates contains a list of test centers, and general information about the examinations, as well as a Registration Form. Copies may be obtained from college placement officers, school personnel departments, or directly from National Teacher Examinations, Box 911, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey 08540.

of your next term paper...

Consider for a moment what the research will be used for. Most students spend at least a few hours researching and writing papers for their courses. Many spend more. But after the research is done, and the paper is written, what happens to all that work? At best, you file your notes away and hope they'll be useful in some future paper. At worst, you stuff the whole thing in the wastebasket (now, or when you graduate). No use is made of your time, your effort, your product.

But while you are going through all that work for a result nobody but you and the professor ever sees, there are people desperate for the knowledge that you could be using the same time and effort to acquire: Community action groups; Tenant unions; Welfare reform groups; Tax reform organizations. Most of these groups have neither the funds nor the time to obtain the information they need to fight for progress effectively, yet they do need to know who owns that, and who controls whom, and how to tap the available resources of the city.

The Peoples Bicentennial Commission-composed of representatives of organizations throughout this city-is trying to remedy the situation. We believe that college students can make a meaningful contribution to the people of this community by volunteering their time to undertake research into its problems and its institutions. College students often ask, "I want to help people, but what can I really do?" Investigative research is one logical answer.

Interested? Call the Peoples Bicentennial Commission. Darryl Wiley, 799-8356.

'Skinny Person'-Come Out!

Fat. It's such an ugly word. I guess that's why people who are overweight always have another way of describing themselves. They often say that they 'just have big bones' when what they really have is 'big fat'!

Being fat is not only totally unnecessary, it is very unhealthy! Did you know that obesity can cause high blood pressure, sugar diabetes, shortness of breath, difficulty in walking or running, heart attacks, and last but not least, mental anguish. (Never being able to get a date or being about as popular as a pimple can cause a hell of a lot of mental anguish!)

Deep down inside of every fat person, there is a skinny person trying to fight its way to the surface. Well, every Thursday night at 7 at the WYCA, a bunch of people get together to try to let out that "skinny person" inside of them. That "get together" is called "Weight Watchers of America". If your "skinny person" is still on the inside and you'd like to let it out, come to one of our meetings. We'd love to see less of ya! Janie Honeycutt of your next term paper...

Consider for a moment what the research will be used for.

Most students spend at least a few hours researching and writing papers for their courses. Many spend more. But after the research is done, and the paper is written, what happens to all that work? At best, you file your notes away and hope they'll be useful in some future paper. At worst, you stuff the whole thing in the wastebasket (now, or when you graduate). No use is made of your time, your effort, your product.

But while you are going through all that work for a result nobody but you and the professor ever sees, there are people desperate for the knowledge that you could be using the same time and effort to acquire: Community action groups; Tenant unions; Welfare reform groups; Tax reform organizations. Most of these groups have neither the funds nor the time to obtain the information they need to fight for progress effectively, yet they do need to know who owns that, and who controls whom, and how to tap the available resources of the city. The Peoples Bicentennial Commission-composed of representatives of organizations throughout this city is trying to remedy the situation. We believe that college students can make a meaningful contribution to the people of this community by volunteering their time to undertake research into its problems and its institutions. College students often ask, "I want to help people, but what can I really do?" Investigative research is one logical answer.

None of this research requires any special knowledge. Some of it is not glamorous; some of it would require hard work. BUT IT WILL NOT BE MEANINGLESS. SOMEONE NEEDS THIS RESEARCH AND IT WILL BE USED IN REAL BATTLES* OVER REAL ISSUES. Interested? Call the Peoples Bicentennial Commission. Darryl Wiley, 799-8356.

'Skinny Person'-Come Out!

Fat. It's such an ugly word. I guess that's why people who are overweight always have another way of describing themselves. They often say that they 'just have big bones' when what they really have is 'big fat'!

Being fat is not only totally unnecessary, it is very unhealthy! Did you know that obesity can cause high blood pressure, sugar diabetes, shortness of breath, difficulty in walking or running, heart attacks, and last but not least, mental anguish. (Never being able to get a date or being about as popular as a pimple can cause a hell of a lot of mental anguish!)

Deep down inside of every fat person, there is a skinny person trying to fight its way to the surface. Well, every Thursday night at 7 at the YWCA, a bunch of people get together to try to let out that "skinny person" inside of them. That "get together" is called "Weight Watchers of America". If your "skinny person" is still on the inside and you'd like to let it out, come to one of our meetings. We'd love to see less of ya!

FLEETWOOD MAC
Reprise MS-2225

In January of this year, FLEETWOOD MAC released their HEROES ARE HARD TO FIND album and the title cut hit top ten throughout the nation. This was the first time, since the group was formed in 1967 that the MAC had had such a record and the group members feared disaster might strike as they had seen how big promotions and hit singles had been the ruin of other groups. (SEAHAWK:

Feb. 27, 1975.)

With a hit single behind them, Fleetwood Mac must have felt that they had a standard to live up to and the new album proves they have more than surpassed this standard.

Once again the Mac have changed group members with Mick Fleetwood and John and Christine McVie being the only members left from the HEROES album. Additions to the group are Lindsey Buckingham, on guitar and vocals, and Stevie Nicks, on vocals, giving the group its second female vocalist.

The sound on the albums is that of the country-rock flavor that has become more popular these days by groups such as THE EAGLES. The Mac, however, have two advantages over groups like the Eagles. First, they are English and have a blues background which is incorporated in their music. Second, they now have three vocalists, lead by Christine McVie, who appear to have the ability to make anything sound good.

"Monday Morning" opens the album and is written and sung by one of the new members of the group, Lindsey Buckingham. The song is similar to what is on the HEROES album.

Also on this side are two very good songs by Christine McVie, entitled "Warm Ways" (which is the single presently out) and "Over My Head." The latter of these is very well performed as well as containing good music and lyrics.

*You can take me to paradise
And then again you can be cold as ice*

I'm over my head

But it sure feels nice.

Side two opens with the best cut off the album, called "Say You Love Me." McVie sings on this one also, but the main attraction of the song is the banjo part. The song is excellent in that the banjo and McVie's vocals produce a very good sound. If any song on the album has a chance to become a hit single, this is it.

Another cut worth mentioning on this side is "Landslide."

The song is written and sung by the other new member of the group, Stevie Nicks.

Although Stevie's vocals are not as strong as Christine's, she does perform her own material very effectively. Miss Nicks adds much to the album and with hopes she will remain with the group for some time.

This album should be liked by everyone. It has enough of a country sound to be appreciated by Americans who are interested in that scene, and it has enough rock sound to be accepted by those people also. FLEETWOOD MAC is a group whose roots branch back into the 60's. With this album, the roots grow even deeper. Till then, ROCK-OUT.

Manfred Mann's Earth Band

NIGHTINGALES & BOMBERS
Warner Bros. BS-2877

Although I have always liked Manfred Mann, I was very disappointed in the GOOD EARTH LP put out last year. Now that NIGHTINGALES AND BOMBERS has been released, I feel they have improved but still have a long way to go.

The main fault I have with the album is the amount of instrumentals on it. GOOD EARTH had the tendency to contain long songs with Mann improvising to the point of boredom.

Now he has given way to the other members of the group and cut down on the time of the songs, yet almost every other song is an instrumental.

That is not saying the instrumentals are bad because they are musical, quite good and well performed. First time I listened to the LP I noticed how Mann had shared the spotlight with other members of the group where on THE GOOD EARTH album it sounded as if Mann had just discovered a Synthesizer.

The vocal cuts on the LP are excellent. "Spirits In The Night" is the best cut on the album and really shocked me in that Manfred Mann had done a song of this type.

The song is basically about the 50's as a group of people go out to "the lake" on a Saturday night to get drunk and play around with "Crazy Janey". The lyrics are really great as you can almost imagine yourself at Greenfield Lake in the mid-50's. You sit there drinking wine as you watch Crazy Janey flutter from guy to guy only to end up with you for the rest of the night. When this happens, your friends are mad because you are the one she chose and begin to wander off in their own directions. Janey soon has to be home so you all end the night messed up one way or the other.

"Time is Right" is also a very good cut. The song begins with Chris Slade on drums and is some of the best drum work I have heard for some time. Thought the lyrics are simple, the music is as good as any on the album.

I would not recommend the album for everyone because of all the instrumentals on the album. "Spirits In The Night" should be a single worth having and could easily make people interested in MANFRED MANN again. Give it a listen any way, I could not recommend it. ROCK-OUT.

The Lady's Reward

by DOROTHY PARKER

Lady, lady, never start
Conversation toward your heart;
Keep your pretty words serene;
Never murmur what you mean.
Show yourself, by word and look,
Swift and shallow as a brook.
Be as cool and quick to go
As a drop of April snow;
Be as delicate and gay
As a cherry flower in May.
Lady, lady, never speak
Of the tears that burn your cheek.
She will never win him, whose Words had shown she feared to lose.
Be you wise and never sad,
You will get your lovely lad.
Never serious be, nor true,
And your wish will come to you.
And if that makes you happy, kid,
You'll be the first it ever did.

Poetry Contest

Poems are now being accepted in the English Department for the University Poetry Contest. Each student may submit three poems by the deadline date, October 10.

This contest, organized by Atlantis, the literary magazine sponsored by the English Department, and financed by the North Carolina Junior Sorosis is open to all UNC-W students.

All poems will be judged by a panel consisting of Dr. Marie Powles and Miss Carol Ellis of the English Department, and Miss Marjorie Smith, Star, News Editor.

Money prizes will be awarded-$50 for first place poem, $30 for second, $20 for third and two honorable mentions at $10. The prizes will be given at an awards presentation where the winning poems will be read.

Following the presentations, the North Carolina Junior Sorosis will hold a reception.

All students are encouraged to submit their poems to the contest and to Atlantis for publication.

Laubach Literary Workshop

Laubach literacy workshops-training volunteers in methods of teaching persons to read and write-will be conducted at the Wilmington Baptist Association Office at 610 South College Road, Sept. 19-19.

The workshops will begin on Monday at 9:00 a.m. and continue Monday through Friday from 9:00 a.m. to 12 noon with repeat sessions from 7:00-9:30 p.m., conducted by Mrs. Gene Todd, approved Laubach tutor-trainer. Training volunteers is offered as a service to this community by the Wilmington Literacy Group in cooperation with the Literacy Missions Department of the Home Mission Board, Southern Baptist Convention, according to Paul Kesterson, Director of Missions for the Wilmington Association.

The Laubach method of teaching has gained increasing popularity nationally and locally, both in the community and public schools. Volunteers completing the 14 hour workshop will be trained in techniques for teaching English to nonreading adults, including internationals, and will also be able to participate in tutorial programs in schools, churches and neighborhood centers.

To date, according to Mr. Kesterson, 237 volunteers have been trained in 13 workshops held previously, with the Wilmington area. He adds there is a great need currently for many more volunteers, and adults, high school seniors and college students interested in learning the Laubach method are invited to the workshops.

The workshop is free. Materials are sold at cost for approximately $10.30. Campus Ministry has a few loan copies of these materials for interested students to share if they cannot afford the cost.

Interested persons are asked to call 799-1160, the Association Office, for more information. There is no charge for helping non-readers, and all information is kept confidential if desired, to spare anyone embarrassment.

The "Love Affair" in Room 113

and an extreme amount of laughter teaching.

Ms. Jackson said, "I look forward to coming to work. It never gets dull or boring. I like mingling and meeting with the students. I think they're great!"

So you see there is a love affair in room 113. It goes on behind the Polaroid ID camera, when students are validating IDs, when someone's in trouble and needs help, or just in general conversation. It's a love affair with a job. A job that hides behind its two extraordinary people. People who care about the students and make the students care about them. It is very definite that Mrs. Claire Filion and Mrs. Joyce Jackson are an asset to UNC-Wilmington.

Mrs. Jackson displays her best smile, always greeting the students with that southern-belle attitude. (photo by charles myers)

The Community College of the Air Force (a degree of difference)

It's a fact the average college man or woman makes more money during his working life. Seems to contribute more to his employer. Goes further on the job.

We would like you to know about the new Community College of the Air Force. It's made up of seven major Air Force vocational schools and incorporates courses from more than 700 colleges and universities located on or near Air Force bases. Everyone (that's right, everyone) qualifies for admission as soon as he finishes basic training.

The Community College of the Air Force offers you the opportunity to earn a Career Education Certificate in one of more than 80 job-related majors. You can also take advantage of other Air Force programs to get a four-year degree while you're still with us.

Senate Takes Head Out of Sand

On September 11, a meeting of the Fledgling Editor and the SGA Publicity committee chairman met in an attempt to resolve certain differences between them and rather than working against each other, work together for the benefit of the students.

The recent article regarding the SGA-Fledgling relationship contained a number of misconceptions. It has been learned that $10.00 is not automatically taken from a student's fees to pay for a yearbook. Rather, part of the fees, $12.00 per student per semester, goes to the SGA and they allocate a portion of it to the Fledgling at their discretion. Due to a lack of funds appropriated by last years administration the number of yearbooks ordered was reduced. Fourteen thousand five hundred dollars was requested for the 1975 Fledgling but only $12,000 was given to them.

Each year, the previous editor places a request for the next year's book. The 1974 Fledgling editor approached the finance committee, a group of senators designated to investigate and present a tentative allocation to the Senate, with a request for $10,000 to go to the '75 Fledgling. This sum was presented to the Senate who allocated $9,000. The 1975 Fledgling editor returned at a later date and requested another $4,500 of the finance committee. The finance committee suggested a sum of $3,000 to the Senate, who approved this allocation.

The SGA of 1974 suggested that the number of books be reduced in order to compensate for several hundred books left over from the previous year. The previous senate felt that these measures would allow the Fledgling to stay within their rather limited budget as well as cope with the distribution rate. However, they failed to realize the unexpected sharp increase in enrollment.

In the past the SGA has been rather alienated from the student body. This years Senate is receptive to the voice of the student. Please, learn who your representatives are and discuss with them how you would like this campus run and how you would like your money allocated. They need to know if students are concerned about a yearbook shortage occurring again. For Freshmen (or Freshpersons rather) elections are coming up. Please put someone in the Senate who will work for you. They need active people.

FACTS ABOUT MARIJUANA

Classification: Mild hallucinogen is possibly best classification. Also referred to in some respects as relaxant, appetite enhancer, etc. Actually, this drug may defy rigid classification completely.

Overdose potential: None. Physical addiction: None. Common methods of consumption: Smoked, occasionally ingested.

Common forms: Green leafy plant substance (marijuana). Solid brownish substance (hashish) which may vary from very hard to crumbly. Strengths vary due largely to climatic influences on growth, as well as heredity.

The effects of cannabis intoxication are difficult to classify, having similarities to both tranquilizers and stimulants, and, in some cases the hallucinogens. The effects vary from person to person and batch to batch.

Small doses of the drug commonly produce pleasurable feelings of well being, gaiety, and talkativeness. Sudden attacks of hilarity are not uncommon in marijuana users. Many users claim a heightened sensitivity to color, sound and taste. Higher dosages may result in confusion, short-term memory impairment and drowsiness. These effects are transient.

The only two consistently appearing physiological symptoms of cannabis use are a reddening of the eyes and temporarily increased heart rate.

Unless further scientific research proves otherwise, which seems doubtful at this point, the greatest current danger of marijuana use is arrest and incarceration of the user. Most reputable authorities and many law enforcement officials agree that past reactions to what would seem to be a comparatively mild intoxicant were little short of hysterical. Marijuana's legal status is being re-evaluated and, hopefully, the new answers to the marijuana question will help to re-establish our lawmakers' credibility concerning other, more dangerous chemicals.

Since the lethal dose of marijuana is virtually unattainable, no substantiated deaths due to overdose have ever been reported. Neither is marijuana physically addictive, but, like any psychoactive substance, pot does have some potential for psychological dependence. For instance, a person who habitually uses marijuana in a social situation to help him be less inhibited, to help him talk and laugh

on the drug in order to function in that situation, or changing the situation to one to which he is more adaptable, he may use the drug to enable him to cope with the present situation to avoid putting himself through the hassle and the pain of making a change. When a drug, any drug, begins to impose limitations, that drug is being abused.

High doses taken by inexperienced persons may lead to impulsive behavior, anxiety, or panic, on extremely rare occasions. When this happens, all it usually takes is a little calm, warm, non-pushy protectiveness to put the person back onto secure ground again. More often, though, neophyte users have to practice for awhile before they even know when they're stoned.

Driving, of course, or operating any kind of potentially dangerous machinery is a foolish thing to attempt while under the influence of any psychoactive drug. It's one to play games with your own life, and quite another to risk to safety of other people. This holds true for all drugs which can alter perception or reflexes, from pot to liquor to antihistamines to acid.

Biology Department Offers Travel

The Department of Biology will sponsor a third biological expedition to a southern area of the world. Countries under consideration are Brazil, Chile and the Union of South Africa. Selection of the country to be visited will be determined by costs involved and by student interest. Enrollment is limited to majors in the biological sciences. Six semester hours may be earned.

Students may select research projects in vertebrate Zoology and in marine biology. Undergraduate and graduate students may participate. Faculty from UNC-W and North Carolina State University will participate.

Four students who participated in the 1974 expedition to Ecuador presented the results of their studies at the annual meeting of the North Carolina Academy of Sciences in April of 1975. The four presentations received high awards. It is anticipated that students participating in the 1975 Ecuadorian expedition will present the results of their investigations at the annual meeting of the NCAS to be held at UNC-W in April, 1976.

Interested students should contact Dr. Charles M. Fugler, 124 Marine Science Building, for details of the proposed trip and for academic prerequisites.

EDITORIALS

Cloud of Doubt

According to the article "Senate Takes Head Out of Sand" (see page 1) the blame for the yearbook shortage was appropriately given to the previous Student Senate. Now fellow students let me ask you how many of these senators are still with us?

Returnees to the Student Government include President Steve Hobbs, former Jr. Class

Senator, Vice President Carol Moore, former Soph. Class Senator, along with Senators Rufus Butner, Lance Ferrell, Ricky Patton, Clay Fairley, Robert Jones, Gary Coburn, Gary Shipman, John Crawley, David Davis, Barbara McKay, among others which I might have neglected. Twelve! Count them! Twelve senators have once again managed to be rescued. How many of them received their yearbooks? These were among the ones who voted for a decrease in allocations to the 1975 Fledgling and these are the ones that will be voting again on your 1976 Fledgling.

Will we wake up next year to find that yet old yearbook has been short changed again? As it stands now the Fledgling's wings have been clipped even further back from the previous year. The '75 yearbook received $12,000 and the '76 yearbook only received $10,000. So, we can once again expect an even greater shortage unless your senators are approached. Students do not have the right to vote at Student Government meetings but they do have the right to attend and pressure their elected representatives to vote the way you want!

I applaud the Senate for trying to smooth out their differences with the Fledgling. I cheer the Senate for their stand to be more receptive to the voice of Joe P. Student. (Rah! Rah!) However with the Senates past history, there still remains a cloud of doubt.

The Gadfly:

Socrates is remembered by most people as a wise man who was probably the Western world's first philosopher. What most people don't know is why Socrates snuffed himself with that well-known non-bubbling cup of hemlock. The answer to that question may surprise you. Socrates died for an institution, the institution of government.

Nowadays the appeal of dying for institutions seems to have lost its luster. As a matter of fact, the word institution has all the pleasant connotations of such words as bad breath and body odor. Institutions are those vast gory never-never lands where triplicate forms flourish amid incomprehensible endless rules and regulations. Institutions are where everyone wears a gray suit with a tall attachment for the entrance. And, of course, an institution is where you go when you can't take institutions anymore.

So why should Socrates choose to die rather than go against the institution? It would seem that Socrates knew something a lot of people overlook today. Institutions are made up of people but institutions are not people, nor are people institutions. With this in mind let us look at some of the problems that beset us today in the realm of institutions.

Government is the biggie.

I'm Just One Person

Big Brother who watches over you via the FBI and the CIA. The Big Brother who falls on his face when faced with domestic economic woes, shortages and crime. The Big Brother who stuffed his mouth full of shoe in the Watergate business.

How true, but just one moment there friend before denouncing the "institution". Our concept or our institution of democracy never included bugging or stealing. The men who did these things hid themselves within "the system", but they weren't the system itself. Good honest men placed within the same framework could have helped rather than hindered the development of justice and individual rights.

So who is to blame for the failure of institutions if not the institutions themselves? The people within them, that's who. Don't forget to include yourself in that number. After all, when was the last time you voted or wrote your congressman or were active in local politics?

"But I'm just one person!" you say. Well, so is everyone else. In the United States, there are around 250 million "just one person"s. If you act and your friends act and everyone acts, then the institution works. That's what is supposed to happen.

But not today. Everyone today, it would seem, sees institutions as evil things that should produce goodies without such bad side effects as taxes and bureaucrats. It doesn't work that way. Out of nothing comes nothing.

An institution is only as good as people make it. It doesn't make itself. It can be a Frankenstein or a loyal servant. It is the people's choice. It's your choice.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Dear Editor,

As a senior who has attended this university for 3 1/2 years, policies and issues, some big and some little, have arisen from time to time that have affected us all. But nothing has ever been as important to each of us as mispent or misappropriated student funds. What is the policy making body of the UNC-W campus that has so recently been responsible for the shortage of funds for the yearbook staff? Ladies and gentlemen, I give you the SGA-your organization and mine.

According to Darlene Pearsall's article on the shortage, this will also be the case this year as well. I may get my yearbook but only because I am a senior. What about you-a new freshman-or what about all you sophmores? Each one of you has as poor a chance as the juniors of receiving your yearbook next year. You pay for it, it seems to me since there is no way this $10 can be refunded or waived to you the student, that you would want every penny used to benefit you as directly as possible.

If you want to voice an opinion-good. But, if you want action-something done-go to the SGA meetings and verbally oppose this. No other action will substitute.

In the past, SGA has been relatively free to run itself-there were no real checks and balances as far as student participation and feedback to the SGA. It's time to stand up to this inadequate method-particularly when it is your money that they appropriate-or misappropriate (as you will).

I resent not getting what I pay for each semester. The power of collective bargaining has always been much more effective than a lone protester. I appeal to the student body. Talk about it-protest-only make your decision known. D.C.W.

Recent front page articles about syphilis and gonorrhea prompted a variety of responses. The range included "I didn't realize that," and "How do they know?" or "What will the members of the Board of Trustees say?" and "It's a sad day when that kind of filth appears on the front page of our college newspaper."

Strange how people think...or maybe don't think. Actually it's about time someone got the word about some of the excesses gushing forth from our society. The sad thing about the day articles such as the ones on alcohol, syphilis, gonorrhea (and maybe more to come) is that they weren't printed on the front page of "respectable" papers a long time ago. A lot of people get sucked in by the elusive siren-like quality of these various over-indulgences. Our public society plays the role of the three monkeys, seeing, hearing and speaking no evil; confusing the task of becoming involved with peoples' pain and agony as a wholesale endorsement of the cause.

But wait, before you are quick to jump on the bandwagon of these classic public and social evils. We have our little Gods we carry before ourselves which create other types of pain. Call Crisis Line and ask the kind of calls they get from all groups. Crises don't miss certain neighborhoods because of race, creed or economic status. One of Crisis Line's busiest times is Sunday morning—funny thing! All the ministers (clergy and charity) are hard at work in their pews. The only phone that answers for help is Crisis Line.

Somewhere along the line we missed. We rub shoulders day after day and too often miss the pain that brushes us or we even deliberately walk out a different door or sit at a different table in the snack bar. There is a God who responded. There was a man from God who responded, yea, even sought out people with pain, not awaiting front page coverage. Once a woman merely touched the hem of his clothing and even with that slight encounter Jesus knew her need and responded. We relegate our responses too often to a position three paragraphs long under the Sylvia Porter column. "Porn" might be defined as topics about which we are not supposed to talk and when they are brought up we get so tied up in issues and legalities that we fail to see the people who are hurting and struggling. It is around some of this "pornography" (i.e. abortion, homosexuality, racism, rape, feelings, addiction, death, etc.) that we discover many of the festering sores people carry around untreated because they are not really welcome to show them. Be sensitive and respond, it's risky but it's part of life.

A.P.O.

Alpha Phi Omega is the national service fraternity on the UNC-W campus; it is a unique group of individuals striving to serve not only its brothers, but UNC-W and the Wilmington community as well. Past projects have included a rock-a-thon, see-saw-a-thon, raffles, bake sales and car washes to raise money for local charities, an Easter party for underprivileged children and ushering services for UNC-W concerts. To its members, APO holds opportunities for leadership and friendship, as well as service. We can't offer a beer bust every weekend, but we can offer the chance for personal satisfaction and pride. APO is open to all men and women; regardless of race, creed or national origin. If you feel you would like to be a part of this fraternity, look for our posters announcing rush and attend. Warren to Perform

Howard Warren began his professional career in Central New York while attending college. Warren busied himself with summer stock, and after landing the role of the "Mute" in FANTASTICKS, he discovered the art of pantomime was more than walking in place and creating an imaginary wall. Through this self enlightenment, Warren began an intensive study in ballet, gymnastics, jazz and body movement.

After three years of devoted study, Warren was granted permission to teach to a two hour pantomime class by the chairman of Speech and Theatre in the State University of New York, College at Cortland.

Warren taught various pantomime classes for two years while he continued his own training and development program. Classes emphasized on muscular control and observation were conducted regularly until Warren introduced internal muscular control of his eyes.

In order to relieve his college expenses, Warren began performing assembly programs and pantomime workshops, until he ventured out of the Central New York area and began entertaining college audiences throughout New York and New Jersey. Warren is presently delighting audiences around the country during his extensive travels. He continues his never-ending pursuit for perfection in the art.

Howard Warren will be appearing in Kenan Auditorium on Thursday, September 25 at 8:00 p.m. Ya'll be there, ya hear!

STUDENT FEES :

WH

Student Union

The Student Union receives $12.00 per person per semester out of ones student fees. Last year the Student Union received $60,300. This money pays for a variety of things beneficial to students.

The money goes toward the salary of Ms. Linda Moore, Director of Student Activities, and the salaries of the janitors. The appropriated money also goes toward the general maintenance of the Student Union Building (PUB) paying for the utilities, revamping and recreation room. The Student Union Program Board (SUPB) also operates off this budget to bring to the campus new and innovative talents and last year they presented for the first time the successful Super Sunday.

The big expenditure last year went towards the upgrading of the electrical system.

Some of the money is set aside in a reserve each year in case of emergencies or in case there are any additions made to the building. With the increase in student population there is a possibility that the present building will be too small and a larger one will have to be built.

This year a great deal of the money is going towards the remodeling of the old Seahawk office into a coffeehouse with a country barn atmosphere. The coffeehouse will offer a place to meet, eat, and talk after hours. The coffeehouse will also have live entertainment for your enjoyment.

Intramurals

Intramurals are appropriated $1 per person per semester. This money goes towards the salary of the director of Intramurals, as well as the salaries for officials, who are UNC-W students. The money is also utilized to buy and maintain equipment, provide shower and locker help and pay for outside officials during the finals. All students are welcomed and entitled to participate.

Varsity Athletics

The state requires that portions of some salaries be paid from this money.

Insurance on each athlete is $19.90. Women's sports have been recently added with no increase in the fund.

Officials cost $100 a game. Recruiting expenses are covered under the athletic fund.

It also covers team travel, meals, uniforms, supplies and field markings.

All students are admitted free to all athletic events.

A great portion of scholarship money is raised through the Seahawk Club.

Student Health

As a student at UNC-W taking five or more hours of courses you are provided general outpatient medical services at the Health Service Center. This article will help you in securing these services and will assure you the fastest possible medical attention should a medical emergency arise.

The Health Service Center is located in the main lobby of the dormitory. The Center is staffed by a Family Nurse Practitioner or Physician's Associate each weekday the University is open, from 9:00 A.M. to 3:00 P.M. The phone extension is 339. Every semester there is $11 of student fees allocated to the Student Health Service. This provides the students with a wide variety in health care.

The University into an agreement with the Wilmington Hospital provide general outpatient medical services similar to those provided in their general services for daily care located in the campus dormitory.

This also includes and treatment of medical disorders, infections, diseases, trauma. Outpatient services in the Health Service Center in the Health Service Center and general agreement. The Health Service Center provides X-Ray services to detect

General Academic Fee & Registration fee

In a conference with Mr. Bob Walton, Comptroller, it was discovered that your general academic fees of $5.00 per semester and your registration fee of $7.50 per semester goes to the state of North Carolina although it never leaves the campus. This money is utilized to reduce appropriations that the state gives for our education. There is no specific place where the money goes. In general, it goes towards the salaries of the administrators, professors, and staff as well as paying for the upkeep of the buildings and the campus grounds.

Physical Education department

The greatest portion of this money is funneled into two areas.

1. Salaries-State law does not permit the use of state funds to be used to pay for people to give services to students. This includes people such as basketball room attendants.

2. Gym Uniforms-The purchase and maintenance of uniforms as well as their cleaning and the washing machines and dryers used.

This money is also used for the maintenance of fields. The construction of nine tennis courts on campus. Subsidization of intramurals.

Paying an attendant to keep the gym open on Sundays. Maintenance and replacement of equipment.

SEAHAWKS CAPTURE TOURNAMENT TITLE

For the second year in a row the UNC-W soccer team won the Pembroke Invitational Soccer Tournament.

Coach Calvin Lane was delighted with the performance of the team. "Everyone played well and had an outstanding tournament. We placed five players on the all-tournament team and I felt others could easily have been voted the honor."

All tournament players are Carlos Escobar, Nino Fleri, Vince Lindenschmidt, Gene Borowski, and Tim Willette. Lane commented that Lindy (Vince Lindenschmidt) had a solid tournament at both half-back and fullback.

In the opening game, the Seahawks got off to a bit of a sluggish start against the College of Charleston. Although they won the match by a score of 4 to 3 Lane felt that, "We did not play our best."

UNC-W drew first blood when Escobar scored on a header cross by David Kovack. The College of Charleston came back to tie it up at 1-1 at halftime.

In the second half Borowski scored on a corner kick but once again Charleston tied the score. UNC-W took the lead for good when Fleri scored with an assist from Gonzalo Rada and Escobar scored with an assist from Fleri.

Charleston added a goal with 25 minutes left in the game for the final score.

On Saturday UNC-W met Pembroke State University for the championship. Pembroke had reached the finals by defeating Methodist College 4-3.

"Unlike the day before, we were ready to play and the outcome was never in doubt," Lane said. The Seahawks had 26 shots on goal while the Braves were limited to 2.

The Hawks got off to a fast start when Fleri scored and followed with an assist to Escobar to make it 2-0 at the half.

Two quick scores at the beginning of the second half by Escobar, with assists by Lindenschmidt and David Wychel broke open the game. Fleri and Borowski closed out the scoring with assists by Escobar and Rada.

Lane cited the aggressive fullback play of Rick Hayes, Tom Buffington, Mark Willette, Joe Camarano, and W. K. Gaylor as a key to the Hawk attack.

"Our attack was quick and decisive with excellent on touch passing," Lane summarized.

The Seahawks traveled to N.C. State Tuesday and open a N.C. State Tuesday and open at home Friday at 4:00 against the pirates of East Carolina University.

Coach Lane hopes that people will come out and support the team. They are looking forward to playing at home and it would be good to know that the student body is behind them.

Cross Country Makes Debut on Campus

The first varsity Cross Country Team at UNC-W held their first practice last week with fifteen "Harriers" answering the call of Coach Dave Warner.

Interest was shown last year in the intramural Cross Country run and from this group are: Eddie Ellis, Neil Kernodle, Jim Knapp, Phil Lambert, Jan Storey, Wayne Barbee and Rex Whaley. Jim Coley won the intramural run last year and is expected to join the squad shortly. Newcomers are Jackie Allen, Don Horn, Al King, Steve Martin and Clark Butler. The addition of Eileen Sternberger, the first girl to join the harriers met full approval of the team.

Meets are over a five mile course which is the NCAA regulation distance. The X-Country runners are scheduled to meet Pembroke, Cambell, Methodist and St.

Andrews this year with the NAIA District 29 meet concluding the season in mid-November.

Coach Warner expressed pleasure at the large turn-out and has had the harriers practicing every afternoon over distances from 3 to 10 miles.

Runners who enjoy competition and endurance running may still join the team.

Group Opportunities Offered

The Counseling and Testing Center will offer students again this year opportunities for personal growth through group participation. Group topics for the fall semester are: decision-making skills; communication skills; study skills; and values clarification. The purpose of the decision-making group will be to provide students with an opportunity to learn more about themselves and others by helping them learn how to develop and apply decision-making skills. Choices of major and career are but two of the many typical and real-life situations considered through short readings, discussions, role-plays, and simulations.

The purpose of the communication group will be to focus on the verbal communication process in an attempt to increase group members interpersonal skills. Consideration will be given to both the listening and message sending skills, as well as to the feelings and effect connected with the process. The format will be largely discussion, demonstration and practice of situations relevant to participants.

Study skills and communication skills groups will be announced later.

Groups will meet in Room 202, Administration Building. Organizational meetings for the groups will be:

Decision-making skills
Wednesday, Sept. 16, 2:30-4:00 P.M.

Communication Skills

Drs. Newton and Slager, leaders of the groups, will be happy to answer questions or give additional information about the groups. They can be reached at the Counseling and Testing Center, Room 217; Administration Building or by telephone, extension 242.

V.A. Benefits and Opportunities

The Office of Veteran Affairs at UNC-W would like to welcome all returning and new students to our campus. We wish you much success in your academic as well as social endeavors. We exist to provide educational assistance, peer and professional counseling, remedial services, tutorial services, and to coordinate existing campus services to best serve the needs of the veteran students.

We would like to invite all veterans and dependents receiving V.A. educational assistance to join the Veterans Association here on campus. The date and time of their meetings will be placed on provide bulletin boards around campus.

Those veterans who received tuition deferments through the OVA are requested to please bring a copy of their receipt of payment by the OVA on the date payment is due. The OVA would like to stress the fact that any change in ones credit hour load must be reported to the OVA. Any deviation in this procedure will result in an overpayment by the VA and possible complications in receiving your VA educational benefits.

The Tutorial Assistance offered by the V.A. has been increased to a maximum of $60 per month. If you are having difficulty in any subject area please utilize this service. It is not counted against your basic entitlement. To utilize Tutorial Assistance one must: (1) acquire a statement from OVA to your instructor stating your need for tutorial assistance, (2) come by the OVA for the necessary forms and a listing of persons qualified to tutor in various subject areas, (3) if you have an individual in mind to tutor you who is not on the OVA list, make sure he is certified to be a tutor by the department chairman in that subject area.

The Office of Veteran Affairs is located in the Alderman Building Room 109. Please feel free to come by during the hours of 8:00 A.M. and 12:00 P.M. and 1:00 P.M. and 5:00 P.M., Monday through Friday. For the convenience of night students the OVA will remain open from 5:00 P.M. to 7:00 P.M. on the second and fourth Wednesday of each month beginning September 24, 1975.

Toads to Trash

Have you walked through the nature trail this year?

As usual I was met by the buzzing of dragonflies and an occasional toad hopping across the path. The bright purples and yellows of flowers were enlivened by the soft whites and greens of ferns. The brightness of the day was matched by the solitary song of a near-by bird.

If you do not know of the existence of the nature trail, you probably haven't enjoyed the pleasures of walking through the woods, refreshed by its beauty after a long day of classes and labs.

It was at this time that the bridge over the creek came in view along with assorted garbage ranging from paper cups to a Rosen's bag. Looking across the bridge my eyes were jolted by a fence that ran as far as I could see either way. A strong dread ran through me as I saw this barrier cutting off the passage to the Memorial Wildflower Garden and the pond. Walking back to the dam in more or less a daze, I could only think, why?

Later I found out the fence was put up to stop people who rode motorcycles and minibikes through the nature trail. It seems a high price to pay for the inconsiderate few. These few are more than likely the same few who left their fingerprints along the way in the form of garbage and bike tracks. Surely no one who gains joy and peace of mind from the quiet walk on the nature trail would leave such a fingerprint. Meanwhile, I suppose, the folks who love the nature trail will have to bend their backs to pick up those of the others to keep the trail unspoiled.

Students from all Christian groups (Protestant, Catholic, and otherwise) are invited to a general meeting to investigate the feasibility of forming a C.S.U. at UNC-W.

Some of the purposes would be to coordinate religious activities on campus, give input to United Christian Campus Ministry, sponsor activities and examine the implications of being a Christian in an academic setting.

This kind of effort can only truly be successful if there is representation from a broad range of groups: Roman, Greek, Baptist, pentecostal, non-denominational, Episcopal, Methodist, etc., etc., etc. TIME AND PLACE: ROOM 103 KENAN BUILDING - 11:30 Thursday September 18

FRANK ZAPPA and the MOTHERS OF INVENTION
ONE SIZE FITS ALL
Discreet DS 2216

I have defended and been a fan of FRANK ZAPPA & THE MOTHERS OF INVENTION since they put out their first album, FREAK OUT! in 1966. At times people called me a nut for doing so, and at times I admit I felt like a nut, but now, with the new album out, I can look back and say: "See, I told ya' so!"

They have so much music history it would be impossible to put it all in one page so I will try to just hit the high spots (if I can even do that). They first appeared in California in 1966 with their album, FREAK OUT, and that is exactly what it did to many people. Best said by the late Lillian Roxon: "It (the album) grew on the public like an evil fungus. FREAK OUT was not just social and musical satire. It was the first rock album produced as if it were a single piece of music. (It was a full year before the Beatles made this concept commercially acceptable with SERGEANT PEPPER.)

THE MOTHERS were "ugly players... ugly music, ugly lyrics, ugly gestures, and ugly noises."

In 1967 the second album, ABSOLUTELY FREE, was released and contained the classic "Brown Shoes Don't Make It." The album was directed at the American public and did nothing but tell what a shit American society was. It almost went as far as to say that you, as the buyer, were a shit for buying such a L.P.

1968 saw the release of WE'RE ONLY IN IT FOR THE MONEY, another social satire album. THE MOTHERS hit back that same year with another first as their CRUISING WITH RUBEN AND THE JETS was released. The album was a first in that it was nostalgic of the pre-Beatles era. Roxon again comes up with the true meaning as she states: "The idea is to destroy the top-forty concept of radio, and ease the listener into 'serious' music."

The album had one single, "Jelly Roll Gum Drop", to make radio, only to be taken off when it was discovered that RUBEN AND THE JETS were in reality THE MOTHERS.

ZAPPA then eased into his serious music with the UNCLE MEAT album in 1969. The album was put out to earn money to produce a movie by the same name, which was never made. It was totally obscene and taken out of stores in many areas of the country.

Following this was the release of several musical albums including WEASEL RIPPED MY FLESH and BURNT WEENY SANDWICH. These were considered too serious for many people and it appeared that THE MOTHERS were on their way out (if they had ever been in).

Then Zappa pulled through again with one of the most off-the-wall ideas he had produced up to that time. It was 1971 when the movie and soundtrack to "200 MOTELS" were released and hit America by storm.

This was a hint to what the modern MOTHERS would be all about. They had given America all the straight-forward satire it could take and, besides, you cannot keep on selling albums if the public is mad at you.

OVER-NITE SENSATION and APOSTROPHE are the two albums before this new one and prove ZAPPA & THE MOTHERS have learned to be good and ugly at the same time. The best example of this is "Don't Eat the Yellow Snow", from APOSTROPHE, which even made local air play. (And we all know where yellow snow comes from.)

Before going into ONE SIZE FITS ALL, I think it is important for you to know ZAPPA is a true musical genius. He has been very ahead of his time in the techniques used in rock music since the band was formed and hit a high plateau with the UNCLE MEAT album, when he developed and used many taped tracks at once (often as many as 40 or more at one time).

By this, I think you can get the idea of how complicated some of the Mothers' albums are.

ONE SIZE FITS ALL is THE MOTHERS' most advanced album in that ZAPPA has finally made his very complex compositions sound as if they were done, with no trouble at all, in one take. That is the whole beauty of the album.

It is also important to know that all cuts are lyrical, fit for air play, where before it was obvious air play was the last thing expected. (How many groups did you know of in the 60's who put f-k in almost every song?)

"Inca Roads" opens the album with a very good example of how ZAPPA has tamed his wildly complex compositions. It contains a very interesting bridge between the lyrics, which contains Zappa's well-worked personal guitar style. The orchestration is comparable to any of the MOTHERS best and the lyrics are good as spaceships in the Andes shoot in and out between them.

The real rocker and single from the album follows with "Can't Afford NO Shoes". It is all about Recession. Depression and could be Zappa's way of saying: Look, buy this album, I need the money, too. "Sofa No. 1" follows and is the most beautifully done instrumental I have heard on a MOTHER'S album. When played loud, SOFA is so sturdy you could sit in it. Background orchestration is held down to a minimum giving each member on the song a good chance to be heard.

Going on the side two, we find a very good cut entitled "Florentine Pogen." Background vocals remind me of the stuff on the early Mother's albums, though not as gross.

It is really nice the way the lyrics melt into the music. By reading the first two verses, you can almost imagine how the song sounds:

She was the daughter of a wealthy Florentine Pogen
Read'em 'n' weep
Was her adjustable slogan

President Steve Hobbs

"I hereby affirm that I will uphold the honor, integrity, and reputation of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, and that I will fulfill to the best of my ability all duties incumbent upon me as an officer of the Student Government Association."

Each year, one man or woman is elected by the student body of UNC-W to fulfill the duties of the President of the Student Government Association here at UNC-W. Last February, a man named Steve Hobbs was elected to this post.

Along with his academic requirements, there are many things expected of him. A few of the things that Steve is responsible for are: To appoint chairmen for standing committees. For this he needs a two-thirds majority vote by the Student Senate. To address and make recommendations to the Student Senate, provided he notifies Carol Moore, the Vice-President of the SGA and Speaker of the Student Senate. He also represents the SGA of UNC-W at the North Carolina Association of Student Governments. The NCASG is an organization of 16 Student Body Presidents from 16 branches of consolidated Universities. They meet once a month at UNC-Chapel Hill with William C. Friday, the President of UNC Board of Governors and the General Administration concerning needs of students attending state funded universities. Steve will attend one of these meetings this weekend and another the first weekend in October. He is a member of the UNC-W Board of Trustees and the Student Affairs Subcommittee of the Board of Trustees. He is also a member of several faculty committees. Steve extends his appreciation to the Business Club who recently sponsored the Used Book Sale. He hopes that it was successful, not only for the Business Club, but for the whole student body. He looks forward to next semester when once again, they will sponsor the used book sale since it enables students (including Steve!) to buy books at a cheaper price.

Steve says he personally encourages all interested freshmen to run in the upcoming election.

You may not know it but Steve Hobbs is really 'just plain folk' like the rest of us. He goes to concerts, dances, and flirts just as much as we do. He's really not such a bad guy and all you have to do to find that out is to talk with him some time. If you want to meet Steve you can usually find him in his office, or maybe in one of his classes, or in Linda Moore's office or.... You might be able to catch up with him, well, someday.

SENATE MINUTES

A regular session of the UNC-W Senate was called to order by Carol Moore on September 9 at 11:30.

Lance Ferrell gave the invocation.

The minutes were read.

Kevin Beard reported for the Publicity Committee. A letter was drawn up by the Publicity Committee in answer to the September 4 article in the Seahawk which blamed the S.G.A. for lack of enough yearbooks.

Ricky Patton made a motion to send the letter drawn up by the Publicity Committee to the Seahawk. The motion was seconded and discussion followed. Carol Rains called for previous question. The motion passed.

Bobby Heran volunteered to serve as Chairman of the Football Committee.

Ricky Patton made a motion to get a new coin mechanism for the football machine and to set up a fund for repairs on the machine.

Haddon Clark moved to table the motion. The motion was tabled until the next meeting.

Gary Coburn announced that all questions for the campus survey must be in by Thursday.

Lance Ferrell resigned as Senior Senator. He said he did not have enough credit hours to be classified as a Senior.

A motion was made for adjournment. The motion was seconded and passed.

Respectfully submitted, Sharon Davis

"Economic Squeeze on Education"

The National Education Association held its third "Critical Issue Conference" on July 3 and 4-and one of the professors of UNC-W Education Department, Dr. Harold Hulton was able to attend this annual conference.

The theme of the conference this year centered around the Economic Squeeze on Education. As an added feature, seminars were held in order to plan and establish strategy-on problem solving and to be carried out on an individual basis.

The object of this Critical Issues Conference was to expose and resolve, through these strategy seminars, educational neglect of children (including Chicanos, migrant children, females, handicapped and First Americans.)

Congresswoman Margaret Heckler of Massachusetts spoke on the Equal Rights Amendment presumably pertaining to the female population of school age children. Also discussed were the pros and cons of exceptional children being removed from the mainstream of academic activity. Integration-it was pointed out-must begin with re-education of teacher attitudes.

Possibly the highlight of the conference was the experimental seminar on LOVE FOR CHILDREN, conducted by entertainers and humanitarian Danny Kaye. He was assisted by the 60-voice International Children's Choir (who range in ages from 4-16). His message was gentle but firm: "Educators are responsible for how our education will be reflected in the next 25-50 or 100 years. It is a heavy responsibility." But always he spoke of LOVE and children-not just a teacher coping with rules.

All in all, the conference was a tremendous success from which one cannot help but return with enthusiasm, to try out new ideas and strive for changes within the educational system.

"San Ber'dino" is also on this side and is a little of everything the group is doing these days. It is quite a heavy cut and contains every member in the group in heavy action.

Ending the album we have "Sofa No. 2". This version has the same music as "No. 1" but also has lyrics. Printed in English and sang in German, the song is just another effective trick of Zappa's.

I think that if you do not like the MOTHERS you will like this album anyway. It contains some excellent material and holds the attention of the listener. ZAPPA AND THE MOTHERS are at their tops, and that is saying a lot. Till then, ROCK-OUT.

Traffic Improvements at UNC-W

by Ray Warren

Traffic is a problem. That is no secret to most of us. With the tremendous increase in enrollment this year, getting around in an automobile has become a minor hassle. To alleviate the present congested and often dangerous situation, several projects will soon be undertaken by the University and the state of North Carolina.

At present, access to the campus is limited solely to N.C. highway 132. In the past few years, as the university has grown, development along the highway has greatly increased. Responding to the overcrowded situation, the State Department of Transportation will soon begin a project to widen the portion of the road from K-Mart to the highway 17 (Market Street) bridge. The construction of two additional lanes will take about two years. In the meantime, students will be aided by the addition of a stoplight at the Riegall Road (south) entrance to the campus.

Another major improvement will be the construction of two alternate entrances to the campus. Pending a proper appropriation of funds from the state, the university has plans for the construction of two short access roads leading into the back of the school. One of the planned roads will be constructed from the Dorm parking lot to Rose Avenue in the Winter Park neighborhood. This will facilitate easy entrance to the campus from Wrightsville Avenue. The other project is an extension of Street F, which passes behind the Education Building (King Hall). The extension will carry Street F across Randall Drive near the Marine Science building to a connecting point with College Acres Drive.

Recognizing the importance of bicycles as a means of transportation, the university has formulated plans for several bicycle paths. One of the proposed paths will allow bikers to travel from the residence hall to the newly created extension of street F. This will allow much easier movement from the dorm to the Marine Science Building. Another path will carry bikers along the athletic field side of Riegall Drive to the tennis courts. The third proposed path will be constructed from the entrance to the Stone's Throw community to Riegall Drive along Highway 132.

Student parking will remain a problem. A possible solution to the problem is being considered in the form of a request to students living in the dorm to park only in the dorm lot and not to drive to classes before 3:00 p.m.

The completion of the planned traffic improvements should mean better access to the campus for everyone. Much of the credit for the resulting improved situation should go to the student affairs committee of the Student Government Association, which is composed of both students and faculty. In the words of Dr. Malloy, Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs, "This is something that has to be done. It is not a question of waiting a few years." It seems unlikely that very many students would disagree with him.

CHAPLIN AS VERDOUX

In MONSIEUR VERDOUX Chaplin completely abandons all vestiges of the tramp character and, doing a complete turnabout, emerges as a modern Bluebeard. Dapper, silver-haired Parisian Henri Verdox, having become unemployed during the French economic depression of the twenties, turns to supporting his invalid wife and young son by the singular method of marrying an assortment of wealthy and usually empty-headed women, and then murdering them for their money.

In 1947 audiences recoiled in horror at these goings-on, providing Chaplin with his only popular failure. He withdrew the film from circulation and in ensuing years it became something of a legend. Finally re-released in New York in 1964, MONSIEUR VERDOUX became a tremendous success; one of the few genuine examples of a movie being ahead of its time.

On the occasion of that rediscovery Bosley Crowther, writing in the New York Times, remarked, "The engagement now permits all those people, who did not get to see it seventeen years ago and all those who have been hearing about it as one of the great Chaplin films through all these years, to see for themselves what a superior sardonic comedy it is--and also to estimate how unjust was the bitter discrimination against

it. "For MONSIEUR VERDOUX is an engrossingly wry and paradoxical film, screamingly funny in places, sentimental in others, sometimes slow and devoted to an unusually serious and sobering argument. That is that the individual murderer--the small businessman in murder as the protagonist says--is regarded as a criminal, but the big businessman, the munitions manufacturers and the professional soldiers who contribute to murder on a mass scale are given great honors and monetary rewards."

EDITORIALS —

UNITE TOWARDS COMMON GOAL

"The pen is mightier than the sword." There is a great deal of validity in that statement. It has been proven by the recent articles about the SGA and the Fledgling controversy. Sometimes the pen is sharper, too. The editorial a "Cloud of Doubt" struck a vital nerve with many senators. Was the editorial too tough for the Senate to digest? I hope not! A great deal of good came from this controversy.

One important good was that many students reacted! Reaction is healthy on a campus where one speaks of apathy so frequently.

The senate benefitted directly from this controversy. They were informed of students' desires. As elected officials their duty is to the student first. The student is the check and balance to the student senate. This recent conflict has brought out into the light that UNC-W has a student Senate and that they are concerned by their recent flood of letters to the editor. To these senators who wrote I am truly grateful to know you give a damn about the students on this campus.

So much has been said from both sides on the Fledgling-SGA controversy that my ears are ringing with pain. It is time now to stop all this backstabbing and unite together towards a common goal.

We should now turn our attention towards constructive work. Let's get behind our student body President and get the stop lights put up on the Reigel Road entrance, before some young unsuspecting UNC-W student finds it his final resting place. The other item that concerns us all is parking. We are told that there are enough parking spaces available. The question is, are there? It is time to investigate these and other questions that perplex this campus and it is our duty as journalists to report the facts as accurately as we can; no matter whose toes we step on, and that includes our student government.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

Last week I had an opportunity to view democracy in the raw when I sat in on a meeting of the Senate.

One thing that immediately caught my eye was their mathematics. On a vote concerning appropriations for the Atlantis the count was eight for and five against. Vice President Carol Moore asked for any discussion on the matter and there was none. From this I assumed that the members weren't sure why they voted as they had or bi the members were bored and had chosen those particular moments to yawn and stretch.

Moore then picked up a calculator, pressed the appropriate keys and announced that it was a two-thirds majority for the motion.

After the meeting, however, when I tried the same operation I kept getting .625 for an answer. Admittedly I'm just a history major struggling through math 102, but no matter how many times I figured it up it still came out .625 and that is not two-thirds.

Also there were only 13 members present at the meeting out of a possible 24. Once again I turned to the calculator to find this to be 54.2. This too falls short of the two-thirds needed for a quorum.

My motive for attending the meeting was the yearbook issue. There are those such as Senior Class President Robert Jones who feel that the issue of the traffic light is more important than a "petty" matter such as the yearbook.

I'm the first to agree that it's no fun playing Chevy Roulette every time I try to leave the campus and that the light is desperately needed before one of us is killed, but I should hope that the Senate is not so inept that it can't handle more than one problem at a time. Jones may think the yearbook shortage to be "petty", but it is far from "petty" to those who did not receive one.

As I see it though, the real issue here is not yearbooks or traffic lights. The real issue is the Senate's reaction to criticism. They would do well to take the advice of a man from Missouri who said, while holding an office much higher than SGA Senator, "If you can't take the heat, get out of the kitchen."

But I somehow feel that the Senate's attitude toward criticism would be closer to those of another man who held that same high office and said, "Let's put Watergate behind us."

Jim Braswell

The Real Issue!

Thanks Senate

Dear Editor,

I would like to publicly express my thanks to the Senate, in particular Kevin Beard, for the time and cooperation they extended in researching the unfortunate shortage of 1975 yearbooks. Since they officially agreed in the September 17 issue of the Seahawk to work with the Fledgling rather than against us, I'm sure that there won't be any more childish mud-slinging. Thanks for being understanding, folks.

In reference to the $4780.30 that was allocated on September 16, this money went to pay the 1975 Fledgling. It is not additional revenue for the 1976 Fledgling. Our balance for this year remains at $10,000. (Enough for about 1100 books.) This was fully explained at the last Senate meeting in English.

Ad revenue is not a solution. Obtaining ads is a long-run process while the publishing contract is an immediate chore. We need to know how much money we have to spend, before we spend it. Ad revenue merely pays for phone bills and photographic expenses.

Darlene Pearsall
1976 Fledgling Editor

Students Stripped of Reasoning

"Sometimes it is better to remain silent and thought a fool, than to speak out and remove all doubt." The following was written in an effort to remove all doubt. In the past issue of the Seahawk (September 17, 1975) there were two articles relating to the incompetency of the SGA. The editorial for the week gave a list of twelve individuals who were re-elected to the Senate and who would most likely make the same unforgivable blunders all over again. First of all let me say that at least two of the twelve were not re-elected because this is their first year in the Senate.

Secondly, the editorial is somewhat misleading as to which Senate voted for what.

Last year's Senate voted on the 74-75 allocation and this year's Senate voted on the 75-76 allocation. In the Senate meeting of September 16, 1975, we voted to give the Fledgling sufficient funds to pay off over four thousand in debts procured through the past four years. Every year the Fledgling has somehow managed to get deeper and deeper in debt. This debt is caused, not by any slack of the Senate, but by the Fledgling staffs. (Last year several boxes of books remained.) When we finally put our foot down to stop misappropriations of the students' money, suddenly everyone is all excited. This is my fourth year in this institution of higher learning and every year some silly issue manages to stimulate the students and eventually the administration into action. Last year it was Playboy paranoia that gripped the campus and stripped the students of their reasoning. Why can't we all unite to get action on more important issues such as the badly needed traffic light at the athletic field entrance? Our student body president, Steve Hobbs, has worked hard to get some action on this death trap and the Senate backs him one hundred percent. Every issue that comes before the Senate affects you, the student. For this reason you should attend the meetings or at least give your views to one of your Senators, but don't sit back on your middle-class buttocks and wait for some petty issue to arouse you out of your comfortable complacency. Get involved! Robert E. Jones gross overspending. The Senate made this enormous extra allocation to the Fledgling at its last meeting. No mention of this was made, however, in this week's Seahawk. Speaking of allocations, when the budget was being discussed allocations for a new linotype machine were made. No mention of this was made either. If you remember, there were very few issues of the Seahawk put out last year. With the Seahawk's past history, there still remains a cloud of doubt as to whether they will waste Senate money, your money, again. Am I being redundant?

The poor Fledgling is so persecuted. Instead of the $15,000.00, that they so desperately needed, they only got a measly $10,000.00, plus the $4,714.30 allocated at the last SGA meeting. If you took time to add up the total amount of requested allocations, plus the two requests that were "Accidentally" omitted, that was published in the Seahawk last week you would find that a total of $78,402.95 was requested. The Senate had $56,000.00 to allocate between some 20 requests. However, I feel sure that the Fledgling should have had first priority over such things as the concert committee, the university theatre, the video tape committee, the film series, and the Seahawks new linotype machine, to mention a few. After all you do look at the yearbook when you get it and thirty years later when you are looking back at your better years. I'm surprised that the Fledgling didn't get all they wanted since they control the Senate so well. (Note: The ostrich cartoon on the front of last week's Seahawk.)

It seems that Robert Maxie is rather concerned with who are, who aren't and who was in the Senate last year. It seems to me that the student body wouldn't have put them there if they didn't want them there. But of course the Seahawk should have the last say so over these matters. Speaking of who was in the Senate last year, just to put a little accuracy in the Seahawk for a change, neither Robert Jones or Barbara McKay were in the Senate. Also the Editor, this position is questionable as to whether Darlene Pearsall or Robert Maxie holds the position, seems to be having a little trouble confining his opinions to the editorial. I was under the impression that the paper was supposed to be unbiased. Pardon my ignorance.

I realize that Mr. Maxie will throw in one of his little comments now. I just thought the student body would like to know the truth. Sincerely,
Senator Kevin Stanford Beard
Publicity Chairman of SGA is not an additional appropriation for the 1976 Fledgling, but will be used to pay the final publisher's bill for the 1975 Fledgling, allowing the 1976 staff to begin its year with its entire appropriation for the first time in approximately four years than at a deficit.

Glorified Seahawk

Dearest Editor,

Don't you think it is about time that the glorified Seahawk did its job and printed the true, straight and unbiased facts about this yearbook shortage situation? The students would like to be told the truth instead of repeatedly being told to blame it all on the SGA.

How can the responsibility rest with those directly in charge of the yearbook money anyway? The 1975 editor, Darlene Pearsall's original article contained much misinformation but instead of printing a retraction or a truthful article, you compound the problem by printing the same misinformation again in this week's "Letter to the Editor." Students do not have $10 taken out of fees for a yearbook. In further comment to this "Letter," which the author freely admits is based on Ms. Pearsall's previous article, new freshmen have not paid for and are not supposed to receive an annual. I wonder if the author himself got an annual, and if he bothered to run for an SGA office, or to even attend any SGA meetings?

Last year the Fledgling returned before the SGA with an additional $4500 debt and were awarded $3000. What happened to this money? Why was this debt not paid off until yesterday (September 16) when the SGA awarded the Fledgling $4,714 in addition to the $10,000 already allocated to them? Would you say the yearbook staff had been grossly and unfairly treated by receiving $14,714 of the $15,000 they requested? None of the committees were allocated as much as they requested simply because the $56,000 total revenue will not cover the $78,000 asked for.

Of the $70.50 total student fees each person pays each semester, only $12 is subject to control by the SGA. But where does this money go? It provides UNC-W students with a newspaper, yearbook, student directory, handbook, theater productions, radio station, choir, dances, concerts; not to mention fantastic movie flicks at 16 cents each (season ticket price)!! These are activities which most of the student body enjoy and receive direct benefit from. What about the $13 allocated to Varsity Athletics, $9 to the P.E. Dept. and $12 to the Student Union ($34 total)? How many UNC-W students receive any direct benefit from these? A small minority of our 3200 enrollment to be sure! Why not be irate over this misappropriation of our funds?

Fledgling, why don't you pull your head out of the sand? Sincerely,
Cathy Barber

Editor's Note: Letters to the editor are printed exactly as they are received, hence, the misinformation was repeated. However, if one read the Seahawk of September 17, a complete breakdown of student fees was published which showed that students indeed do not have $10 taken out of fees for yearbooks. This in itself was an effort to clarify any misinformation printed Who's the Ed?

Dear Editor,

The Seahawk has for the past several issues been printing editorials disguised as articles naming the Senate as the only party responsible for the shortage of the current yearbook. Also was printed that because of past records there "remains a cloud of doubt" as to whether the Senate will efficiently carry out the duties of the office. Let me point out that in the past four years the previously. Also the front page lead article written by Darlene Pearsall, Fledgling Editor, and Kevin Beard, Publicity Chairman of the SGA clearly states "...the recent article regarding the SGA-Fledgling relationship continued a number of misconceptions..." and goes on to clarify those items which were found to be erroneous.

yearbook has accumulated a debt of $4,714.30, not because of low allocations, but because of inept handling of allocations made to them. With the Fledgling's past history, there still remains a cloud of doubt as to whether they will waste Senate money, your money, again. The Constitution states that the SGA is liable for all debts encountered by the organizations of the university. This means that you, the student, has to pay for this

Editor's Note: No mention was made of the $4,714.30 so graciously appropriated for the Senate to the Fledgling on September 16 as the Seahawk distributed on September 17 had already gone to press prior to the Senate meeting. It should also be noted that this

Bring your Gripes

The voice of many is expressed by the vote of an SGA officer or senator. This year, the Student Senate is in the process of cleaning up and bringing the government back to the student. In years past, the Senate has been run by an elite few who, naturally, ran things their way. I know this from my past experience as a senator and class officer. If I, as a senator, expressed disagreement with an issue that the "elite few" wanted passed, I was conveniently overlooked and not allowed to speak out. Instead of bitching to a friend, I took a stand.

Now, as Speaker of the Senate, I am able to see that each individual gets a chance to express his or her opinion. Now to the problem at hand. I don't feel it is proper to cast doubts and put blame upon the present administration for mistakes of those past. This is like condemning a present basketball team for the 0-21 record of one last year!

Recently we have involved in the Fledgling Scandal, in which the Fledgling staff continues to shed blame on the SGA for the lack of yearbooks. We are not trying to back out of this blame, but we feel it was unjustly awarded to us. The SGA does allocate the student fund-of which a large percent goes to the Fledgling and the Film Series. With the large amount of requests that come in, we have to cut somewhere.

However, the Fledgling was not the only organization which received a cut! Yet, those other organizations were able to get up off their behinds and raise sufficient funds to cover their expenditures.

In the Senate meeting held on September 16, 1975, we allocated the Fledgling an additional $4000 (approximately) to pay off past debts. I'm not blaming anyone for the lack of Fledglings this year, but I want it clearly understood that the Fledgling staff, themselves, have stated that by paying off this $4000 debt, the $10,000 (allocated to them for the 1975-76 annual) would be sufficient. With that, I want to end this elementary backstabbing.

I would like to take this time to tell what the new Senate is working on. We have taken a stand on the traffic problem on campus and are presently investigating the parking situation. We are co-signing a letter, with SGA President Steve Hobbs, addressed to Lt. Governor Jim Hunt, requesting action on a traffic light at the south end of campus.

We are also working with the Student Affairs Committee in trying to gain a back entrance to campus. Also, with the Student Affairs Committee, we will be publishing the newsletter, "Today, Tomorrow, and the Day After."

Just recently, I have been approached by several students as to why girls' gym suits are not washed for them as the boys' are. This seems to be in direct violation of the educational aspect of equal rights and we are continuing this investigation.

This year's Senate is trying hard to become more sensitive to not only the majority of students, but also the individual student. In an effort to get more student input, the SGA is presently working with the Sociology Department in issuing a survey concerning the 1975-76 budget. We want to find out exactly how the students want their money spent. The success of this survey will depend on you, the student.

Senate meetings are held every Tuesday at 11:30 a.m. in Room A-201. These meetings are open to all students. We sincerely hope that you will start taking advantage of these open meetings and bring your gripes and suggestions to us. There are several openings in the Senate and freshmen elections are coming up-so please work with us!

We are trying-how about you?

Bubble Gum Fund!

Thank you for printing the SGA budget, it's nice to know where my beer money goes. I would like to point out an incongruity in the SGA budgeting system.

They started by giving everything less money than requested, except for the Seahawk. The paper almost got the dough. A bribe? Most of the student oriented activities received approximately 80 percent of the requested funds.

Enter SGA. The N.C. State legislature won 1300 percent of its requested funds. The SGA office salary discovered a 25 percent increase. Strange. What is a contingency fund? A bubble gum fund to supply senators with artificial eraser substitutes for meetings? An expense account? Money for U.S. Savings Bonds? By Mitchell Lloyd

"THE 300 SPARTANS"

As part of its Western Civilization program, the History Department will present the film "The 300 Spartans" on Thursday, October 2, at 8 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium. The movie will be free, and all UNC-W students and faculty and members of the public are invited to attend.

"The 300 Spartans" revolves around the attempt by the Persian King of Kings, Xerxes, to conquer Greece in 480 B.C. A small band of soldiers from the city of Sparta—the "three hundred" of the title—led by their warrior-king, Leonidas, heroically placed themselves at the strategic pass of Thermopylae, squarely in the path of Xerxes and his advancing Persian hordes.

The outcome was similar to what happened when a small force of Texans fought the entire Mexican army at the Alamo in 1836; the Greeks, like the Texans, lost. But their heroism allowed the bulk of the Greek forces to escape and inspired the Greeks to fight on to victory.

The film stars Richard Egan, Sir Ralph Richardson, and Diane Baker. It was produced in 1962 by 20th Century-Fox and is similar in style to such historical and biblical dramas as "The Ten Commandments," "Cleopatra," and "Ben Hur."

The story of the movie is based on the account of the Greek historian, Herodotus, who is often called "the father of history." He wrote his "Histories" in the middle of the fifth century B.C., at least thirty years after the events he describes. Although not a personal participant (he was probably about four years old at the time of the battle of Thermopylae), he talked to men who had fought against the Persians and used their recollections in his history of the Persian Wars. Without Herodotus, most of the details of the war between Greece and Persia would have been lost to history.

Participants need not be officers of a campus organization to attend. Any student wishing to improve his/her leadership skills is welcome. Sessions are informed to encourage active involvement, and are scheduled from 7 to 10 on Friday night, and from 9 to 12 on Saturday morning.

Maps to Harbor House are available from the Student Activities Office, Room 105 in the Pub.

"BLOWS A FUSE"

by debbie lewis

Greg Larrimore, station manager for WCNU, and his "thugs" really "blew a fuse" Wednesday night with their Disco Show in the Pub. After numerous hours of setting up lights, and getting sound systems together, the crew was finally ready, until they blew a circuit breaker just five minutes before the show began. Working hurriedly, the group then repaired the taunting experience and began to open the doors to the waiting crowd.

Then, Gary Shipman announced the star Disc Jockey, Craig the Cream, who is better known as Craig Sexton, decked out in his sliver trimmed, black shirt, white pants, and get this—silver shoes. Starting slowly, with the D.J. on the stage, lights flashing, and everyone just sitting around looking astonishingly at something that hadn't been seen on this campus in quite some time, the show got underway.

The mood suddenly changed to the fifties-sixties style and the atmosphere of the discotheque once held in people's memories actually came alive.

Among a crowd of hundreds, people danced and laughed to their hearts desire. The show went on for hours without a sign of the large crowd diminishing.

Gary Shipman later took over the D.J.'s box while Craig took to the dance floor to do some of his exotic bump dancing and enjoy the music. Gary carried the show along smoothly and right into a bump contest with the winners receiving UNC-Wilmington T-shirts and going back onto the floor for a spotlight encore.

Then the music and the comedy continued as Gary kept the discs spinning and adding a touch of good disc jockey technique, kept the atmosphere alive. This was maintained for awhile and Craig Sexton returned to the box.

Craig was now dressed in a blue ruffled shirt and was wearing a straw hat with feathers in it, along with his other apparel. The mood deepened into the discotheque situation. It began to be trivia time, guessing original artists and titles of great hits of the past. Craig became involved in some highstepping on the stage, as if to become the Dream that girls swooned over years ago.

The twist contest followed with the winners also doing an encore and receiving their prizes. The night continued in discotheque fashion and absolutely blew the minds of its audience.

The Disco Show was over. Craig was a star, Greg and Gary were a big success, the other crew members were tired, and the audience had been pleasantly pleased. Well, that's a little exaggerated. But, WCNU was a big success and everyone had a ball. Now this type of program was to become a regular thing for WCNU. The WCNU crew will be performing every Monday night from 9 P.M. until 1 A.M. at Paul's with the WCNU Disco Show, and of course; Craig the Cream.

So WCNU really did blow a fuse at the Pub last Wednesday night. This is only a sample of what is yet to come to the campus of UNC-Wilmington.

Is Your God Right-handed?

My first confession is that I am left-handed. Here I sit at my right-handed desk (the file drawer is on that side) with my phone on the left side so I either have to dial with my right hand or tangle myself mercilessly in the cord in order to dial with my left hand. (The same is true, by the way, of public phone booths.) I am also "writing upside down," to quote a right-handed friend; not because I want too but because the English language is written from left to right and I do not relish dragging my hand through the wet ink of these words. Tables are always set for right-handers, except you don't have to switch your knife hand. I even looked in the Good Book, the tool of my trade so to speak, and it could make a

The Bible states that God uses his right hand to do anything of importance (Revelation 2:1) to be blessed of God is to be on the right hand and you are cursed if on the left (Matthew 25:33,34). He expresses power and might with His right hand (Exodus 15:6). It is possible to assume that the right hand is foremost in the mind of God and Jesus was probably right-handed because the opposite would most likely have been reported.

To express great blessing to a person one must use his right-hand (Galatians 2:9). Obviously there is wisdom in being right-handed and foolishness in being left-handed (Ecclesiastes 10:2). With all this it appears we must believe that to be God-like one must be right-handed!?!?

Sound ridiculous? You're right. All of this is solely an anthropomorphism used by God to communicate to a people who respected the right hand above the left. If the Hebrew nation had been left-handed, so would God.

By the way, is your God male... or Black or White or??

Freshmen Elections

Freshmen election will be held on Wednesday, October 8, 1975. Persons desiring to run for one of the five senate positions on one of the three class offices should state their intentions before or by October 1 at 12:00 noon. You may either contact Robert Moore, or leave your statement in the SGA office in the upstairs pub. Requirements are that you must be a full-time student, a freshman and make 80 or better on the constitution quiz. (This quiz will be given at 4:30 p.m. on October 1. Any prospective candidates whose schedule conflict with this time might contact Board of Elections Chairman Robert Moore before this date or as soon as possible.) Campaign speeches will be held on Thursday October 2 at 11:30 a.m. (Place to be announced.)

There will be three manned around campus and student ID will be required to vote. Violations of campaigning guidelines, set by the Board of Elections, will result in the removal of a candidate's name from the ballot.

The runoff election will be held on Monday, October 13, 1975 following the election date. Any questions concerning the elections should be directed to Robert Moore.

HAWKS FALL TO STATE: BOMB ECU

On the soccer scene last week there was some good and some bad news.

The bad news occurred on Tuesday when UNC-W traveled to Raleigh to face North Carolina State. Tech Wolfpack dominated the first half and jumped out to a commanding 3 to 0 lead. The Seahawks regained some ground in the second half when Freshman Eddie Brock scored to make it 3 to 1, but that proved to be the final score.

Coach Calvin Lane felt the setback was due more to the Hawks' lack of movement and poor passing than to the play of State.

The team worked hard on their passing game Wednesday and Thursday in preparation for the home opener Friday against East Carolina University.

The practice paid off as the Seahawks rolled to a 4-1 victory in what Lane called, "Our best overall effort so far against our toughest competition to date."

The Hawks outshot the Pirates 18 to 11 and often dominated play with outstanding passing on the ground.

"Half back play was excellent," said Lane. "They penetrated well on offense and dropped back well on defense." It was halfback Steve Paul who got the first goal of the game on an assist from Carlos Escobar to give the Hawks a 1-0 lead at the half.

Early in the second half UNC-W took command of the game as Nino Fleri scored two goals with assist by Escobar; halfback Tom Golden closed out the Hawk scoring when he got the fourth and final goal. He was assisted by David Kovack.

Lane was pleased with the play of the fullbacks saying they headed well and allowed a few balls to hit the ground at center field. He was particularly satisfied with the play of Rick Hayes calling it, "his best college game." Tom Buffington played his usual steady game and freshman Mark Willette continued to improve.

Coach Lane also cited the improved play this year of Gonzalo Rada who has been moved from forward to halfback. "Gozo has adjusted well and has done a good job for us.

His passing at times has been excellent and he is moving well."

The Seahawks next game is Thursday, at 4:00 against the Duke University Blue Devils. Duke has been ranked tenth in the South this year. The Hawks will be trying to avenge last year's 4 to 0 setback.

The Hawks will again be at home on Tuesday September 30 when they host Atlantic Christian College.

HOBBS IMPACT STATEMENT

by Eric McLamb

On Tuesday, September 16, SGA President Steve Hobbs addressed the Student Senate on two matters of concern to UNC-W students. One concern was related to the Student Activity Fees and their categorized appropriations. Concern number two dealt with the excessive amount of confusion at the Riegall Road entrance and exit. The impact statement is as follows:

There are two items of interest that are of great concern to me involving our university. Both items deal directly to the best interests of the student body. For these reasons I have approached you, the Student Senate, for an endorsement of the two endeavors that I hope will eventually represent our university's best interests.

One of these involves the categorized appropriations of our Student Activity Fees. As you know, full-time students pay $70.50 per semester to cover several benefits. All of these categories involve student life, both socially and academically; but only one of these is directly involved in our campus life. I am speaking about the $12.00 that is appropriated to the Student Government Association from each full-time student that funds our publications, activities, and events.

I feel that each student should receive his/her money's worth if they are entitled to the benefits based on their activity fees. This is my reason for recently approaching the chairman of the Student Affairs Committee, encouraging him to request his committee to review the overall categorized appropriations of our fees. Dr. Ned Martin has approved my recommendation and will direct his committee at their next meeting to achieve this objective. Even though I am not a member of this committee, I will assist in this consideration. One important way that I will assist is by collecting the categorized appropriations from the other student body presidents of their respective universities through the North Carolina Association of Student Governments.

Today I am here asking that the Senate endorse and assist the Student Affairs Committee in this endeavor.

The other concern is that of the two entrances and exits to our campus, there is only one traffic light to accommodate our needs. The light is located at the northern portion of our campus and we have an opportunity for another one for the southern end. It is my understanding that the State Highway Commission has approved one for that particular entrance and exit.

Today, I would like your endorsement for a letter to be sent, co-signed by your Speaker of the Senate, to Lt. Governor Jim Hunt requesting that the light be installed.

Steve and Administrative Assistant Tom Hodges met with Lt. Governor Jim Hunt last Tuesday morning and discussed the traffic problem with him. Steve has written a letter to Mr. Hunt so he can present it to the State Highway Commission so possible action can be taken.

The Student Senate endorsed President Hobbs' Impact Statement during the same meeting.

The Gadfly: "Progress motors on--but in a smaller car"

While searching for a parking place this morning it suddenly hit me. The big car is going the way of the buffalo. The lot was full of Fiats, Hondas, VW's, Datsuns, Toyotas, and MG's. The big cars were no longer a complacent majority. After years of campaigning for small cars I felt a twinge of nostalgia. The meek were going to inherit the earth after all.

I can remember all too well when owning a small car took guts. And a lot of patience. It didn't take long before you had heard all the usual wisecracks. "What else did you get for Christmas, sonny?"

"Where are the pedals?"
"Did your rubber band break?"

Aside from the wise remarks there was suspicion. What sort of nut drove a car that everybody knew was small, cramped, noisy, underpowered and a death trap on four wheels? Obviously you had taken leave of your senses.

Talking to big car people about little cars was useless. What if you got thirty miles to the gallon? This was the land of the brave and the free and 30 cents a gallon high-test. What did "fun to drive" mean? Why those little cars didn't even have power brakes, power steering or air conditioning.

Detroit aided the big-car people with huge engines, lots of chrome and the three year plan. The successful man bought the biggest car he could afford and three years later, after having made the last payment on it, traded it for the "all new improved" shiny symbol of success.

Then something happened. Suddenly the Era of Cheap Fuel was over. Gas lines formed to wait until the gas guzzler could be refilled. Even after the crisis the prices didn't go down.

The price of big cars went down, but not much. Inflation soon pushed the price up again. Last year's $1800 car was this year's $5000 car. Bicycle sales boomed. So did import car sales.

Forced to buy little cars or walk, people made an amazing discovery. In addition to getting good gas mileage little cars were not as cramped or noisy as they had thought. People began to realize "fun to drive" meant more than power windows and an AM-FM radio.

So now even Detroit is getting in on the act. Chevrolet, in addition to selling Honda's, will market its own small car in 1976, the Chevette. Ford plans to market its small car by 1977. The big cars are being dropped. (Chrysler dropped the Imperial for 1976.) What Detroit used to call intermediate size cars will soon be called full-sized. (Nice what you can do with labels, isn't it?)

What will we make fun of now as we roll along in our small car? Aha! Here comes some idiot on one of those small motorized bicycles. Doesn't he know they're not practical? You could get killed on something that small. I wonder how come he looks so happy?

The Road Not Taken

by Robert Frost

Two roads diverged in a yellow wood,
And sorry I could not travel both
And be one traveler, long I stood
And looked down one as far as I could
To where it bent in the undergrowth;

Then took the other, as just as fair,
And having perhaps the better claim,
Because it was grassy and wanted wear;
Though as for that the passing there
Had worn them really about the same,

And both that morning equally lay
In leaves no step had trodden black.
Oh, I kept the first for another day!
Yet knowing how way leads on to way,
I doubted if I should ever come back.

I shall be telling this with a sigh
Somewhere ages and ages hence:
Two roads diverged in a wood, and I—
I took the one less travelled by,
And that has made all the difference.

PINK FLOYD
WISH YOU WERE HERE
Columbia X-698

What do you say when you have waited two years for a group to make an album. It's about time? I had forgotten they were still together? Just what?

Well, you listen to the album thinking that after that long a time, the album should really be good. A group can not do nothing in two years without some improvements. I hate to say it, but PINK FLOYD have managed to do just that: Nothing new. No improvements.

PINK FLOYD

"Nothing New, but good"

In this aspect the album is somewhat of a disappointment. Now do not get me wrong; for the album is good. It just gives me the feeling I have been cheated a little.

The album is well written and performed and contains some good material. The only fault with it is the fact that it has no single cut which can top anything off the DARK SIDE OF THE MOON album. It also lacks the power that DARK SIDE had.

WISH YOU WERE HERE begins with the theme of the album. "Shin On You Crazy Diamond." The cut, or cuts in that it has nine parts, is really excellent in its build up into the album and ending it on side two.

The song starts out with Part I (now that's a nice place to start) which is slow and peaceful in breaking into part II and III (which are some of the best guitar work on either of the last two albums.) Part IV is the lyrical part of the song and is very good. This comes closest of any of the vocals which are better than on DARK SIDE.

"Welcome To the Machine" ends the side and contains many noises similar to those on DARK SIDE. It is based on how man is turning into a machine.

Side two opens with "Have a Cigar", sung by Ray Harper who had a hit album, H.Q., this summer in England. The song is good, but once again, it is nothing exceptional.

"Wish You Were Here" and the last four part of "Crazy Diamond" ends the side with the last saying exactly what I think PINK FLOYD have done on this album.

"We'll bask in the shadow of yesterday's triumphs."

To sum up, PINK FLOYD's WISH YOU WERE HERE is nothing new but still good. I am sure that it could have been better, but at least they have come out with a new album.

URIAH HEEP'S

return to nothing

This is one of those albums you really have to be in the mood for. It is obvious that Hriaeh Heep are trying to regain the prestige they had two years ago with the success of DEMONS AND WIZARDS and MAGICIAN'S BIRTHDAY. This album does not even come close to these.

The main fault with the album is that there is nothing different about it. Same old vocals. Same old music. Same old everything.

At times I really feel sorry for them in that it sounds like they are really trying to make a good album.

The album starts with the title cut which is HEEP's attempt to return to the fantasy of their previous albums.

The song goes smooth up to the bridge where the lyrics become sloppy with the word "time" thrown in and destroying the whole effect of the cut.

"Shady Lady" and "Devil's Daughter" follow with the first of the two being best if you just forget it. "Daughter," however, is a fair cut and would be even better if it were not so long.

The best cut on this side is the last one, and is called "Beautiful Dream." The lyrics are very smooth and pleasant (at times) as is the music.

The single from the album starts side two and is "Prima Donna (of rock and roll)". The song has done rather well in England, but has not had as much success in this country. It is a catchy song and could become the cut which makes the album sell.

My favorite on the album is next. "Your Turn to Remember" is its title and it is one of the best cuts from any HEEP album. The vocals are very well done and the lyrics and music well written and performed.

When the time came for staying together.
You refused to even talk about for ever

It was easy telling me you loved me
I was a little late in finding out the truth

The rule of love was there you had to bend it
Now the damage is done it's impossible to mend it
Now it's your turn to remember
Now it's your turn to feel a little pain

"Show Down" follows and is a terrible cut. The whole song is nothing but guitars clashing with David Byron vocals. It is hard to even tell who comes out the winner.

"Why Did You Go" and "A year and a Day" end the album and are fair cuts. However, they sound too much like the other albums to really give FANTASY anything different.

To sum it up, if you really like URIAH HEEP and really try hard to like the album, it may be worth your time. If not, the single is.

Greg Larrimore:

"Superman"--Believe It Or Not??

I had just talked with him a week before. A calm, mild, easy-going young man. Now he seemed so different. I actually saw the man!

As I sat on the staircase inside the pub, I watched the star of my story become the "Jekyll and Hyde" of 1975. I watched as Greg Larrimore, station manager for WCNU, prepared for the big Disco Show in the Pub last Wednesday night. He stood in the middle of a cloud of conversation and ten different guys asking a thousand different questions at one time. He moved around from place to place, his two black canes in hand, slowly yet swiftly attending to all the problems and arrangements for the show.

Of course, my first mistake was to think that he wouldn't be able to do very much. I soon found out that I was wrong.

Craig (Craig Sexton, news director), told me, "He just uses those canes to beat us over the head. He's really hard on us."

I suddenly realized that the guy that once went to R.J. Reynolds High School in Winston-Salem, N.C. was really a tough dude.

So I asked him why he came here? Whisking his hand through his hair and smiling he said, "I like the weather here. When I came here for the first time, it was warm and the breeze was blowing calmly. In Winston, where I had just left, there was snow on the ground."

Everything was coming closer to the time for the show. I could hear everyone inside the recreation room bustling about. Greg, kinda like a small child with a new toy and so proud to be able to do with it what he wants; the big boss!

The WCNU crew had just finished a show the Monday night before at Paul's. From all reports it was a big success.

Greg and his crew had gone for weeks seeing sponsors and traveling around the area trying to pick up material for the show. Twice in one week, and he was still holding together pretty well. Hard to believe isn't it that the guy with the canes, the soft spoken voice, and the peaceful green eyes, could be the "wild" man behind such an enormous and successful project especially

photos by neal huntley

Greg (the only boy in his family) states he thinks he is easy to get along with "most" of the time. That is as long as he gets his way. Ha! Ha!

I'm still sitting here in the Pub, beginning to understand the young man I knew so little about when I began this story. Sort of like Ann Landers, girls, if you want to know all the secrets about Greg Larrimore come by the Seahawk office and I'll give you a mimeographed hand-out.

Well, I suppose by now you have enjoyed a TV soap opera and are ready to go to sleep. The super-hero conquers all and the bad-guy loses again. This story has never been meant to sound that way. It is often a compliment people, but the people I do compliment I consider "super" people.

Greg Larrimore is his own individual. No one hears from Joe Blow and not from Greg. They hear loudly and clearly Greg Larrimore, making it known that he listens and pushes forward and walks into most anything open-minded. Ask any of the radio station crew, they may joke at first but basically, the guy with the canes is a "superman" in every sense of the word.

with all those "gifted" guys he has to direct. He really doesn't direct; in fact, they sounded like one big family

$5.00 FLEDGLING '76 $5.00

Starting Thursday, October 2, subscriptions will be taken upstairs in the pub for the 1976 Fledgling. The price will be $5 and sales will continue for three weeks. This is an absolute necessity in order to know the exact number of books to order and to order and to increase the Fledgling's revenue.

While free yearbooks were given out on campus in the past, the Fledgling accrued a debt of $1,780.30 for the past four years alone. It would cost approximately $8000 to produce another 1000 1975 Fledglings for the students who didn't receive but deserved one. Shortages and debts cannot continue.

Less than $3 per student is allocated to the Fledgling. The cost of this book, however, is about $10 per book for the first thousand ordered and a little less for each one, therefore. Thus, you are still not paying for the full cost of the yearbook.

Each year, the enrollment at UNC-W gets significantly larger, while the Fledgling allocation does not. In fact, this year they suffered a $200 cut-back. The SGA is not entirely at fault-they do not have unlimited funds. The Fledgling needs to grow parallel with the school. In order to publish more and better yearbooks, subscriptions are a necessity.

The approach is comparable to the Concert Committee or Kenan Auditorium movie series. Each receives an allocation from the SGA-which covers a portion of their costs. The remaining revenue comes from the students themselves when they buy tickets.

The yearbook represents the students on this campus. The extra revenue will relieve the Fledgling from its growing financial problems and will assure a better and more colorful book-with improved coverage of school events. It will also guarantee every student who wants a yearbook, to receive one. That includes both full-time and part-time students.

Show your school spirit and buy a yearbook. Next August, you'll be sorry if you didn't.

PUB AUTHORITY MEETING DEALS WITH YEARBOOKS

by Ginger Andrews
Assistant News Editor

An important meeting of the Publications Authority will be held this afternoon at 5:00 p.m. in the Blue Room of the Student Center.

Besides discussing the various budgets of the publications, it is expected that members will be faced with a discussion as to whether or not to reprint copies of the '75 Agromeck.

"If students there raise the question we will discuss it," said Dean of Student Affairs Don Solomon, "if Jim Davis ('74-'75 Agromeck Editor) brings information about the cost of reprinting from the publisher."

Davis told the Technician Tuesday that the cost of printing 500 additional yearbooks would be $4,308 or $8.60 per book including freight and sales tax. To print 1,000 more books would cost $5,946 or $3.15 per book not including freight and tax.

"It is going to cost a helluva lot to reprint the Agromeck," said Davis. "We could have ordered 1,000 extra books when they were coming out for the first time for about $3.15. As it is, it is going to cost almost twice as much."

Davis is going to recommend, if the Pub Board decides to reprint, that 1,000 additional books be ordered.

"I kinda doubt that they (extras) would be left lying around," he said.

Solomon estimated yesterday morning that about 250 people had signed up for the possible reprint.

The '75-'76 Agromeck Editor, Teresa Brown, is planning to propose several budgets, one which calls for the publication of 9,000 yearbooks next year and another which proposes that the Agromeck be sold.

"It will be on a subscription basis," said Brown. "I have the price in mind, but it will be up to the Pub Board."

In the subscription proposal, faculty and alumni would have to pay for the yearbooks and Brown also indicated it would serve to keep transfer students from receiving a book that they are not entitled to.

"If the students want to come (to the Pub Authority meeting) and discuss the proposal, it's fine with me," said Brown.

Kevin Fisher, editor of the Technician, thinks this year will be a "critical" one for the Pub Board as far as finances and budgets are concerned.

"This is going to be a critical year for the Publications Authority in terms of financial solvency," he said: "I think the major change that has to be made in the Pub Authority's financial structure is the selling of the Agromeck."

He continued, "The Agromeck has been taking a tremendously disproportionate amount of the Pub Board's overall budget and that has to be stopped or the Pub Board will continue down the road to bankruptcy."

Fisher also hopes that the Pub Board will take a "financially realistic look at the situation," as he feels Brown has done.

Mike Upchurch, WKNC station manager, doesn't have any new business to bring before the board.

"My budget will remain as it was tentatively approved in April," said Upchurch. "It'll just be a long meeting simply because it's a budget meeting. They always are."

The Archers are Coming

Southern California Christian Rock group "The Archers" will be in concert on October 6 at Kenan Auditorium on the UNC-W campus at 8 P.M.

Led by brothers Tim and Steve Archer, this vocal band has blended exciting contemporary music with a refreshing gospel content.

They have completed their sixth consecutive national tour which included concerts in a variety of churches, Madison Square Garden, New York; The McCormick Place, Chicago; Anaheim Convention Center, Anaheim; and the largest Jesus Rock festivals: Expo '72, Houston; Jesus '74 and '75, Mercer, Pennsylvania; and Iethus '74 and '75, Wilmore, Kentucky. They have also ministered with Pat Boone, Nicky Cruz and Andrae Crouch and the Disciples. The Archers are planning on extending their music and philosophy to more than 40 college campuses this year.

Recording artists of three albums, their newest entitled, "Things We Deeply Feel," was recorded by Ralph Carmichael's Light Records (ABC-Dunhill), and features their hit single "If You Can't Believe in Love" written by Gary Paxton of "Monster Mash" fame.

The cost is 50 cents for UNC-W students with a valid ID.

Give Us Credit

One of the major reasons the fraternities on our campus (or fraternities in general) seem to have a bad reputation is because they are not given credit when credit is due.

It seems to me that if the Seahawk can devote almost an entire page to the recent "Disco Show" put on by WCNU, it could also have put in a few lines to pat the backs of those brothers of Delta Upsilon who took their time to tap the beer and watch the doors for Greg Larrimore, Gary Shipman, and "Craig the Cream". We enjoyed doing it and we enjoyed the show and the effort all the guys put into it, but give us a break! Really, what are a few sentences compared to 3 hours of pumping beer for 400 people! Fraternally,

The Honorable James B. Hunt
Lieutenant Governor

Raleigh, North Carolina 27611

Dear Mr. Hunt:

I am writing in regard to our conversation in Wilmington on September 16. You will recall that I expressed serious concern about our general traffic problems at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington and specifically about the need for a traffic light at the intersection of North Carolina State Highway 132 and Riegel Road.

Riegel Road is one of only two access roads to the UNC-Wilmington campus and is the only road providing direct access to our resident hall area. We will soon have at least 600 students living in our dormitories and they all exit the campus by way of Riegel Road. It is necessary for the students traveling north and south on Highway 132 to pull directly into the flow of traffic without the benefit of a traffic light. Needless to say, we

On Thursday, October 2, at 8 p.m., the History Department will present a free movie entitled "The 300 Spartans" in Kenan Auditorium. Students, faculty, and other members of the academic community are invited to attend.

The movie dramatizes the heroic stand made by a small band of Greeks at a narrow mountain pass in 480 BC against the hordes of Persia. More than a half century earlier the two forces had begun the long trek to Thermopylae when the Persians conquered the kingdom of Lydia in Asia Minor along with those Greek states situated on the coast. In 499 BC these states rebelled against their despotic masters. Though the Persians crushed the uprising, the Persian monarch, Darius I, was determined to punish the mainland Greeks for their part in the struggle. In 490 BC a small Persian army invaded Greece, but was repelled with great losses by the Athenians at the plain of Marathon. It was a great victory for the Athenians and the other Greeks. Even the Spartans, who were unable to take part because of religious observances, applauded their countrymen's valor. Xerxes, Darius's successor, on the other hand, was only convinced that a larger force would be required to conquer the Greeks.

In the years following Marathon, Xerxes began to assemble an awesome panoply of ships and men. Herodotus estimated the size of this force to be in excess of 5,000,000 men. In 480 BC the invasion was begun. Xerxes' mighty force made its way around the Aegean coastline and down into Greece. In the meantime, the Greeks had decided to place their combined forces under the leadership of Sparta. It was further decided that a holding action would be fought at Thermopylae. Approximately 9,000 Greeks under the direction of the Spartan king Leonidas and 300 elite Spartan warriors took up their defensive positions at the narrow pass. For two days the Greeks resisted one wave of Persians after another. Finally, on the third day a Greek traitor led the Persians over a narrow mountain trail to the rear of the Greek position. Fortunately, Leonidas learned of the flanking movement in time to dismiss most of his allies. He and his Spartans remained to die. Leonidas himself was decapitated and hung on a cross.

The Spartan stand ranks as one of the most heroic feats in the annals of military history. Though they lost the battle, they gave their countrymen the incentive they needed in the following year to turn the tide of battle with decisive victories at Salamis and Plataea.

CONCERT '75

There is a very strong trend in the American music business today... promotion on the college campus. Because a college or university can offer a band or a single artist a lively, captive audience, the desire for musicians to play on campus has increased steadily over the last few years. An acoustically sound auditorium (and most of them are) packed to the hilt with a vibrant crowd, gives new talent a perfect forum to test its wings.

And recently, hands that have made their way up the music charts have been returning to those halls and auditoriums where they got their beginnings. There is another side of this coin, too. A college or university can offer good facilities and competent student help and in return, get the best reward for their efforts—music. Music has become an earmark of the college community. And all across the United States, concerts have become an accepted part of college life. It would be hard to picture a full four years of education without concerts, big and little, as part of the extra-curricular activities; and even tougher to find a college that didn't want them at all. Concerts have become a "happening" on our campuses and the future looks even brighter.

And so it is at UNC-Wilmington. Almost any student on campus would agree that concerts are part of our college life. To relieve the "book boredom" syndrome or to cap off a night out with a favorite lady... whatever the reasons, our students look forward with excitement to those first notes from the stage, signaling the beginning of the show.

CONCERTS '75. This year the UNC-W Concert Committee will begin the "Concerts '75" series by presenting the Paul Winter Consort on October 20 in Kenan Auditorium. This show promises to be exceptional, with a quality of music so unique and versatile that it will be a first on our campus. Come listen to the Earth make music. Admission will be $3.50 for a student or a guest.

NEW POLICY. According to new administrative policy, all of the concerts presented by the UNC-W Concert Committee will be held in our auditorium. Although small in comparison to our gym or other local facilities, Kenan Auditorium offers a great deal to our concert series. It is an acoustic wonder. Its design is based on giving maximum listening enjoyment to an audience. Couple good sound with a comfortable, intimate atmosphere and musicians, and you have the makings for a beautiful concert.

New policy also dictates that all concerts held on our campus will be open only to UNC-W students and a guest. A student ID card will be required at the time of ticket purchases and at the door the night of the concert. Guests of our students will be required to have that student accompanying them when entering the concert. No longer will student concerts be run over with stumbling minors with a bottle of vino in their hands. The idea of concerts is to present good musical talent to those in our college community our students. These new rules governing our concert productions are to insure the right and privileges of our student to get the best concert possible for their money.

Our first concert the Paul Winter Consort will be the beginning of a new concert series, whose focus will be to bring new and unique music to our campus. With the cooperation of the student body and their attendance at show time, the Concerts '75 series will be a success.

Those candidates wishing to voice their qualifications for office are asked to meet in the cafeteria Special Dining room on October 2, at 11:30. Students may eat lunch with these candidates to ask questions concerning their position on issues of interest.

This is an effort by the Election Board to give the students a chance to meet the candidates of their choice. Elections will be held on Wednesday, October 8. Booths will be set up in the Business Building, Cafeteria lobby and Pub lobby. Members of the Election Board and Senior class officers are asked to contact Robert Moore so a schedule can be worked out as to when they can man the polls on the eighth.

INTRAMURALS

This year's intramurals have gotten off to a slow start due to the great amount of rainfall we have received recently.

Flag football games have been scheduled, rescheduled, and re-scheduled in hopes of getting some decent weather. Coach Warner hopes the teams will hang in there and be ready when the season finally gets under way.

Intramural soccer will make its debut on campus in early October. It will be played on a shortened field with five men on each team.

This type program has gone over extremely well at such schools as Penn. State and Lynchburg but as of now there are only three teams entered here at UNC-W.

There has been little interest shown by any of the fraternities or clubs with the exception of the TKEs who have entered one team and may enter a second one.

SEAHAWKS HAVE BIG WEEK

This past week the UNCW soccer program had probably its biggest week ever.

Friday the Seahawks hosted Duke University of the Atlantic Coast Conference. The Hawks were out to avenge last year's 4-0 defeat when they were completely dominated by the Blue Devils in Durham.

UNCW played an outstanding game at both ends of the field to defeat Duke 1-0. Coach Calvin Lane called it, "Our best game of the year, maybe our best ever. Everyone played extremely unselfish ball. We seem to improve each week."

The first half of the match ended in a 0-0 tie. The Seahawks had missed a couple of scoring opportunities and at times dominated play.

The second half saw a continuation of the same fierce action with both teams playing excellent soccer, but unable to score.

With about twenty minutes left in the contest Nino Fleri took a pass from Vince Lindenschmidt and punched a shot past the Duke goalie for the lone score.

In the last ten minutes the Seahawks set up a tenacious defense to preserve the victory. Fullback Gene Borowski did an outstanding job throughout the game and particularly in the closing minutes.

The following day the team traveled to Rocky Mount to play North Carolina Wesleyan. The players were tired and sore from the Duke game and Lane was concerned that there may be a let-down after the big victory the preceding day.

The Hawks quickly dispelled any misgivings the coach may have had as Borowski scored on a corner kick by David Wychel.

What followed was the equivalent to the Battle of the Little Big Horn as the Seahawks outshot their opponents 46 to 0 for a final score of 8 to 0.

Fleri had four goals. Borowski two, followed by Rick Hayes and David Kovack with one each.

Carlos Escobar led in assist with three. David Wychel had two. Gonzalo Rada one, and Brian Boyd one.

Coach Lane was pleased with the play of Joe Camarano at Fullback and the hustle displayed by David Kovack, Brian Boyd, Eddie Brock and Tom Golden.

The Hawks have two big district games coming up against Pembroke and Atlantic Christian, and a big non-conference game at home with High Point College on October 11.

OMEGA
Passport PPSPD-98007

This album really gives me a good impression of this new group to our shores. OMEGA. It also impressed me that music as good as this could have been created behind the Iron Curtain.

The back cover of the album best describes how I feel about this as it states: "The Iron Curtain.... has been all but closed to our eyes and ears, making it difficult to discover what sounds have been developing within its borders. OMEGA is a band from Hungary which changes our entire perspective, not only on how these bands have been influenced by western rock groups but, more importantly, asks us to consider how did they have the opportunity to be influenced?"

It is obvious that they have had the opportunity and have had the time to even add their own styles at times.

OMEGA are: Janas Kobor, lead vocals/percussion; Laszlo Benko, organ/Moog; Tamas Mihaly, bass; Gyorgy Molnar, guitars and Ferenc Debrecenti, drums. They first came to the Western World when they were allowed to go to Germany, to record, a few years back. This album was recorded there in 1973.

Although this album was recorded in 1973, it is surprisingly modern which could prove they are well ahead of music in the Western World.

The album begins with two cuts which are very western in sound. "Everything She Steps In" and "Stormy Fire" are their titles and it is hard to tell just which western group was the influence. The music is very good as the use of drums and guitar reflect these influences. It would be hard to tell they were not English or American if not for the pronunciation of some words.

The last two cuts on the side, "After A Hard Year" and "Spanish Guitar", are excellent and reflect that the group is very much influenced by the Moody Blues. Vocals sound very similar to the Moodys but the guitar work is similar to that on the last Pink Floyd album (recorded two years later).

Side two reflects their trip to Germany as the Moog work is very similar to those popular in Germany to this day.

In "Help To Find Me" and "White Magic Stone" these influences are very obvious as is the same type organ work of groups like Genesis and Yes. Vocals remain similar to the Moodys with "Remembering" being very close to the way the Moodys work out their harmonies.

This album I would recommend to anyone. It is what our sound is all about. Funny that it takes a group who should not have ever heard our type music to tell us what it is all about.

TRACY

TRACY NELSON
SWEET SOUL MUSIC
MCA MCA-494

Tracy Nelson has to be one of the most sought after female backing vocalist of the 1970's. 1974 was a very good year for her as she teamed up with WILLIE NELSON and produced the C&W album and hit single AFTER THE FIRE IS GONE.

The album clearly defines Tracy's strong vocal style and many people, including myself, looked forward to her much talked about solo album.

Sweet Soul Music, is now in record stores across America. Unfortunately, the album is not all that great. It is not the best Tracy Nelson can do and reminds me of the first solo album - jitters similar to those of Maggie Bell's first time out alone.

Tracy Nelson seems to have lost some of her strong voice and at times seems lost in the over-produced music. The music and vocals remind me very much of that same ~~one~~ done by Maggie Bell, but, they are only as good as the worst from Bell's LPs.

The album begins with the title cut, "Sweet Soul Music", which does not have any soul what-so-ever. The vocals are fair on the cut but completely die at the end of the number. "Looking For A Sign" follows and is a little better cut. This song comes closest in the soul part as any on the album.

This is due to the backing vocals as Nelson's voice is too strong to do the sweet soul that she is trying to achieve.

The one song that saves the side is one Tracy Nelson wrote herself and is titled "Nothing I Can't Handle". The very strong bluesy vocals and less muddy musical passages go to prove that Tracy can handle her own material. This song also seems to die at the end but this is easily overlooked because of its good points.

"Lies" opens side II and is another fairly good cut. The horn arrangements are worked in very well as are the vocals.

"We Just Can't Make It Anymore" is the prime example of what I mean when I say the cuts off this album sound like Maggie Bell's rejects.

The guitar work and vocals sound like Tracy is trying to achieve the same sound that Bell has, but nothing works half as good as Bell's do.

DYLAN'S "I'll Be Your Baby Tonight" is also on this side and is the worst version of the song I have ever heard. I wonder if Tracy has ever even heard the song before? If so, she definitely forgot what it sounded like (or was she trying to sound like Dylan?).

To sum up: To those of you who really like TRACY NELSON, this article may really sound harsh. On the other hand, I do not know many people who have the money to waste on an album such as this. Till then, ROCK OUT.

by robert maxey

The Publication Board met in an emergency session on Thursday, October 2 to discuss the proposed $5.00 subscription rate on the 1976 Fledgling. The proposal was made by Darlene Pearsall, editor of the Fledgling.

Ms. Pearsall stated that it was necessary to charge the student a subscription rate in order to know the exact number of books to order and to increase the Fledgling revenue. In the past, the Fledgling has accrued a large financial debt and this past year the Fledgling had a big shortage of yearbooks. Ms. Pearsall plans to eliminate the debt problem that has been existing for the past few years. One way she sees of eliminating this problem is by taking action now. Her effort of charging $5.00 per annual will alleviate the SGA from picking up the deficit tab.

Ms. Pearsall presented the board with a proposed budget for the 1976 Fledgling:

SGA Allocation	$10,000
Sales	5,000
Ads	1,000
Total	16,000
Expenses:
Publishing Costs	$14,200
Operating Costs:

1976 Postage	200
Advertiser's Fee	300

Photography	600
Darkroom Investment	200
Total	1,800
Grand Total	16,000
Working with $10,000
Publish: 2500 books

100 pages completely black and white Revenue:
SGA Allocation	$10,000
Ads	1,000
Total	$11,000
Expenses:
Publishing Costs	$9,600
Operating:
1975-'76 Postage	400
Advertiser's Fee	300
Phone	300

Photography	400
Total	$1,400
Grand Total	$11,000

After carefully reviewing the pros and cons of charging for the Fledgling, a majority of the Board voted in favor of the subscription. The Board then recommended that Dr. Malloy, a member of the Board, present the Board's decision to the Senate for approval. Dr.

Malloy was chosen because he was felt to be a neutral party in the Controversy.

Some of the facts that Dr. Malloy is planning to present are the budget for the Fledgling and comparing the $5.00 subscription to the remunerations that concerts and movies receive from the student. An example of this is that on October 20 the Concert Committee will be presenting the Paul Winter Consort. The Senate has already appropriated money to the Concert Committee yet the concert committee will be charging $3.50 per student to attend the concert. The Publications Board feels that the concert committee's ticket sale is comparable to the Fledgling subscription.

The Publication Board consists of the editors of the three publications: the Seahawk, Fledgling and Atlantis and their advisors, along with the manager of WNCU Radio Station and their advisor, Chairman of the Video Tape Committee and their advisor, Dr. Malloy and a student at random chosen by the President of the Student body.

Members this year are Robert Maxey, editor of Seahawk, and advisor Linda Moore; Darlene Pearsall, editor of Fledgling and advisor Gwen Croom; Sam Barbee, editor of Atlantis, and advisors Dr. Collier and Dr. Corbett; Greg Larrimore, station manager of WNCU and advisor Dr. Clator; David Brickley, Chairman of the Video Tape Committee, and advisor, Dr. Malloy. The student at random has not been appointed yet.

ATTENTION!

Any students who saw the vehicle involved in the hit-and-run accident on the morning of September 29, 1975, at the intersection of B and C streets, behind the Pub, please notify the Security Department.

The accident occurred at 10:50 a.m. and involved a student's dark blue 1969 Pontiac. Any knowledge of this incident will be extremely appreciated.

PARKING BLUES

by ray warren

It's 9:31 in the morning and you have a 9:30 class. What are you doing? Chances are you are driving to four or five of the campus parking lots and praying for an empty space. Parking is definitely a problem at UNC-W.

Are there enough parking spaces for the number of cars on campus? According to Assistant Chief C.N. Long of the Security department there are, but the situation is fluid and dependent upon several variables. Records show that 2308 student parking stickers have been sold. There are 1626 parking spaces set aside for students. The disparity is greatly reduced, however, when one considers that the maximum number of students on campus at any one time should not exceed a maximum of 751 of the total. This places the number of spaces and cars at close to even.

In the opinion of Officer Long, scheduling has a lot to do with the present problem. A lopsided majority of students take classes on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, especially at 10:30. Whereas the lots are all full at that time, there are many surplus spaces on Tuesday and Thursday. Also, Students leaving after a 9:30 class do not have an opportunity to vacate many spaces before those coming for the 10:30 class begin to arrive. A longer time between classes would allow more turnover of spaces.

Like all the other school departments, Security was surprised by the unexpected increase in enrollment this year. Steps have been taken to try and alleviate the situation as much as possible. The 20 spaces formerly allotted to motorcycles have been converted into ten extra car spaces. Very soon the "South 40" lot will be enlarged to accommodate up to 400 automobiles and, hopefully, lot E, next to the Education Building (King Hall), will also be enlarged by 27 spaces. Long points out that though he realizes the problems of finding a space are very real, there must be some justification for asking for money for new parking lots. The justification now exists, but such things take time.

At present there are always places to park in the "South 40" lot, located by the tennis courts. Students with classes in the Marine Science or Business Buildings should try to arrive early enough to park in a more convenient lot. Cars are presently being allowed to park along the rail joining the construction site of the new Gym behind the Pub, but students are warned not to park on the other side of that access road (Street C). Long emphasized that he was very pleased that the students were cooperating under such difficult conditions and that very few persons had been ticketed.

Hopefully, with expanded lots and better class scheduling, next semester will be easier for the commuting student. Until then, its park in the good 'ole "South 40" and walk.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Just Don't Give A Damn. Pass The Beer Sam

The title better expresses the interest and concern of a majority of the student body than does the word apathy.

Again we find ourselves "in another year of school" and against the same methods of expressing student interest are shown (or should that be stated lack of interest.) The intramural program has had another "slow start" and with all honesty will probably never get off the ground! The turnouts to support a winning (4-1 as of October 1, 1975) soccer team has been so poor that the "crowds" barely outnumber the two squads playing. Also for those of you who haven't had time to notice, the Girls' Varsity Tennis Team and Volleyball Team (defending State B Champions) have begun play. If the situation remains the same as last year, I only hope the girls on the bench can give enough support to their playing teammates to overcome the silence of the court area or gymnasium (which seats almost 2,000, but seldom accommodates 100 for home matches).

However, let's get to the center of this now surfacing gripe. The "leading" organizations on campus have not, do not, and if things continue the same, never will get actively involved in the support of sports on the UNC-W campus. Just recently the P.E. Majors' Club, which should draw in 100 or more majors, but usually has enough in attendance to be counted on both hands and one foot (that's 15 "fellow" majors), sent out letters of interest concerning the creation of a Seahawk Spirit Club to all campus clubs, fraternities (thanks for all the beer, guys) and organizations. In return we received nothing back. Not even a polite get lost.

Now as it goes, we of the P.E. Majors' Club are trying to give everyone another chance to change attitudes and for those of you who can't help but being you natural UNC-by-the-Keg selves, we are even going to appeal to your basic desires.

The Fifties Dance begins Thursday, October 9, 1975, night at 8:30 P.M. in the Pub.

We are making ourselves available to you and if you make it or break it, the Spirit Club will have one more chance. The cheerleaders will operate a booth for those of you interested and we hope to be able to organize the club within two weeks. Attempting to Represent the Few who Care.

FINDING THE PULSE

The Still Point has been with you for a number of months now; some good columns, some of them bad and some of them filling space for frantic Seahawk editors. I am interested in doing more with this column than riding my own hobby-horse each week, to address myself from time to time to questions, problems and issues which you bring to my attention. Now, I do not claim to have all the answers and I will not be afraid to say, "I don't know." However, I hope we can think together; critically, humorously, seriously, openly.

This is essentially a no-holds-barred column so most any topic is fair game. I want to make this space each week more responsive to the campus community and your inquiries can assist me in finding the pulse. If you have a particular issue with which I might deal in The Still Point, speak to me personally or leave a signed or anonymous note in the Seahawk or Student Affairs office.

This could prove to be most interesting.

Benjamin Franklin said, "Wine is constant proof that God loves us and loves to see us happy."

Unfortunately, some people aren't happy with wine unless they can reduce its appreciation to arguments akin to the number of angels that can be accommodated on the head of a pin.

To be sure, the glories of the grape are many and various. The last thing we need, however, is another self-proclaimed pundit swirling a glass and talking about the Gay-Lussac equation while claiming to perceive Gregorian chants and the Rites of Dionysus in the wine.

Just as one need not be a botanist to appreciate a rose or a meteorologist to delight in a sunset, you need not be an enologist to enjoy a glass of wine.

It may be that wine snobs exist because table wine, the kind of wine that increases the pleasure of food (and hence the most important category from an aesthetic standpoint), is relatively new to America. For a long time, the pleasures of table wine have been taken for granted by American families with strong European heritages and by the upper class. But until relatively recently, only a minority of wines were table wines. Only in 1969 did table wines make up the majority of shipments. Since then, the category has grown steadily both absolutely and relative to other types.

One of the by-products of the new popularity of fine wine was the wine snob, ready to dictate, pontificate, and obfuscate. There were special glasses to consider, the appropriate wine with each dish, not to mention correct temperatures and serving procedures.

And the wines themselves had to be from places with strange and confusing names.

Fortunately, the consumer has discovered that enjoyment of table wine is not complicated. In the marketplace, if a wine is priced right, looks good, smells good, and tastes good, that is sufficient cause to buy it.

What some wine drinkers haven't realized is that straight-forward standards of what looks, smells, and tastes good are applicable to all wines. There is no compendium of tasting secrets known only to people who can say

Grand Echezeaux five times fast. When the fundamentals are known, with a little practice you will discover that wines disdained by snobs may stand very comfortably beside those famous European names. More importantly, you will find you are comfortable enough with good wines to share Ben Franklin's relaxed attitude and that is the most important step toward real appreciation.

In my next three columns, we'll take a close look at tasting techniques, by R. Corbin Houchins E & J Gallo Winery

Entertainment

John Boorman's "Zardoz," A Vision of the Future Starring Sean Connery

"Zardoz," a fantastic vision of the future set in the 23rd century is producer-writer-director John Boorman's first motion picture since his acclaimed "Deliverance."

Based on Boorman's own original screenplay, "Zardoz" moves the calendar ahead 300 years to a world that has been divided into two parts. One is made up of an elite group who are guaranteed an inescapable immortality in their scientific oasis while the other, Outlanders, are wretched survivors of pollution and war.

A violently explosive clash occurs when one of the Outlanders, a savage brute trained to kill, manages to invade the society of sheltered immortals. Sean Connery as Zed the invader, is the virile, aggressive catalyst who disrupts a society grown decadent through its technology and immortality. His co-stars are Charlotte Rampling, the British beauty who has been seen in "Georgy Girl" and recently "The Damned," Sara Kestelman of the Royal Shakespeare Company who makes her film debut and John Alderton, one of Britain's leading TV stars.

The world that John Boorman presents in "Zardoz" is one in which everything is different. And yet nothing has changed.

The writer-director elaborates—"My attitude toward organized society has always been colored very strongly by the force and power that I feel is behind Nature.

In "Zardoz" there is an elite community that has completely cut itself off, for self-preservation and other laudable objectives. But it also leads to apathy and sterility. And the new society becomes an offense against the natural order. It is Nature that forces itself back in its own way. It is She who destroys the experiment."

Science fiction, if you want to call it that, is the genre that allows Boorman the scope he needs to explore mythical stories in the way he works.

"I've always found myths a more interesting way of dealing with the past. Now I've found that also true of the future," he says. "There is, however, a relevance in 'Zardoz' to contemporary society. I suppose the real genesis of this picture was in America about 18 months ago. I did some research into the Alternative Society, visiting communes in the States to see how they functioned.

Some of them are now seven years old. What it amounts to is a rejection of our—machine—society, it embraces mysticism but still uses technology."

Boorman's final version of the Vortex is an amalgam of several seemingly unrelated ingredients including the California communes, the Monastery communities of the Middle Ages and a quote from T. S. Eliot's poem "The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock":

Would it have been worthwhile,
To have bitten off the matter
With a smile,
To have squeezed the Universe
Into a ball
To roll it towards some overwhelming question
To say I am Lazarus, come from the dead.

Come back to—If you all
... He also was attacked by a fragmented but disturbing statement on The Bomb by a nimble-witted and acerbic British pundit, Malcolm Muggeridge—who professed himself "not sure that the destruction of the human race is necessarily a bad thing."

As for the Vortex people, although apparently well equipped to find ultimate answers, they become victims of their single-minded vision. What destroys them is something their sophistication was never programmed to foresee, something nevertheless very simple.

"If there is a moral in all this it's one for the futurologists themselves," says Boorman. "Too often, it seems to me, they ignore the power of evolution itself to upset the equation. Some new mutation, something we encounter on the way, some unimagined factor can change the course ahead."

"Science and logic are not infallible. Paradox has a poetry of its own. For example, my Vortex people have forgotten what death is like and, as a result, life has lost its vital savor. It is a psalm to paradox, a knee bent to the cruel majesty of nature."

Finding it Hard to Meet People?

Some of you may not understand what I am writing about but that is because God cannot be understood until you accept Him. It took me a long time to accept God—I mean really accept God and let Him run my life. I have only been a Christian for a couple of months. However, I would never go back to my previous ways because I have no need to. God always answers my prayers, even though He sometimes allows me to use my patience by not answering my prayers immediately.

The first week I was at UNC-W, I was really upset because I was finding it very hard to meet people. All I wanted to do was go home and never return. I prayed to God for help and guidance. The next day He directed me to a meeting of the Christian Student Union. Up until then I did not think I would find any other Christians on campus.

Well, I met several nice Christians and they told me about a Christian fellowship that met on Tuesday nights. I went to fellowship and met even more Christians and now I am really happy here.

This past weekend fellowship met on Friday to go to Raleigh to hear Nicky Cruz and Andrae Crouch. They stayed in cabins at Umstead Park. I met up with them Saturday morning and as soon as I walked into the room I was in love all over again. In love with God.

I could see the love in their faces as I looked around the circle they had formed. We sat and talked for a while and we all learned so much about ourselves, about others, and about God.

Do not get me wrong. Christians do not sit around with love on their faces praying all the time. Christians have fun just like anyone else. We spent a good part of the weekend laughing and cutting up. Christians are not into alcohol or drugs. Christians are into Christ. You may think that it's never too late, but someday it will be, so why don't you check out Christ and become a Christian. Any brother or sister in Christ would be willing to help you. Love in Christ.

Freshman Candidates Speak Increase Student Awareness and Input

I'm new at this, forgive me. That is THE major problem with Freshman elections. All of us are new to the school and to each other. In the month and a half that I have been here, I've tried to get involved with the newspaper, the upcoming play, and the Christian organizations on campus—but I realize that I won't have an opportunity to meet all of my fellow classmates. The only thing I can do is ask you to put your trust in me.

Having been here such a short time, I think it would be very wrong for me to claim to know all the answers. I won't promise radical changes or anything I can't deliver. Hopefully, we will be able to increase student awareness and input into the SGA, but that will depend on each of you as much as me. We are the up and coming leaders of this campus. If we want a better UNC-W, then we have to get up off our seats and work for it. I'm going to do the best I can for the class of '79. Help me. Vote Ray Warren for student senate—I want to represent you all.

Freshman Power!

As the newest group of students to attend UNC-W, we can easily see its assets and faults. The Student Government Association (SGA) and class officers have the power to change the issues that upset us. As a candidate for freshman Vice President, I listen to what the students don't like. How would you like positive action toward the parking situation? What about more campus activities, or bleachers for the soccer field so we don't have to sit on the wet ground? Almost anything that our class wants done can be done, if interest is shown by you! The first step toward change is to have active, ambitious officers. Voting for Karin Whaley for Freshman Vice President is the way to see changes fast!

Doctors Warn Keep Tabs on Tabs

(CPS)--When you pull the tab of your aluminum can of beer or soda, don't immediately drop it into the can, two Chicago doctors warn. People who are intoxicated have been known to ingest the ring-tabs and lose them to their stomachs or lungs.

To make matters worse, the ring-tabs are usually made of aluminum which shows up faintly on x-rays, according to the doctors' report in a July issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Pot and Privacy

(CPS)--A U.S. District Court judge in Michigan has ruled that students are entitled to the same rights of privacy in dormitories as adults in their homes. The ruling stems from a suit brought by two Grand Valley State College students who were suspended when college officials found marijuana in their dorm room.

Housewife: Student Worth the Same, Report Says

(CPS)--The typical housewife contributes as much to the economy of the US as the typical student, retiree or person in an institution, according to a recent Social Security Administration study called "The Economic Value of a Housewife."

There are 35.2 million women currently keeping house in the US. The Social Security Administration computed their worth strictly on the physical or mechanical tasks they perform. The conclusion was that housework is valued at between $5500 and $7500 a year. Before this study, the Social Security Administration used the average domestic's salary as the value of a housewife. Others occasionally threw in prostitute's fees as part of the calculation.

Kissing Disease Attack Football Team

(CPS)--The south Carolina State College's football team is off to a fever-pitched season

this year. Seventy of the school's football players are suffering from mononucleosis.

The situation is "becoming serious and we're very concerned about it" according to Coach Jeffries. The coach did not say whether the illness is purely a locker room affliction.

Money To Burn

(CPS)--Many people would gladly relieve the federal government of its old currency and solve the dollar disposal headache. But US Treasury officials have been looking into other alternatives to burning the $16 million of mutilated currency which must be destroyed each year.

Pulverizing the worn greenbacks has been one alternative to incineration. Pulverized bills make good lubricant for oil wells, good material for roofing but only fair mulch for grape vines.

The life of the typical dollar bill is a short one. According to the National Geographic Society, a bill is usually too worn and tattered to use after about 18 months in circulation. A $20 bill has only a slightly longer life--about four years of use.

The fever that won't break: THE RISING COST OF A MEDICAL EDUCATION.

Like most things, the cost of attending medical school has risen sharply over the last decade. To many medical students that cost represents a heavy burden, a financial problem that can affect your concentration.

It needn't be that way. The Armed Forces Health Professions Scholarship Program was originated to free you from those worries. Men and women who qualify will have the costs of their medical education covered, and will also receive a substantial monthly allowance.

The program offers more than tuition and salary; it offers you the opportunity to begin your practice under very favorable conditions. As a health care officer in the military branch of your choice, you'll find yourself with responsibilities fully in keeping with your training, and with the time and opportunity to observe a full spectrum of medical specialties.

When you decide on the specialty you wish to pursue, you may find yourself taking those graduate medical studies at one of our many large and modern medical centers. If so, you can count on that training being second to none. Both the clinical and research work being done in them have made Army, Navy and Air Force hospitals a major new national medical resource.

It's a long road, but the first step is simple. Just send in the coupon. The details we send you may make the whole way a little smoother.

And home we brought you shoulder-high.

Today, the road all runners come,
And shoulder-high we bring you home,
And set you at your threshold down,
Townsmen of a stiller town.

Smart lad, to slip betimes away
From fields where glory does not stay
And early though the laurel grows
It withers quicker than the rose.

Eyes the shady night has shut
Cannot see the record cut,
And silence sounds no worse than cheers
After earth has stopped the ears:

Now you will not swell the rout
Of lads that wore their honors out,
Runners whom renown outran
And the name died before the man.

So set, before its echoes fade,
The fleet foot to the sill of shade,
And hold to the low lintel up
The still-defended challenge-cup.

And round that early-laureled head
Will flock to gaze the strengthless dead, student projects for the bicentennial celebration

General Information

In 1967 the North Carolina Bicentennial (NCB) was created by the State Legislature to plan and develop programs for the celebration of the American Revolution in the State.

Within the themes of Heritage, Horizons, and Festivals, the NCB encourages the active involvement of young people in the carrying out of bicentennial goals.

Student Projects for the Bicentennial Celebration offers post-secondary education students the opportunity to create their own projects within the framework of the Festival's theme. This theme involves an expanded effort to make North Carolinians more aware of the traditions, the culture, the hospitality and the character of the State and its people through the arts, education, travel, exhibits, fairs, crafts and festivals.

This program is sponsored by the North Carolina Bicentennial, the National Bicentennial Internship Program and the North Carolina Internship Office.

Project Criteria

Student Bicentennial Projects should:

- Be imaginative and feasible;
- Be related to some aspect of North Carolina's cultural heritage;

- Be related to the Festivals activities of the NCB;
- Have local community support; and
- Be sanctioned as learning.

Projects can also demonstrate they will encourage secondary student populations to contribute to public needs and their own learning.

Application Procedure

Post-secondary students at senior colleges and universities in the state are eligible to apply.

This application form is a detailed six-page guide and it requires thoughtful consideration and planning in completing. You are encouraged to seek assistance from local bicentennial groups, interested community residents and college faculty members in developing your proposal.

The NCIO staff is available to provide technical assistance if it is needed. They can be reached at (919)829-5966.

NOVEMBER 14, 1975 is the DEADLINE for all applications and notice of acceptance will be made by December 8, 1975.

Funding

At least 15 students will be supported. Applicants will contract with the NCIO, mutually agreeing on project objectives, beginning and ending dates, reimbursement schedules and time period.

An individual student will receive no more than $1,000 for a total project grant, and no team of students will receive more than $2,500. When the agreement is signed, 50 per cent of the funds will be released. Payment for the balance will be negotiated with at least 10 per cent of the total project grant held back upon the successful completion of the project.

The earliest possible project initiation date is January 1, 1976. All projects must be completed by May 31, 1976.

Who's Who Nominations Sought

The Student Affairs Committee presents this nomination form to help students, faculty, and staff submit names for inclusion in Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

The following guidelines are suggested to be as fair as possible to all concerned:

1. At the time of nomination, a student must have attained at least junior standing and an overall GPA of at least 2.5.

2. A student may be chosen only once as a junior and once as a senior.

3. Nominations may be made by all faculty and students. Students may nominate themselves.

Please complete this form as fully as possible, giving additional information, comments, and observations where possible, attaching additional sheets to it.

Completed forms must be turned in to the Student Affairs Office (A-113) by Monday, October 20. Other nomination forms may be found in the Student Affairs Office and the Student Activities Office (Room 105 in the Pub.)

Seahawks Blank Atlantic Christian

The UNC-W Soccer team reached the midway point of the season last week when they defeated Atlantic Christian College 6-0 in their first District 29 game of the year.

Carlos Escobar had his best day yet as he scored four goals and had one assist. At present he is the team leader in assist and is second in goals. He is the leading point man on the team with a total of 17 points. Commenting on Escobar's play, Coach Calvin Lane says, "He has provided maturity for us up front this year."

Others adding to the Seahawk score were David Wychel who scored his first of the season, Eddie Brock with one goal and one assist, and Nino Fleri with two assists.

The play of the defense this first half of the season has been excellent. They have allowed only 7 goals in as many games while the offense has scored a total of 30. The Seahawks have recorded four shutouts thus far including their last three games.

Coach Lane is very pleased with play so far this season, and hopes for the continued overall effort.

This second half of the season could be tougher than the first as the Hawks face High Point, The Citadel, College of Charleston, and UNC-W's traditional rival Campbell.

SEE THE PEOPLE. See the people at the soccer match. See the people standing at the soccer match. Why are the people standing at the soccer match? Are there any bleachers? YES! They are at the baseball field. Is it baseball season? NO! It is soccer season!!

Women's Volleyball Team Open Season

The UNC-W Women's Volleyball Team opened its 1975 season this past week. In their first tri-match the Ladyhawks split a pair of games, losing to The College of Charleston and defeating Coastal Carolina College in Conway, South Carolina.

For their second tri-match they traveled to Laurinburg and once again split, defeating St. Andrews and losing to Guilford College.

Coach Jan Donahue attributed the losses to early season inconsistency.

Last year the team won the State Class B championship in their first year of competition.

Donahue expects the team to become stronger with experience. They play well and are extremely aggressive. The coach cites Toni Bryant and Julie Barden as her best spikers.

This year's tri-captains are Jo Hilton, Bryant, and Brenda Moss.

The Ladyhawks open at home this evening against East Carolina University at 7:00 p.m.

THE TUBES

THE TUBES
A&M SP-4534

This album gives me the proof that all American Bands have not grown stale. After reading an article on THE TUBES concerts I thought I would get the album and find out what all the excitement was about.

Once I saw the cover I said to myself "Oh no. Not another group like Iggy Pop!" Then I looked it over very good and decided it had a "cheap" looking cover. "This thing will never sell looking like this."

So, I stuck it between two other albums I was getting and made my way to the counter before anyone could see what I was paying hard earned money for. I got home and played the thing and was really shocked that this was an American Band. And of all things, produced by Al Kooper.

The group is Rick Anderson /bass; Michael Cotten/synthesizer; Prairie Prince/drums; William Spooner/guitars; Vincent Welnick/keyboards; and Fee/vocals.

The album is their first and one of the best rock albums out today. They are a Theatre rock group who do their concerts with prop changes and the works. Their sound is similar to English rock with orchestration, yet, they are very American.

THE TUBES

The thing that really surprised me was the guts of the group. "Up From the Deep" opens the album and comes right out to tell the listener he is about ready to hear exactly what he wants, even if the group does not like it. The song is almost like a preview of what is to come as the group really lets loose.

"Haloes" follows and keeps things going at a steady rock pace. Vocals here are excellent as the lyrics and guitar work go hand in hand.

How can I believe in the things you say

You can't sing the song I wanna play

Hey by now I know I got it right

And you can't even see the end in sight

Following is a slower space age love song called "Space Baby"

It's a mystery to me just how my being came to be and why it came here

Maybe I'm not even human but I know there's lot of room in infinity

There's got to be a time and place

For me to cease this endless search

And settle down with my own race

And never, ever by a Space Baby.

Between these shoot space ships with zips and all making the song very well produced.

Ending side one is a Spanish number entitled "Malaguena Salerosa" and is quite different from what most rock groups are doing these days.

Side two begins with a song to match the cover concept entitled "Mondo Bondage".

The music in the song is very good but the lyrics would keep the song from ever getting airplay. As the guy likes to be tied up and beat it is really funny the way he looks for a way out as the chorus goes:

I could run away to Spain
But I'd just get tied again
I could run off to Jamaica
If this bondage I could break

"What Do You Want From Life" follows and is all about what America has become. Money is the thing that is emphasized in the song and a list of objects that you are entitled to as an American citizen is given at the end, including Bob Dylans phone number.

Sex Education, among other things, is the subject of the next cut called "Boy Crazy". This cut is a very good cut in demonstrating the power of Fees vocals.

The big hit from the album ends it and is called "White Punks On Dope". The lyrics are very well written as we find a rich kid who is so bored with life he goes to the extreme on dope. The song comes complete with a chorus which sounds like it could be a church choir. As the song ends we find the slash of vocals and guitar in an agonizing struggle adding even more to the effectiveness of the song.

This album is definitely not for everyone because the lyrics and ideas behind the songs will surely be questioned by many people. They are as American as apple pie, but this is not how many people want to see America.

The group can play very well and have to be one of the best new American groups out. They have the guts to really go far if we have the guts to listen to what they say. Till then—ROCK-OUT.

From England, JET

CBS 90699-[import]

JET is a fairly new English group who I cannot seem to find any information on. This is their first album and I must say not bad as a starter. They are hard English style rockers and remind me very much of SPARKS. In fact, Bass player Martin Gordan was with Sparks on their KOMONO MY HOUSE LP.

The music and style of the group is based on the copy type vocals of Andy Ellison. He does not carry this style to the extreme in which Ron Mead (lead singer for Sparks) does, but, it is obvious this is what he is trying to do.

"Start Here" begins the album and is a very good cut. The song is English rock in every way with Ellison's vocals and accent leading the way.

Following is "Brains Damage" and we have lead guitarist, Davey O'list stepping into the spotlight. "It Would Be Good" is also on this side and would be better if it was left off the album. Here is an excellent example of Ellison's bad imitation of Sparks.

The best song on the side is "Nothing To Do With Us". The song is a very good rock number and proves the group has a style of its own. The song is based on how fake some people can be as Ellison says:

They're nothing to do with us my dear

No, nothing to do with us
If they say hello, it's only for show

They're nothing to do with us
Another good cut closes the side with "Tittle-Tattle". The song is a good example of what the group is capable of doing.

PAUL WINTER CONSORT

PAUL WINTER/WINTER CONSORT ICARUS

It is really nice to hear a different type album and music every now and then. The Paul Winter Consort's ICARUS is just that type album. It is totally relaxing and beautiful.

The group is made up of: Paul Winter/soprano sax, vocals; David Darling/cello, vocals; Paul McCandless/oboe, English horn, contrabass Sarrusophone, vocals; Ralph Tower/classical, 12-string and steel-string guitars, piano, bush organ, vocals; Herb Bushler/bass; and Collin Walcott/percussion and sitar.

The list of instruments in itself is amazing as The Winter Consort produce a very clear Classical-Jazz type sound. The sound is similar to that of Mark Almond at times and then shifts to that of the classical type Renaissance sound. (These groups are the only ones I can really identify to this type music.) The music is well improvised and played and recorded excellently.

The title cut opens the album and remains gentle but forceful at the same time. It lets you know from the beginning that the group knows what they are doing.

My favorite is next and is called "Ode To a Fillmore Dressing Room". The song starts calmly and glides into the most beautiful sitar passage I have heard in some time. Ralph Tower slowly brings in the guitar and the song becomes a play between the sitar and the guitar.

"The Silence of A Candle" is next with its music and vocals sounding very similar to Mark Almond. This is the only vocal cut on side one and is very nicely done.

"Sunwheel" and "Juniper Bear" end the side and are very jazz-like in sound. Drum work in both of these is very well done. Here is where the best improvisation comes in on the side as the group turn simple melodies into very interesting numbers.

Side Two opens with a powerful cut called the "Whole Earth Chant". Contained in the song are solos by different members of the group and interplay between the members shows the power

Thursday, September 25, the Fine Arts Committee kicked off its series of live performances with Howard Warren, a mimist.

Never having witnessed a mime before, I was pleasantly impressed as a young (less than 30). Mr. Warren opened with a brief explanation of pantomime. A mime uses no scenery. He stood before the audience in tights and white facial make-up and short gloves painted on his hands. The only other words spoken during the show were to introduce the different scenes. The transformations began. Mr. Warren was a marionette, a quarterback, an American Indian, a fisherman, a magician, a mask-maker, in an asylum—he seemed to have an endless repertoire. After 75 minutes of contrasting laughter to sheer quietesse, Howard Warren ended his performance with a take off on an old-fashioned dance.

I thank Fine Arts and Mr. Warren for opening a whole new area of Theatre to the University.

"ENSEMBLE OF ART"

by neal huntley

The Contemporary Art Ensemble performed at Kenan Auditorium last week. This newly formed group consists of Dan Conrad—bass guitarist, Rudy Tyson—piano player, his wife Cynthia, who sang along with her sister Jackie McCrae, Lloyd Wilson—percussionist, who also sings for Twice, and Hugh Peterson—percussionist. They played two concerts at Greenfield Amphitheatre this summer and at the Miss Pender County pageant in Burgaw. Conrad mentioned the group's long range plans and believed their best exposure will be in the College Circuit. Their music is structured but as Conrad said, "We don't play notes, we play our souls. We're doing something that no one's doing. We love what we're doing. I think it might rub off."

the group has in working together.

Also on this side is a song from West Africa called "Minuit". The word is French for Midnight.

This album would more than likely be liked by everyone and especially you jazz fans. It is good to hear something different like this. It makes you think.

Everything is excellently worked out with the guitar work being some of the heaviest rock I have heard come out of England for sometime.

Side two has some good cuts on it but in general is boring. "Fax 'N' Info" opens the side and is the best and closest to a Sparks song that the group comes to.

"MY RIVER" is next and would make a very good single. The flow in the song is very clever in keeping with the title. The remaining songs on the side are fair yet boring in that they are so much like those on side one.

If you are in to the English style of rock these days, this album is right up your alley for this album fully explains the form of rock in England. Jet's next album should really be interesting.

 Christian Fellowship Speaks Out

by Lee Ray Greene

I'll be one happy Christian on that judgement day.

I'll hear the trumpets blowing and see Jesus on his way.

The clouds will open up and the angels will appear.

All my sins will be forgiven;
For Christ is finally here.

Hallelujah, thank you Jesus
You've come to take me home.

Yes, I'll be one happy Christian
on that judgement day.
Every head bowed, every eye shut,
For at last Jesus Christ has come to reign over us.

My father will take me by the hand,
And show me all my sins,
Then he'll take his fingers and wipe the tears away again.

Then I shall come as a little babe,
With an open mind, very humble, and proud,
And God will reveal his love;
but a little at a time.

Hallelujah, thank you Jesus
You've come to take me home.

Don't Stop 'Til You Read The True Story.

The story you are about to read is true. The names have been changed to protect the innocent. That excludes the editor.

"Where are the ads? Didn't Debbie do her story? Laura hasn't been here to type today!" Typical day in the life of the Seahawk? That's what you think, it's worse than that. It's more like "shut up and where is that story! Don't bother me right now!"

And where do these kind and loving orders come from? Straight from the mouth of our dearly beloved, get crucified editor, Robert Maxey. I'm sure you have seen the name somewhere (the bathroom walls, in a telephone booth, etc.). Yes-that's right, I'm about to tell you the plain truth about journalism in the Seahawk Office.

It all begins Monday afternoon (paste-up day). Jim comes in with another "page 1" sports story. And of course Karen with her poison pen enters to do the cartoons. Laura's at the typesetter and photographers are roaming around waiting for assignments and developing photos. The layout sheets are just laying out with nothing on them yet and it's already 4:30 in the evening.

Then the fireworks begin. He takes us down one by one. Poor Jim. Maxey screams to the top of his lungs. "Are you doing two pages or one this week? You never let me know. Did you cover the soccer game?" Mild and meekly Jim answers all the questions and goes back to his corner by the closet, diligently finishing his story for the week.

Then it's Karen's turn. A small bit of a girl. Karen stands about 5 foot 3 with her pencil and sketch pad in hand. "Have you got the cartoon drawn? Well, who are you doing this week? Do you need an ad on your page?" Of course we can't forget Steve, new to the staff, as ad manager. "Well, you have to do it like this. The man should tell you what he wants and you bill him! You'll have to cut it down to fit in here." Steve really didn't know he was adhering to such a fiasco. Steve's kind smile changes to a serious composure to finish up the evenings.

We've worked and worked. Constantly listening to orders over the noise. Ha! Ha! It's getting to be about 12 midnight. Seven of the sixteen trusty staff members are still standing. The others lying about after pure exhaustion from constant editor pressuring. All the remaining members begin to develop blood-shot eyes and frenzied hair. Another minute with that madman and we'll all be heading for Cherry Hospital.

Well, You've guessed it by now, everything you have just heard was a bunch of bull. And I do mean bull. If you know Robert Maxey, then you know he is not exactly like that. He is a very perfectionist type of person though. I suppose you have to be if you are a senior in History carrying 21 hours and trying to control 16 creative journalists for a weekly endeavor.

He does yell some time but it is usually deserving. He probably has a reason to be angry. Especially if its late on a Monday night with no stories ready and he may have classes the next day. Evidently he is very understanding of most things.

He isn't really an average person. Would you call anybody carrying that kind of load "average"? They sent the padded car for him a few days ago. Ha! Ha!

It is a rarity to hear an angry remark from him, although at times the pressure does get to be tough. Keeping composure and trying to do the best job he knows how is of vital importance.

It takes a great deal of leisure to write a story. It has to be put into a paper and it seems that Robert Maxey is doing just that.

Yes, I'm a friend of his; maybe not when this story appears in print, but I feel that you really don't know what the work or pressures are like until you've been there. I think you would have to agree that Robert Maxey has been there and back. From Monday night to Monday night, campus issue to campus issue, paper to paper...

Senate Approves Fledgling $5.00

by robert maxcy

On Tuesday, October 7, the UNC-W Senate approved the Fledgling $5.00 subscription rate. President Hobbs cautioned the Senate that the yearbook problem would continue to exist and he proposed five alternatives to the money problem of the yearbook.

1. Charge a percentage of the cost to three student with an additional appropriation from the Senate.
2. Fifty per cent paid by students and fifty per cent appropriated from the Senate.
3. Students pay the full price of the yearbook.
4. The Student Government pay the total cost.
5. No yearbooks.

Next the Finance Committee gave their approval to the $5.00 subscription rate. Afterwards, discussion followed.

Senator Kevin Beard stated, "I don't think you'll get 1,000 subscriptions. People don't want to pay for something they have been getting free."

Sophomore Senator Carol Raines stated, "Sophomores don't care for yearbooks."

Senator Clay Fairly suggested that the $5.00 subscription rate be approved and that next year students will have to pay the full amount.

After the discussion, the vote was tallied and the $5.00 subscription rate was approved by a 15-4 decision. Senators voting against were Barbara McKay, Carol Raines, Kevin Beard, and Betty Price. Those favoring the motion were Haddon Clark, Clark Sizemore, Rufus Butler, Gary Coburn, Clay Fairley, Kent Flowers, Paul Laird, Judy Bryant, Robert Jones, John Crawley, Cathy Sizemore, Ricky Patton, Gary Shipman, David Davis and Scott Olson.

Darlene Pearsall, Editor of the Fledgling, exclaimed after the meeting, "I can't believe it's finally over. Three cheers for the Senate! Rah! Rah! Rah!"

Paul Winter Consort in Concert

The Paul Winter Consort came back to Notre Dame last weekend, but it was a New Consort with a new style, doing new songs in a new situation. They played by themselves, neither following nor preceding any other acts whose influence they would then have to cope with. They played new music, products of each member's search to find music that will fit the Consort perfectly as a group and still express their feelings as individuals. They played in a new style because they are new. Three of the Consort's five have been with Winter for only nine months: Dave Darling (cello) and Paul Winter (alto saxophone) are the only remaining members of the Consort that visited Notre Dame in '71 and '72. Yet, they continued to please the ND audience, who, that evening, had come expressly to hear the Paul Winter Consort.

As they took the stage after a brief introduction, it was immediately apparent that someone was missing; there were only five musicians on stage, and the familiar guitars and double bass were replaced with a harp and bass marimba. But not only were the instruments different, the Consort had also changed. In reality, the Winter Consort has been changing ever since it was first conceived. While Winter was an undergraduate at Northwestern University, he organized the first of his many jazz groups. The Consort that came to Notre Dame in 1971 was formed late in 1968, but in Paul's words, "We went as far as we thought we could together; we really split into two groups. Four of the other original players formed another group, and David Darling and I emerged to this group, replacing the guitar with harp, eliminating the bass, and adding two percussions instead of one."

There soon seemed to be no difference, though, as the Consort began to spin their delicate musical stories. The sax, harp and cello took turns coloring the melodic panoply, often playing together, sometimes soloing or emphasizing the theme. Some of the old favorites were still there, slightly rearranged to make use of the new instrumentation. The new compositions reflected the Consort's broadening interests and skills. I asked Paul if he would concentrate on rearranging the works he had done the year before. "The important thing is to keep going, and along with that is the challenge of writing new music. The Consort is not an entertainment band that will play hits, but a growth band and that is the significant thing that I think people should focus on. I mean, to see the Consort over a period of years, to see how it grows and not say 'Oh, gee, isn't it a shame you're not playing 'Both Sides Now' or something you did on your earlier albums.'"

We knew and appreciated Winter's beautifully crafted melodies as well as Darling's exacting expressive cello, but the new Consort still came as quite a surprise. At first, a harp seemed like a rather unlikely instrument together with a cello and sax, but I soon had the impression that more than ever, it belonged. Paul later explained, "I had been fascinated with the harp for a long time, and it seemed like the time was right. I had heard of Joel Andrews in San Francisco three years ago, and last February, very close to the time that the previous Consort had ended, I was in Boston, and heard one of Joel's records, a Bach Partita, at a friend's house. Glorious. I was just overwhelmed, and I thought now is the time to try harp."

But why harp? Why not another guitarist? "The guitarist who was with us previously, Ralph Towner, is for my money, the greatest guitar player anywhere. To follow

FROM THE SPOTTY TO THE SPIRITED

I have been accused by many members of the UNC-W Senate of being too antagonistic towards them. I do not feel that the accusations are valid. The Seahawk has criticized the senate on various issues. The recent criticism has been over the yearbook controversy which I hope is a buried issue.

On Tuesday the senate met to discuss the $5.00 subscription rate and to vote on whether or not the Fledgling could charge for subscriptions. If you had been at the senate meeting a week earlier you would have known exactly how the vote would have gone, unanimously against! However, the senate is a very unpredictable body of individuals and almost all the senators are level headed once they have been given the opportunity to let off some steam and allowed some cooling off time. The senate gave their blessings to the $5.00 subscription and all I have to say is AMEN.

Now allow me to turn my attention from the spotty to the spirited. On Thursday night the Spirit Club presented the Fifties Dance. The dance was anything but apathetic as a tremendous crowd turned out and tuned in for a spirited fifties dance, dressed in the traditional fifties style. All that attended will have to agree that the event was a big success. Much of the success can be attributed to the free libations provided by Pabsts, creative organization by the Spirit Club, and all those "cool cats" that dressed up in their tee shirts, bobby socks and chains.

What impressed me about this new formed Spirit Club is their objectives. They were formed to stamp out apathy at our Seahawk games and to provide a spirited atmosphere for our UNC-W athletes. Not only do they want to build up spirit and attendance at the men's basketball, soccer, and baseball games but they are striving to place emphasizes on the minor and women's sports offered at UNC-W as well. Their plans also calls for chartering buses to attend the away games. Previously only a very few of our students attended these games.

It is great to see a student organization that is willing to deal with apathy head on. The Seahawk staff wishes to congratulate the great success at the dance and to let you know that we are backing you up!

All you students who are sitting on your tail, get up off it and get involved, attend a game, and cheer the mighty Seahawk teams on to victory. Have YOU got the spirit?

LETTER TO EDITOR

A Big Thanks!

The fledgling staff wishes to thank the 15 Senate members that voted in favor of the $5.00 subscription. For the first time in years, the fledgling is not on the bare edge of existence due to financial problems. The Senate deserves a great deal of credit for this.

Very special thanks goes to Steve Hobbs, the SGA president, for his support, understanding, and patience. He truly represents the student body well.

Lines on Wine

The great Chinese chefs say that good food appeals to all five senses. It should be attractive to look at and a pleasure to smell, feel good in the mouth, produce a proper sound when masticated and, of course, appeal to the taste. Except, I must admit, for the sound effects, good wine possesses the same characteristics.

The technique of tasting is designed to permit evaluation of all the salient qualities of wine. Professional tasters vary a good deal in the details of their tasting methods. I think the following represents the best starting point in developing your own technique of tasting.

The wine you are going to taste should be in a clear, stemmed glass of no less than an eight-ounce capacity. (Clear, so you can evaluate the color of the wine; stemmed, so your hand does not heat it.) The glass should be shaped so that the diameter of the rim is slightly smaller than the diameter of the part that holds the wine and poured no more than one-third to one-half full. (Only partly full to permit volatile from dissipating into the air.) Such a glass can be used for any wine on all occasions.

First, look at the wine. Look at a light source through the wine. Then look down through the wine at a white surface such as a blank piece of paper or a tablecloth that is well illuminated, tilting the glass until the wine almost runs out of it. (Looking through the wine will reveal any cloudiness or suspended matter; tilting the glass so that the wine is shallower permits you to evaluate the color more accurately.)

What we are looking for is clarity and pleasing color. Color variations, particularly among red wines, are considerable. If you take care to notice them, you will find that different wines are more or less pleasing to look at. For example, I find a bright magenta rather annoying, and am pleased by, say, a velvety garnet with hints of terra cotta at the edge. Your preference may, with equal justification, be just the contrary: the point being that there is an aesthetic factor to pay attention to, however you may react to it.

Some people also note how the wine slides down the inside of the glass after swirling. I find that factor (caused by variations in the surface tension among wines) of very limited interest. A wine with a high glycerol or sugar content will tend to form "legs" rather than "sheets," but that is only a rough guide to something your palate can tell you with relative precision.

Next week we'll continue our discussion of tasting techniques with some remarks on how to smell wine.

TKE

I have really enjoyed the Monday night football at the TKE house. I took a survey the other night to see if everyone was there to watch the game. Of 23 people questioned, these were the results I received: 14 people did not know who was playing; 5 people could not see the TV; 3 people thought it was Anything Goes; 1 person only

The S.N.A. consists of student nurses who are interested in broadening their education of nursing as future health professionals, to be aware of and to contribute to improving the health care of all people.

Plans are in the making for a demonstration of Emergency First Aid, which will be put on by one of the local Rescue Squads. A nurse midwife is being invited to speak on Midwifery. The advisors and members of the Student Nurses' Association feel these programs will benefit each individual, therefore, everyone is invited to attend.

Shit Flies As Record Shatters

(CPS)--Cow dung hurled by a new member of the Kansas Bar soared 184 feet as a new world's record for cow chip throwing was set over Labor Day weekend.

Dan Watkins credited a careful selection of dung for his record-breaking throw. Watkins noticed that fresh chips tend to be heavier than chips that have had a chance to dry out.

So while other contestants at the Old Settlers Day Festival in Russell Springs, KS threw chips like frisbees or discs, Watkins reared back and tossed his heavy, fresh chitlike a baseball.

Later Watkins explained that he "picked a round, green cow chip just about six inches in diameter. I just threw it as far as I could."

Adrogyny is Better, Reports Psychologist

(CPS)--Being a he-man or a femme fatale may be everybody's favorite fantasy, but for most people it is healthier to possess traits of both sexes, according to experiments conducted by a Stanford University psychologist.

"High femininity consistently correlates with high anxiety, low esteem and low self-acceptance," concluded Prof. Sandra Bem in an article recently published in "Psychology Today."

High masculinity has been related to better psychological adjustment during adolescence, Bem added, but in adulthood it often leads to high anxiety, high neuroticism and low self-acceptance.

The results of five experiments by Bem showed that androgynous men and women "did just about everything. They could be independent and assertive when they needed to be, and warm and responsive in appropriate situations. It didn't matter whether a behavior was stereotypically masculine or feminine; they did equally well on both."

Androgyny, Bem concluded, "allows an individual to be both independent and tender, assertive and yielding, masculine and feminine. Androgyny greatly expands the range of behavior open to everyone, permitting people to cope more effectively with diverse situations."

Splattered Pie Prompts Battery Charge

(CPS)--It used to be funny when the university's dullest professor got a pie in the face during last year's pie-throwing fad. It wasn't very funny, however, when a professor chased a pie thrower out of the classroom and pressed battery charges against him.

But last month the pie thrower got off the hook temporarily when a Kansas District Court jury couldn't make up its mind. The case against James Dillard, a Kansas University (KU) student who hit a psychology professor on the leg with a pie, ended in a hung jury.

David Holmes said he pressed charges against Dillard because Dillard interrupted his class and hurt the image of KU.

Dillard said he threw the pie "in good fun" and because Holmes' class offered him $20 to make the hit.

Another trial may be started in November. I

Driving, Lighting, and Lying

(CPS)--About five per cent of the American public surveyed lied when asked if they do anything to conserve energy, according to the Federal Energy Administration (FEA).

In a recently conducted survey, the FEA asked questions about what Americans are doing to save fuel. Pollsters asked questions such as: "Are you using fewer lights?" or "Do you drive at 55 miles per hour?"

At the end of the interviews, pollsters asked, "Have you installed a thermometer in your automobile?" Five per cent answered yes. FEA spokesmen said.

Thermidor, as in 'lobster thermidor', is a gourmet dish.

Alfred Hitchcock, You Lose

(ZNS:CPS)--A Loyola University psychologist has surveyed we men to find the type of male body most likely to set them drooling.

From the results, Psychologist Paul Lavrakas has determined the most exciting male figure. The perfect male, Lavrakas claims, has thin legs, a medium-wide chest and medium-thin hips.

The "Alfred Hitchcock pear-shaped look"--a thin chest and large stomach and hips--is the least attractive male figure, according to women surveyed.

A Spurt in Time

(CPS)--A 350-year-old statue of a boy urinating became a national historic monument recently in Belgium.

Local legend has it that the statue depicts a boy who saved the Brussels city hall from destruction with a well-aimed stream of urine on the fuse of a bomb.

The statue originally provided drinking water but is now a tourist attraction.

Let me not to the marriage of true minds
Admit impediments. Love is not love
Which alters when it alteration finds,
Or bends with the remover to remove:
Oh, no! it is an ever-fixed mark;
That looks on tempests and is never shaken:
It is the star to every wandering bark,
Whose worth's unknown, although his height be taken.
Love's not Time's fool, though rosy lips and cheeks
Within his bending sickle's compass come;
Love alters not with his brief hours and weeks,
But bears it out even to the edge of doom.
If this be error and upon me proved,
I never writ, nor no man ever loved.

APO Holds Rush

Do you want to get more than just four years of books and studying from your stay at UNC-W? Would you like to make a meaningful contribution to our campus, as well as the Wilmington community? Do you want opportunities for personal pride and satisfaction? If you answered "yes" to any of these questions, then you should begin considering membership in Alpha Phi Omega.

APO is the national service fraternity on the UNC-W campus. Membership is open to all men and women, regardless of race, religion or national origin. There is no hazing period during pledging. APO exists to give its brothers opportunities for friendships, leadership and service.

The UNC-W chapter, Upsilon Nu, is still relatively small, allowing for the individualism of each brother. No one is lost in anonymity and everyone has the chance for participation. The small size of the chapter also allows for the individual development of each member. There are many leadership positions and so many things to do.

We don't just talk, we act.

Every semester, the brotherhood is involved in several projects. For the past several years, the brothers have been involved in a Rock-a-thon for Easter Seals. Last fall, APO see-sawed for 55 hours to raise money for the NC Heart Association. And last spring, we planned and carried out an Easter party for over one hundred underprivileged children. Between these projects, APO also ushers at concerts, holds car washes, is involved with the Red Cross and generally helps wherever and whenever needed. Even more events are planned for the upcoming year.

Yes, we have a good time. And we're also doing something for someone else. There's even more. We want you. Are you interested? Rush is being held Wednesday, October 15 in the Seahawk-Fledgling office, upstairs in the Pub. Be on the lookout for our brothers; on Wednesday, they will be wearing identification. Or if you can't come to rush, see Jan Storey, Wayne Barbee, Robert Maxey or Joanne Gentry. Hope to see you at rush!

Dear Darlene,
I'm a freshman and I need help. No one on campus seems to care about me. Everyone ignores me. They act as though I don't exist. When I ask questions, no one answers. What should I do?

FRANKLY SPEAKING... by phil frank

The Pine Cone

It's that time of year again when all the pine cones are getting ready for winter. Most of you have probably not noticed the pine cones and regard them as nothing more than something to kick. The reason that pine cones seem so stupid is that they freeze their notion when they think someone is watching. I have developed my own system of watching them, however, and have caught them in the depths of their rituals.

The cycle starts in late summer when pin cones begin their mating dances which consists of dropping out of trees and rolling around on the ground. After mating, it is not clear how the pine cone eggs are placed in the trees, but it has been postulated that the female pine cone climbs the host tree on a particular night dictated by its mating cycle.

Afterwards it clings to the tree near its eggs. One mother cone usually produces two to four young con. The male cones are usually kicked to pieces or mulched by lawn mowers in their effort to find a place for winter.

Pine cones have been known to attack humans who walk in their mating grounds. The cones drop out of the trees and punch holes in people with their sharp claws.

Right now, the cones are looking for a warm place to spend the winter. They will hole up in cars, trucks, cellars, but especially heated garages.

Several cones will pile up in a secure corner for warmth and protection. I found a pine cone in a garage in July one year, calmly surveying the place for the best location. He had come early to get a good spot.

If you will notice, all the pine cones are staring at the library. No doubt, the library would be full if the doors were left open at night. This is an ideal spot, due to the quiet, warmth and ample space.

If you are feeling sorry for the cold and lonely pine cones, there is one thing you can do. Take some home, make Christmas decorations out of them and place them on a piano or on a fireplace mantle. Pine cones are terribly conceited showoffs and love nothing better than to be dressed up and sit in a nice warm living room where everyone can see them.

In conclusion, I must warn you to be wary of the cones now. They are becoming frantic because of the cooling weather and will go to extra lengths to get a home. Only the other day, one jumped from behind a tree and clutched to my trousers' leg, begging me to take him home. I beat him off, but he tore my pants in the process. Vicious creatures. Mitchell T. Lloyd

"CABARET" COMPLETES ITS JOURNEY TO MOTION PICTURE SCREEN

When "Cabaret," the Allied Artists release opens at the KENAN on Oct. 21, 1975 it will have completed the final leg of a most circuitous journey. Originally based on the Christopher Isherwood novella, "The Berlin Stories," which was published in America in 1936, the property became a favorite of dramatist John van Druten who waited more than 15 years to have the work produced on Broadway; this time bearing the title "I Am A Camera" and starring Julie Harris. Within four years Hollywood decided to film "I Am A Camera" and Julie Harris recreated her Broadway role. Ten more years passed and now with a book written by Joe Masteroff and music by John Kander and lyrics by Fred Ebb "Cabaret" took Broadway by storm and Jill Haworth became a star as the ubiquitous Sally Bowles. Now under the imaginative direction of Bob Fosse "Cabaret" has finally completed its journey to the screen once more and now with the brilliant talent of Liza Minnelli as Fraulein Sally Bowles.

"The Berlin Stories"/"I Am A Camera"/"Cabaret" genesis is only one of many similar stories that dot the history of both Hollywood and Broadway. Hollywood has always looked to Broadway as a major source of its material and in recent years Broadway has been casting a covetous eye at some of Hollywood's earlier successes. Both have always looked to novels, and magazine stories for material.

Shakespeare, George Bernard Shaw and Cervantes have all proved to be good source material for the musical form. Rodgers and Hart tapped Shakespeare's "The Comedy of Errors" for their "Boys From Syracuse" and Rodgers and Hammerstein based "Kiss Me Kate" on "The Taming Of The Shrew." "Kiss Me Kate," which starred Alfred Drake as Petruchio and Patricia Morrison as Kate was one of the big Broadway triumphs of 1948 and Hollywood starred Howard Keel and Kathryn Grayson in the film version.

George Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion," which had its world premiere in Vienna in 1913 in German was performed on stage in London with Mrs. Patrick Campbell as Eliza Doolittle and the screen's first Eliza was the British Wendy Hiller. Its metamorphosis continued and in 1964 Alan Jay Lerner and Fritz Loewe's "My Fair Lady" opened its record breaking run on Broadway with Julie Andrews now in the role of cockney flower seller. Finally, when the film version of "My Fair Lady" was made Audrey Hepburn was assigned the role.

Cervante's Don Quixote considered by many scholars as the first novel has had many dramatizations, but not until Richard Kiley and Joan Diener portrayed Don Quixote and Aldonza in the musical "The Man Of La Mancha" was it a great stage success. Now a film version with Peter O'Toole and Sophia Loren is in the works.

When Greta Garbo and Melvyn Douglas starred in "Minotcha" in 1939 little did we realize that the brilliant Cole Porter would attempt to set the story to music as "Silk Stockings." It became one of Broadway's all-time hits 16 years later and this time with the German Hildegard Neff and Don Ameche in the starring roles. "All About Eve," a short story by Mary Orr became the famous Bette Davis flicker after screenwriter Joseph Mankiewicz wrote the screenplay and three years ago Lauren Bacall relit her faltering career when she starred on Broadway in "Applause," the musical version of the Mary Orr short story. "Green Grow The Lilacs," a play by Lynn Riggs ran for 64 performances when it first opened its Broadway run in 1931 with Franchot Tone and June Walker as its stars. When Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein added music to the libretto and Alfred Drake and Joan Roberts starred and the title was changed to "Oklahoma!" in 1945, the musical ran on Broadway for more than 2,000 performances. A few years after it completed its Broadway run it was brought to the screen with Gordon MacRae and Shirley Jones as its stars.

"Lillian," a play by Ferenc Molnár ran 36 performances on Broadway in 1935. Not even the exceptional Eva Le Gallienne and Joseph Schickel could save the play from its early demise. Once again a musical score from Rodgers and Hammerstein and a title change to "Carousel" and as one of Broadway's all-time hits emerged. John Raitt and Jan Clayton went on to stardom as a result of their performances, but the film producers once more chose Gordon MacRae and Shirley Jones for the movie.

New Yorker Magazine writer Ruth McKenney wrote a series of short pieces about two girls who come to live in New York and the adventures they find. In 1940 Broadway playwright Jerome Chodorov wrote "My Sister Eileen" based on those stories and Broadway welcomed it for a 200 performance run with Shirley Booth and Morris Carnovsky as its stars. When the film version was made the exceptional Rosalind Russell was seen as Eileen. Not about to let success fade Leonard Bernstein composed a score to the McKenney stories and Roz Russell came back to Broadway as the star of "My Sister Eileen" now retitled "Wonderful Town." Hollywood once more remade the work but this time Janet Leigh and Betty Garret played the out of towners.

Federico Fellini filmed his wife Giulietta Masina in "The Nights Of Cabiria" and Broadway thought it would make a great vehicle for Gwen Verdon and so "Sweet Charity" was born. Shirley MacLaine starred when the film was remade.

To Be Raped...OR... Not To Be Raped!

Fredric Storaska witnessed a brutal rape and assault of a young girl by a gang of teenage boys during a summer evening in 1964. Although he immediately fought off the assailants, the girl had been seriously injured.

With the shocking event embedded in his mind, Mr. Storaska sought any information on assaults in several universities. To his dismay, he found hardly any research was initiated on this subject.

Instead of ending it there, Fredrick Storaska devoted his entire resources and energies to understanding and solving the problems of assaults on men, women, and children.

With his efforts he has developed a program that is designed to provide both men and women with a realistic understanding of the elements that constitute an assault. It also gives women the psychological preparedness and physical techniques necessary to thwart any possible future confrontation with rape or assault.

These techniques are now constituted in a movie entitled, "How to Say NO to a Rapist and Survive." Obtainable by the Wilmington Police Department, this movie is sponsored by the Phi Mu Alumni Chapter of Wilmington and will be shown at the Pub on October 16. Time of showings will be 11:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

COFFEE HOUSE TO HOLD AUDITIONS

Auditions will soon be held to find talent for the coffeehouse. The auditions will be open to all people interested, especially UNC-W faculty, staff and students. We are interested in all types of entertainment: music, theatre, dramatic reading, from the usual to the unusual. The judges will be the Coffeehouse Entertainment Committee. Due to the limited budget, we cannot afford to pay our local entertainment. However, a hat will be passed around and the audience may contribute what they will.

Auditions will be held on Tuesday, October 21 at 11:30 a.m., Wednesday, October 22 at 12:30 p.m., and Thursday, October 23 at 11:30 a.m. and 3:00 p.m. All auditions will take place in the coffeehouse located in the Student Union Building. If you cannot make the auditions, contact Linda Moore, Student Activities, in the pub for a better time. Richard Boles

Debate Tournament

Forty college and university debate teams from North Carolina, Virginia and South Carolina will participate in the Third Annual Blockade Runner Invitational Debate Tournament being hosted by The University of North Carolina at Wilmington Debate Team October 17 and 18.

Novice and varsity squads from participating schools will prepare arguments both defending the statement: Resolved that the federal government should adopt a comprehensive program of land use in the United States.

Following a one p.m. assembly in the auditorium of King

Hall, the first rounds will begin at 1:30 p.m. Additional rounds Friday will start at 3 p.m., 4:30 p.m. and 6 p.m.

Competition resumes Saturday morning at 9 a.m., with the closing session scheduled at 11 a.m. Awards for individual speakers and novice teams will be presented at a luncheon at Ramada Inn at 1 p.m. The semi-final round in varsity competition will be held at 2:30 p.m., with the winners of the semifinals facing each other at 4 p.m.

Mrs. Betty Jo Welch, coach of the UNC-W Debate Team and coordinator of the tournament, said that faculty members from the UNC-W departments of Political Science, History, English and Drama and Speech will serve as judges and that spectators from the community are welcome to attend.

"CONGRESS TODAY"

"Congress Today" will be the topic of the fourth program in the Politics '76 lecture-discussion series sponsored by the Office of Continuing Education at The University of North Carolina at Wilmington. Seventh District Congressman Charlie Rose will lead the discussion on October 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of King Hall at the university.

Following Congressman Rose's presentation, the audience will participate in a question and answer session on such national issues as the federal government's role in "bailing out" New York City, continued strong financial support of the United Nations, and the economic situation in the United States.

Monday night's program is open free to the public. Upcoming programs in the series will feature Senator Robert Morgan in a discussion of the CIA investigations and Walter DeVries in a discussion of predictions of the North Carolina presidential primary.

Who's Who Nominations Sought

The Student Affairs Committee presents this nomination form to help students, faculty, and staff submit names for inclusion in Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. The following guidelines are suggested to be as fair as possible to all concerned:

1. At the time of nomination, a student must have attained at least junior standing and an overall GPA of at least 2.5.

2. A student may be chosen only once as a junior and once as a senior.

3. Nominations may be made by all faculty and students. Students may nominate themselves.

Please complete this form as fully as possible, giving additional information, comments, and observations where possible, attaching additional sheets to it.

Completed forms must be turned in to the Student Affairs Office (A-113) by Monday, October 20. Other nomination forms may be found in the Student Affairs Office and the Student Activities Office (Room 105 in the Pub.)

FLEDGLING SUBSCRIPTIONS $5.00

Subscriptions have been approved for the 1976 Fledgling. With the additional revenue, the staff is sure to produce the best yearbook ever published for this campus.

The projected book includes 304 pages, with at least 14 pages of color, and a full-color cover. It will be a humorous and entertaining book with thorough campus coverage.

Sales will continue for approximately three more weeks.

The schedule is as follows:

Wed., Oct. 15, 9:00-5:00 in snack bar; 1:30-3:00 in pub.
Thurs., Oct. 16, 9:00-12:30 in snack bar; 12:30-1:30 in pub.

LITTLE JOURNEYS

LITTLE JOURNEYS TO LANDS OF LIVING FAITH-A special series of visits of historic congregations, over 100 years old, is to take place on the afternoons of November 9 and November 16 (both are Sundays); from about 2:00 PM to 5:30 PM, as a pre-Thanks-giving Bicentennial program for 1975. A souvenir booklet, with drawings by artist Ronald Williams and articles by each minister, will be available to all participants.

The project has been initiated by Dr. Martin M. Weitz, Temple of Israel, Resident Lectureship in Judaic Studies at UNC-W, and chairman of the Bicentennial Heritage Committee. It has been developed by a dozen ministers at several luncheon meetings. It has the endorsement of The Bicentennial Heritage Committee, The Residents of Old Wilmington, and The Historical Wilmington Foundation.

The project is historic in motivation, ecumenic in spirit, thanksgiving in mood, and inter-group in participation. A charge of five dollars per adult (half for children under fifteen) includes both Sundays and a souvenir booklet. Meeting place will be the First Presbyterian Church at Third and Orange Streets, at 2:00 PM Sunday, November 9 for the first six churches, to provide parking for a walking tour of the first group of congregations, and booklets. Second series on November 16 starts at Grace United Methodist Church, at Grace and Fourth Streets.

The Belk-Beery Book Store provides a central location for procuring tickets downtown. Proceeds are earmarked for the interfaith church kindergarten and the Wilmington-New Hanover Museum for Bicentennial purposes.

Rainy Days

by Karen Fokakis

As I sit here peering out the window, I see reflections of rain on stained glass and in the same way I see my life. Lord, thank you for the Love and Peace you give me that the human mind can't understand. Yes, Lord, even on a rainy day I can have sunshine because you are in my heart. Lord, even when times are bad, like car trouble and having no money to fix it, troubles at home, the loss of a friend for loving you, school pressure, you stand by my side picking me up each time I fall. Lord, even when I am so blinded by my tears that I can't see beyond life itself you reach down with your gentle hand and dry my tears and say it was for those tears I died. All I can do is thank you, all that I can do is pray for this man called JESUS gave me life itself. Lord, help me to be what you want me to be, to Love instead of being Loved, to understand, to give of myself, to be friend as you have been a friend to me. Lord, let your Love shine through so bright, even in those darkest hours, and yes Lord, even on rainy days.

the still point "Walking In The Marketplace"

You've heard of Christian Fellowship and that meets a variety of needs for a variety of people but there are other things happening on campus. Have you heard of The Marketplace? You may find it almost any Thursday morning at 7:45 AM sleepily sipping coffee in the small dining room in the cafeteria. There is a 90 cents admission charge but that is only because you can't enter the gilded doors of our cafeteria without paying your way or flashing your meal ticket.

What kind of beast walks in The Marketplace? Well, it is a group (isn't everybody these days?) which changes shapes and colors from time to time. It is an open group (well, at least we think so) which makes an attempt early in the day to bring one's brain into focus and to take a critical look at some serious ethical issues. It's probably appropriate at this point to divulge from whence came the name. The Marketplace finds itself in juxtaposition to The Upper Room, the mystical ritualistic and/or devotional side of life. If one's inner beliefs are to be of any consequence in life, they must be brought out of The Upper Room so to speak, and exposed the light and life of The Marketplace. Hence we attempt to examine the issues and ideas being peddled like so many wares by hawkers in the marketplace of life.

Some areas we have already touched have been science and scripture, women and the church, decision-making processes, the relationship of one's faith to the academic community, and others we may touch range from abortion to political involvement to questions of euthanasia and whatever seems important enough to look at.

The next several weeks we will be looking at portions of The Screwtape Letters, a small allegorical style book by C.S. Lewis noted English author, critic and practical theologian.

This book is a collection of imaginary letters between the hero, Screwtape, and his "devil-worker," Wormwood. Lewis cautions that purpose of the letters is "not to speculate about diabolical life but to throw light from a new angle on the life of men."

You're invited to bring your body and your brains out into The Marketplace to share but not proselytize.

With some expectation,
Vivan Martindale
Campus Minister

COMPLIANCE WITH FEDERAL SEX DISCRIMINATION REGULATIONS

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 prohibits sex discrimination in all facets of institutions of higher education and is being implemented by HEW through a complicated and extensive regulation.

The Title IX regulation requires that each institution complete a self-evaluation and change by July 21, 1976, and that each institution appoint an individual who will be responsible for that effort. In compliance with this directive, I have the dubious distinction of having been appointed the Title IX Compliance Official for our campus. My office number is Alderman 113 and my telephone extension is 219.

The "basic notice" relative to compliance with Title IX by UNC-W is as follows:

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington does not discriminate on the basis of sex in the education programs or activities which it operates.

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington is required by Title IX not to discriminate in a manner. It requires that each institution complete a self-evaluation and change by July 21, 1976, and that each institution appoint an individual who will be responsible for that effort. Living in Love

Upon arriving for another year at UNC-W, I was filled with excitement and anticipation and still feel that way. The colleges and universities are the training centers for America's future leadership and our future leaders must come to a realization of the truth and accuracy of God's Word. This is my purpose this year at UNC-W and it really excites me.

The Way Campus Outreach is sponsored by the Way International, a Biblical Research and Teaching Institute. The Way International is a non-denominational non-sectarian organization which, by researching the Word of God, presents keys and principles that can help people live the more abundant life which Jesus Christ made available in John 10:10.

The Way Campus Outreach will sponsor fellowships in the Pub at 7:30 p.m. Monday through Friday nights. Instead of meeting only once a week night fellowships are held each weeknight so that believers can come each day for sweet fellowship, teaching of God's Word, and, if they have any needs, then they can have them met daily. The household of God is not only dependent upon the Father but also on His children whom He works through in a spirit of love.

This is the Way Campus Outreach: A fellowship of believers who truly are having a love affair with life because they are sons of God with power. Our fellowships are open to any UNC-W students and their friends. We would be truly blessed to have all students and faculty come and get blessed any night at 7:30 p.m.

God Bless You.

CALCULUS AND ANALYTIC GEOMETRY

In the Mathematics Department lounge at UNC-Chapel Hill hangs the original charter of the UNC-CH chapter of Pi Mu Epsilon, the national honorary mathematical fraternity. The year printed on the charter is 1948 and the top name on the list of founding members of the chapter was that of a student, Fred Boyer Wright. Now, twenty-seven years later, at the end of a long hall leading from the lounge past a 40,000 volume math-physics library and some offices of the 31 professors and secretaries that constitute the UNC-CH Math Department is a door on which a plaque reads, "Fred B. Wright, Chairman."

What sort of person could successfully administer to the needs and idiosyncrasies of 30 other Ph.D.'s, approximately 150 undergraduate math majors, 30 graduate students, and some 3700 other student enrolled in math courses at UNC-CH last fall?

Dr. Wright's academic credentials include an B.A. and M.A. from Chapel Hill in 1947 and 1948 respectively and then a Ph.D. from the University of Chicago in 1953. From 1954 til 1968 when he returned to UNC-CH, he was at Tulane. During that time, he was a visiting professor at Cambridge from 1958 to 1959 and at Northwestern in 1963 as well as a Sloan Foundation Fellow from 1958 to 1962. Dr. Wright has been a member of the mathematics advisory panel for the National Science Foundation since 1971, only one of the national positions he has held.

The list of credentials could continue, but you have the opportunity to meet Dr. Wright yourself. The Math Club of UNC-W is sponsoring a talk by Dr. Wright entitled, "How Geometry Invented the Real Numbers" to which the public is invited. The talk will be given at 6:00 p.m., Wednesday, October 15, in Room C-114. Although his past research interests have been in functional analysis and algebra, Dr. Wright has recently been involved in studying the history of mathematical ideas. After the talk, he will discuss the UNC-CH mathematics graduate program to any interested students.

Two flights of bombers were flying at 300 mph on converging courses 30 degrees apart, each flight being 240 miles from the rendezvous. From above each flight a fighter plane, flying at 500 mph, flew to the other bomber flight and returned, continuing the shuttle until the bomber flights met. One fighter always headed directly toward his objective, while the other fighter always flew an interception course. Which fighter flew the greater distance, and how much farther did he fly? Include a sketch.

RULES

1. First correct solution wins a prize.
2. Anyone who has not yet received a bachelor's degree is eligible to participate.
3. Solutions must be legibly written on 8-1/2 x 11" paper and must contain name and mailing address of solver.
4. Submit solutions to Math Department secretary and have her mark it with the time and date of submission.
5. All entries become the property of Phi Mu Epsilon.
6. As soon as winner is determined, announcement will be made by posting the winning solution in this space.
7. New contest begins two weeks from date on current problem sheet.

SGA President Speaks Out on Publications

Yearbooks, their cost and availability, has been a consistent source of controversy this year. Caught in a financial bind, the Fledgling has run into several problems, including a yearbook shortage this fall.

The problem seems to be one of economics and inflation. Although some people have placed the blame for the present situation squarely on the Student Government Association, according to Steve Hobbs, SGA President, such criticism is unjustified.

Each semester students pay $70.50 in student activity fees. Hobbs pointed out that only $12.00 of this money goes to the Student Government Association. The amount of money allotted to the SGA has remained constant for the past two years, while costs have risen dramatically. In addition, the activity fee, already the lowest of the sixteen university campuses, will not be increased next year. As Hobbs pointed out, "it doesn't take a Mathematics Major to figure out that you can't buy what you could two years ago with the same amount of money." If the SGA were to give the Fledgling enough money to buy a yearbook for every student (approximately $10.00 of the $12.00 allotted to the SGA), then other programs such as concerts or movies would suffer.

Many other North Carolina schools and colleges have faced similar problems and adopted various solutions. Some have eliminated the yearbook entirely, while others have adopted a subscription plan. Recently, the UNC-W Student Senate approved a $5.00 subscription plan requested by the publications committee. The approval was for one year only, however, until some other plan can be worked out. President Hobbs feels that the financial problems of the various campus publications should be studied by a group of non-biased students. To facilitate such a study, he has announced a plan to create an ad hoc committee, subordinate to him to look into the problems of the publications. When asked if any staff people from the Seahawk, Atlantis or Fledgling would be appointed to the committee, he declined to rule out the possibility, but commented that, "they would tend to be biased."

The problems of financing campus publications are widespread within the university system. The North Carolina Association Governments, of which Hobbs is a member, has launched their own investigation to tackle the problem statewide. In the words of the president, "We want to see that everyone gets everything possible for his money's worth."

A regular session of the UNC-W Senate was called to order by Carol Moore on October 7 at 11:30 in Room 201-A.

Rufus Butner gave the invocation.

The minutes were read. President Steve Hobbs addressed the Senate. He had inquired about other universities' policies of publishing a yearbook and listed several of them.

President Hobbs also recommended Leonard Hutchins for Attorney General.

Rufus Butner moved that Leonard Hutchins be accepted as Attorney General. The motion was seconded and discussion followed. The motion passed.

LeRoy Oakley reported for the finance committee. He suggested that Darlene Pear-sall's proposal of selling Fledgling subscriptions at $5.00 be accepted.

A motion was made to accept the proposal at $5.00 Fledgling subscriptions. The motion was seconded and discussion followed. The motion passed.

Those who favored the motion are: Haddon Clark, Clark Sizemore, Rufus Butner, Gary Coburn, Clay Fairley, Kent Flowers, Paul Laird, Judy Bryant, Robert Jones, John Crawley, Cathy Sizemore, Ricky Patton, Gary Shipman, David Davis and Scott Olson.

Those who opposed the motion are: Betty Price, Kevin Beard, Carol Rains, and Barbara McKay.

Robert Jones presented the pub policy rules.

Barbara McKay made a motion to accept the pub policy rules. The motion was seconded and passed.

A motion was made to allocate the Atlantis an additional $1500.00. The motion was seconded and passed. Those who favored the motion are: Haddon Clark, Clark Sizemore, Rufus Butner, Gary Coburn, Clay Fairley, Kent Flowers, Paul Laird, Judy Bryant, Robert Jones, John Crawley, Cathy Sizemore, Ricky Patton, Gary Shipman, David Davis and Scott Olson.

more: Clay Fairley, Barbara McKay, Carol Rains, Judy Bryant, Robert Jones, Scott Olson, John Crawley, Cathy Sizemore, Ricky Patton and Gary Shipman.

Those who opposed the motion are: Gary Coburn, Rufus Butner, Kent Flowers, Kevin Beard, Betty Price, David Davis, and Paul Laird.

A motion was made for adjournment. The motion was seconded, passed, and the meeting adjourned at 12:10. Respectfully submitted, Ms. Sharon Davis

This message can help save you from cancer.

Last year thousands of people died of cancer who didn't have to die of cancer.

They died because they didn't know that there are seven things you can do to help protect yourself from cancer.

- 1 Have your doctor give you a complete health checkup every year.
- 2 If you're a man or woman over 40, make sure that checkup includes a procto exam.
- 3 If you're a woman make sure it includes a simple, easy Pap test.
- 4 If you're a woman make sure you examine your breasts once a month.
- 5 Ask your dentist to check your mouth when he checks your teeth.
- 6 When you're out in the sun cover up and use screening lotion.
- 7 Don't smoke cigarettes.

These seven safeguards are saving lives every day. They're easy to follow. The next life they save could be your own.

Soccer Team Tenth in South

The UNC-W soccer team has been voted as the number ten team in the South. This covers a 12 state area and includes all teams in NCAA Division II, Division I, and NAIA. The Hawks are now 8 and 1 and have recorded 6 shutouts including their last five games.

TIM WILLETTE COVERS his injured hand as he leaves for the hospital.

HAWKS SMASH PEMBROKE; BLANK HIGH POINT

The UNC-W soccer team ran their District 29 record up to 2-0 as they completely routed Pembroke State 10-0. The Seahawks dominated every aspect of the game.

The Hawks played unselfish team ball, passing well, even though the match was such a runaway.

Nino Fleri lead the attack with four goals. Carlos Escobar had two goals and two assists and continued to lead the team in total points with 21. Others adding to the total were Eddie Brock with two goals, Gonzalo Rada with one, David Kovack had three assists, and Steve Paul and Brian Boyd with one assist each.

This was the Hawks' fourth consecutive shutout of the season and the fifth of the year.

In their next outing, the Seahawks faced High Point College in what turned out to be the most physical contest of the season. One of the casualties of the day was goalie Tim Willette who had to have 12 stitches to close a cut in his hand.

The first half of the match ended in a 0-0 tie although UNC-W had outshot the visitors 16-4 and had missed several good opportunities to score.

High Point came out strong in the second half and several times threatened to score.

With about 15 minutes left in the game, Willette was injured while recovering a loose ball. He was replaced by sophomore Bruce Maysilles.

The team came to life and David Wychel scored on an assist from Gonzalo Rada with about 10 minutes left in the game for a 1-0 victory.

The Seahawks travel to St. Andrews Thursday and return home Tuesday against The Citadel.

Player of the Week

David Wychel, a senior Physical Education major, has been chosen soccer player of the week. Wychel had a goal and two assists in the Pembroke game and scored the lone goal in the victory over High Point.

TONI BRYANT SPIKES the ball against East Carolina University

VOLLEYBALL TEAM WHIPS ECU AND CHOWAN

The women's volleyball team won a pair of matches last week to up their overall record to 6-2.

In their first match the Lady Hawks met East Carolina University. The opening game saw the Hawks loose the first five points as they appeared to be very nervous. Coach Jan Donahue called a time out in an attempt to settle them down. The strategy apparently worked, although they lost the game, they began to play up to their potential.

The second game was in the words of Coach Donahue, "our most competitive of the season. We played super defense." The Hawks eventually emerged on top 19-17.

The momentum of that game carried over into the third and deciding game as UNC-W won it 15-19.

In the Junior Varsity match

the Hawks again dropped the first game and won the last two. Donahue was plesed with the mature play of the J.V.'s. The team traveled to Chowan for their second match of the week. The Lady Hawks won both matches easily and many players got valuable experience.

Coach Donahue feels the team is beginning to gel and play with consistency.

And sometimes you don't want to; sometimes you've used an instrument in the most definitive way, and when that person leaves you, you can't replace him with anybody else. That happened with my first sextet, after my trumpet player left; then we added flute. So we've been through a lot of instruments.

"Likewise with the oboist, Paul McCandless; there is nobody in the world that can do an oboe like he can. It's senseless to try to find just an oboe player to fill in. The Consort can be any combination of instruments."

Though I considered the harp only adequate in some of the compositions that the Consort had performed before, Joel Andrews played beautifully in the new work, laying down a myriad pattern of chords from which Paul and Dave worked their magic, or performing alone, as he did so brilliantly with the Bach prelude.

Percussion is important in the new Consort—not only in establishing a rhythm, but also in creating a melody, and effect an interchange with other instruments—thus the incredible assortment of percussion instruments. Paul explained, "Percussion is limitless; once you get into the realm of percussion, the world is open to you. You'll find that every culture has amazing percussion traditions. Drums in all sorts of shapes go back as far as man."

Russ Hartenburger and Bob Becker, who are both candidates at the same Eastern seaboard university and who have been playing together for years, performed on dozens of instruments, completing the ensemble and playing together and/or separately as the situation demanded. Their composition for percussion encompassed a wall of African instruments, beginning with chime-like gongs and cymbals, ending with a Ugandan amadinda, a three-man xylophone. They played in simple and compound rhythms (sometimes in no apparent rhythm at all), exhibiting an incredible amount of agility and coordination in tempo and phrasing. Kettledrums, trap sets, tablas, congas, and a collection of drums that reminded me of hanging garbage cans filled the stage completely so that the musicians had difficulty in moving about.

Under Winter's direction, all these seemingly diverse instruments came together into one harmonious whole. Their compositions were rather free and open to personal expression and embellishment, not only because they are just beginning to learn the nuances of playing with each other, but also because this form leaves room for continual expansion and change. I asked Paul whether the music was constructed loosely to shift with the musicians' mood and emphasis. "It's change," he said, "I am concert to concert; last night we had the freedom to do that because when the audience is so with you, you can carry them with you. You can carry them further, than, say, two nights ago, when we played in Buffalo, the State University there, in the gym. A rock concert with Mary Almond Band, where the kids really just rocked. We couldn't stretch out as long, we were only playing for an hour, so we condensed it."

The fact that good improvisation is so hard to realize points to the reason for Winter Consort: "We are the reaction to the fact that there are so many difficulties in getting a group together. Egos get in the way of a group of good musicians. That's why there are so many good single musicians around and so few groups. Our musical academic system allows for no groups tradition. There are some small ensembles in the European tradition, but they are of one family of instruments, there are no combinations." Like Winter Consort.

Joel spoke about the relation of music and life, reflecting many Eastern ideas and practices which he believes bring man to a better understanding of his dynamic responsibilities. He explained that if one of two identically tuned strings were plucked, the second string would also vibrate and sound. We all have the capacity to be that "second string," and our sensory perception is "tuned" to accept and vibrate with all that we hear around us. We began chanting in the dark, om-ma-ne-pad-ma-hum. "Everything is vibration; if we can come together with the vibrations of each other, we can tune ourselves to each other." Breathing, chanting, vibration, perception, awareness. When one begins to feel the vibrating harp string evoking a response in the body, he is sympathetically resonating in union with the sound, and he becomes the sound. "We do that all the time to each other with words and ideas. Thus, we have to be responsible for those vibrations; we have to know what we're doing. Every cell in our body responds to the vibrations around us. Unlike touch or smell, we can't escape sound, because our whole body responds to it."

Dave complemented Joel's remarks: "If we think of ourselves first as musicians, then as particular persons, we'll be more open to each other and give in return when we play. It gets down to listening to each other. The music we want to create is like some kind of organic life, and there is an infinity of possibilities as to the form it can take."

Everyone got an opportunity to play, if only to say that they jammed the Winter Consort, but hopefully to "lose themselves to come to their senses," as Paul terms it. Music is not simply earning a living for the Consort, but a philosophy, a means of expressing their being and direction. Thus, when Paul said, "We'd like to reach as many people as we can," I understood not a desire for commercial success, but a kind of musical proselytism. "You must lose yourself to come to your senses."

"I don't think that any of the ideas that we talked about in the workshop are that original, nor are any of the elements in the Consort's music or instrumentation. We're pulling together things that maybe haven't been combined before but that have existed for centuries. It's very difficult to do that in an arena full of people who are there for a much more surface kind of experience, entertainment. This was a much more intimate kind of setting, with people sitting on the floor, and the lights out. Here you begin to touch the reaches of people's beings."

"It's very simple to do; it's just new in our culture. In India, people do it all the time."

It's just that the inner life in the West is a very undeveloped image. There is definitely a spiritual renaissance going on now. There are all sorts of different paths, but they all lead to the same thing which is God. It's a very exciting time, especially to be making music. People are beginning to realize that music can be used towards that aspiration."

I asked Paul if there was anything he would like to add or underline in the interview. He replied, "I think you should say it, I think your reactions are more important than my philosophizing. We have to be open to each other, and really, to preach, so you should say what you think in your review, not as a critic, but as a person, a subjective force."

But what can I say? I can say that Winter Consort is one of the finest musical groups I have ever heard, but in the light of this article, that means nothing. I can say that as musicians, they play very well, but how do I define well? I can say that they exhibited a superb control of their music and an excellent ability to work together, but that's evident.

I can say they've got it. Yes, that's right. You know, they've really got it.

UNC-W Hosts International Awards

by Ray Warren

Dr. Shinn, one of the creators of the Schweitzer Prizes, tells how they originated. (photo by duncan dawkins)

Tradition and prestige are often a vital part of a college campus. New schools, like UNC-W, often lack these qualities for years after their creation. Seahawks can be proud, however, as this campus will soon acquire a good deal of prestige with the presentation of the first Albert Schweitzer International Prizes.

The Schweitzer prizes are one of only two sets of awards that are international in scope. The other awards are, of course, the Nobel Prizes. The limited number of such prizes adds greatly to their importance and prestige.

The prizes themselves are basically the brainchild of two UNC-W professors. According to Dr. Gerald Shinn, of the Philosophy and Religion department, the plans for the awards had their beginning during a serious illness. Dr. Shinn explained that during a recent illness he and Mr. Dempsey (Mr. J. Carl Dempsey of Earth Sciences) began discussing the lack of established traditions and distinctiveness at UNC-W. In discussing various personalities the name Albert Schweitzer was mentioned. As Schweitzer's one hundredth birthday would be this year (January 1975), the idea of presenting an award in his honor slowly evolved in the minds of the two professors. Taking advantage of his freedom from teaching duties during his convalescence, Dr. Shinn began "cranking out ideas and seeking support."

It was decided to award a prize for Music, for Medicine and for service to humanity, the three areas in which Dr. Schweitzer excelled. In order to assure that nominations would be received from all over the world, several committees were formed. International, national and North Carolina nominating committees were created. Nominations were received from every state and 15 foreign countries. The actual selection was made by an international selection committee.

To celebrate the awards, several are planned. Dr. Shinn expressed hope that the various activities will focus attention on UNC-W and "set us apart as an institution of higher education." Planned events include: The awards ceremony at Kenan Auditorium (October 23) at 2:00 p.m. This ceremony is open to the public and is a good opportunity for students to meet the honored guests.

Tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m., a Bach concert will be presented at St. James Church and is also open to the public. A private reception at the home of the Chancellor for the recipients and out-of-town guests will follow at 8:30 p.m. UNC-W students will be represented at the reception by Tom Hodges and his wife Barbara who were selected by SGA President Steve Hobbs.

Friday will feature a symposium on "The Impact of Dr. Schweitzer's Philosophy of Life on the World." Friday night a buffet will be held for the out-of-town guests.

In addition, as an extra event, Dr. Tetsumaro Hayashi, of Japan, a well-known authority on John Steinbeck, will present a lecture on the women in The Grapes of Wrath Friday morning in the Library.

The Albert Schweitzer International Prizes is just one effort by the Southeastern North Carolina Educational and Historical Foundation to improve the quality of life in Wilmington and Southeastern North Carolina. Financial aid was given by the City of Wilmington, New Hanover County, and Boroughs-Welcome: An English drug chain. Dr. Shinn commented that the past few weeks has seen a tremendous rise in local excitement and interest in the awards. The ceremonies will also be attended by dignitaries from all over the world. Hopefully, world attention will be focused on UNC-W. Of course, this campus is not as old as UNC-Chapel Hill, or as big as N.C. State, but then if quality and prestige counts for anything, UNC-W will be the leading state university this week.

If you live at the dorm (or belong to a club or campus organization), you're eligible to participate in the Fledgling Beer Contest.

The group that purchases the most 1976 Fledglings by Wednesday, October 29, at 4:00 will have a couple of free kegs of Schlitz to hold a party that night.

Sales representatives will be at the snack bar in the morning, in the pub every afternoon, and in the dorm every night. When you purchase a yearbook, simply tell them what organization or dorm floor you want to get credit for it. So not only will you receive a great yearbook in August, but you may also enjoy a great beer bash next Wednesday. In order to receive a 1976 Fledgling, you must purchase it—no one is exempt. The book sells to students (taking 6 or more hours) for $5.00 and to other students, faculty, and staff for $8.00. Talk your teachers and friends into buying one in the name of your organization. It's dollar revenue that counts.

BIKECENTENNIAL

Be a leader of our nation's Bicentennial celebration. Bikecentennial is seeking 1400 leaders to run the inaugural tours in 1976 of the first Trans-America Bicycle Trail.

Leaders will receive food, lodging, and normal tour services as well as a small daily expense allowance, all part of an adventure of a lifetime.

Over 50 courses will be offered at four major training centers in Oregon, Colorado, the Midwest and MidAtlantic regions. The seven-day sessions include classroom and field instruction in bicycling technique, safety, repair, group dynamics, touring and special bike and camping skills and first aid. In addition to the training centers, courses will be held at Pt. Reyes, N. California; Missoula, Montana; and in New England from April 10 through 16, 1976. Cost, including food, lodging, instruction, books and materials, is $75.00.

BIKECENTENNIAL, a non-profit, charitable organization, is sponsoring the tours varying in length from 12 to 82 days, covering up to 4,500 miles of America's most historic and scenic regions. The establishment of the Trail marks the beginning of a long term commitment by Bikecentennial to develop a network of long distance bicycle trails criss-crossing the U.S.

EDITORIALS—Seahawks

Can't Fly with Wet Tails

As a follow-up from my editorial, "From the Spotty to the Spirited," in which it was emphasized that the Spirit Club is trying to create an atmosphere of spirit at our UNC-W games, I have found that there are some, other than students, who are impeding this spirit.

My attention focuses upon the recent home soccer matches which I have attended. At these matches, I have had to sit my gluteus maximus on that wet Mother Earth. What's my point? Well, there are fine, sturdy bleachers around the baseball diamond but there are none at the soccer field! Now may I ask, is this baseball season? No, it is soccer season.

Lines on Wine

by R. Corbin Houchins
E & J Gallo Winery

Last week we looked at wine. In this column, I'll describe the step that requires the most care: smelling it.

What we are seeking are aromas, which are smells derived from the grape, and bouquet, which consists, at least potentially, of somewhat more complex scents, not necessarily related to the odor of the original grape juice.

Bouquet develops from natural chemical changes which take place as wine ages. The wine does not have to be old or of a particular vintage to have a bouquet. Usually, some bouquet will begin developing right after the wine is made, even before it is bottled.

The main difficulty with smelling wine is that your sense of smell fatigues extremely rapidly. If you take three whiffs of a wine close together, the first is likely to be fairly accurate, the second, extremely distorted and the third, of little value. The key, therefore, is in paying close attention to the first smell and in considering it for a few seconds while your sense of smell rests.

Swirl the glass in a circle parallel to the floor so as to coat the inside surface with wine. (The purpose is to increase the surface area from which the volatile components can evaporate.) At this point, some professional tasters prefer to take a long deep sniff with the nose four or five inches from the glass, ponder that, then let the sense of smell rest for a little while before swirling the glass again, sticking the nose well down into it and sniffing deeply. The majority go directly to the nose-in-glass sniff. In either case, you should breathe in at a moderate pace and fill the lungs, then exhale slowly. What really improves with practice is not the olfactory senses themselves, but the ability to concentrate on and remember what you are smelling. Closing your eyes may help your concentration.

In smelling wine, I look for cleanliness (absence of disagreeable odors), a smell that is vinous (i.e., "like wine" rather than grape juice or something else), and, in some wines, characteristic aromas of certain grape varieties, certain grape smells which suggest fruits other than grapes, overtones of spices, and perhaps some subliminal suggestions of things having nothing directly to do with wine. Like a pine forest or a sea breeze. In all cases, however, the main question is whether the smell in sum is pleasing and complementary to the occasion.

The next column will complete our introduction to tasting technique with at last a taste of the wine.

Toyo-View Demonstration

The masters of photography have always needed a photographic system that would allow the full expression of their creativity. Their choice since photography's infancy has been the view camera, for in spite of the tremendous technological advances made in the field of photography since Alfred Stieglitz started taking pictures of the New York skyline through his apartment window, no system has ever been developed that can do the things a view camera is capable of doing.

The Toyo View is designed to take full advantage of the unique capabilities of large format photography. Its only limitation is your own imagination.

THE SEARCH FOR Dracula

For the Halloween season, the Student Union Program Board is presenting Dr. Raymond McNally and his program, "The Search for Dracula."

Dr. McNally and Radu Florescu, professors at Boston College, co-authored the book, "In Search of Dracula" in which they relate their trip to Romania and Transylvania where they "got the goods" on the Dracula myth. What they discovered was a Dracula that wasn't quite what Bram Stoker and Bela Lugosi would have us believe. Yes, a real Dracula, a Romanian Prince, but not a vampire. Not that he was a nice guy, either.

Dracula was a nickname of sorts. It means "son of the Devil" because his father's name was Dracul (or devil in Romanian). He was also known as Vlad the Impaler because of his nasty habit of leaving bodies around impaled on stakes. Once, he created a "forest" of 20,000 impaled Turks to discourage an impending invasion.

They also found the vampire legend to be alive and kicking. Even today the villagers wear garlic to ward off punctured necks. Also, any corpse still looking healthy after a day or so gets a stake driven through its heart, just to be on the safe side. Dracula's castle is still avoided by the villagers, and, true to form, Dracula's body was missing when his crypt was opened in 1931.

These and other gory details will be recounted by Dr. McNally in his program. Also to be included are films of Transylvania and Dracula movie excerpts. The program starts at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, October 29 at Kenan Auditorium. Admission is free with Student ID, all others will be charged $1.00 at the door. After the program, Dr. McNally will be available in the Pub for questions and a chance to meet him.

Be sure to look out for your horse and coffin!

COFFEE HOUSE AUDITIONS

Auditions are being held to find talent for the coffeehouse. The auditions will be open to all people interested, especially UNC-W students, faculty, and staff. We are interested in all types of entertainment: music, theatre, dramatic reading, from the usual to the unusual. Each person or group will have ten minutes to perform. The judges will be the Coffeehouse Entertainment Committee.

Due to our limited budget, we cannot afford to pay our local entertainment. However, a hat will be passed around and the audience may contribute what they will.

Auditions will be held on Tuesday, October 21, at 11:30 a.m., Wednesday, October 22 at 12:30 p.m., and Thursday, October 23 at 11:30 a.m. and 3:00 p.m. All auditions will take place in the coffeehouse located in the Student Union Building. If you need a different audition time or you want more information, contact Linda Moore, Student Activities, in the pub.

Last year
8,000 women died of a cancer that can be cured.

Cancer is not fair. It can strike anyone. However, the cancer that can only strike women, cervical cancer, is one of the most curable cancers of all. If it's detected early and treated promptly.

There is a simple test that can determine if you have cervical cancer in its earliest and most curable stage.

It's called the Pap test. The Pap test is quick, easy, painless and can help save your life. Call your doctor and make an appointment now.

Last year 8,000 women died of one of the most curable cancers of all. And they died needlessly. Because if every woman had a Pap test just once a year, cervical cancer would no longer be a major threat to women.

FRISBEE FRENZY GRIPS PSYCHIATRIST

(CPS)--What is likely to be the definitive work on the frisbee has been compiled by a Grove, CA practicing psychiatrist.

In a 221-page treatise, Dr. Stencil Johnson explores the history of the saucer, as well as frisbee aerodynamics, turbulence in flight and medical problems for frisbee players. Johnson's interest in the frisbee goes beyond the book, however. He has written Forest Lawn Memorial Parks and Mortuaries requesting upon death, his body be cremated and mixed with the finest grade raw industrial polyethylene to make 25 high-quality, professional model frisbees.

Forest Lawn, however, has only agreed to the cremation.

(CPS)--Like old soldiers, old laws don't die, they just fade out of the public mind. But old laws regulating food sales still exist in yellowed sections of the law books of many states.

For instance, it's still against the law for a Nebraska tavern to sell beer unless there is a pot of soup brewing.

In Kansas, an old law forbids eating rattlesnake meat in Carrying an ice cream cone in your pocket is strictly forbidden by a Lexington, KY ordinance, while in Winona Lake, IN just eating an ice cream cone at a counter on Sunday is illegal.

And in Gary, IN it's against the law to ride a street car or attend a theater within four hours after eating garlic.

The course covered the physiology of sex organs, masturbation, homosexuals and other topics students were interested in.

Gynecologist W.M. Bryan, the instructor, said that students "used to come in Bryan said attendance dropped, either because "the excitement wore off or everyone knew what they wanted to. Only a handful of students started attending and I just felt it was no longer needed."

What the University needs now, Bryan said, is a course in the psychological implications of sex or a course on venereal

College Newspapers, Drinking, Favorite Student Pastimes

(CPS)--College newspapers are the most widely-read medium of college students, according to a survey of 500 students on 22 campuses across the country. The survey was conducted by a Chicago-based advertising firm last spring.

The survey found that 87 percent of the students polled had read their college newspaper within the last week.

Playboy was the favorite monthly magazine, followed by Reader's Digest and the National Lampoon.

The survey also delved into the drinking habits of college students and found that drinking is still a very popular preoccupation of students. Of the students polled, 48 percent had purchased beer in the last month, 29 percent wine and 25 percent some type of hard liquor. More than half--57 percent--said they had purchased some type of alcoholic beverage in a bar or restaurant within the same month.

Binder: Physician With "compassion for all life"

WILMINGTON--Dr. Theodor Binder, a man whose life has been greatly influenced by the humanitarian and medical interests of Dr. Albert Schweitzer, will receive the first Albert Schweitzer International Prize in Medicine during the awards ceremony at The University of North Carolina at Wilmington on October 23.

Born in Lorrach, Baden, Germany, in 1919, Binder, through his boyhood reading of the novels of James Fenimore Cooper, developed an early concern for the welfare of the American Indian. He was further influenced by his father, Johannes Binder, who directed a home and school for children and was a specialist in education for emotionally disturbed children.

The humanitarian undertakings of Johannes Binder in connection with orphanages in Baden had a part in bringing about a meeting between his eleven-year-old son, Theodor, and Dr. Albert Schweitzer. In the early 1930's, when Schweitzer was on a visit from the Congo to Germany, he became interested in Binder's activities. Hearing the doctor talk about his hospital in Lambarene, French Equatorial Africa, inspired Theodor with the determination to be a doctor also. Meanwhile he spent his free time in the Schweitzer pursuits of reading philosophy and playing the organ.

He began his higher education at Freiburg University, but with the outbreak of World War II the following year, he was conscripted into the German army. After serving in occupied France with Medical Corps, he was sent to the Russian front, wounded and sent home to Germany where he resumed his medical studies.

Toward the end of the war Binder was forewarned of possible liquidation because both his name and his wife's name had appeared on the Nazi arrest list for their active participation in the resistance movement against Hitler. They escaped at once to Switzerland where Binder made use of his medical skill in refugee camps and eventually enrolled at the Swiss Tropical Institute of the University of Basel. He obtained a diploma in tropical medicine in 1947 and an M.D. degree in 1948.

While employed as chief of clinic of the Swiss Tropical Institute, Dr. Binder met a Peruvian diplomat who told him that his knowledge of tropical medicine was much needed in Peru. Under a two-year contract with the Ministry of Public Health of the Peruvian government, he immigrated to Peru, and as a public health officer from 1948 to 1950 he helped a group of German nuns at Oxapampa to build and organize a hospital.

In 1950 Binder moved to Lima, obtained a revalidation of his M.D. degree and Peruvian citizenship, and began to establish a lucrative private practice in the Lima suburb of Miraflores. He resumed his medical studies by taking a post as an unpaid assistant from 1951 to 1956 at the Universidad Nacional Mayor de San Marcos in Lima. He also worked in the Leprosy Service in Lima and studied at the clinic of Professor Kalk in Kassel, Germany, for three periods between 1956 and 1962.

"I was happy in Lima," Dr. Binder said, "but something was gnawing at my heart and soul. I turned again to studying the work and philosophy of Dr. Schweitzer, whose impact upon the world was so great. I knew then what I wanted to do."

In 1955 he and Schweitzer met in Germany, and when Schweitzer learned of Binder's desire to establish a hospital in Peru similar to the one in Lambarene he gave his approval to having the mission named Hospital Amazonico Albert Schweitzer. In 1956, he gave up his practice in Lima, sold his house and bought some twenty-five acres of land on a hill overlooking Lake Yarinachocha about eight miles from Pucallpa.

Realizing that it would take several years to build his hospital, he opened a temporary clinic in Pucallpa, where he and his small staff treated an average of 60 patients a day. In August 1957 Binder broke ground for the 28-bed hospital and on January 14, 1960, Albert Schweitzer's eighty-fifth birthday, the hospital was inaugurated.

Hospital Amazonico Albert Schweitzer, with a medical staff in 1963 of two doctors, four nurses and three laboratory assistants, treated about 200 outpatients four days a week and offered medical service to some 50,000 Indians and mestizos. The magnitude of Dr. Binder's efforts to bring health to the jungle is suggested by statistics showing that the infant mortality rate among Amazonian Indians is 50 percent and that eight out of ten children die before they reach adolescence. More than 80 percent of the Indians suffer from tuberculosis. Amoebic dysentery plagues a similar number and many others are afflicted by leprosy, cancer, heart disease, venereal diseases and malaria.

To alleviate suffering from these and other maladies is only one of Dr. Binder's objectives. He has set up an educational program or preventive medicine that provides teaching in hygiene and nutrition and has instituted a nurses' training course to enable informed Indian men and women to work among the jungle inhabitants in a cooperative effort between the hospital and the tribal witch doctors.

In the three-fold solution to his hospital's problem Binder also includes an attempt to contribute to the economic welfare of the people who receive his medical aid. Because his patients are mainly woodworkers and primitive farmers, he has encouraged the sale and export of their handicrafts and has launched agricultural projects to help the Indians in developing the food productivity that will meet their nutritional needs.

Dr. Binder is fluent in German, English, Spanish and several Indian dialects. He lives simply, and his recreation includes beekeeping, music and reading poetry and philosophy.

In philosophical outlook his counterpart to Schweitzer's "reverence for life" is "compassion for all life" and "the will to help."

ALBERT SCHWEITZER: human doctor, and philosopher.

Schweitzer and Bach

WILMINGTON--Albert Schweitzer, humanitarian, doctor and philosopher, was, in the beginning a child prodigy in music. Composing and concertizing at the piano from the age of seven, the boy was headed for a career in music, and later wrote the most definitive biography ever done of his favorite composer, Johann Sebastian Bach.

A lecture by a medical missionary to Africa, heard by the youthful Schweitzer, re-directed his life toward helping people in underdeveloped countries combat disease. He paid his way through medical school by giving concerts and lectures on Bach, and music remained a vital part of his life. The most familiar published picture of the doctor in his Lambarene hospital was of him playing the organ.

In tribute to this facet of his talent and to his love of Bach, a highlight of the upcoming Albert Schweitzer International Prizes program will be a Bach organ concert, given for the public at St. James Episcopal Church, October 23, at 7:30 p.m. Dr. Karel Paukert, curator of the department of musical arts at the Cleveland Museum of Art, will be the organist.

A native of Czechoslovakia, Paukert is a graduate of Prague Conservatory and Royal Conservatory in Ghent. On leaving his native country, he was principal oboist with the Iceland Symphony Orchestra and later served as deputy organist of St. Baron Cathedral in Ghent. He eventually emigrated to the United States and became an American citizen in 1970.

Paukert has served on the faculties at Washington University in St. Louis and Northwestern University where many of his students were recipients of prizes, awards and Fulbright grants.

His energetic devotion to the expansion literature has given impetus to several composers to write organ works for him. His improvisational ability as well as performances of organ literature won him international acclaim and has been received as "perceptive, vibrant, and exciting."

In addition to his United States engagements, Paukert concertizes regularly in Europe and his recitals have been broadcast by leading American, European and Japanese radio stations.

Mother Teresa: Serving to the Poor

WILMINGTON--The first Albert Schweitzer International Prize in Humanities will be awarded to Mother Teresa, a woman dedicated to an austere life of service among "the poorest of the poor," in ceremonies October 23 at The University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

Mother Teresa, born in 1910 to Albanian parents in what is now Skopje, Yugoslavia, is the founder of the Congregation of the Missionaries of Charity. Founded in 1950 with an initial membership of 12, the congregation now has approximately 700 sisters and 100 brothers in more than 50 houses around the world--most of them in Mother Teresa's adopted India.

Working with abandoned and poor children and sick and dying adults, they have over the years taken in for recuperation, sustained care or decent death tens of thousands of penniless ill, including lepers; sheltered 1600 orphans and unwanted children; taught thousands more in their schools; and treated millions in their clinics.

Mother Teresa's first inspiration to work in India came when she was 15 when she heard reports sent home by Yugoslav Jesuit missionaries in Bengal. At 18 she joined the Sisters of Loretto, a community of Irish nuns with a mission in the Archdiocese of Calcutta. After training at Loretto institutions in Dublin, Ireland, and Darjeeling, India, she took her first vows in 1928 and her final vows nine years later.

While teaching and serving as principal at St. Mary's High School in Calcutta, Mother Teresa was struck to the heart by the suffering she glimpsed outside the cloister walls in the teeming slums of Calcutta: the homeless street urchins; the ostracized lepers, some from upper-caste families; and others destitute ill, lying in streets and alleys, the prey of rats and ants. In 1946 she received a "call within a call," as she has described it. "The message was clear. I was to leave the convent and help the poor, while living among them." Two years later the Vatican granted her permission to leave Loretto and pursue her new calling under the jurisdiction of the Archbishop of Calcutta.

After three months of accelerated medical training under the American Medical Missionary Sisters in Patna, India, Mother Teresa went into the Calcutta slums and gathered children cut off from education into her first school which was held in the open air. Soon donors came forth with facilities and volunteers, many of them former students of hers, came to dedicate their lives. The Missionaries of Charity became an official religious community within the Archdiocese of Calcutta in 1950, and 15 years later, the Vatican recognized it as a pontifical congregation directly under the jurisdiction of Rome.

In accordance with the constitution and rules created by Mother Teresa, the members of the congregation take the traditional vows of poverty, chastity and obedience, but the vow of poverty is stricter than in other congregations because, as she has explained, "to be able to love the poor and know the poor we must be poor ourselves." In addition to the three traditional vows, the Missionaries of Charity take a unique fourth vow, a promise to give "whole-hearted free service to the poorest of the poor--to Christ in his distressing disguise."

In 1952 Mother Teresa opened the Nirmal Hriday (Pure Heart) Home for Dying Destitutes in a dormitory--formerly a Kailash temple--located by the city of Calcutta. Although some of those taken in survive, the primary function of Nirmal Hriday is to be a shelter where the dying poor may die in dignity.

The Missionaries of Charity worked only in Calcutta until they developed a sufficiently large nucleus of trained members for expansion elsewhere. In addition to their main school in Calcutta, they opened nine smaller schools in the city, and with money provided by the Magsaysay Foundation, they built a home for orphans and other abandoned children. In 1959 they opened their first house outside Calcutta in Drach. Soon afterward they expanded to Delhi, and thence to 22 other Indian cities. As Mother Teresa traveled abroad in the 1960's, she left small nuclei of nuns in Ceylon, Tanzania, Australia, Venezuela and Italy.

On March 26, 1969, the International Association of Co-Workers of Mother Teresa was affiliated to the Missionaries of Charity. As defined in its constitution, the association is an organization of men, women, and children "who seek to love God in their fellow men through whole-hearted free service to the poorest of the poor of all castes and creeds and who wish to unite themselves in a spirit of prayer and sacrifice with the work of Mother Teresa and the Missionaries of Charity." The constitution describes "the poor" as "those who are seriously deprived, materially, spiritually, or socially, in relation to their neighbors" and it calls especially for "concern for those who are unwanted and unloved."

Menotti and Music

WILMINGTON--The first Albert Schweitzer International Prize in Music will be awarded to Italian composer Gian Carlo Menotti on October 23 at The University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

Born in Cadegliano, Italy, in 1911, Menotti learned the rudiments of music from his mother and began to compose as a child, making his first attempt at an opera entitled THE DEATH OF PIERROT at age 11.

He studied for several years at the Milan Conservatory, then came to the United States to study at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia from 1927 to 1933. Although Menotti has associated himself with the cause of American music and spends most of his time in the United States, he has maintained his Italian citizenship.

As a composer he is unique on the American scene, being the first to create American opera possessing such an appeal to audiences as to become established in permanent repertory. Inheriting the natural Italian gift for operatic drama and expressive singing line, he has adapted these qualities to the peculiar requirements of the American stage and the changing fashions of the period.

Menotti writes his own librettos, marked by an extraordinary flair for drama and the communicative power of the English language; with this is combined a fine, subdued sense of musical humor.

His first successful stage work was AMELIA GOES TO THE BALL, staged at the Academy of Music in Philadelphia. This was followed by another comic opera, THE OLD MAID AND THE THEIF, commissioned by the National Broadcasting Company. With the production of THE MEDLUM, Menotti established himself as the foremost composer-librettist of modern opera.

His best tragic work, THE CONSUL, won him a Pulitzer Prize and was produced all over the world. He won a second Pulitzer Prize and the Drama Critics Circle Award for the best musical play of 1954 for THE SAINT OF BLEEKER STREET, following the composition of the highly successful AMAHIL AND THE NIGHT VISITORS, the first opera composed specifically for television.

His other commissioned work include THE UNICORN, THE GORGON, and THE MANTICORE, first presented at the Library of Congress and commissioned by the International missioned by the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation, and TAMU-TAMU, commissioned by the International Congress of Anthropological and Ethnological Sciences. His opera MARIA GOLOVIN was written expressly for performance at the International Exposition at Brussels in 1958.

Also during 1958, Menotti established the Festival of Two Worlds for opera, music and drama in Spoleto, Italy.

Albert Schweitzer International Prizewinners Mother Teresa, Gian Carlo Menotti, and Dr. Theodor Binder will each receive a bronze medal designed by Mike Goins of the UNC-W Art department and cast and donated by International Nickel Company. Each of them will also receive a $5,000 cash award donated by the Burroughs-Wellcome Fund, the City of Wilmington and New Hanover County during the awards ceremony October 23 at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

WOMEN'S TENNIS

This fall began the fourth year of women's intercollegiate tennis at UNC-Wilmington. The 1975 season includes nine intercollegiate matches and participation in the state women's tennis tournament in April at UNC-Chapel Hill.

Returning players from last year are: Nancy Thornton #1, Martha Richardson #2, Liz Hegele #3, and Peggy Stiles #6. Also returning from last year's squad are Rhonda Willford and Harriet Bialock.

New players this year include: Teresa "Scoop" Hege #4, and Carolyn Bender #5. Also new to this year's team is Gail White.

At present, the team has a record of 3 wins and 3 losses which includes a 6-3 win over Methodist College, Monday.

Coach Batson encourages all students and faculty to come out and support the women's tennis team. Their next home matches are Friday, Oct. 24 against Atlantic Christian and Wednesday, Oct. 29 against UNC-Chapel Hill.

Record Seventh Shutout

The Seahawk soccer machine continued to roll in high gear as they posted a 5-0 victory over St. Andrews College in Laurinburg.

The Hawks played without the services of forward Carlos Escobar, who was sick and goalie, Tim Willette, who was still recovering from an injury received in the High Point game.

Nevertheless, the defense recorded their seventh shutout of the season with sophomore, Bruce Maysilles in goal.

As has been the case in several games this year, the Seahawks scored early on an unassisted goal by senior wingman, David Wychel. The Hawks scored five minutes later on a direct kick, and the half ended with UNC-W ahead 2-0.

In the second half the Hawks improved on their play. Nino Fleri opened the half with a goal on a cross from David Kovack. Freshman Eddie Brock then scored on an assist from Brian Boyd. Fleri closed out the scoring with an excellent left footed shot. The assist on Fleri's last goal went to freshman Mark Willette.

The team is being plagued by several nagging injuries. In addition to Willette, Steve Paul has been playing with a pulled hamstring. Mark Willette has two bruised in-steps and Brian Boyd has a sprained foot.

Coach Calvin Lane hopes the injuries will clear up this week as the Hawks play what could be the toughest part of this season's schedule. In addition to playing the Citadel early in the week, the Seahawks travel to Charleston, Friday, to face the College of Charleston.

On Wednesday, October 29, UNC-W plays Campbell at home in what will probably be the game of the year.

SNOW SKIING FOR STUDENTS

If you are in college, graduate school, high school or technical school, don't go skiing until you read this. The Student Ski Association has a unique program which will save you from $1 to $15 a day on ski lift tickets, lessons and equipment rentals at over 150 major ski resorts nationwide.

The program works like this: present your SSA Student Ski Card at a participating ski area's ticket window on a weekday and you'll get your day lift ticket for half the weekend price. The same goes for ski lessons and equipment rentals at the ski area. On weekends and holidays, you'll save at least $1 on your lift ticket at some areas as much as $5.50!

For example, a regular weekday lift ticket at KILLINGTON, VT. normally costs $11. With an SSA Student Ski Card a student will pay only $6-a $5.50 per day savings.

Here are some typical weekday lift ticket savings at major ski areas: Killington, Vt. $5; Mount Snow, Vt. $3.50; Waterville Valley, N.H. $3.00; Sugarloaf, Me. $4.75; Boyne Mtn., Mich. $3.00; Indianhead, Mich. $3.50; Lutsen, Minn. $4.50; Copper Mtn., Colo. $2.00; Squaw Valley, Calif. $2.00.

Membership in the Student Ski Association costs $7 for the entire season. There is no limit to the number of times that the Student Ski Card may be used at any one area.

SSA also publishes POOR HOWARD'S COLLEGE GUIDE TO SKIING which contains technical information, such as number of lifts, trails, vertical drop, restaurants and other facilities, on every participating area. To save students money on lodging, POOR HOWARD'S has a unique guide to low cost lodges nearby participating areas.

Every year SSA offers a potpourri of weekend and week-long ski "carnivals" and beach vacations. Each carnival is at a major ski resort like Aspen, Steamboat, Killington, Mt. Snow, Sugarloaf or Boyne Mountain. Daytona Beach is a popular spring vacation destination offered by SSA to members who are looking for a change from the snow.

Priced to fit any student's budget, the "Great Ski Carnivals" include first class lodging, lift tickets, and, on most trips, two meals a day. Discounts on lessons and equipment rentals make the carnivals popular with beginning skiers. There are activities scheduled every day, from dances and parties to both fun and serious ski races.

SSA even arranges transportation through low cost flights, chartered buses and car pools. Last season 700 students from 50 states attended SSA's annual Aspen carnival and 1,100 were at SSA's Mount Snow carnival during the same week!

Kim Chaffee, brother of U.S. Olympic skiers Rick and Suzy Chaffee, and himself a former racer, founded the Student Ski Association in 1969, while a graduate student at Berkeley.

More than 150,000 students have joined since then. Any student through graduate school is eligible.

This season's SSA student benefit programs and college ski carnivals are sponsored by the Miller Brewing Company.

For a $7 annual membership or for a FREE copy of the article "How to Ski On a Student's Budget" write the Student Ski Association, 233 No. Pleasant St., Amherst, MA 01002 or 2438 No. Clark St., Chicago, IL 60614.

SEASONS "75"

SENSATIONAL ALEX HARVEY BAND

real killers of the album called "Gang Bang". This song is nothing but the blues put into a progressive rock style. Harvey vocals are excellent on the cut as are the solo parts by the members. As the song comes to its point, "ain't noting like a gang gang to blow away the blue-e-e-e-s." Though the lyrics are questionable the song would be one of the best on the album if for nothing but the music.

"The Faith Healer" is the side and is what the SENSATIONAL ALEX HARVEY BAND is all about. The song is the type music developed by the band in that it is nothing like anything any other group does these days. The haunting backing vocals and Harvey's harsh vocal style add to the feeling of the song and make it a very appealing number.

Side two opens with a good old hand clapping rock'n'roll number called "Giddy Up a Ding Dong" (his horse). The song comes complete with the J. L. Lewis type piano and ending only Zappa and the Mothers could outdo on the RUBIN and THE JETS LP.

"Next" is next and is one of the most hilarious songs I have ever heard. It is about a guy getting a draft physical and the thoughts which ran through his head as he went through the ordeal. As he says "I followed a naked and a naked body followed me..." NEXT... After the song is over you find the guy has never gotten over the ordeal and has flash backs every time someone yells NEXT.

The song which is the theme of the last four albums follows and is called "Vambo Marble Eye". Vambo is like a Superman who overcomes all obstacles in life and flashes to the rescue of all who need him. "The Last of the Teenage Idols" in the album gives a summary of all three styles on the album in its three parts. Part I is done in the ALEX HARVEY BAND style, with soft vocals and slow moving piano carrying the melody. Part II goes into the hard-rock style with slashing guitar and vocals. Part III ends the song with the traditional 50's type vocals and harmonies.

IMPOSSIBLE DREAM

THE IMPOSSIBLE DREAM
Vertigo VEL-2000

This album asks the question if it is an Impossible Dream for the group to make it big. As it turned out, it was not and you may remember the single which did rather well in this country called "Sergeant Fury". This cut used the old 1940's type sound and, in my opinion, it is nothing like anything off any of the other albums. In fact, it is one of the worst cuts from any of the albums.

Opening this album is "The Hot City Symphony" with Vambo and the Man in the jar. Vambo appears at the beginning and comes to the group's rescue as he does in all the albums.

Harvey becomes the man in the jar in the last half of the songs which has a very jazz type sound. Horns in this song make it one of the strongest cuts off the album. The vocals and music in the song are also strong as Harvey discovers he is the man in the jar. With this he gives his insane laugh and destroys the jar.

"River of Love" and "Long Hair Music" end the side with the latter being quite good cut. Both cuts are done in the band's own style which is a very bright type progressive rock. This is the type music which shows you just how good the group is.

Side two starts with "Sergeant Fury" which I have already discussed. "Weights Made of Lead" follows and

It has taken me this entire semester to get the last four albums by this group so I could do a write up on them. As I think they are one of the best groups around these days I thought they deserved no less than a two page spread.

The Sensational Alex Harvey Band are English and have been successfully active from the early 1970's to the present.

The group are Alex Harvey/lead vocals; Zal Cleminson/harmonica, guitars; Zal Cleminson/guitars; Chris Glenn/bass;

Huge McKenna/electric and grand piano, organ; Ted McKenna/percussion.

Their sound is based on the unusual vocals of Alex Harvey and the guitar style of Zal Cleminson. Although this is true, the group works completely as a whole, therefore, no one really steals the show.

The type music they play ranges from hard-rock, to progressive rock, to 50's rock, to the 40's type pop music. This is a very inclusive range of music. They are the type group that if you had heard their music, you would remember it as a product of this band.

NEXT

NEXT...

Vertigo VEL- 1017

NEXT, is the first album we shall consider in the Alex Harvey Band's history. The album was recorded in 1973 and is the album which began the group with their new style. It is also the starting point of their rise in popularity.

"Swampsnake" opens the album with hard-rock type music as Harvey wishes to "be your swampsnake till the real one comes along."

contains some excellent guitar work by Cleminson.

"Money Honey" and the "Impossible Dream" are next with the latter being the classical "To Dream the Impossible Dream". The song is the most serious on any album so far and is really quite nice in its placement on the album.

My favorite songs by the group end the album with "Tomahawk Kid", from a Robert L. Stevenson novel, and "Anthem" which I think is as great as the one by Deep Purple if not greater. "Anthem" uses bagpipes and drums, done by the London-Scottish T.A.V.R., which give the song a sad epic type feeling. This cut must be heard to really be appreciated.

TOMORROW BELONGS TO ME

TOMORROW BELONGS TO ME
Vertigo VEL-2004

With this album the group is convinced of their success yet the album is the weakest of the three. However, this could be due to the fact that this is their album on Vertigo. It is usually the case that the last album on a label is weaker. Although it is the weakest, it is still an excellent album.

"A ction Strasse" opens the album and has an Arabian sounding bridge which is done very well.

"Soul In Chains" is also on this side and is the best cut from the album. It starts out with Harvey just singing and the music comes gradually in to form as blues type number. Starting very weak, it soon builds up to a very strong number.

"Ribs and Balls" ends the side and is another comedy cut as the group sends the roadies out to get their lunch.

Side two starts with one of their best cuts, lyrically, entitled "Give My Compliments to the Chef". The lyrics are very deep and could be about anything, depending on the listener.

"Sharks Teeth" follows and is the first song I know of to make a comment on the movie JAWS. The person in the song manages to get away with only a bite. This also shows that jazz is slowly creeping into the bands style.

The title cut is also on this side and "Tomorrow Belongs to Me" is from the play & movie CABARET, ending the album is "To Be Continued", another salute to Vambo.

LIVE

LIVE
Atlantic SD-18148

It is unusual for a company to put out a group's first album as a Live LP, but Atlantic did it and for the best.

There are only two cuts on the album which I will talk about because the others are on the other albums. I must say it is an excellent album and contains very good cuts which are recorded very well to be live.

"Delilah" is the old Tom Jones song and the ALEX HARVEY BAND'S latest single in England. Because of this single and album, the band has become known as one of England's best live acts.

"Framed" is also on the album for the first time on any of their albums. This song gives the reason why the group is so good in concert as the band puts everything into the song.

To sum up, I would say that this group is one to look for in the next few years. They have the talent to write very good songs and lyrics and the talent to play them even better. My favorite album is The Impossible dream but any of the four would be excellent to have. I like this group and what they do. I hope you will too. Till then. ROCK-OUT.

Why do most people believe in evolution?

Evolution is certainly not a proven fact of science. It can't be checked out by the scientific method because the essence of that is repeatability. The conjectured evolutionary history of the earth and its inhabitants is non-repeatable and, therefore, non-observable.

Evolution is not even a legitimate scientific theory. A valid theory must be testable. There is no way one can "test" evolution. By its very nature, millions of years are required to produce significant results.

Why, then, do most people believe in evolution? That's it! They believe in evolution. It's a matter of faith.

Science is supposed to be what we see. Science means "knowledge." No one has ever seen evolution take place. Evolution is really not science — it is rather a religious faith in something we cannot see.

When it comes right down to it, most people believe in evolution because most people believe in evolution. It's the religion of the scientific, political and industrial establishments.

As a scientific "model," special creation fits all the facts of science much better than does evolution.

If you're an independent thinker and a bit curious, we'll send you a free eye-opening packet of factual creationist information. Send a post card to Institute for Creation Research, P.O. Box 15486, San Diego, California 92115.

Do you think that the intersection of Riegel & South College Road is dangerous enough to constitute the erection of a traffic light?

I really don't think it's dangerous, but the waiting in line is quite frustrating. Especially now with so many students driving more cars.
TAMMY WHITE
FRESHMAN-ELEM. EDUC.

They sure do need a light there. A lot of cars just have to sit and wait forever to get on the road. Too many people try dangerous things to get on it.
PAM HOWERTON
FRESHMAN-UNDECIDED

Yes, I think the intersection is dangerous enough to need a traffic light. As it is now, drivers depend on luck and a fast car to get on the highway.
REX WHALEY

Yes, when the stoplight in front of K-Mart turns and the one on the other end of the campus turns, it takes about 15 minutes to finally get out and then you floor it with a lot of hope that you'll make it. Everyone's always in a hurry.

Yes, I think it is urgently needed. It is nearly impossible to make a left turn from Riegel Road onto South College Road. A good example to observe is the stoplight at Randall and South College and see how much good it has done. Something should be done soon before a major accident occurs.
VICTOR MORGAN
FRESHMAN-POL. SCIENCE

I commute to and from Long Beach every day, and after my 1:30 class, I find it almost impossible to get on South College Road after waiting behind as many as 25 cars. I think that the erection of a stoplight would constitute a solution to this problem.
JAMES MINETT
FRESHMAN-PRE-MED.

Yes, that is an extremely dangerous intersection. With college students on bikes and the traffic heavy, something needs to be done. A traffic light would be a great improvement.
DEIDRE DEVANE
SOPHOMORE-HISTORY

Yes, because at the time of 8:30, there is rush hour traffic which causes a traffic jam on the campus. This becomes very hazardous because most college students are in a hurry and sometimes neglect traffic laws they otherwise wouldn't if there was a traffic light.
BURNETT A. SANDERS
FRESHMAN-COM. SCIENCE

They need a light definitely because the lights on both ends of the road do not stop traffic at the same time. That makes it difficult for anyone entering in between.

schweitzer awards

The life and works of a man born over one hundred years ago were commemorated in Kenan Auditorium Thursday, October 23. In honor of Dr. Albert Schweitzer, physician, musician, and humanist; three distinguished persons were presented with the first annual Schweitzer International Prizes.

The ceremony began with an impressive faculty procession in academic garments. The invocation was delivered by Monseigneur James R. Jones of St. Mary's Pro-Cathedral. Mears Harris, president of the Southeastern North Carolina Educational and Historical Foundation, introduced several speakers, including Dr. William Wagoner, Chancellor of UNC-W; Dr. Arnold King, who represented Dr. Friday, president of the consolidated university; and Dame Catherine Carpenter, K.M.. Each of the speakers praised Dr. Schweitzer's life and works.

At last, the moment the audience had been waiting for arrived. Dame Carpenter announced the presentation of the prizes. Mother Teresa, dressed in the blue and white uniform of her order, came forward to receive the prize for humanities. The foundress of the Missionaries of Charity spoke humbly of herself, not as a great person, but as a mere instrument of the will of Christ. She denied receiving the award personally but accepted it for all the helpless and unloved people of the world. Before retiring from the podium, she challenged the audience to love and help the poor and helpless. "Christ in his most distressing disguise."

Theodor Binder, the doctor who ministers to the medical needs of the Indians of Peru and Mexico, received the prize for medicine. Humbly expressing gratitude for his selection, the doctor spoke of the many trials of the American Indians in Latin America, who are seeking to retain their culture and lifestyle against the encroachments of civilization. Concluding his remarks, he reminded the audience, "We bid you to have hope."

The prize for music was presented to Giar-Carlo Menotti. Speaking on the theme "art for the people" Menotti explained how he hoped to bring music and drama to the great masses of people rather than an elite few.

After a brief summation by Mr. Harris, the benediction was offered by Episcopal bishop Thomas H. Wright and Rabbi Martin Weitz of Temple Isreal.

Members of the audience who waited in line to speak with the recipients expressed wonder and amazement at being present for such an event. One thing for certain, UNC-W will never be the same.

Coach of the Year

Bill Brooks, head coach at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington has been named the 1975 NAIA national baseball coach of the year. The announcement was named by the NAIA Baseball Coaches' Association.

Brooks will receive his award at the Annual NAIA World Series Baseball Hall of Fame banquet on Thursday, May 27, in St. Joseph, Missouri.

Brooks guided the Seahawks to their first NAIA World Series appearance last year and finished seventh while posting a 27-11-1 season record.

A native of Wilson, Brooks received his Bachelors degree from Atlantic Christian college in 1949 and his Masters at East Carolina University in addition to doing graduate work at the University of Miami.

Before joining the Wilmington staff, Brooks served as assistant baseball and football coach at New Hanover High School. The NAIA National Baseball Coach of the Year started the baseball program at Wilmington Junior College in 1957. Five times his team appeared in the Junior College World Series, winning the title in 1961, finishing second in 1962 and then winning the championship again in 1963. Wilmington Junior College became the University of North Carolina-Wilmington in 1964. Brooks is the only baseball coach that UNC-Wilmington has ever had and the college baseball field is named Brooks Field in his honor.

In addition to being the NAIA National Coach of the Year, Brooks was also named the Area VII Baseball Coach of the Year by the NAIA Baseball Coaches' Association. The seven other winners are: Area I-Carroll Land, Point Loma College, Calif. Area II-Larry Hays, Lubbock Christian College, Tex. Area III-Dr. Joe Record, Phillips University, Okla. Area IV-Mel Nicks, St. Norberr College, Wis. Area V-Roy Mewbourne, Birmingham-Southern College, Ala. Area VI-Bob Starcher, Malone College, Ohio. Area VIII-Bob Sprague, Monmouth College, N.J.

SEAHAWK BOUNCES BACK

ALONG WITH BOOKSTORE'S BAD CHECKS!

The Seahawk staff apologizes for not having a paper last week. Our new typesetting machine, the Compuwriter Junior, decided to play dead. This new $7,000 machine was a welcomed addition to the Seahawk this year. We would like to thank our fearless leaders, the Senate, for their gracious allocation to us to buy our mechanical friend. The machine has undergone full recovery following the surgery performed on it last Wednesday. The UNC-W Bookstore, however, is trying desperately to recover from a great many bad checks.

Presently there are approximately 30 names on the badcheck list and with two or three names per day being added the list is soaring way out of proportion. Is your name on that list? Here you are college students, the ones who are suppose to have a little brains in order to have gotten here but yet some of you are still very irresponsible. Irresponsible people don't need checking accounts.

Ask yourself these questions. Do I keep an accurate balance? Do I subtract a check I've written from that balance? Do I keep account of bank charges? If you answered NO to one or more then you better get your ducks in a row!

Writing bad checks might even cost more than you realize. The bank charges you $5.00 for a badcheck and the bookstore charges you $4.00. Not only the cost, but your reputation is at stake. One bad check received by the bookstore might be overlooked but the second bad check gets your name framed on their permanent bad check list for the rest of the year.

I'm sure that Mrs. Gaskins, Bookstore Manager, would appreciate it if you would THINK before writing a check. Be a smart student! When you write out your next check at the bookstore use a little less rubber cement and don't let it bounce!

You

Missed It!

Dear Editor,

I am appalled by the number of people who showed up at the Paul Winter Consort last Monday. At the most, I think there were only 175 people. This is the poorest showing of people I have seen in my three and a half years of college here and it would have to be one of the school's finest concerts. I honestly thought there were more people who could appreciate good music, and for those who didn't have the money, I can only say you missed a great concert. Too many people bitch about the lack of things to do on campus, yet when something is happening, the majority of students tend to pass up something they are not sure about. They would rather see a "Hot Chocolate" or a "Golden Earring," something they had heard on Top 40.

The concert was entertaining, original, and enjoyable to all the people that were there. I'd like to thank and support Walker O'Quinn for presenting a fine group for our first concert. I sincerely hope that we will not embarrass the next group by having a handful of people show up as at this one.

goes on here on this campus. I think the psychology department has student evaluations, or they did when I was there. One history professor asks for student evaluations, using forms, at the conclusion of every course, every semester, without fail. Other professors and instructors have told me they don't care, they don't want to know, and it would not make any difference, anyway. That last remark is rather alarming. What do they mean, it would not make any difference? Are they afraid, or is their respect for student opinion so low?

This is an undergraduate institution so we are all, of course, undergraduates. This means none of us hold Master's Degrees or doctoral degrees. So of course we are not on the same educational level. Does this mean we are then not qualified to judge? Can this be their defense?

The professors and instructors are teachers first. They impart information, guide and instruct. Why shouldn't they know how well they're doing? Or how poorly, which is of course what they don't want to know.

Several large universities now have booklets in circulation, compiled and written by students, that rate the instructors and professors. The purpose is to inform the prospective student how the instructor has been regarded by his former students. This makes perfect sense to me, because who else knows? The department heads? The administration? The maintenance staff? Who tells the teacher how they're doing? I see no measure here except for course enrollment numbers. There is always the instructor whose course rolls are filled in last. I regard this as a strong indication, but no one pays any attention except the unfortunate student who is stuck with the poor instructor.

Instead of the students running polls and compiling booklets, why don't the instructors conduct the evaluations themselves, and then examine them? It is a concern of each department to know its assets and liabilities, and there are some in every department! The worst in one department will not be as bad as the worst in another, nor will the rated best be as good as another. It's all relative. But it is important. Any instructor who can't, or refuses to, learn from the students, is ignoring half the responsibility of his or her job.

Let them find out how effectively they teach, listen, respond to suggestions, how flexible or rigid they are, how they come across, how much they respect the student, and how much the students respect them! Let them find out if the grading system is fair, are the tests adequate, good or poor, is the attitude toward the job and the object of the job (the student) appropriate or downright unhealthy.

The cost of a student's education is more than tuition. The cost includes fees, living expenses, and foregone income. That adds up to a lot of money, and I think the instructors should know whether or not the students feel they are worth it.

Gee! What a Kick in the "Shinn"

The Schweitzer Awards were to me a classic example of the lack of communication on UNC-W campus. Between the original idea and the presentation of awards, a great deal was lost.

An integral part of bringing such distinguished persons to the campus should be to expose the students to their ideas and work. I had imagined that informal and formal settings would be provided for this purpose.

It also crossed my mind that all classes would be suspended in honor of the occasion. Students and faculty would be encouraged to participate fully in this unique learning experience. During the day, I expected informal meetings would be held so we could talk with our honored guests about their work.

Fortunately, the music department faculty had the foresight to invite Signor Menotti to lunch. He sat with students and faculty for over an hour eating, drinking and answering any questions asked. He wanted to know what the students' interests were and what the department was planning. It was a rare opportunity for students. I am grateful to the music department for letting me be there.

From my observations, I would assume that Dr. and Mrs. Binder and Mother Teresa would have welcomed a similar opportunity. Was it offered?

What struck me as most ironic was the elitist aspect surrounding the whole affair. If Mother Teresa, Dr. Binder and Gan-Carlo Menotti had been elitists, they would not have received the awards. They were selected, I presume, because their concerns were so similar to Dr. Schweitzer's, namely, selfless giving to others less fortunate than they.

During the symposium, Dr. Marshall told of an incident that had profound implications on Dr. Schweitzer's life. He awakened one morning to an overwhelming experience of how good his life was. His reaction was so intense that he committed himself to work for the good of society. He founded his hospital Lambaré and spent the rest of his life caring for the sick and poor.

To use his dedication and that of Dr. Binder, Signor Menotti and Mother Teresa as a vehicle for a "black tie" affair seems a travesty. Evidently, only one UNC-W student owned or had access to a black tie. Surely that tokenism could have included one female with a "formal" dress.

When given the opportunity, the recipients were very open and responsive to students' queries. It was my distinct impression that they would have been interested in more informal dialogue.

Before the next Schweitzer Awards are conferred, I would like to make some suggestions:

1. That students in sufficient numbers be included in the organization and planning.
2. That at least the day of awards be declared Schweitzer Day on campus and all classes cancelled.
3. That time be allowed for recipients to meet informally with students.
4. That a representative number of students be encouraged to participate in any formal or informal affairs.
5. That publicity be ongoing during the selection year.

The Gadfly:

The Boob-Tube

I have ceased being a slave to the electronic dispenser of incessant commercials, police and medical series. In other words, I am no longer a idiot. While there is a certain amount of social ostracism involved, I don't find myself humming commercial jingles at otherwise serious moments or wondering what sort of logic was involved in deciding that America would be entertained by watching people run through mazes or answer questions about their personal life. At long last I no longer have to be embarrassed by having to watch some schmuck talk about undergarment sprays or other items of personal hygiene. Mainly, however, I feel free. I don't have to be home at 6:00 PM to watch the "Beverly Hillsbillies."

How did I do it? How have I become an electronic heretic? Like many major changes in life, it was an inevitable accident. It all began one stormy night while watching the Late Show. Just as Dracula was about to fang a delectable young wench, the picture collapsed to a thin horizontal band. Rising up in wrath, I smote the offensive tube upon the antenna. The picture returned but I had missed the decisive moment. This phenomenon continued to occur with exasperating regularity. Just as the car plunged over the cliff, as the two bad guys jump the hero, just as the monster is about to appear, blip! No picture.

Repeated beatings were of no avail. With soldering iron, pliers and appropriate diagrams I descended into the bowels of the beast. A few contacts cleaned, a few loose connections resoldered and health and vigor were restored. It was a short-lived condition. The blip disease returned. Clearly the old fellow was in fast decline. A call to the local TV watchdoctor revealed that my wallet would be but an empty skin after he had performed his magic. My car then chose to develop a bad habit of not starting. I had to make a choice. Walk and watch or drive and do without. Being basically lazy, the decision was painful but inevitable. I elected to drive.

At first there were severe withdrawal symptoms. I would find myself sitting in front of my defunct tube at certain times without realizing how I got there. I visited friends who had TV's just as Space 1999 came on. When the pages got really bad, I looked out window. (The plots were simple, but there were no commercials.) I finally progressed to where I could walk past a TV display without stopping, provided I had two strong friends to keep me moving.

Now I am in self-therapy. I read a lot and am at last getting back to finishing a novel I began before I developed vidinitis. However, I realize there is no permanent cure for vidinitis except total abstinence. Perhaps they should have a TV watcher's anonymous organization to help people out of this disease. Many of my friends who thought themselves capable of self-control now sit before huge color TV's watching The Mickey Mouse Show. I am really going to try to stay away from temptation. However, if anyone has a TV for sale cheap, I might...

Second Class Criminals No More

(CPS)--An unexpected repercussion of the women's liberation movement has been a dramatic increase in the crime rates among females, according to at least one woman studying recent trends in crime. In an interview with the Christian Science Monitor, Freda Adler, an associate professor of criminal justice at Rutgers University, explained that "women no longer want to be second-class criminals."

In the same way that women are imitating men in other aspects of social behavior, Adler said, they are veering away from "feminine" crimes like shoplifting and prostitution. Instead they are moving toward the more serious crimes of homicide, aggravated assault, robbery and burglary. Between the years 1960 and 1972, the number of women committing serious crimes increased by about 250 per cent compared to an increase of about 80 per cent for men.

Adler reassured feminists and others that "female liberation has not caused more criminality. We are dealing with something quite different." Adler said it is more a question of increased opportunity than any loss of morality.

Another reason for the increase in female arrests may be that the police are becoming more liberated as well. There may be a less "chivalrous" attitude on the part of the police toward women, resulting in more equal treatment before the law, Adler theorized.

Other bad side effects of increased freedom for women have included an increase of narcotics addiction, suicide and mental illness.

A Child's Garden of Rights

(CPS/FPS)--School principals in Davenport, Iowa became alarmed last year at an article in the magazine Scholastic Young Citizen because it told its fifth grade readers that they have constitutional rights.

The article "Have You Got Rights" told students "You can wear your hair as long as you wish and how you wish as long as it isn't a danger to your health and safety of others. Suppose because of your own religious or personal beliefs you do not believe in (flag) salutes. You do not need to take part. You may sit quietly or be allowed to leave the room during the pledge."

It also described student's rights to freedom of press, assembly, and petition, and told students that before they are punished they have a right to know what they've done wrong.

Carl Dresselhaus, local director of elementary education, said that fifth grade students are not mature enough to receive such information, explaining "You've got to watch what is given these youngsters."

Celestial Circumstance and the End of the World

(CPS/ZNS)--As if worrying about ozone depletion isn't enough, a survey of leading scientists by Science Digest magazine turned up 13 different predictions of how the world will end.

Most scientists theorize that Earth will be a victim of celestial circumstance rather than human blundering. For instance, the "red sun theory" holds that the sun will cool, turn a reddish hue and begin to expand. Earth, they predict will be consumed in the flames.

Other scientists postulate a cosmic crash between Earth and speeding asteroids. The asteroid Icarus came within four million miles of Earth in 1968 at a speed of 66,000 miles per hour. Many scientists feel a collision is inevitable.

The "black hole theory" proposed by some scientists predicts that giant, dense but invisible concentrations of matter may be speeding toward us. A black hole can suck up other matter and would crush the planet down to the size of a basketball if it collided with Earth.

Other predictions for the demise of the planet included nuclear weapons and "monster microbes" that could escape from biological laboratories and attack life on Earth.

RALEIGH, N.C.--In anticipation of the officer program opening December 1, the Air Force Recruiting Service is seeking interviews with young men and women interested in becoming Air Force officers.

Maj. Winston R. Youngblood, U.S. Air Force Recruiting Detachment 307 commander, said that the door to an Air Force commission is expected to be open for a short period of time and "we want to offer as many Carolinians as possible the opportunity to obtain a commission." The major said the Air Force would be looking for individuals who are graduates, or will be graduating in December or January, with degrees in mathematics, engineering, physics or computer science.

Young men and women interested in an Air Force commission should contact their nearest Air Force recruiter for further details.

Pies Splat in Cow Palace

(CPS)--The previous Guinness world record for pies thrown at one fight was creamed last month when 200 competitors threw more than 2000 pies at San Francisco's Cow Palace.

The pies, all custard made from army surplus egg-whites ("so as not to waste food"), were thrown on behalf of the blind. Twenty teams each consisting of 10 players paired off the separate rounds inside a ring. For ammunition, each team had 70 pies donated by a local bakery.

A panel of judges rated the pie-throwers on direct facial hits, ducking ability, style and sportsmanship.

The last Guinness Book of Records listed the world's record pie fight as involving a mere 470 pies during the 1966 filming of "The Great Race."

TKE's Have Blast

The past two weeks have really been a blast for the TKEs. October 10, 11, 12, the TKEs went up to the mountains for their annual camping weekend. The trip was really great. The leaves were at their peak. We had a good time Saturday night around the campfire picking and grinning.

October 18, 19, 20, the TKEs went up to Raleigh. There was a party at the Beta Beta chapter. That was one heck of a party. Klander even passed out with joy. Jerry really wasn't lost but just wanted a little peace and quiet over in the bushes by himself.

I would like be firing the students' attention that not only are we a social organization, we are active in school activities. We are active in all intramural sports here at UNC-W. We do not have anyone on the varsity teams. This is due to circumstances beyond our control. Last Spring, during Homecoming, TKE won Best Float, Spirit Award and our sweetheart was Homecoming Queen. Toje King even won the horses' ass award.

I am sorry to say that the other fraternities on campus are not as active. If you would like to be a part of a great organization. Stop by and see us some time.

Seahawk Wins Contest

The Fledgling beer contest winner of Wednesday, October 29, was the Seahawk staff. Countless Seahawk drunks and their friends enjoyed Schlitz while discussing the fantastic yearbook they will receive in August. Swinging from nonexistent chandeliers, playing charades, and having intellectual conversations in the bedroom, the Seahawks celebrated their victory.

Congratulations, Seahawk. (But with Darlene Pearlsall on your staff, how could you lose?)

Are all scientists evolutionists?

Students have for many years been indoctrinated with the idea that science has proved evolution and that all scientists believe in evolution. The Biblical record of creation, we have been assured, is no longer taken seriously by the well informed.

One soon discovers, of course, that much of what is taught from classroom podiums and printed in costly textbooks is mere human opinion... even wishful thinking. The idea that evolution is a proven fact of science is a modern myth. Loud and frequent repetition has made it sound credible.

Actually, at this moment there are thousands of well-qualified scientists and other educated professionals who have become convinced that the Biblical model of creation and the earth's history is far more scientific than is the evolutionary model. This, despite the evolutionary indoctrination received in school.

If you enjoy forming your own opinions—especially on matters of such basic importance as this, drop us a postcard at: Institute for Creation Research, P.O. Box 15486, San Diego, California 92115. We'll send a free packet of scientific literature, outlining the credibility of special creation, no strings attached.

Coffeehouse Performer Coming

The Coffeehouse Entertainment Committee has joined an organization called the Coffee House Circuit. This group promotes low budget, high quality entertainment for coffeehouses and small rooms. Our first performer from the Circuit is Perry Leopold.

Perry was born and raised in Philadelphia. Now 24 years old, Perry has been performing professionally since 1968. He has been playing guitar since he was 6, and writing songs since the age of 12. Perry has played with bands and rock groups. He left the rock scene and spent four years going to school and writing songs. At the age of 18 he left school and has been playing clubs and colleges ever since. Perry's music tries to communicate the feelings and ideas of the human condition as it is today. Perry will be playing the guitar and the piano.

Because the coffeehouse will not be ready in time, Perry Leopold will be performing at the dorm on Thursday, November 6. He will play at the SRO Theatre, in Kenan Hall, on Friday and Saturday, November 7 and 8. All performances are free.

Performance time for the SRO Theatre will be 8:00 PM both nights.

QUIMON'S MOVIE

The Consort Experience

by Richard Boles

It is Monday night and I have just returned from a concert. It was not just any concert, it was an experience in music. I am talking about the Paul Winter Consort. I really didn't know what to expect from these five guys. But, the music I heard was almost unbelievable. Don't ask what kind of music they played. This music carries no name. It is a mood, an expression, but most of all, a feeling.

The turn-out for the Consort was disappointing. The energy of the Consort and the audience was dynamic. The Paul Winter Consort presented a variety of music that knew no boundary. The feeling was free. The origins of the music ranged from African to the music of the endangered animals of the earth. There were hints of classical and rock. Yet, the style was very unique. One of the most unusual features of the performance was when the group played in total darkness. They did this so everyone could hear the music in their minds.

The Paul Winter Consort is composed of five very talented people. David Darling gave a performance on the cello and electric cello that was no less than spectacular. Ben Carriel and Tigger Benford played a vast array of percussion instruments. Kettle-drums, bass marimba, congas, gongs, bells and many more percussion instruments provided a unique sound. Robert Chappell on keyboards and 12-string guitar showed great versatility and range. Paul Winter on the sax unleashed a sound both smooth and strong.

The Paul Winter Consort played a range of music that ran from the sensual to the explosive. If I sound like I was more than impressed, I wasn't the only one. During the intermission, and after the concert, I kept hearing words like "great," "fantastic," and "unbelievable." The Consort was all of these. It was a music experience that reached everyone in its own special way. Those that were there know. If this represents the caliber of entertainment the Concert Committee will be presenting, then I look forward to some great music.

HOBBS APPOINTS PUBLICATIONS COMMITTEE

S.G.A. President Steve Hobbs has appointed a five-member committee which will deal with the subscription policy of the Fledgling and the financial situation of the Atlantis literary publication. This is an ad hoc committee which is sub-ordinate to Steve. In expressing his concern in this matter, Steve states, "I want every student to get his money's worth. It is my hope that the Publications Committee will have produced a viable solution by the end of my administration which will alleviate the financial problems."

Each student pays $70.50 in fees upon registration at the University of which $12 is appropriated to the SGA; the Fledgling and other publications (Seahawk, Atlantis, etc.) receive a certain proportion of the SGA allocation. However, in spite of this, every student must pay a $5 subscription fee if he wants a yearbook. A similar problem exists with the Atlantis publication.

The members of the committee will survey the publication processes of other campuses as well as considering the view and opinions of the UNC-W students in adopting a proposal. "Upon receiving the proposal, I will study the recommendation and present my solution, which will hopefully alleviate the problem, to the Student Senate for approval," Steve assures. "My proposal will be made in the best interest of the student body."

Each member of the committee represents a unique portion of the student body. The members are: Eric McLamb, Lynda Strickland, Jim Braswell, Clay Fairley, and a fifth member under further consideration by Steve.

Senate Minutes

A regular session of the UNC-W Senate was called to order by Carol Moore on October 14 at 11:30 in room 201-A.

The invocation was given. The minutes were read and a correction was made. The Atlantis motion from October 7 minutes was declined, not passed.

A temporary suspension of the rules of order was made in order to induct the freshman officers. A return was made back to the rules of order.

President Steve Hobbs addressed the Senate. He recommended that Fred Taylor serve on the Student Superior Court.

A motion was made to accept Fred Taylor to serve on the Student Superior Court. The motion was seconded and passed.

LeRoy Oakley reported for the Finance Committee. He recommended that $750.00 be allocated to the campus radio station in order to purchase two new turntables and a transmitter.

Haddon Clark made a motion to allocate an additional $1500 to the Atlantis. The motion was seconded and discussion followed. John Crawley called for previous question. The motion passed.

David Davis made a motion to allocate the campus radio station an additional $750.00. The motion was seconded and discussion followed. The motion passed.

It was announced that all committees need to report within two weeks.

Betty Price reported for the Student Directory. It was referred to the Finance Committee.

Haddon Clark made a motion for adjournment. The motion was seconded, passed, and the meeting adjourned at 12:15. Respectfully submitted, Ms. Sharon Davis SGA Secretary

SENATE MINUTES

A regular session of the UNC-W Senate was called to order by Carol Moore on October 21 at 11:30 in room 201-A.

Clark Sizemore gave the invocation.

The minutes were read.

LeRoy Oakley reported for the Finance Committee. He recommended that an additional $70.00 be allocated to the Student Directory. He suggested that this allocation come from a cut in one of the committees.

Paul Laird made a motion to allocate $70.00 to the Student Directory. The motion was seconded and discussion followed.

Rick Patton made a substitute motion to table the previous motion to allocate $70.00 to the Student Directory. The motion was seconded. Discussion followed. The motion passed.

Steve Hobbs recommended two appointments for the Finance Committee: Paul Laird and Robert Jones.

Clay Fairley made a motion to accept Paul Laird and Robert Jones as members of the Finance Committee. The motion was seconded and discussion followed. The motion passed.

Why bicycle anyth

If you bought a bicycle during the last few boom years and had to settle for something less than you expected—think about moving up now to a Raleigh. Made by the "bicycle craftsmen of the world," a Raleigh is built to be your last bicycle. We'd like to guide you through some of the not-so-apparent things that make a Raleigh superior.

A Frame for Every Purpose

Many bicycle makers build one frame shape and turn it into a 3-speed or 10-speed simply by adding the appropriate equipment. Raleigh, on the other hand, actually uses four different frame configurations in its line.

Getting It All Together

your second e shouldn't be ning less than a Raleigh.

ugs are metal reinforcements that wrap and strengthen frame joints. The joint is then brazed at carefully controlled low temperatures. This method is more expensive but far superior to welding. Raleigh puts all its frames together this way, not just the more expensive ones.

Under All, the Tubes

Raleigh uses different diameter tubes in their frames for bicycles with varying riding characteristics. American manufacturers tend to use the same diameter throughout which leads to fatigue. Raleigh employs this practice throughout the entire line.

20-30 high carbon steel tubing is used on all Raleigh models up through the Grand Prix. This is the best quality for the money possible and is extremely rigid for its light weight.

Double-butted Reynolds "531" tubing is used on all the top Raleigh models. In this case ends are thicker than the center, so when the frame members are joined together there is added strength, but not weight at the stress points.

With the Grain

This is a plate forkend. Raleigh goes to great pains to make sure that the grain of the metal is oriented as shown for the greatest strength.

The Hole Story

If you look very closely at a Raleigh frame, you'll see tiny holes in several places. Hardly anybody else takes this much care. We think it's worth it for two good reasons: it lets air out during brazing; it allows for thorough cleaning and rust-proofing of the inside of the tube, so it won't corrode.

There are many more things of course that make only a Raleigh a Raleigh. But why don't you inspect one closely for yourself?

Club Charters Needed

To: All active and inactive clubs and fraternities
From: Rufus Butner, Chairman of Charter Committee

According to the S.G.A. Constitution, all clubs and fraternities must submit a charter to the S.G.A. in order to be officially recognized as a club on campus for that academic year. Also, according to the Constitution, each club and each fraternity is to resubmit its charter every year if the nature of their charter has changed. If the nature of the charter has not changed from the previous year, please at least notify me that you would still like to have your club or fraternity recognized on campus.

If your club or fraternity does not notify me one way or another, it will not be recognized on the UNC-W campus.

The deadline to turn in all renewed charters and those wanting to be recognized again this year is November 18, 1975.

Debate Tournament

The Blockade Runner Invitational Debate Tournament was held here October 17-18, 1975. Participating schools were: ASU, Bob Jones U., The Citadel, Clemson, Duke, Lenoir Rhyne College, Madison College, Old Dominion, UNC-G, U. of Richmond, USC, VPI, and UNC-W.

Participating in the novice division for UNC-W were: Affirmative-Jeff Evans and Ray Blackburn; Negative-Ed Stone and Greta Lint. The affirmative team won their first round for which they should be recognized. Neither Jeff nor Ray had ever debated before. The negative team placed third in the novice division. However, because UNC-W sponsored the tournament, Ed and Greta could not receive the trophy for which they were eligible.

The affirmative novice division was won by VPI. UNC-G won the negative novice division.

In the varsity division, UNC-G won over ASU in the final round on a 4-1 ballot. Duke and U. of Richmond took third and fourth places, respectively.

"December Leaves Her Alone"

Sam Barbee's "December Leaves Her Alone," an ode to the mighty tree which each year must undergo a metamorphosis in the fall, was the prize-winning poem in the annual University Poetry Contest sponsored by the Department of English at The University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

In addition to the $50 first prize, Barbee won honorable mention and $10 for a second entry entitled "Quiet Dust." Second place and a $30 award went to Russell Bateman for his entry, "Hell Hath No Fury." Cindy Ellis won the third prize of $20 for "Then to Now."

Other $10 honorable mention awards were presented to Gerald Cooney for "Spring Flood" and to Harry Stallings for "The Porcelain Shore."

The prizes, donated by the North Carolina Junior Sororities, were presented October 16 in an awards ceremony in the S.R.O. Theatre. Mrs. Anne M. Fitzgibbon of the Drama and Speech Department read each of the winning poems; following the reading, members of the Junior Sororities held a reception for the winners and guests.

Sharks... the Main Topic

The new Director of the Program in Marine Sciences at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, Dr. Gilbert W. Bane, will be the featured speaker in the next program in the University Lecture Series. Dr. Bane will present a slide and lecture program on sharks Wednesday, November 5, at 8 p.m. in King Auditorium.

A native of San Francisco, Dr. Bane earned his B.S. degree at San Jose State and both his M.S. and Ph.D. degrees at Cornell University. He has held teaching, research and administrative posts at the University of Puerto Rico at Mayaguez, the University of California at Irvine, Long Island University and St. Francis College in Maine.

His main interest is in pelagic fishes, those like sharks, tuna, blues and menhaden, which inhabit the upper waters. He plans to do an in-depth study of sharks along the North Carolina coast, recording their abundance and the seasonal appearance of various species. He also hopes to complete a study of the blue shark, a species which is present in both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

Presently he is involving students in his research on the sharks of our coast and studies of benthic or bottom fishes of the North Carolina coastal region to assess the impact of Continental Shelf petroleum operations on these species.

In addition to his university-related research, he has served on many international fisheries projects, among them the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, the Inter-American Tropical Tuna Commission, the California Department of Fish and Game and Star-Kist Foods tuna expeditions. His professional travels have taken him to Latin America, Africa and Europe where he has made detailed investigations of the fisheries of Tunisia, Ghana, Nigeria, Peru, Puerto Rico, Mexico and Ecuador.

As an important part of his teaching program, Dr. Bane has for many years taken both undergraduate and graduate students on extended field trips to the Amazon River Basin, Puerto Rican coral reefs, the Andes Mountains, Florida Keys, Rocky Mountains and the Yucatan Peninsula of Southern Mexico.

Dr. Bane stresses that his principal and continuing interests are the rational utilization and management of our marine resources and the education of dedicated, competent students to carry on this work.

His lecture Wednesday night is open to the public without admission charge.

Humphrey Still Looks Good

By Bobby Parker

As the 1976 Democratic presidential primaries draw near, it is becoming increasingly clear that the Democrats are headed for a difficult task in fielding a credible candidate capable of dousing President Ford (or less likely, Ronald Reagan) in the general election next fall. At last count, there were nine officially declared Democratic candidates and perhaps as many more who will emerge as the campaign progresses.

With the surfacing of so many potential nominees, it is truly evident that some of these will fall victim to the primary trail. The first primary in New Hampshire probably will not be deemed as important as it has been in the past, but it may well prove to be the burying ground for some unlucky loser. However, noting that most candidates are longshots from the start, it will most likely take more than one primary to convince some lesser known campaigners that their hopes are dead.

During the course of the primaries, either of two things is sure to happen: one candidate will emerge as the popular favorite, or the field will be divided so that the candidates eliminate each other.

Here, it is interesting to note the strange power of the primary election. Although all states do not hold preference primaries, these contests do have more influence over voter opinion than party conventions or caucuses, which some states have. In primaries, the American voter can see the candidate in actual confrontation with his opponents—a contest more real than conventions or caucuses.

In the event that no single candidate appears as the front-runner out of the primaries, the Democrats will be busily searching for a compromise who would be acceptable to most party factions, thus preventing the deterioration of unity at the national convention. This compromise could be a dark-horse candidate whose hopes faded clearly in the early campaign, but who never quite gave up all aspiration. Or it could well be one who has not made a bid for the nomination, but has quietly said that he would accept the nomination if offered.

Perhaps the first compromise who comes to mind is Ted Kennedy. It is widely accepted that the nomination is virtually his for the asking. Yet Kennedy has firmly declared that he is not a candidate and would not accept a draft. And the recent assassination attempts on President Ford's life are not likely to help change his mind.

There are numerous other alternates that are perhaps more available. Maine Senator Edmund Muskie, Florida Governor Reuben Askew, and Senator Walter Mondale of Minnesota are among them.

But no other alternate is attracting more attention these days than the Happy Warrior himself—Hubert H. Humphrey. Humphrey, at 67, has become increasingly attractive as the answer to the Democratic woes. There is perhaps no other man on Capitol Hill more experienced or knowledgeable than the Minnesota senator, who commands the respect of Republicans and Democrats alike.

The Democratic standard-bearer of 1968 has been involved in presidential politics for over a decade.

So, with all the encouragement, why not make the run? It is my guess that Humphrey is tired; tired of the disappointments of '68, when he lost to Richard Nixon by a hair, and '72, when the Democrats took a left turn with George McGovern. Many of his intimates, including wife Muriel, have reported expressed wishes against any bid. In addition, his senate term expires this year, and by accepting the Democratic nomination, he would be giving up his seat in Congress. In the event that Humphrey loses the general election, it could mean his demise from American politics altogether.

Despite all these deterrents, I suspect there are still political fires burning in the heart of HHH. Should the opportunity become attractive, Humphrey may yet be again in pursuit of the White House. If the Democrats fail to surface a viable challenger who can hold the party together, as well as battle the Republicans, they will certainly be shopping for a compromise nominee outside the declared candidates. And Humphrey still looks as good as any.

Song from Troilus & Cressida

Can life be a blessing,
Or worth the possessing,
Can life be a blessing, if love were away?
Ah, no! though our love all might keep us waking,
And though he torments us with cares all the day,
Yet he sweetens, he sweetens our pains in the taking;
There's an hour at the last, there's an hour to repay.

In every possessing
The ravishing blessing.
In every possessing the fruit of our pain.
Poor lovers forget long ages of anguish,
What'er they have suffered and done to obtain;
'Tis a pleasure, a pleasure to sigh and to languish,
When we hope, when we hope to be happy again.

Town Meeting American Issues

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances." First Amendment to the Constitution.

The First Amendment to the Constitution, particularly the issue of "freedom of the press," will be the topic for discussion of the November 12 Wilmington/New Hanover County Town Meeting. This Town Meeting will be held on Wednesday, November 8, at 8:00 PM in King Auditorium, UNC-W.

Sponsored by the Wilmington New Hanover County American Revolution Bicentennial Association, the Town Meeting will provide citizens of this area the opportunity to voice their opinions and talk with people prominent in the community of these fields.

Moderator of the panel which will initiate the discussion is Dr. James C. Dixon, Chairman of the Political Science Department at UNC-W. Also featured on the panel will be Dan Cobb, Managing Editor of the Star-News; Gene Hodges, News Director WWAY-TV; Chief Darryl L. Bruestle, Chief of Police in Wilmington; Carol Brock, Program Coordinator Grace United Methodist Church and former Promotion Manager of WECT-TV; and Mike Vaughn, Stockbroker, Owner of Vaughan & Company Investments, and former County Commissioner.

The First Amendment liberties were added to our Constitution by our Founding Fathers, who had seen the corrupt side of governmental power, as a bulwark against tyranny. Among the "unalienable rights" that we cherish, perhaps the most basic are the rights to say what we want, when we want and where we want; to assemble with others to talk freely; and to worship in the way we choose. But are these rights absolute?

Felix Frankfurter, Supreme Court Justice, once said, "Freedom of the press is not an end in itself but a means to the end of a free society." Town Meetings are free and the public is urged to attend.

Forum Officials Endorse Student-run Voter Registration Drive

A quarter of a million college and high school students are eligible to vote in North Carolina. But they can't vote unless they are registered.

The Campaign for Student Voters (CSV) will encourage these 250,000 potential voters to register before the North Carolina primary in March.

Founded last summer by eight high school, community college, and university student groups, CSV has the endorsement of the Governor, the State Board of Elections. CSV is only the second such drive in history to be endorsed by the Board of Elections.

CSV will hold conferences where student leaders can learn about voting laws and how to organize a registration campaign on their own campuses. So far about 600 students from across the state have been invited to these conferences, said Gary Thomas of the N.C. Student Legislature, coordinator of the CSV.

In some counties officials have made it hard for students to register. But with the help of the State Board of Elections, CSV hopes to break down those barriers and make it easier for students to exercise their rights as citizens.

Individuals or groups who want to join CSV's effort may write coordinator Gary Thomas, c/o Student Government, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514.

SAB: Football Championship

The Business Fraternity, Sigma Alpha Beta, defeated the Jocks 15-7 to capture the intramural flag football championship. SAB reached the finals by whipping the Mas-hers while the Jocks, the only undefeated team after regular play, drew a bye.

The win avenged SAB's only loss of the season.

UNC-W Whips Campbell 1-0

UNC-W and Campbell met in what could only be called a typical Seahawk-Camel soccer match. From the opening kickoff, the two teams went at each other tooth and nail and when the dust finally cleared the Hawks had recorded their twelfth victory of the year against one setback. The win insured UNC-E of the home field advantage Thursday for the District 29 Championship match against Campbell.

In the first half, Campbell came out like a house on fire putting constant pressure on the Seahawks and at several points dominating the game with very physical play.

The Hawks came to life in the closing minutes of the half but were unable to score.

In the second half UNC-W began to settle down and play to their potential, passing on the ground and playing position soccer.

With seven minutes left in the scoreless match Gonzalo Rada threaded a pass through the Camel defense to Nino Fleri who, under pressure, dribbled toward the right post and then punched the ball into the left side of the net for the score.

The "thrill of victory" was dampened, however, due to the injury of senior Wingman, David Wychel, who suffered a crushed cheekbone in a collision with a Campbell player.

There was an excellent crowd on hand for the match and it included several members of the faculty. It is hoped there will be as good or better turnout for the championship match on Thursday.

WIN

The UNC-W women's volleyball team defeated Atlantic Christian College in two matches Monday night. This completed the regular season for the Hawks. Next action will be in the Class B State Tournament, where the Hawks will be defending their state championship title.

Seahawks Win Two

UNC-Wilmington recorded their tenth and eleventh victories of the year as they slammed The Citadel 5-0 and downed College of Charleston 4-1.

In The Citadel game, played at home, the Seahawks took it to the Bulldogs outshooting them 22 to 7.

Freshman Eddie Brock led the Hawks with two goals, one on a diving head shot. David Wychel, Carlos Escobar, and Nino Fleri added one goal and one assist each, and Gene Borowski had an assist.

Against College of Charleston, the Seahawks did not play their best game. They had numerous opportunities to break the game open but failed to capitalize on them.

Leading 3-0, the Hawks let up in the second half possibly thinking ahead to the big confrontation with Campbell. Charleston scored on a corner kick that ended the Hawks shutout string at seven games.

Escobar had two goals, Fleri had two goals and one assist. Wychel had two assists, and Gonzalo Rada had one assist.

Lines on Wine

by R. Corbin Houchins
E & J Gallo Winery

This column concludes our discussion of basic tasting technique with an actual taste of the wine.

After giving your nose a few moments to recover from the nose of the wine (i.e., the sum of the aromas and bouquet), take enough wine to taste—about an ounce—into your mouth. Don't swallow it yet.

First roll the wine around to make sure it touches all parts of the tongue. Next, holding the wine on your palate, open your lips very slightly in a somewhat puckered shape and breathing through the mouth, take a deep breath. It's rather like whistling backwards. As you breathe in, press your tongue upward intermittently so the wine passes through the wine with a discreet gurgling sound.

Close your mouth, exhale and, as you do, swallow the wine. Notice the relationship between the taste sensations on your palate and the aromatic components that pass through your nose. Pay close attention to the flavors as they fade away, for some characteristics of the wine may be revealed only in what is termed the finish—i.e., the sensations that occur after the wine has been swallowed.

As in the nose, we seek in the taste a clean, vinous quality appropriate to the occasion. We may also find suggestions of fruit, spice or other pleasant flavors. Some Ruby Cabernet, for example, will show hints of green olive; other wines from the same grape may suggest a cecalypso grove.

Putting the wine in your mouth also reveals certain characteristics apart from flavor. The most important are total acidity (tartness), sugar level (sweetness), astringency (bitterness) and body (impression of weight of substance).

Wine needs a certain amount of acidity in order to feel at all interesting in the mouth. A wine deficient in acid can be described as "too soft" or "flat," which has nothing to do with bubbles or the lack of them. An overly acidic wine is too sharp, like unsweetened lemon juice.

If the wine has no noticeable sweetness it is considered dry. Some wines benefit from a little residual sugar, so it is not true that the driest wine is the best. However, with some notable exceptions sugar tends to mask complexity, so becoming acclimated to drier wines is a step toward fuller appreciation.

Astringency is caused primarily by tannic compounds, which are natural components of grapes. Like acid, astringency is necessary to a moderate degree, lest the wine taste insipid. Excessive bitterness usually shows up most prominently in the finish.

Acid, tannin and sugar are about all your taste buds can distinguish by themselves. However, your mind can integrate a number of sensations caused chiefly by the alcoholic content to arrive at an impression of substance in the mouth. A wine too low in body tastes watery; a wine with too much body is hot and volatile to the taste, as if it were laced with vodka.

The last step is to judge how harmoniously the various aspects of the wine combine. A modest, well balanced wine is often preferable to one with grander parts that are ill-matched.

I'd like to leave you with one of the very few tricks in the wine tasting trade. Write down your impressions as you form them. There is little physiological difference between one palate and the next; appreciation depends upon what the brain does with the sensations. Force yourself to articulate what you perceive in the wine, and you will very shortly discover you can perceive much more.

What is Operations Research?

On Thursday, November 6, at 6:00 P.M. in room C-114 of the Chemistry-Physics Building, the answer to this question will be given. It will be presented in a talk by Dr. Jon W. Tolle, Chairman of the Curriculum in Operations Research at The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He will be a guest of the Mathematical Sciences Department and his talk will be a program of the Math Club. All students and faculty are invited to attend.

In his talk Dr. Tolle will give a description and short history of operations research as a distinct branch of the mathematical sciences. Emphasis will be placed on the relationship between the growth of operations research and the increasing qualifications and expansion of such previously nontechnical areas as administration, planning, and management. Several examples of typical problems in operations research will be used to illustrate the basic methodology of the subject. He will also discuss various career opportunities for persons with expertise in operations research and indicate the prerequisite knowledge in mathematics, statistics, and computer science for workers in these fields.

One of the main reasons for the visit is to promote graduate offerings in operations research at UNC-Chapel Hill. Therefore, students in mathematics, computer science, and business who might be interested in such a program should plan to talk to Dr. Tolle on an individual basis.

As previously mentioned, Dr. Tolle is Chairman of the Curriculum in Operations Research at UNC-Chapel Hill. He is also an associate professor in both operations research and mathematics. He received a B.A. degree from DePaul University in 1961 and a Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota in 1966. He has research publications in mathematical programming and optimization theory.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE COIN

My best friend is Jesus Christ. (People, please don't stop reading now—read on!) Jesus is a friend that sticks closer than a brother. He really is! Before I go on, let me say this. If anyone had told me a little over a year ago, that I would have an article like this in a newspaper, I would have told him that he was absolutely crazy. Let me share with you how I got to know Jesus personally.

The opening scene is typical. Friends, home from college during the summer, are gathered around a big table at the local lounge. Everyone is feeling the effect of the drinks (among other things); there is a lot of talking, laughter, and reminiscing about our high school days. The subject is changed to the big tent meeting being held on the fairgrounds. Johnny says and demonstrates mockingly, "Those people raise their hands and Praise the Lord!" This is followed by a howl of laughter at our table. A little discussion follows, and the subject is changed. However, the subject has not dropped in my mind; my curiosity is aroused as I compare Johnny's demonstration to the ritualistic services of my own church.

The second scene changes to two nights later. My friend and I are bored with nothing to do. Yes, we were even a little bored with the local lounge. We wanted something exciting to do—something different! (Have you ever been in one of those moods?) My mind goes back to Johnny's demonstration of the people at the tent meeting. That was it!

My friend and I, dressed in our jeans, headed out to the tent meeting (which is already in progress) just for a good night's "kicks." (It's funny how we get our "kicks" in life; we will try just about anything!) Well, People, we had our laughs at these Christians, we thought they were crazy! Now I am not talking about a group of old people who had nothing better to do than go to church services. These services were being led by a group (approximately 60 from the ages of 16 to 20 years old) of young people called the United Christians. They were beautiful young people, too, they did not look like a group of "nuns" from all denominations who put Jesus No. 1 in their lives. Almost everyone of them knew the "other side of the coin"—a world of drugs, drinking, sex, etc., but later in their life they had learned the reality of Jesus. There was one thing my friend and I could not laugh at: their love—their love for Jesus, for each other, and even us. We left while they were taking up the offering. We went again the next night, again "just for kicks."

These young people were in my home town for a month. I had my share of making fun and mocking them during much of this time. These United Christians (they were united because of Jesus' Love which they had) answered my questions and talked with me for almost the whole month. Even when I was rude to them, they responded to me in love. Although I had always gone to church every Sunday, I knew these people had something I did not have. (People, at first I did not even want what they had, but Praise God, Jesus wanted me). Finally, I realized I had been running my life long enough and had really made a mess of it. One afternoon I prayed with two of the kids to the Father. I told Him I wanted Him to have His way with my life; I have not been the same since! I am really so much happier with my change and I have no desire to turn back. Jesus is the same, yesterday, and today, and forever (Hebrews 13:8). Jesus is not a liar. He will do the same things for you that He has done for mankind since He walked as "man" on earth. Do you believe in Jesus? Then why don't you believe what He said! Trust Him; what He is doing for others, He'll do for you. With Christ's Love.

The Hawk's Eye

Do you think there is a need for the campus police to be armed during the daylight hours?

BY DAVID SUMMERLIN

I don't think there is any reason to have armed guards on campus. If there is any danger of someone stealing something from a car of a building, you could apprehend him without shooting.
Jackie Allen History-Junior

Yes. If people see security guards around campus without guns, they will be more likely to try something than if the guards were armed. In daylight, it is easy to see if the guards are armed or not.

'Panama'
Economics-Senior

The probability of a violent crime occurring on this campus during the daylight hours is so minute that I don't believe an armed security force is necessary. The bearing of guns during the day could only result in a tragedy that this university could ill afford.
Bill Fox
Biology-Sophomore

I've never really thought about it. But I really don't see the need of campus police being armed at all. The only instances in which I can see the campus police being armed are in the cases of a burglary or riot.
Greg Musselwhite
History-Sophomore

No. The chances of a riot on campus in the daytime is relatively small. There are not many cases where a gun is necessary, and lethal weapons (if needed in the daytime) could be used by the city police being called in. To my knowledge, no campus security guard has ever needed to use a gun in the daytime.

David Bowers

Definitely yes. What is someone starts shooting on campus and the security guards are not armed?

No, there isn't any need for them to be armed. Who is going to rob this place? When you need the cops they're not around.

Dr. MOSELEY GOES TO RUSSIA

by Ray Warren

During the worst part of the cold war in the 1950's, a person could be accused of being a communist and even lose his job for so much as knowing a Russian. Today, thanks to detente, a still small but growing number of Americans are visiting the Soviet Union. Dr. Thomas Moseley of the UNC-W history department just returned from a tour of the world's largest and most powerful marxist state.

Moseley, who teaches Russian history, visited five of the republics (states) of the Soviet Union - Georgia, Russia, Ukraine, Armenia and Azerbaizhia. Regional loyalties apparently remain strong. Despite the fact that they live under one of the most centralized regimes in the world, Dr.

Moseley found that the average citizen of Georgia or Armenia firmly believes his republic to be separate and autonomous of Moscow. Religion, once a major force in Russian life, seems to have lost its importance. Although officially discouraged, Dr. Moseley found that religious ceremonies are still being openly performed. The government apparently hopes that making religious practice both inconvenient and irrelevant will contribute to its natural decline. Today there are less than 40 churches in Moscow, a city of several million people.

Although the average Soviet citizen seems little interested in ideology, Dr. Moseley found them to be both patriotic and hard working. Memories of "the great patriotic war" (W.W. II), in which 3 million people died, are still vivid. Dr. Moseley was particularly impressed with the people's willingness to work for a goal. "Although they cannot yet equal us from A to Z, they can set a goal to beat us at on thing - 'H' for example and do it", he stated. "Most westerners don't like to admit it", he conceded, "but their system is working for them".

The larger cities of the Soviet Union have some of the best mass transportation facilities in the world, according to Dr. Moseley. Western architecture and dress are very much in evidence, but the cities are dominated by their onion-domed former churches (the Kremlin in Moscow - St. Sophia's in Kiev.). Open spaces and parks are given great importance and flowers brighten the cities.

The Soviet people were extremely friendly to the American visitors. Once, when visiting a market in Tbilisi, some friendly peasants interfered to prevent him from paying too much for what appeared to be "bootleg" vodka. It turned out that they had given wise counsel, for the "vodka" turned out to be only overpriced vinegar. Another time, several local rnen invired him to have beer. Despite the fact that the men were by no means wealthy, they would accept no payment from their American guests. Dr. Moseley sees the Soviet Union today as a growing and active competitor with the U.S. He heartily approves of detente. "It's better than fighting", he says. Both sides have a stake in peace he believes. Russians now jam the stores seeking consumer goods. "The more they get", he says, "the more they have to loose". America must, however, remain in a position of strength, he agrees.

After speaking with him for one half an hour and listening to him praise the Soviet people, I had to ask Dr. Moseley a question. Is he advocating the Soviet system for the United States? "No way", he said. "I'd rather be a rich capitalist!"

33 Chosen to Who's Who

Thirty-three students at The University of North Carolina at Wilmington have been selected for inclusion in the forthcoming edition of WHO'S WHO AMONG STUDENTS IN AMERICAN UNIVERSITIES AND COLLEGES.

Nominated by their fellow students, members of the faculty and administrators, the honored students were chosen by a special selection committee.

New Hanover County residents named to the publication were Frederick Aikens, Richard Samuel Barbee, David

Lee Brickley, Carolyn Yvonne Harrington, Stephen Lewis Hobbs, Sandra Mae Jones, Donna Faye Lanier, Aaron A. McCrae, Jr., Robert Anthony Maxey, Breck Mitchell Newber, Leroy Oakley III, Craig Mixon Parker, Jean Hemby Piner, Michael Lee Prevatte, Donna Lee Terrence, Deborah Elizabeth Warner, and Robert Glen Williamson, all of Wilmington; Charles Andrew Balser, Jr. of Carolina Beach; and Carol Ann Moore, Jean-Clare Phyllis Welker and James Timothy Willette of Wrightsville Beach.

Others selected were Robert Wayne Barbee of Greensboro, Gordon Wayne Dean of Southern Pines, Edward Darrell Ellis and Deborah Darlene Nichols of Purlcar, Linda Sue Houghton of Torawa Torrace, Ernest Lee Lawrence of Elizabethtown, Debra Wayne Lewis and Earl Monroe Vaughn, Jr. of Leland, Stephanie Glen Marlowe of Supply, Darlene Angela Pearsall of Jacksonville, Paul Joseph Sistare of Fayetteville, and Kelvin Leon Wright of Snow Hill.

letters to the editor

My dear Sir:

This should really be in the form of two separate letters; however, for the sake of brevity, I'll put it all in one.

First, I should like to compliment you on your excellent coverage on your Front page of November 5th of the Schweitzer Awards.

Secondly, I should like to answer some of the things that you mention in your article on page 3.

That Mr. Menotti was able to lunch with and talk to the students was what we had hoped all the three Recipients would be able to do.

We Wonder Why?

Dear Editor,

We are wondering why we have not heard any criticism from this paper concerning our SGA president, Steve Hobbs. In almost every issue of this year's Seahawk, there has been at least one, if not more, discouraging articles concerning the Senate. And somehow, the activities of our President have always been overlooked. We are tired of seeing Steve's smiling face staring at us from page one and we feel it is time to induce a little criticism. Here are some of the presidential affairs and decisions we question.

We ask Mr. Hobbs why he appointed himself a student delegate to the Curriculum Committee and then failed to attend any of the meetings. There are three student representatives on this very important committee and each is responsible for voicing student opinion in the decisions concerning additions and deletions of courses. Mr. Hobbs nominated himself for this committee and we feel he did it realizing he could not attend the meetings, since many of them fall on Tuesdays, the day of the SGA Senate meetings. Mr. Hobbs was also very slow in nominating his replacement, in fact, he did so just two days before the committee meetings ended. The students, therefore, lost one of their three representative voices. Is this a wise executive decision?

We also wonder, Mr. Hobbs, why there are so many conflicting stories concerning the student representative at the Albert Schweitzer Awards. Since you were unable to attend, we feel that the next logical choice was our SGA Vice-President Carol Moore. But instead, an alumni was present and Miss Moore was not even sent an invitation. We have the understanding that the duty of the Vice President is to take the place of the President in case he is unable to fulfill his responsibilities. It is so written in our constitution. We are not going to even ask why Mr. Maxey and Miss Moore were given two different stories concerning this However, both Dr. Binder and Mother Teresa had very recently been ill; therefore, they needed a certain time to rest between activities. Also, Mother Teresa was in our city less than 24 hours, for she left Thursday night as she was addressing the U.N. the next day.

Now RE student participation - we tried two years ago to form a National Student Council and had no success. I agree that in the future this is something we can work on and that all will benefit.

Now RE the "Black Tie Affair" - what is wrong with doing things as matter.

It also seems, Mr. Hobbs, that your conflicts with other students are entering into the actions of your office. We are referring to a recent Senate meeting in which you nominated Joanne Gentry as Vice Chairman of the Homecoming Committee, against the wishes of the Homecoming Chairman Gary Shipman. Is it not obvious that the entrance of someone totally unaware of the affairs of that committee, in a position so high as that of Vice Chairman, would greatly hinder the progress of that committee? We are very sorry that you and Mr. Shipman have your conflicts, but it is a poor executive who lets those problems interfere with the performance of his duty.

We understand, Mr. Hobbs, that the office holds certain privileges, but these cannot be abused. Every student attending the Halloween beer bust who did not live in the dorm had to pay two dollars to enjoy the refreshments. Was it fair for you, Mr. Hobbs, to request a reduction by one-half? You may be President, sir, but you are still a student. Please remember that.

We wonder also if the staff of the Seahawk is reluctant to enter articles of criticism against Mr. Hobbs because they are afraid to "bite the hand that feeds them." I am very sorry that Mr. Hobbs has threatened the paper in this way, but he has and it cannot be forgotten.

A final question. The SGA Senate represents the students. Who do you represent, Mr. Hobbs?

Obfuscating the Issue

Dear Editor,

The sub-title you added to my article on the Schweitzer Awards was gauche. The problem of communication on this campus is not helped by your further obfuscating the issue.

they should be done! To honor anyone, one should do it right.

It is to be hoped on our next presentation of Awards that many more people - students and local people - will participate. We can certainly use their help.

I would like to extend our thanks to all those at the University, both Faculty and Students, who worked to make our first set of Awards such a memorable occasion.

President Ford - Right, Left, ... or Both?

By Bobby Parker

Since the beginning of the administration of Gerald R. Ford in Washington, the White House has seemed a series of appointments, re-appointments, and de-appointments, which have generally resulted in a melange of disappointments. With the initial appointment that delivered Mr. Ford unto the American people as the savior of our national crises, it would seem that he was the answer to all our problems, and that with him holding the reins, we could move forward out of the shadows of Nixon and Watergate.

But it is becoming increasingly clear that Ford lacks the basic abilities associated with a strong leader capable of returning our country to an era of progress and prosperity. Admittedly, it will take more than a strong president to lead us out of the wake of Washington's economic slumps—there must also be a responsive Congress and a concerned public. But Jerry Ford is the one figure who is in the position to pull us through our national woes. And, indeed, if there is any solution, he is going to be the one who must pry them out of their hiding places.

From the beginning of his tenure, Ford has set his goals on halting inflation and solving other national problems, while at the same time trying to establish himself as America's knight in shining armor. But, as he has well proven, he cannot handle the two tasks at the same time, and it remains to be seen if he could even handle one or the other separately.

Being appointed directly out of the Congress to fill the vacant vice-presidency and subsequently ascending to the presidency, he has no established base of support which is afforded elected presidents. Therefore, he has busily set out in search of such a base which he hopes can project him into a full term of his own.

Searching for the constituency, he has gone about it by trying to please all the people all the time. But the impossibility of this task should cause Mr. Ford to realize that he would do well to establish himself as black or white, not both.

His main concern is the conservative wing of his own Republican party. There, Ronald Reagan and others have been somewhat upset over his occasional drifts to the left, as in his selection of the liberal stalwart Nelson Rockefeller to be vice-president.

Realizing the threat and danger of a challenge within his own party, he has quickly shifted to a policy of ceding this to the right, and that to the left. A continuation of this political game could well bring on a reaction from the Republican left who might field their own favorite son to insure their voice is heard in the '76 campaign.

This is strange behavior for Ford, and indeed unnecessary. His record in Congress puts him in a conservative category. If he had only remained conservative, he would not be facing the eminent eyes of Reagan and his supporters. Or at least if he wanted to move to a liberal stand, he should find his ground and stand on it. But his constant drift from extremity to extremity does not even earn him the middle-of-the-road label. (Though political "labels" may seem archaic today, they are still very much employed in the world of politics.)

In playing his game of political catch, Ford has made many imprudent decisions that may do him more harm than good in the coming campaign.

A prime example of his less than thoughtful decisions is his stand on the issue of federal aid for financially troubled New York. When Mr. Ford vows to veto any pro-New York legislation from the Congress, he is practicing the most blatant form of political manipulation since Richard Nixon's celebrated "light at the end of the tunnel" weeks before the '72 election.

By this action of bucking the center of the liberal establishment, Ford hopes to gain the favor of those right-wing Republicans who threaten his hold on his own party.

What remains to be seen is whether Ford can find his footing and take a position so that the voters may identify his stand in the election. Otherwise, he may find himself in serious trouble by the time the Republican National Convention convenes in Kansas City next summer.

Conservatives and liberals within the Republican party are not likely to sit back and take much more of Ford's dawdling. In fact, Vice-President Rockefeller, with his request to not be included on the 1976 ticket, and Ronald Reagan, with his all-but-official challenge for the nomination, have proven that neither side will remain idle while Ford rubs between them.

Ford may soon realize a disappointment of his own when he awakens to the fact that presidential politics is not the same game as Congressional politics back in Michigan. If not, Jerry and Betty may find themselves on the road back to Grand Rapids next January, with the Republican party close behind.

Final Week on Yearbook Sales

This is the final week of yearbook sales. The price for each student taking six or more hours is $5.00. Faculty and staff must pay $8.00. This is sure to be the most original and colorful yearbook ever.

Friday, November 14 is the last day. You can buy a subscription upstairs in the pub or in the Administration Building near the registrar's office any afternoon.

If you don't buy a book now, you'll regret it in August.

My Apology

Due to an error on my part, an important part of the Schweitzer Awards Ceremonies was left out of last week's Seahawk. Congratulations to Richard Steen and the UNC-W concert choir. The Bach Motet was beautifully performed and added much to the program. I apologize for the omission.

Coloring Problems: Is it Art or Mathematics?

By Fred Toney

Dr. Richard E. Chandler, professor of mathematics at N.C. State University, will give a talk entitled, "Coloring Problems", at 11:30 on Friday, November 14, in Room C-114. He will be a guest of the Mathematical Sciences Department, The Math Club, and the Pi Mu Epsilon chapter. In his talk he will discuss map coloring as generalized to color problems on the torus and other surfaces. He will also discuss the embedding of a graph in a surface and some related coloring questions. The presentation will be made without a need for mathematics prerequisites. Therefore, all students and faculty are invited to attend.

Dr. Chandler is a native of Florida and obtained B.S.,

M.S., and Ph.D. degrees at Florida State University. His Ph.D. dissertation in topology was directed by Dr. M.L. Curtis. After receiving his degree he worked for two years as a research associate at Duke University. He joined the N.C. State faculty in 1965 as an assistant professor and has now attained the rank of full professor. He is also Graduate Administrator for the Department of Mathematics. The main reason for his visit to the UNC-Wilmington campus is connected with his position as Graduate Administrator. He is interested in promoting graduate offerings in mathematics at N.C. State University. The Mathematics Department offers graduate programs leading to the degrees of Master of Science and Doctor of Philosophy. All interested students are encouraged to talk to Dr. Chandler about these programs and the availability of financial aid.

November 14 is also the day of the Pi Mu Epsilon initiation for the 1975-76 academic year. The North Carolina Zeta Chapter of Pi Mu Epsilon was installed at UNC-Wilmington in 1974. Pi Mu Epsilon is a national honorary mathematics fraternity. Membership is based on high academic achievement in undergraduate mathematics. Students to be initiated this year are Harold Lee Hancock, Earl James Lynch, Catherine McCulloch, Marie Ann Sellers, Anne Tomlinson, James Leo Walker, and Robert Williamson. Mr. Thomas P. Brown and Mr. Kenneth R. Gurganus are mathematics faculty members who will also be initiated. The initiation ceremony along with a supper will be held at the home of Calvin Lee Doss, who is president of the local chapter.

Problem #6

Three goats graze on a fenced-in meadow containing 120 square yards in the shape of an equal-sided triangle. Each goat is tethered to a stake set in a different corner of the meadow and the tethers are just long enough for a goat to reach the middle of the opposite fence.

If you consider that a goat grazes all the area he alone can reach, half of the area shared with exactly one other goat, and one-third of the area commonly grazed by all three, how much area in all does one goat graze? Why?

COFFEEHOUSE

MON. NOV. 17

4 p.m.

OPENS

SPECIAL

UNC-W's first campus facility to combine entertainment, good food, and atmosphere will formally open Monday, November 17, 1975. The ribbon cutting celebration, set to begin at 4:00 p.m., will be complete with free sparkling cider. Faculty and staff as well as students are encouraged to attend, for this gathering spot has been planned to serve the entire university community.

In the idea stage for almost a year, the first coffeehouse committee to begin definite plans to remodel the former Seahawk office in February with the Director of Student Activities. A survey in the Seahawk showed the country barn theme most popular, ideas were centered around the images of rough sawn lumber, and a casual but intimate atmosphere. The Chancellor's approval for the coffeehouse concept was received soon after, and the committee began the long, sometimes frustrating, but always exciting task of making this idea come alive.

They solicited the help of Horizon Associates, a local interior design firm, to assist with planning the most efficient use of the small space that was available. The floor plan showed a possible seating capacity of around 65 people, allowing room for a stage, counter, and sound and light control booth. The finished proposal also reflected an overall design plan for the entire downstairs area, including future permanent expansion of the coffeehouse into the rec room (This can now be accomplished whenever the need arises by simply opening the double doors between the two rooms.)

Working quickly, the committee publicized a Cutoff Day observance before exams began to collect used denim material for seat cushions. Patches announcing "I Gave My Legs to the Coffeehouse" were seen walking around campus, attached to cut-off jeans of all descriptions. Over 150 legs, 20 shorts, and 35 pairs of whole jeans were collected, many from dormitory residents who were accosted by scissors-wielding committee members! Seat cushions for the chairs and bar stools will be made from this material at a later date.

The summer months proved even busier for the committee.

Food items for the limited menu were chosen, interviews were given to several interested restaurant operators, and the decor was finalized. Also, it was at this time that the committee received an item that signified the start of the actual remodeling. A large tobacco barn, located in Hampstead on Deerfield, a new residential subdivision, was donated to the project. David Brickley supervised its dismantling and the weathered pine was stacked behind the Pub, to become a familiar sight to those entering the Pub from the south. Over the next two months, approximately fifteen students helped with the huge task of sorting the lumber, pulling the nails, and spraying it for insects.

Will Whitson was contracted in late August for the construction and design of the interior. Working with the old barn wood, Will and his helpers panelled the walls, installed window shutters, and built a counter, stage, video platform, and control booth. He was later contracted to design and build the booths and tables.

Painters, electricians, plumbers and carpenters then readied the kitchen for the food operation. Mr. Lyle Lee, operator of Munchey's Grill, received the contract, and began to plan his campus food facility.

The last few weeks have been spent in furious activity, as several campus departments worked steadily to do their part in achieving the November 17th target date. But the work is not yet complete. Purposely, the committee has left many details unattended. This will enable the coffeehouse to grow and change with the student body, to keep "alive". Everyone is encouraged to become a part of this process.

It is felt that November 17, 1975 marks an important occasion in the history of UNC-W. Come help us celebrate! Student life is bound to be a little richer from now on.

A Special Thanks

The Coffeehouse Committees would like to say a special thank-you to the dedicated staff of the Seahawk, who worked diligently to put this special supplement together.

Where There's a "Will" There's a Way

How did little Will Whitson from Nyack, New York, travel to the heart of hominy land to magically convert a turn-down tobacco barn into one of the sharpest lounges to be found?

Will, a junior majoring in biology and chemistry, has combined attention to details, carpentry skills, a flair for design, and plenty of natural talent and imagination to create, almost entirely on his own, the place on campus destined to soon be The Place On Campus. How can a tobacco barn be relocated on campus as a coffee house? Where there's Will, there's a way.

At twenty-five, Will has amassed an unbelievable assortment of experiences: a year's study at the New York institute of Photography, two years in the West Indies with much travel, study at three different colleges for ceramics, manager of the Rothskeller at the University of Miami, manager of several leather shops, and teacher at the Potter's Wheel here in Wilmington last year. While in Barbados, Will lived for about a year in a cave, spending time wandering around the island and working on a wooden trading vessel. His return to the States was unique, as it was spent aboard a sailing yacht which took 22 days to complete its West Indies to Philadelphia voyage.

Will's travels and studies have been financed through a combination of hard work and cleverness. The interior of the coffeehouse is his most recent project. Working without detailed plans, Will created as he progressed, often, it seemed, in leaps and bounds. With the help of Alan Dixon, Hugh Johnson, Sami Hanes, and "Prior", Will finished the coffeehouse in about 30 working days.

Will's talent in transforming the initial coffeehouse idea into reality is hard to describe. Perhaps he just has more than his fair share of ability in this area. But whatever, Will has left a generous portion of it behind for all of us to enjoy.

Will's urge to travel will shortly take him to Cat Island in the Bahamas. And as might be expected, there is more involved than a simple vacation. It sounds like the start of another venture. Will plans to check on obtaining some teak and mahogany—just enough for a 22 foot sailboat. His urge to see the South Seas must be becoming too hard to resist.

Beer Policy Explained

For the first time, all UNC-W students will have a place on campus in which to enjoy their favorite brew and favorite sandwich or pizza. Students may bring their own beer into the coffeehouse on Fridays and Saturdays from 5 PM until closing. However, this permission depends upon the type of entertainment being presented, and is on a trial basis at first. The following guidelines have been set:

--A total of 72 ounces of beer per person per night may be brought in. This is the equivalent of a six-pack of twelve-ounce cans or bottles.

--Alcoholic beverages of any other kind will not be permitted.

--Beer must be carried into the coffeehouse in bottles or cans. Empty cups may also be brought in or obtained from the food operator.

--Beer will not be allowed in any other areas of the Student Union.

--No buying or selling of beer will be permitted.

--Patrons' beer may not be stored in the building.

--Any patron whose behavior, in the opinion of the coffeehouse manager, is disruptive will be asked to leave immediately. A second offense will bar this individual from the coffeehouse for that semester.

--Neither the food operator nor the coffeehouse may provide a cooler for patrons' beer.

Other schools in North Carolina have co-operated with the North Carolina Alcoholic Beverage Control Board in making similar arrangements for students to bring their beer into campus coffeehouses.

MANAGEMENT COMMITTEE

The main concern of our committee is the management of the Coffeehouse. In this role we have had to deal with several major issues. One of our objectives was to provide a good food service. We will have Mr. Lyle Lee of Munchy's handling the job. We are providing help with ideas, design and work on the coffeehouse.

Another project we are working on is a name for the coffeehouse. We have narrowed a list down to several very good choices. We plan to have the early coffeehouse audiences to vote on their favorite name. The committee helped select two managers for the coffeehouse.

The toughest job was working up the rules and policies for the coffeehouse. We spent quite a bit of thought on these policies. Finally, there are many other small but important jobs that were done.

The people who have spent so many hours on this committee are RICHARD BOLES, NEAL HUNTLEY, ROBERT MAXEY, C. and ADRIEN. Advisor is L. Director of S. As always, people to help. If you are into on Fridays. Student Acti. cated in the building.

ENTERTAINMENT COMMITTEE

In September, when the CoffeeHouse Entertainment Committee (Richard Boles, Rick Dennis, Galen Harris, Ann Nesbit and Mike Sellers) met for the first time we knew that a coffeehouse could be a contributing factor to the well-being of the university and a congenial meeting place for students, faculty and friends. There we sat like Robin's statue of The Thinker pondering about what type entertainment would help make the coffeehouse an integral part of campus life. Our hope is that through fine food, a quiet spot, good friends and diverse entertainment, everyone can sit back and enjoy themselves. Someone said, "Ya'll kan't please 'em all." But, we think the Coffeehouse can.

In September, we joined the Coffeehouse Circuit out of New York, which provides quality entertainment at a reasonable price to college campuses. The circuit not only helps the university, it provides the up-and-coming entertainer with exposure, less travel and great audiences. Even though the circuit price is right, on a limited budget money goes fast, so the committee turned to John, a student, faculty members, staff members and friends for help. The response was great. With your help the Coffeehouse will be able to provide entertainment from folk music to opera, from readings to plays, from country western to rock, from conversation to the last lecture series and from start to finish entertainment for you.

When the Coffeehouse opens November 17, it may seem to be the end of the Coffeehouse Entertainment Committee but it is really the beginning. The committee needs more ideas, more support and more members. Only by your help can the Coffeehouse provide the outlet we all need. So, if you are interested, the Coffeehouse Entertainment Committee meets each Wednesday in Linda Moore's office (downstairs Pub) at 12:30. See you there this Wednesday.

ID's Needed For Admittance

UNC-W's coffeehouse has been financed and planned, built, and will be supervised by its students. For these reasons, and because of its small seating capacity, only students presenting a valid UNC-W ID card will be allowed to use the coffeehouse.

The number of guests allowed per student will be limited, depending upon the type of entertainment offered. Students and their guests will have seating preference over faculty and staff members when the room is crowded.

Student Union Night Managers

To assist the Director of Student Activities in her responsibility for the overall supervision of the Student Union, a night manager's position has recently been created. To be filled by two students, this 5 p.m. to closing job will enable the Pub to be supervised every evening, especially important with the opening of the coffeehouse.

William ("Duffy") Robinson and Mark Leonard were selected in the search for responsible students who could work with the organization and committees using the Pub. Both have had previous experience as managers of similar facilities, and both have a strong interest in the operation of the coffeehouse. Leonard and Robinson will begin work the week of November 17th.

The Coffeehouse Needs a Name

The Coffeehouse Management Committee has been in search of a name for the coffeehouse. Students were invited to submit their suggestions, and several have been received over the past weeks. The committee has narrowed the list to the following suggestions:
GOOD WOOD TAVERN
GROUND-FLOOR GET-AWAY
PUBLIVION
HAWK WIND
BEHIND THE BARN

Please add your suggestions to the box in front of Linda Moore's office, located in the pub.

On Friday night, November 21, the coffeehouse audience will vote for their favorite name. The coffeehouse needs a name, so come out and vote.

Food Service

Mr. Lyle Lee, owner/operator of Munchey's Grill, was awarded the contract for the coffeehouse food service. Always interested in the College trade, Lee was pleased with his selection as contractor. He plans to offer food items similar to those available at Munchey's, but is also most anxious to offer specialty items, and to broaden his menu.

A relative newcomer to the food business, Lee worked at several textile plants before deciding to switch careers a year and a half ago. His wife, son, and daughter help with the family business, and may even fill in at the campus location.

Coffeehouse Hours

The Coffeehouse room will be opened when the Student Union is unlocked each morning, and will close at 10:30. Sunday through Thursday, and at 11:30 Friday and Saturday. These hours will be changed as traffic dictates. However, the food service will operate on the following schedule, to avoid competition with the campus snack bar: 4PM to 10PM Sunday through Thursday, and 4PM to 11PM Friday and Saturday.

UNC-W now has yet another committee, this one composed of aspiring young impresarios intent upon providing entertaining and/or educational material, in video tape form, to the inhabitants of this campus. They have been active in many facets of campus life, covering sports events, concerts, lectures and serving as an additional vehicle for publicizing student-oriented news and activities, both on and off campus. The most notable of these was the recent Schweitzer Awards, during which the UNC-W committee assisted UNC-TV crew with its coverage. David Brickley, committee chairman, served as an on-stage cameraman, a job usually handled by UNC-TV professionals. Other members involved were Allen Everhart and Greg Gariss, who worked as grips and sound assistants, and Donna Terrence, who helped coordinate graphics.

Some of the "edu-tainment" that the Video Tape Committee (VTC) has offered include the CBS interview with Alexander Solzhenitsyn, "The Navajo Way" (a documentary on Navajo tradition and culture) and "Flash Gordon Conquers The Universe" (a serial currently being shown in weekly chapters).

Future presentations will include Kurt Vonnegut's "Between Time and Timbuktu," "Breathing Together," (a New Line Cinema film about modern America) and as a special presentation to honor the opening of the new Coffee House, VTC proudly presents the Ali-Frazier Championship Fight (also known as "The Thrilla in Manila"). The fight film, which has been generously furnished by our local Budweiser distributor, will be shown beginning Monday night, November 17, and will run throughout the rest of the week, days and evenings, in the Coffee House. Free coffee will be served during the days.

Students are welcomed to join the VTC. Anyone wishing to become a member may contact Mr. Hal Knowles, committee advisor, in the Drama and Speech Department or David Brickley, committee chairman. Membership will provide opportunities to learn video camera operation, news-writing, reporting and film editing, all of which can be hard work, rewarding and sometimes even fun!

Environmental Studies

During the spring 1976 term EVS 195 will be offered on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 12:30 to 2:00 in Room M-252. This will be:

Interdisciplinary introduction to the scope and application of environmental studies. Emphasis will be placed on an integrated analysis of environmental principles and discussions centering on current environmental problems.

The material to be presented will endeavor to provide information on professional techniques, job opportunities and the future impact of environmental deterioration on humans.

Special Elections to be Held

As it stands, there are two senior and one sophomore senate position opened. There will be a special election on November 21 to elect senators to fill these. Any senior or sophomore desiring to run for one of these positions must act accordingly:

1. State his intention to run on or before November 19 at noon.

2. Make a passing score on the constitution quiz to be given on November 19 at 4:30 p.m. in the upstairs Pub.

A potential candidate might file for office by leaving his name, address, and phone number in the SGA office or by contacting Robert Moore, Board of Elections Chairman.

Faculty Roundtable

The first Faculty Roundtable, sponsored by the local AAUP Chapter, will be held on Wednesday, November 12, 1975, at 3:30 p.m. in King auditorium. Dr. Megivern, president of the AAUP Chapter, will moderate the panel discussion on the topic, "Why UNC-W?" What are or should be the goals of this institution. Is it what is claims to be? How can one institution train business, education, science and humanities majors? Is there a Faculty consensus on all this?

The six panelists will be Drs. Charles Cahill, B. Frank Hall, Daniel Plyler, Larry Usilton, Robert Brown, and Norman Kaylor. While intended principally to give the Faculty an opportunity to share ideas and concerns with one another, the Roundtable is being held in the auditorium so that interested students will also be able to attend.

Pick up Proofs

Wednesday, November 12 will be the last day to pick up proofs (upstairs Pub). Absolutely no refunds will be given after Wednesday on proofs.

Volunteer Divers

The Coastal University Diving Association would like to announce that volunteer divers will be available for university projects. If interested or need help, contact the following people.

spikers take 2nd place

The UNC-W womens' volleyball team placed second in the North Carolina AIAW state volleyball tournament completed in Charlotte this past weekend.

The Seahawks were defending state champions. They lost to Guilford College in the finals, 11-15 and 10-12. Last year the Lady Hawks defeated Guilford for the title.

The team finished with an overall record of 18 wins and five losses in only their second year of competition. The combined record for the two years is 34-8.

In their first match of the day the Hawks downed St. Andrews College 15-9, 11-15, and 15-11 to move into the semifinals.

The Hawks faced Guilford in the semifinals. They took the first game 15-8, but then dropped the last two 12-7 and 13.

The loss placed UNC-W in the losers bracket where they eliminated Pembroke State, 11-9, 15-16. This set up the championship match against Guilford.

Coach Jan Donahue felt that playing the extra match in the losers bracket took a lot out of her team.

Although disappointed with the loss, Donahue was pleased with the season saying, "I think we played out best. Competition is on the rise and teams are playing on a much higher level."

UNC-W's Julie Barden was named to the all-tournament team. Donahue commented that Barden had several dynamic spikes and blocks during the tournament.

This year's starters were Toni Bryant, Sheila Boles, Debbie Kelso, Julie Barden, Brenda Moss, and Joanne Gentry, who split starting and playing with Jo Hilton.

Reserves included Phyllis Creech, Denita Hayes, Charlotte Kelso, Betsy Massari, Carol Moore, Debbie Smith, Pam Smith, Debbie Warner, and Jan Willis.

UNC-Chapel Hill was the winner in Division I while Wake Forest won the championship in Division II.

Hawks Fall In Finals

For the second year in a row UNC-W defeated Campbell during the regular season only to lose in the championship tournament match.

The Seahawk-Camel soccer rivalry is one of the most intense around and Thursday's championship match lived up to expectations.

A good crowd was on hand to witness the battle for the District 29 title and the right to advance to the Area playoffs against the District 26 champs.

The first half was marked by extremely aggressive play. The all traveled from end to end and at times continually cleared the ball from their respective areas. The half ended in a 0-0 tie.

With fifteen minutes gone in the second half, Campbell scored to take a 1-0 lead and controlled mid-field for much of the remaining time.

With about ten minutes remaining in the contest the Campbell goalie was called for steps and the Seahawks were awarded an indirect kick inside the Campbell penalty area.

This seemed to awaken the Hawks as they took it to the Camels for the remainder of the game. During the flurry, Carlos Escobar just missed a goal and Nino Fleri was robbed of a goal on a head shot as the Campbell keeper made an excellent play on the ball.

Coach Calvin Lane was extremely disappointed with the loss as was the entire team. Lane expressed appreciation everyone who turned out for the matches this year. He added that he wished the team could have gone further for the students and faculty, but that at the same time he was pleased and proud of the accomplishments of this year's squad.

Golfers Place Fourth

The UNC-W golf team participated in the Methodist College Invitational Golf Tournament last Thursday and Friday and tied with Pembroke State University for fourth place in the 36 hole event.

Jim Wheeler of Campbell College was the individual winner with a 72-71 - 143.

Campbell also took the team championship with a 590. The Camels were followed by Elon at 592, Coastal Carolina 615, UNC-W and Pembroke State tied at 617, Hampton-Sydney 619, Fayetteville State 630, and Methodist 640.

Seahawk players and scores were: Charlie Roberts 77-75 - 152, Bill Peterson 79-75 - 152, Hugh Primrose 78-76 - 154, Gary Smithwick 82-75 - 157, Al Burnette 84-81 - 165, and Craig Sexton 95-82 - 177.

SPRINGSTEEN

BORN TO RUN

This album has been talked about so much that I had second thoughts about doing a review on it. I mean, what the hell can I say that has not been said already?

However, I had second thoughts and decided that there may be a few of you who have not heard about Springsteen yet. This article is aimed at you who have not.

Let's start with Springsteen's first album done in 1973. The album was called GREETINGS FROM ASBURY PARK, N.J. and contained the song recently redone by MANFRED MANN, "Spirits In The Night." The album did not sell at all and within a year, both it and SPRINGSTEEN's second album were on cut racks for $1.98 down to 44 cents.

The problem, it seems, was that Columbia Records had promoted Springsteen as the New Dylan and this was just too much for the public to take.

Now with the third Springsteen album, BORN TO RUN, he has shot to the top with the album making gold in less than six weeks. He has become everything in the eyes of many in this country and is said to have the ability to become even bigger than Dylan, Rod Stewart, Elton John and even the Beatles. The new super-God of Rock 'n Roll.

Although I agree that the album is excellent and has to be one of the best to be released this year, I would hold my tongue in acclaiming him to be the answer to the poor state of Rock 'n Roll in America. I just do not think one man can perform the miracle needed to progress Rock Music today. I will let this hang in mid-air now and get to the album.

SPRINGSTEEN is a true rock-

ker. He has a powerful voice and an excellent ability to write good lyrics. The music style on the album ranges from a late fifties type rock 'n roll to that of the late sixties, similar to Dylan via Van Morrison.

Opening the album is a very well done cut, "Thunder Road." The song opens with the Dylan type harmonica sound. The vocals are similar to Dylan also, but Springsteen is much stronger and more direct. The song has the most lyrics of any four and a half minute song I have seen for a long time. This I think is the most important thing about Springsteen in that he does not have to depend on singing the same thing over and over.

*Well I got this guitar
And I learned how to make it talk
And my car's out back*

*If you're ready to take that long walk
From your front porch to my front seat
The door's open but the ride it ain't free
And I know you're lonely
For words that I ain't spoken
But tonight we'll be free
All the promises'll be broken
There were ghosts in the eyes
Of all the boys you sent away
They haunt this dusty beach road
In the skeleton frames of burned out Chevrolets*

"Teeth Avenue Freeze-Out" is next and is what I like to call progressive Rock 'n Roll. Though the title may sound similar to a Dylan song, the song is not. This is all SPRINGSTEEN. Featured in the song is some excellent fifties type sax done by Clarence Clemons and the Jerry Lee type piano by Roy Bittan. Springsteen's vocals are also well done and prove he can really get down to it. Following this is "Night" with Clemons opening it with great sax work again. Lyrics here are very well written as Springsteen tells how it feels after a long day in the city.

*And you're in love with all the wonder it brings
And every muscle in your body sings
As the highway ignites
You work nine to five
And somehow you survive
Till the night
Hell all day they're busting
you up on the outside
But tonight you're gonna break on through to the inside*

And it'll be tonight*

"Backstreet" ends the side and is musically similar to Dylan and vocally similar to Van Morrison. AT TIMES. The song gets muddy at times as the music and vocals seem to compete too much. This is really disappointing in that the lyrics are good and need to be heard. However, the song rocks very well and is danceable which makes up for the lost lyrics.

The title-cut and single opens side two and "Born to Run" is the real jewel of the album. The subject of the song is somewhat similar to the ANIMAL's "We Got to Get Out of This Place." The music is pure, solid, rock and again Clemons comes in with a dynamite sax solo, making the song an excellent choice for a single. "She's the One" is also on this side and is also a good rocker. The only different type cut on the album follows and is called "Meetings Across the River." I really do not know what type music this song is, but I'll be brave and say it has jazz for its roots.

"Jungleland" ends the album and is like a grand finale. With this song ending, you find yourself wondering if BRUCE SPRINGSTEEN could be the savior of American Rock Music.

The album is a fine piece of material and should be liked by anyone who likes music of the fifties and sixties. Only time will tell if he is as great as they say or not. Till then, ROCK-OUT.

Tests For College Credit

The Office of Counseling and Testing will administer the Advanced Placement and College-level Examinations just before and during spring registration January 6 and 7, 1976.

Students planning to take these tests must register with the Office of Counseling and Testing, Alderman Building, Room 217 by December 1, 1975. Office hours are 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Any incoming Freshman or currently enrolled student seeking course exemption, college credit, or both, may register for the tests. The Advanced Placement Examinations are, however, intended for students who have had college-level work in high school.

The Advanced Placement Examinations are available in 16 areas, including American History, Biology, Calculus AB, Calculus BC, Chemistry, Classics, English, European History, French Language, French Literature, German, History of Art, Music, Physics B, Physics C and Spanish.

The CLEP general examinations will be offered in English Composition, Humanities, Natural Sciences and Social Sciences.

There will be a $5.00 service charge for each Advanced Placement test for which the student registers and a $5.00 charge for enrolling in one CLEP test, and a $10.00 charge for taking two or more of the CLEP general examinations.

If you plan to take any of these tests, be sure to register with the Counseling and Testing Center by December 1, 1975.

ARCHITECTURE IN WILMINGTON

Architecture is a three-dimensional testimony of the history of an area or town—a testimony to its growth and development pattern, its commercial and cultural contacts, its receptiveness to change and to current vogues, its political and religious biases, and its eras and levels of prosperity; so it is with the architecture of Wilmington.

Wilmington's architectural character is that of a thriving port city built for the most part, by commission merchants and prosperous businessmen who indulged themselves in the extravagances of antebellum and late nineteenth century culture. Few evidences of early Wilmington remain; rather, the city is dominated by Italianate style which had a remarkably long run of popularity, lasting into the last decade of the nineteenth century. The longevity of the Italianate style provides a unity and flamboyance to Wilmington which is reflective of its commercial and social vitality.

Wilmington, long North Carolina's chief port, is the most distinctively urban of the state's towns; in a state historically rural, only Wilmington exhibits the character of a nineteenth century city. The grid of streets extending back from the waterfront is densely filled with commercial, governmental, ecclesiastical, and domestic buildings of consistent scale; the townscape is enhanced by the retention of early paving materials, large trees, and street furniture including ironwork and statuary. The architecture of nearly every period is characterized by a boldness and directness that place grand effect over precision of detail, seeming to express the energy and forcefulness of the merchants, shippers, and politicians of the bustling port city. There are a number of structures of outstanding merit, including works by Samuel Sloan and Thomas U. Walter, but the architectural fabric is dominated and unified by an apparently indigenous bracketed, vented Italianate idiom that was popular throughout much of the nineteenth century, especially during the antebellum boom period. As a major center of political, cultural, and commercial activity, and as the most significant concentration of urban architectural fabric, Wilmington is of prime importance to North Carolina. It is nationally significant as a major Southern port—the last remaining open to support the Confederacy—and a city where local efforts are actively preserving a townscape notable for its unique character and architectural distinction.

Ms. Janet K. Seapker will be speaking Wednesday night, November 19, 8:00 p.m. in the King Hall Auditorium (Education-Psychology Building). She will present a slide lecture entitled "The Architecture of Wilmington: A Personal View of a Distinctive City."

Ms. Seapker is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh (1966-69) and received her Master of Arts in History from Cooperstown Graduate Program, State University of New York in 1970.

She is presently employed as an agricultural specialist with the N.C. State Department of Cultural Resources, Division of Archives and History. She states, "The unit with which I work is charged with doing the architectural and historical inventory of the state, in preparation for nominating the most significant buildings and districts to the National Register of Historic Places. I am responsible for the inventory and nominations for 22 eastern counties. The National Register program was initiated by the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966. Maintained by the National Park Service, Department of the Interior, the National Register is the official list of the nation's irreplaceable cultural resources. It includes properties of national, state and local significance."

"In addition to the inventory and survey work, I work with and advise local groups about how to best utilize their resources in conjunction with preservation legislation and techniques. I have worked closely with the Coastal Resources Commission, providing data on historic properties for the Coastal Area Management Act."

Everyone is invited to attend. The subject is your area, Wilmington, and the description is architecture in the distinctiveness and beauty of Janet Seapker.

Fast For World Harvest

Dear Editor,

I am writing on behalf of myself and several concerned students inviting the UNC-W Campus Community to join us in the "Fast For a World Harvest." Campus posters and an article in this paper call attention to a national day of fasting to take place one week before Thanksgiving--Thursday, November 20. We agree with the goals of Oxfam, the sponsoring organization, and have committed ourselves to a day of fasting to express our concern for the problem of world hunger. The money we would expect to spend for food on that day will be collected and donated to the cause of alleviating hunger.

While joining with Oxfam in this day of fasting, we decided to donate the funds collected on this campus to the Open House project to provide Thanksgiving dinner for some people in Wilmington, rather than send it to the international organization.

We invite you to join us in this day of fasting and will provide cannisters on Thursday and Friday for collection of your donations. We also invite you to join us for a non-meal on Thursday, November 20 at 11:30 a.m. We will meet in the area of the picnic tables in front of the Cafeteria to discuss issues related to this project and to share our reactions. Sincerely,
Jim Slager

Night Classes Appreciated

Dear Editor,

I want each and every department who is offering a major requirement at night to know just how much it is appreciated. In the past it has been difficult for a student who works at an eight-hour job to finish his education, and only the sociology department really offered any courses to help the student with three more hours. (No major courses, however.)

When I looked at the schedule for the Spring semester, I almost thought it was Christmas! Dr. Toney is teaching STS 265, a requirement I need for a Sociology major, at night. Let me along with other students plead with more teachers to help students complete their education at night. The teachers may not relish the idea of two and a half hours straight in a class, but it's no picnic for the students, either. If we, the students, are willing to work most of the day and still go to school at night, please HELP us!

More About Schweitzer

Dear Editor,

Allow me to comment on Dame Carpenter's letter. I am not sure who the "we" is that tried to start a National Student Council two years ago. Who "we"? What does that have to do with the Schweitzer Awards?

I certainly was not suggesting that Mother Teresa, Dr. Binder or any one else tax themselves by dialogue with students. If Mother Teresa could fly in one day, fly back the next and address the UN the following day, then I submit that sitting informally with students would not have destroyed her. Dr. Hayashi was an invited guest to the awards. He did request a meeting with students. Instead, he was taken on a tour of the historic district.

I have no quarrel with doing things right. That happened to be the point of my article. I do object to the exclusivity of the affair that ignored the students, most of the faculty and almost all of the community of Wilmington.

Sincerely,
Kay Sebian

The U. S. In The U. N. - A New Approach To Arrogance

For many years the United States enjoyed an influential voice in the United Nations, doling out large sums of foreign aid and thus gaining the favor of small nations that make up the bulk of the UN membership. But in recent years, this influence has steadily dwindled with the advent of developing nations admitted into the General Assembly to the worldwide organization.

Along with these new members has come a new arrogance that has gradually developed into hatred toward the U.S. There seems to be a feeling that in the US, they have found a symbol to take revenge on for the things they never had, while at the same time draining us for financial support.

Until now, the US diplomats have painstakingly overlooked these Third World nations, realizing that if we were to adopt a "get tough" policy and deny all aid to any nation who directly confronts us in the UN or elsewhere (and many have), these countries would simply ally with the Soviet Union in order to get their desired finances. They would thus become even more hostile toward America, and this would prove close to fatal to our very existence in the UN.

Bear in mind, however, that these nations now have no loyalties whatever, except to each other. They have realized that together they can become a major force against both the US and the USSR. Still, both of these superpowers continue to try to sway these nations with large amounts of monetary aid, but only manage to cancel each other's efforts, while those receiving aid bask in the benefits of both nations.

This situation seems a hopeless problem with no logical solution. Many conservatives argue that we should simply withdraw from the UN, and thus drop into a new period of isolationism. There are also those who continue to say we should retain our long-standing policy of public blindness to the evils of these parasite countries.

But the course of action that is becoming more sensible by the day is to take tougher stands within the UN and fight for the resolutions that are favorable to the US.

Founded as a means of preserving world peace and promoting humanitarian programs, the United Nations has begun to drift toward becoming a political machine through which a nation can voice its grievances.

Particularly the Arab front has tried to use the General Assembly to spread its anti-Israeli sentiments throughout the world. They have been able to do this so well because of the power of their infamous resource-oil. They control the great bulk of known oil reserves in the world, and nearly everyone needs it, especially during the worldwide energy crunch.

This Arab effort was climaxed last week by the passage of a resolution which declared Zionism a form of racism. This was a direct blow to a staunch American ally, Israel, which is the main target of the Arab resentment. Seventy-two nations voted in favor of this resolution, with 35 against and 32 abstentions.

As revealed by this open display of political interference in the mechanics of the United Nations, the New York-based body is fast becoming just another meeting place where countries can display their political likes and dislikes at will. This is unfortunate, because it will certainly reduce the organization's humanitarian benefits as more and more nations become disenchanted with its relative failure.

The disenchantment has even been demonstrated by the United States who has reduced its financial support—perhaps not greatly, but nonetheless reduced. Where we once supplied more, we now contribute about 25 per cent of the total UN budget.

This new situation that has developed in the UN has caused many of our national leaders to reassess our position there, and many have concluded that if we are to improve the situation, we must begin to take stronger and more outspoken stands for the programs we support.

The transition to taking stronger stands must be handled with the greatest diplomacy, and this is where the men who are our representatives there play an important role.

Our Ambassador Daniel P. Moynihan has shown extreme skill in the area of dealing with delicate matters and such as the vote on Zionism. He has proved to be the best of diplomats, while at the same time has voiced strong objections to anti-American resolutions. In addition to the Zionism vote, Moynihan also has made strong statements against that infamous tyrant of Uganda, Idi Amin, whose path has been cleverly avoided by others.

A strong addition to Moynihan's handling of the job is that he is not completely under the thumb of that wizard of foreign policy, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. The Ambassador's every move is not controlled by Kissinger, as are the motions of most foreign affairs personnel.

Moynihan represents the type of leadership we need today in the UN—strong against those who oppose us, but understanding of the delicacy of the situation. The United States would do well to stick to our principles in New York, not yielding to the pressures of the Third World and Arab sympathizers, and trying to return the UN to the objective, for which it was created.

In the last three columns we considered how to examine a glass of wine. Now let's put the procedure in context.

Obviously, it would be inappropriate to evaluate each taste of every bottle of wine you have with meals. The purpose of the wine is enjoyment, not study, so you should use only so much of the full tasting technique as comes naturally. Some wines are complex enough to make scrutiny a pleasure in itself, some the wines I drink most often are best quaffed without fuss.

The principal virtue of the full tasting technique is that it shows you as much of the wine as possible in a short time. There are several occasions where that is quite useful, notably when dining out and at comparative wine tastings.

First, in a restaurant. A lot of mystique has grown up around the practice of tasting a wine before accepting it. Most waiters have been trained to present a wine, open it, present the cork for examination, pour a small taste, take a step back and look at the patron expectantly. What next?

The whole point of the tasting ritual is to determine whether the right merchandise is received in the right condition. When the wine is presented look at the label closely enough to make sure it is exactly what you intended; don't let the waiter whip it away before you have finished. If you wish to sample it at all before accepting it, you should unhurriedly go through the entire tasting procedure described in the preceding columns.

Probably you won't find anything wrong with the wine. In seventeen years of dining out fairly regularly, I have sent exactly two bottles of wine back. The rationale for the ritual is mainly historical.

In the days when most red wines required considerable bottle aging the most common fault was that the wine had become "corked"—i.e., it had picked up a somewhat moldy flavor from the stopper, usually because of improper storage somewhere between the winery and the table.

A bad cork is still possible, but most wines nowadays don't have to be aged after they leave the winery, and most merchants know enough to store the bottles properly. I usually squeeze the cork to make sure it isn't crumbly, but seldom bother to smell it: the question is not whether the cork smells like cork, but whether the wine does.

The problem with the two bad bottles I encountered was oxidation. It occurs more often with whites than with reds and shows up as a "burnt" or sherry-like quality. (Sherry is wine that has been intentionally oxidized a bit in the production process to produce a pleasing nut-like flavor; accidental oxidation seldom helps.) Browning of the color is often a tip-off to oxidation.

The fact that the wine is sound doesn't mean nothing is amiss. If a red wine is warmer than you like it, have the waiter put it in the refrigerator while the food is being prepared. If a white needs an ice bucket, ask for it. Even if the restaurant doesn't have traditional containers, you can generally induce them to find something that will hold a bottle of wine in some ice water.

If you think you detect a fault but are not sure, ask the waiter or sommelier to taste the wine, and inquire whether he does not think it exhibits the problem you suspect. Most good restaurants are fair about this. You too must be fair: do not send a sound bottle of wine back simply because you regret your selection, and if you miss a fault at the first tasting do not send the bottle back after it has been partially consumed.

Loaded Guns Vs. Loaded Polls

(CPS)--Representative John Ashbrook (R-OH), a staunch opponent to gun control, said that recent nation-wide polls which show that a majority of the public favor gun control are "loaded."

Ashbrook cited a newspaper survey in his district as being closer to the way most Americans feel about the controversial issue. The local survey, published in the Mansfield, Ohio News-Journal, stated 92 per cent of those polled opposed gun control legislation, while only 7 per cent favored it. The survey drew such strong opinions as the following:

--"If the police want my guns, they are going to have to get them the hard way."

--"The trouble is with the judges."

"If criminals would obey laws, they wouldn't be criminals. Let's make our courts enforce our laws."

--"They should keep the crooks in jail and bring back the death penalty for every crime other than a traffic ticket. That ought to clean up the atmosphere in a hurry!"

Help Still Wanted Somewhere

(CPS)--Although employment is the number one headache of many Americans this year, many small and medium-sized businesses are still having trouble filling paying positions.

The Bureau of National Affairs, a private research and publishing concern, reported that office positions, especially stenographers and secretaries, were difficult to fill in many companies, and technical and professional job openings were in engineering and computer sciences.

Respondents to the Bureau survey from the health care industry said activities existed at all technical and professional levels.

The reasons for the job vacancies? Readily available unemployment benefits, expectations that the unemployed will be recalled by previous employers and inconvenient geographical locations of many positions.

Blue Jean Blues

(CPS)--Blue jean aficionados are paying more at the market these days. In the past year, the price of a pair of Levi's has doubled.

Increased consumer demands for blue jeans has created a shortage of cotton, the major ingredient in denim, the Levi Strauss company reports. And the shortage of cotton, aided by inflation, has jacked up the cost of blue jeans.

Company officials don't anticipate that a higher price tag will keep customers away.

"There's no end in sight," said one Levi Strauss employee, referring to the sales potential of blue jeans.

The jean look is so popular that Levi Strauss has expanded its sportswear line to include jumpers, skirts, trenchcoats, bathing suits, and more recently--denim tuxedos.

November 19, 1975

Don't Take Your Grandmother Driving

(CPS)--Research being done at Memphis State University suggests that one side effect of marijuana smoking is loss of night vision. "Don't take your grandmother out driving at night if you've been smoking marijuana," a doctoral student at Memphis State said.

The student, Sheena Rose, has been doing a study of the effect of THC (the active ingredient of marijuana) on vision under simulated night lighting illumination.

Preliminary results of the tests indicate that the rabbits used in the experiments cannot see as well after a THC injection. The injections are not superhuman amounts either. "My high dosage is probably less than the average street dose you can get from smoking two or three joints," Rose said.

Males Can't Be Queens, Student Senate Says

(CPS)--A male student has been cut from the list of candidates for homecoming queen at Northeast Missouri State University.

Van Harl was dropped from the slate because some student senators thought that a male couldn't be a queen. Although there is no election rule excluding males, senate members thought Harl's entry would insult other candidates. "It's not a joke," Harl said, claiming that he ran to protect discrimination against males.

Charters Needed

To: All active and inactive clubs.

From: Rufus Butner, Chairman of Charter Committee

According to the S.G.A. Constitution, all clubs must submit a charter to the S.G.A. in order to be officially recognized as a club on campus for that academic year. Also, according to the Constitution each club is to resubmit its charter every year if the nature of the charter has changed. If the nature of the charter has not changed from the previous year, please at least notify me that you would still like to have your club recognized on campus.

If your club does not notify me one way or another, your club will not be recognized on the UNC-W campus.

The deadline to turn in all renewed charters and those wanting to be recognized again this year is November 25, 1975.

Special Senate Meeting

There will be a special senate meeting Thursday, November 20, 1975. We would like for all club presidents and all of the 33 Who Who's nominations to try to attend this meeting. This will give us a chance to meet you and we would like your opinions on current problems facing UNC-Wilmington and how to solve them. Also we will be discussing Homecoming and other upcoming events. Sincerely, Carol Moore Vice-President, S.G.A.

Phi Kappa Phi

Coming toward the end of another exciting fall semester, everyone around the Pi Kappa House is already preparing for a big Spring rush. After having just finished with a very successful fall rush, we hope to make our Spring rush even better. Calendars of our Spring rush will be posted at the beginning of next semester.

The Pi Kappas have just returned home after participating in the homecoming festivities at the Tau Chapter of N.C. State University. The tremendous victory by N.C. State was followed up by a big band party at the Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity House in Raleigh.

The next big event is a cookout followed by a hayride on November 22, given by the Pi Kappa Phi Little Sisters. We would also like to congratulate our newly inducted Little Sisters: Darlene Marlowe, Susan Rogers, Lindy Shue and Libby Walten.

Fast For World Harvest

November 20th

No one pretends that going without food for one day will make a dent in world hunger, but Oxfam-America, the international agency sponsoring "Fast For a World Harvest" on Thursday, November 20, says "the fact that there is little we can do is no reason for not doing what little we can."

Last November an estimated 200,000 Americans took part in Oxfam's nationwide 24-hour fast. This year, people in the U.S. concerned about growing food shortages in poor countries will be joined by concerned Canadians. Coming a week before Thanksgiving, the continental "Fast For a World Harvest" marks a first in cooperative efforts by North Americans to fight world hunger.

The dollars not spent for food November 20 will go to Oxfam projects to help small farmers in Asia, Africa and Latin America. Such development programs as water storage, better seeds and improved livestock management will help to grow more food in famine areas.

Colleges, churches and community groups, as well as individuals, are organizing both to fast and to direct local and national attention to the growing inequities of worldwide food distribution. Coffee, tea, fruit juice or broth may be taken during the 24-hour period. Participants are asked to calculate the cost of the food which they would ordinarily consume in the same period and send the equivalent to Oxfam.

Anthony Lewis, the New York Times columnist, has said that he likes Oxfam-America's "modest, immediate answer" for the many Americans who want to do something about world hunger but feel that "in the face of such a large-scale problem, what difference can one person or one family make?"

Among those who fasted last year was a small boy, who sent $3.00 saved from his 50 cents a week allowance, and who signed himself "someone who cares." One woman wrote, "What a luxury to be able to schedule our times of scarcity." A New York executive invited his staff to "join me for no lunch." A college student wrote, "I decided that as long as I was going to fast, I might as well not eat steak and lobster as not eat diluted beef stew." He sent a check for the cost of the steak and lobster. "Fast For a World Harvest" is designed to prove that one person, one day, CAN make a difference.

SENATE MINUTES

A regular session of the UNC-W Senate was called to order by Carol Moore on November 11, 1975 at 11:30.

Rufus Butner gave the invocation.

The minutes were read.

A temporary suspension of the rules of order was called for.

Ms. Welch addressed the Senate and discussed parliamentary procedure.

A move was made back to the rules of order.

President Steve Hobbs addressed the Senate. He recommended that Skip Holston serve as Justice.

Haddon Clark made a motion to accept Skip Holston as Justice. The motion was seconded and passed.

LeRoy Oakley reported for the Finance Committee. He recommended an extension of two weeks for clubs turning in their charters. He also recommended that the Medical Science Club and English Club be recognized as clubs.

A motion was made to recognize the Medical Science Club and the English Club as clubs. The motion was seconded and passed.

Rick Patton made a motion to extend the period for two more weeks for clubs to turn in their charters. The motion was seconded and discussion followed. A call for previous question was made and seconded. The motion passed.

John Crawley reported for the Investigations Committee. He recommended that no formal type of revenue for S.G.A. traveling expenses be given.

Greg Larrimore addressed the Senate and gave a report on the campus radio station. A $650.00 transmitter was purchased instead of the $400.00 transmitter.

A motion was made for adjournment. The motion was seconded, passed, and the meeting adjourned at 12:30.

Respectfully submitted,

Ms. Sharon Davis

Senate Minutes

A regular session of the UNC-W Senate was called to order by Carol Moore on November 4, 1975 at 11:30 in Room 201-A.

Rick Patton gave the invocation.

The minutes were read. A correction was made. The Investigations Committee met with Coach Miller instead of Coach Brooks.

President Steve Hobbs addressed the Senate. He recommended Jean-Claire Welker to fill the position of Chief Justice. He also recommended Jo Anne Gentry to be Vice Chairman of the Homecoming Committee. He announced the cystic fibrosis fund raising projects and asked senators to participate in this project.

Scott Olson made a motion to accept Jean-Claire Welker as Chief Justice. The motion was seconded and passed.

Gary Shipman reported for the Homecoming Committee. He discussed what the proposed $800.00 would be spent for.

Rufus Butner suggested that the possibility of amending the Constitution in regard to filling vacancies in senator/officer positions be looked into. This was referred to the Investigation Committee.

Gary Shipman made a motion to untangle the motion to allocate $800.00 to the Homecoming Committee. It was seconded and passed. The motion to allocate the Homecoming Committee $800.00 passed.

Gary Shipman proposed the accept the state's guidelines for traveling expenses for the S.G.A. This was referred to the Investigation Committee.

A motion was made for adjournment. The motion was seconded, passed and the meeting adjourned at 12:05.

Respectfully submitted,

Ms. Sharon Davis

Perry Leopold

I have had the good fortune of making a new friend. I'm talking about Perry Leopold, first coffeehouse performer.

During the four days he was here, we talked several times and I heard his music.

Perry's music is very personal and very much his own. He would come out on stage and say a little about how each song was born. Perry's music was inspired by many different and unusual experiences in his life. His music is smooth and has a very easy sound.

The audiences were small, no more than fifty at a time, which was disappointing. The music carried the feeling that only a live performer has. The music was good, the feeling was fine, and should be a sign of things to come for the coffeehouse. I wish good luck to Perry and I hope to see him here again. Because his music is worth the listening.

In an all-out effort to avoid the truth, people have created some pretty imaginative phrases.

Like the ever-popular "What I don't know can't hurt me." And "Never sick a day in my life." You hear that a lot. Especially from people who are finally forced to see their doctors. When it's often too late.

Logic doesn't work. Facts don't seem to sink in. We have no recourse but to fight fire with fire with some more meaningful phrases.

Like "1 in 3 is being saved now. 1 in 2 could be saved if people went for checkups regularly."

And "more than 200,000 were saved last year. Regular checkups can help save thousands more."

What are you waiting for? Don't you want to enjoy the peace of mind that comes from knowing you're doing the best thing for your health?

If it's slogans you want, we can give them to you. We'll do anything to try to make cancer a legend in its own time. But we need your help.

Help yourself with a checkup!

That's Justice?

By ROBERT M. BARTELL

WASHINGTON, D.C. (Liberty Lobby News Service)—How would a husband respond if he heard his wife screaming "Help! Police!" when she answered pounding at the door of their home . . . at night? This set of circumstances did face Kenyon Ballaw and his wife, and their natural reactions ruined their lives.

Our police departments and the police officers who carry out their duties under laws that handicap their efforts must be admired. However, federal agents in some instances use "police state" tactics as in the Ballaw case, when they allegedly were looking for illegal weapons.

The case received wide press coverage and Rep. John D. Dingell (D-Mich.) commented on the incident as recorded in the Congressional Record. He said, "Mr. Speaker, what has come to pass? Bearded strangers in scruffy clothes smash down the door of a man's home. The man is shot in the head. His wife is thrown half-naked outside as the man lies bleeding on the floor. The home is vandalized, walls smashed, furnishings ransacked, and dozens of personal possessions carried away.

"Where did this happen? Was it in Hitler's Germany, or in Soviet Russia at the height of the Stalinist purges? No, it happened on the outskirts of Washington, D.C. It was committed by agents of the Internal Revenue Service, Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division and the Montgomery County Police."

Congressman Dingell continued, "He was taking a bath in his apartment about 8:30 one evening. His wife heard shouting and heavy pounding on the door. She said she repeatedly asked, 'Who is it?' All she could hear through the pounding was the demand 'Open up!' She ran to her husband."

"While the husband was getting out of the tub, these so-called 'peace officers' proceeded to bash down the door with an 85-pound battering ram. Naked and dripping from the tub the man grabbed an antique revolver from the wall and went toward the living room, en-Warning: Two off-
whom the police themselves described as dressed in 'scruffy' clothes, carrying guns.

"The record shows that the husband slumped to the floor with a bullet in his brain. The agents then shoved the wife, half-naked, out into the hallway and then turned the apartment into a shambles looking for illegal weapons. They refused to let the woman aid her husband who lay bleeding on the floor, but later handcuffed her and took her to the police station under arrest for what offense we may only imagine."

There was an investigation, and the couple sued. However, Federal Judge Alexander Harvey has now rejected the suit, claiming that Ballaw had no right to resist the federal agents even though it turned out that the attack on the Ballaws was for nothing—the agents found nothing illegal!

This unjust decision, similar to many others in recent years, appears to cater to the illegal rather than the legal. Law-abiding citizens fear upholding the law because the criminal can sue them for a violent act and win.

That's justice?

I Wish We Had All Been Ready

The world was full of guns and Wars and all the People got trampled on the floor. I wish we'd all been ready, children died, the nights grew cold, a bag of gold wouldn't buy a loaf of bread. I wish we'd all been ready, its too late to change your mind the Son has come and you have been left behind.

Man and wife asleep in bed, she hears a noise, turns her head. He's gone. I wish we'd all been ready. Two men walking up a hill, one disappears the other is left standing still. I wish we'd all been ready, its too late to change your mind the Son has come and you have been left behind. God spoke, the demons died, the Son has come. How could you have been so blind?

The song I Wish We Had All Been Ready was written by a very beautiful Christian named Larry Norman. Larry Norman serves JESUS through song and praise. This song meant so very much to me, and I wanted to share it with others.

Long Leaf Mall

Very simply, this is called "the valley of the shadow of death." It is also called the human condition, a bummer, bad times, the fudge factor, determined behavior and a multitude of other names. The one thing for sure is that it feels like Hell (for language clarification that is a shortened form of "separation from God" and all those "good feelings"!)

Too often we take the lousy feeling in these situations, thrust them in God's face and ask "Wadda ya tryin' to do to me?" We blame a lot of things on God for which I doubt he would take credit. Sometimes we figure He's trying to teach us great wisdom or put us through trial by fire or chastisement of His children (people run away from home for less than that). But when you get through all this reasoning and still nothing fits, what then? The only thing left in the book of acceptable excuses is that you must feel good about feeling bad: "There must be some reason I don't understand."

Let me suggest that there is nothing wrong with feeling bad or frustrated or angry or any number of other feelings nor really being honest with God about them. (See Job.) He's big enough to take it. I suspect it was frustrating to Jesus to think that he spent three years teaching those twelve disciples and they still did not really understand what it was all about. You don't have to paste on the proverbial Christian smile (or grin). You can be honest about feeling lousy though that is no excuse for being lousy to others. We may be redeemed but we aren't perfect—we are human—God knows and accepts that, and will struggle along with us til Christmas vacation. By the way, when Christmas does come along, don't forget that's what part of the celebration is all about.69

Get Your Entry Forms In For The Mr. UNC-W Pageant

Feeling down and depressed? Are you caught in a rut and need a bit of change and excitement? Have we got something for you! It's the first Mr. UNC-W contest. That's right, just what you want and need.

We know all you handsome guys out there are just dying to enter. It's a secret wish, right? Well, now's your chance. Entry forms must be turned into the Seahawk office by November 22, so you don't have much time.

All contestants will be required to appear in dress suits, bathing suits, and to participate in a talent and interview segment. There's nothing hard about it, and nothing special required of you. It's all for a good time and a pleasurable evening.

Oh-you're worried about that talent. Have you ever tried playing a tune with a comb and a piece of paper? How about the old chewing gum-walking trick? Now there's a few ideas for you. Of course, there's always those special few who can sing, tap dance, or play an instrument—that's great—we'd love to have you.

The pageant will be held on Thursday, December 4. It's at the King Auditorium (Education Building) at 7:30 p.m. If you can't be a contestant, you're still welcome to come by and enjoy the evening. We hope to see you there.

You can either enter independent, or be sponsored by your club, fraternity, department, or whatever. Just think what it would be like to snuggle up to two kegs of Budweiser. Oh, joy . . . Only UNC-W students, faculty and staff, please.

KELLY JEWELL AND FRIENDS

Kelly Jewell has been into music for many years. One of the groups he has played with is "A Hard Act To Follow." "The Morning Sun" is an excellent song that came from him.

Kelly is an accomplished artist who plays guitar and piano. He is currently playing ragtime music at Duffy's Pizza Parlor. He is an excellent and sensitive performer who should provide a great show. Shows at 8:00 and 9:00 p.m.

FRIDAY* NOV. 21

MARK LEONARD

Mark Leonard is an experienced coffeehouse performer. His style and feeling for music fits the coffeehouse well.

Mark has played with the folk group "Smile" at Mars Hill College. He has performed at coffeehouses in Asheville, Mars Hill, Durham and Wilmington.

Mark has composed many songs. He has been playing guitar for four years and composing songs for three years. Mark will be playing the six- and twelve-string guitars. His shows will be at 8:00 and 9:00 p.m.

SATURDAY* NOV. 22

ED DANILOWICZ

Ed Danilowicz is a man who has found his own rhythm. His list of credits ranges from traditional music to the electronic world of synthesizers. Ed has been playing piano since the age of eleven. He was playing guitar at the age of thirteen. Soon he was writing songs and his interests moved from folk to popular music.

In 1971 he went to New York. Although he was well received, Ed didn't sell any of his material. He then returned to North Carolina and came to UNC-W. His interest in drama flourished. Ed will be playing guitar and piano. His music will be of his own composition. The shows will be at 8:00 and 9:00 p.m.

MONDAY* NOV. 24

FACULTY NITE

This is the night we let our faculty and staff shine. On stage will be some of UNC-W's finest. The following is our line-up of talent for the night.

Debbie Gimple of the Drama and Speech Department will present a dramatic reading of poetry.

Betty Dwight of the Political Science Department will give a poetry reading.

HOMECOMING WEEK

Greg Bell, who is an accompanist for Music Department functions will play the piano.

Lela Henderson is a secretary for the Modern Language Department. Lela will play the piano and belt out a few of those "good old songs" songs.

We also hope to have Mr. Steen of the Music Department perform. The fun will begin at 8:00 p.m. Come on out and watch the fun at the coffeehouse.

University readers' theatre

The University Reader's Theatre came out on stage and opened with a song by Jim Stafford, "The Wildwood Weed". With a change of scene, they began a reading of several comical articles from the West Va. paper "The Hillbilly". Having set the mood for the rustic country scenes to come, they began the 1st story "My Side of the Matter" by Truman Capote. The story was set in rural Alabama in the late 1930's and concerns the interaction of a pair of newlyweds and the wife's meddling aunts. The show presented the view of the husband; played by David Brickley. The wife was played by Connie Hill with Susan Richey and Bess Skipper playing the aunts.

Mr. Brickley and Ms. Skipper remained on stage as the scene changed for the second presentation, "Why I Live at the P.O." by Eudora Welty. Ms. Welty was born and raised in Jackson, Miss. and the story is set in nearby China Grove, Miss.

The story dealt with the supposed persecution of the narrator by the members of her family. Dawn Brickley portrays the wronged narrator.

And Sharon Pierson portrays her prime antagonist; her sister. Mother and Grandfather were played by Skipper and Brickley. Tim Wesner plays the drunkard uncle.

This production of Southern-Style Stories kept the audience entertained throughout the entire performance. The stories were adapted and directed by Debbie Gimple. Jay Theriault and Randy Grady handled the technical aspects of the performance.

Basic Skills Missing In Many College Students

(CPS)—When college students were the academic elite of their high school classes, college administrators and instructors assumed that entering freshman knew basic grammar and composition cold. Now with more high school students going to college and admissions standards at many schools loosening, college administrators are recognizing the existence of a basic skills gap which handicaps many college students.

Colleges and universities across the country are setting up remedial programs to meet the needs of students who find they have never learned how to write in complete sentences. Basic skills programs are most prevalent at two-year and community colleges, but the problem has also surfaced at private four-year schools which have traditionally drawn the cream of the high school crop.

At the University of South

Carolina (USC) where lower SAT scores prompted a remedial grammar class called English 100, the admissions director blamed the increasing popularity of college for decreasing proficiency in English skills. "A broader segment of people taking the test results in a broader base of ability being measure," he said, referring to the declining SAT scores.

The director of the English 100 program at USC called the program "a survival course" and accused high schools of over-emphasizing literature at the expense of grammar. "It isn't always the students' fault that they lack these skills," she said, "most students tell us that the last time they had a grammar review was the eighth grade."

Other university officials have different explanations for the under-educated college student. Jerome Weber, University College Dean at Oklahoma University, attributed part of the problem to the shifts in high school goals from the three R's to more social and personal growth.

Others claimed it was a problem unique to this generation which was raised on television and radio. Instructors at the University of California have reported that students in their freshman English classes are not proficient in even the fundamentals of grammar. The remedial English of Subject A supervisor argued that this "illiteracy" was a "cultural problem, as students in an electronic society have little chance to acquire reading-writing skills."

According to the director of academic programs at UCLA, the television society is to blame for less educated college students. "Students today are more verbal," he said. "They don't read. They don't have the written skills they once did. They're TV educated."

But a recent report in the Christian Science Monitor holds the whole college-oriented society responsible for the lower level of skills of incoming freshman. The report states that many officials feel the reason for the student skills gap is the fact that the whole post-secondary education system has become less elite.

This has been particularly true in recent years when many colleges have begun admitting students who would not have met the minimum qualifications for admission several years ago when the competition for college space was fiercer. For instance, students with SAT verbal scores of 350 can be admitted to the University of South Carolina, but enrollment in a basic skills program is required for freshmen with verbal scores between 350 and 390.

Although hundreds of colleges and universities are making basic skills programs available to their students, it is often the student's choice to attend or not to attend. Unfortunately, many students do not recognize their own needs for remedial classes and spurn them. There is still a stigma attached to classes which set out to do not more than teach college students skills they should have acquired in secondary schools. And many colleges which offer basic skills classes give little or no college credit for the hours spent catching up.

But if the basic skills levels of incoming freshmen continues to decline, students may rush to the remedial English courses just to insure their survival in regular college classrooms.

COFFEEHOUSE GRAND OPENING

Dr. Malloy and Col. Clark share the honors.

Sparkling cider was unique addition to the occasion.

Faculty and staff enjoy the festivities.

Dr. William Malloy, Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs, and Col. James Clark, Director of Auxiliary Services, shared the honors Monday in the ribbon-cutting ceremony officially opening UNC-W's first coffeehouse. Over 100 students, faculty, and staff attended the four o'clock ceremony, complete with sparkling cider. Comments of "fantastic", "all right", "what a place" and "wow!" were heard among the crowd. The used lumber, low lighting, and barn decor have greatly transformed the small downstairs room in the Pub!

Opening night festivities continued with the first-campus showing of the "THRILLA IN Manilla" (Ali - Frazier fight) on video. Shown through the courtesy of the J. W. Jackson Beverage Co., the film opens and closes with original Budweiser commercials filmed by the Video Tape Committee. Two door prizes, donated by the bookstore, were given away at the film's conclusion.

The highlight of the evening was the Speech Department's debut performance of their Readers Theatre. The seven member cast, directed by Debbie Gimple, skillfully portrayed two humorous selections from the works of Truman Capote and Eudora Welty. Well received by the audience, the production will conclude tonight at 8 pm with a third show.

Throughout the opening, pizzas, hamburgers, submarines, french fries, and cokes were served by Lyle Lee and his employees.

Gary Shipman, student manager, was pleased with the opening. "It's really great to work where people appreciate not only the food, but also the atmosphere. It was easy to sense that tonight!" Gary and his denim-clad staff will serve their good food each day beginning at 4 p.m.

To further celebrate the opening, Coffeehouse Entertainment Committee has scheduled live entertainment each night this week, concluding on Monday, November 24. Music and fun will be provided that evening by various faculty and staff members.

Come experience UNC-W's coffeehouse!

Bayley New Assistant Coach

A new face on the UNC-W athlete scene this year is Calvin Bayley who will serve as the assistant basketball coach.

A native of Anderson, Indiana, Bayley is enthusiastic about coming to UNC-W. "There's great potential here in athletics. The beaches and weather make it a good drawing area and the new building will also contribute to our recruiting program." He adds that the success of the soccer and baseball teams will help basketball.

Coach Bayley played basketball in high school and at Anderson College. He graduated in 1972 and went to the University of Florida to work on his masters degree and while there he coached the junior varsity team.

When one of the Florida assistant coaches of the school to become head coach at Baptist College, Bayley went along as a member of his staff.

Bayley first met UNC-W coach Mel Gibson last year when Baptist College came here for a pre-season scrimmage. He told Gibson that if he ever need an assistant that he would be interested. The timing was just right as Gibson was in the market for an assistant coach.

"I've learned more since I've been here than under any other coach I've worked with. Mel does an excellent job of using an assistant and is always open to suggestions", says Bayley.

As far as next season goes, the new Seahawk assistant says the team is basically young and inexperienced, but they have good ability, are highly motivated, and the veteran players are providing good leadership.

Summer Studies Abroad Open To All College Students

Six foreign study opportunities in the summer of 1976 are being offered to all college students through the sponsoring Center for Off Campus studies at Guilford College in Greensboro.

Five are summer schools offered cooperatively by Guilford and UNC-Greensboro. They will be held in Russia, Germany, France, England and Greece.

The sixth is the 19th annual Seminars Abroad, a 65-day study/tour covering Paris, Munich, Vienna, Bern, Venice, Florence, Rome, Athens, Crete, Istanbul, Moscow, Leningrad, Berlin, Amsterdam and London.

For additional information on both the summer schools and Seminars Abroad, students or parents may contact Claude C. Shotts at Guilford College in Greensboro. Trips are already forming.

Seminars Abroad will depart in late May and return in late July. Summers Schools will vary departures from May to early June with returns in late July and early August.

Seminars Abroad, which features meetings between American students and students of the various countries, is led by Claude Shotts and Ruth Rothe, a German native who has planned the program for 10 years.

Summer schools will be led by faculty members of Guilford and UNC-G.

The Russian summer school students will visit Paris, Berlin, Warsaw, Budapest and Vienna in addition to the cities of Leningrad, Moscow, Kiev and Odessa.

Two courses will be taught--culture and history of Russia from 988 to present, and language and literature. Teachers are Joachim Baer of UNC-G and Martha Cooley of Guilford College.

The Greek summer school will visit Florence and Rome before arriving in Athens. Several Greek islands will be on the tour/study agenda.

Courses will be "The Golden Age of Athens" and Greek drama, taught by John Barrett and Timothy Smith of UNC-G.

The summer school in England will visit Paris as well, with British cities including Chichester, London, Stratford and Oxford.

Gary McCowan of Guilford and Ronald Cassell of UNC-G will teach theater in Great Britain and history from Roman times to 1660.

The German summer school will study the cultures and political contrasts of our German-speaking states--East Germany, West Germany, Switzerland and Austria. German conversation will extend into the living laboratory of the streets, shops and student centers.

Teachers are Mary Feagins of Guilford and Robert Schulz of UNC-G.

French conversation, culture and civilization will be studied during the summer school in France. With Paris as headquarters, students also will visit Bordeaux and the Loire Valley.

Francoise Giraudet-Lay and Rachel Bullington of UNC-G will instruct.

At the end of each summer school, students will have three weeks for independent travel before regrouping to catch their charter flights back to New York.

Job Interviews For Seniors

Graduating seniors are invited to sign up for job interviews with firms, companies and agencies that are scheduled to visit the campus during the spring semester. Even though we have only a few company representatives who have committed themselves to visit our campus, we are hoping that other representatives will be added by spring semester.

As in the past, one-half hour interviews will be allocated to students on a "first-come, first-serve" basis. All interested persons must go to the Placement Office, Room 113, Alderman Building to sign up for appointments and to receive related materials.

Realizing the scarcity of jobs, the Placement Office is very anxious to assist the students of the university in their efforts to acquire employment.

If you are interested in any of the listings below, please do not hesitate to sign up for an interview.

With rue my heart is laden
For golden friends I had,
For many a rose-lipt maiden

The lightfoot boys are laid;
The rose-lipt girls are sleeping
In fields where roses fade.

This week, instead of writing about anything new I thought I would do an article about some old songs on two new albums. Today it seems as if every major artist has, at one time or another, put out a collection of the best songs from his work. Many call this the "Greatest Hits" album and then again some do not; for what is considered their best work was not a "hit". The two LP's I am doing this week fall in the last of these two categories.

Steve Harley & Cockney Rebel
A Closer Look
EMI ST - 11456

Steve Harley & Cockney Rebel are from England and released their first album in this country in 1973. Although he was one of the biggest new Rock Stars in his home land, he never seemed to catch on well with the American people except in the larger cities.

To me, Steve Harley & Cockney Rebel reflect some of the newest type rock of the future. It is not heavy yet it has a force behind it. It is just as easy to sit and listen to the words as it is to get up and boogie a little.

Harley's explanation of his music has to make him one of the most intellectual rock stars alive. As he has placed his band as The Third Generation of Rock, "The First Generation", he claimed, "were the roots: the 50's and early 60's. The Second Generation opened with the Beatles and closed with Bowie's Ziggy."

"Here, he dubbed Cockney Rebel: the Third Generation of Rock - a bastard band ... electric showbiz ... no influences, no roots."

Harley has made rock interesting again. He has developed his own style and improved on it from album to album.

This album is beautiful in that it gives the best cuts from each of Cockney Rebel's first three albums. EMI has done this at an excellent time so as to give America a total view of what Cockney Rebel is all about.

From the first album, The Human Menagerie, we have the cuts "Hideaway", "Mirror Freak" and "Sebastian". The last of these three was the cut that attracted attention to the band in England. From here on Steve Harley was to become one of the most talked about rock stars of the 70's.

By the second album, The Psychomodo, Harley had become a giant in England. He dismissed the members of the band he thought not qualified and changed the band's name to Steve Harley and Cockney Rebel. This gained him no ground whatsoever and many critics were wondering who the hell he thought he was.

The album, however, was excellent and Closer Look contains four cuts from this masterpiece. ("Sweet Dreams", "Psychomodo", "Mr. Soft" and "Tumbling Down").

The third album rocketed Harley to the top in England as THE BEST YEARS OF OUR LIVES was released this year. From this album came two very good singles, "Make Me Smile" and "Mr. Raffles", which are also included on A CLOSER LOOK.

A CLOSER LOOK is really a retrospective album of Steve Harley & Cockney Rebel's best work. If you do not yet have one of their albums, this is the one to get to see what you have missed. I guess it is Harley's way of saying "catch up America".

John Lennon - Plastic Ono Band Shaved Fish
Apple SW - 3421

This is an excellent collection of Lennon's best work from the time he left the Beatles to the present. Opening the LP is a small piece of "Give Peace A Chance" followed by "Cold Turkey" from his period when the Beatles had just split in 1969. Both were top 40 hits and the best examples of what Lennon was trying to get into on his own.

"Instant Karma!" is next and is from 1970 when John Lennon and Yoko Ono were at their tops. Here, Lennon still had enough of the Beatles left in him to keep everything under control. Also from this year is the song "Mother". This is one of the nicest slow songs Lennon made in 1970 or at anytime.

The remaining cuts on this side, "Power to the People" and "Woman is the Nigger of the World", I feel could have been left off the album as they are really as much Yoko as Lennon.

Side two is material mostly from Lennon's last three solo albums, opening this side is the title cut from IMAGINE, put out in 1971. This album and single put Lennon back in the top 40 as well as proved to his fans that he still had a mind of his own.

"Mind Games", from the album of the same name, is also on this side and was made in 1973. Here again fans were convinced Lennon still had a chance to regain his lost recognition.

From his last album, WALLS AND BRIDGES, are two of his best cuts since his split from the Beatles. "Whatever Gets You Thru The Night" and "#9 Dream" are the two cuts and both made top 40 and put Lennon back to the top. Lennon has finally come out of the rutt with these songs.

Ending the album is "Happy Xmas (War Is Over)" which has been in great demand for every Christmas since it was released in 1972.

The only fault I find with this album is that I have most of the material from it already. The cuts I did not have were well worth the album and should be to you also. I know it must have been hard to decide which songs were the best and which were not. This is really "Collectible Lennon".

Give Me Your Hand

There is a legend that a man was caught in a bed of quicksand. Confucius saw him and remarked, "There is evidence men should stay out of such places."

Buddha came by and said, "Let that life be a lesson to the rest of the world."

Mohammed said about the man, "Alas, it is the will of Allah."

The Hindu said to him, "Cheer up, friend, you will return to earth in another form."

But when Jesus saw him, He said, "Give me your hand, brother, and I will pull you out."

New Industry To Challenge The Rising Cost Of College Living

While rising tuition costs are making it difficult to go to college, rising gasoline costs are making it difficult to get to college. For the student faced with budget problems, commuting to campus and getting around campus is another headache he doesn't need.

Motobecane America Ltd. offers a viable solution: the motorized bicycle. The Motobecane is a gas-saving, money-saving means of personal transportation. In road tests two models of Motobecane delivered 148 and 218 miles per gallon! Furthermore, these vehicles are practically maintenance-free. They make parking a pleasure instead of a problem.

The Motobecane has a top speed of 18-20 miles per hour

(depending on the model), weighs well under 100 pounds, and has been commended for its low noise and exhaust levels. It is perfect for short trips, for commuting to school, and for getting around campus at a safe, low speed.

The Motobecane is as easy to operate as a bicycle. In fact, you have to pedal to start. Then, switch on the motor, for an easy, comfortable ride. Motobecane sells for just over $300 to $500, again depending on the model.

While the motorized bicycle is new to the United States, it has been a major means of personal transportation in over 40 countries since 1949. Over 2.7 million motor-assisted bicycles were sold world-wide last year, of which Motobecane and its affiliates accounted for one third. Recent changes in federal and state laws now make this economical, fuel saving vehicle available in your area.

Legislation permitting the unlimited use of motorized bicycles is now passed in nine states. Industry expectations are that most states will pass legislation within 24 months.

Economists, noting the enthusiastic welcome motorized bicycles are receiving, predict that Motobecane will help usher in a major new factor in the personal transportation industry. It is also predicted that 10 million will be in use in the United States by the early 1980's.

Coffeehouse Finishes Semester With Great Talent

Deborah McColl-- Dynamite

We see a striking young lady stroll to the piano. Luminous brown eyes take in the surroundings. She sits. She's completely comfortable here and she hopes you are. Beginning to sing in a clear, unaffected and soulful voice, the enchantment begins. The tiny, curly-haired lady is truly larger than life.

After the first song, the audience knows Deborah McColl very well. She's beautiful, self possessed, enormously talented . . . and the emotion is raw. She belongs to the audience. Deborah is determined to communicate, determined that everybody feel . . . and behind all that is real sincerity, real depth. What else is important?

She gathers her material from such artists as Jackson Browne, Aretha Franklin, Stevie Wonder, her friends and herself. But it is ultimately the singer, not the song that matters, because she gathers her style from her heart, which seems even bigger than the voice it powers.

Tim Bays Has Unique History

Tim Bays: appearing this Thursday, December 4th, in the Coffeehouse, is billed as an accomplished blues guitarist. This belies his unique history. He's been on this planet some 20 odd years, and they're the oddest years I ever heard of!

His confused introduction to the world occurred on June 4, 1947, complete with premature birth, myopia and mental aberration. His early years were spent in Michigan, compounded by adolescent sexual frustration and his mother who he turned to music and the trombone, but improvisational John Philip Sousa marches failed to catch on.

Initially discouraged, he turned to poetry and then to songwriting and acquired a guitar. In college he gained long hair, some drama courses and the anti-war philosophy. In service to his country, he did 2 years at a psychiatric hospital as a conscientious objector.

Spurred on by hindsight, he next surfaced in Colorado as leader of the group "Slippery Tim, Chicken Delite and Tyke". The locals displayed their displeasure by ripping off his tent and sleeping bags. Undaunted, he left for Florida and formed "The All-Weenie Revue" and later, the "Mad Mountain Mime Troupe" with Tom Pierce and C. W. Metcalf.

Alone now, he maintains his very personal style by mixing dialogue with the audience and a patchwork songs ranging from old blues to satire and comedy. He will appear in 2 shows - 8:00 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.

Coffeehouse Presents First Comedian

The Coffeehouse Entertainment Committee feels fortunate in having signed Tom Parks, up and coming young Atlanta comedian, for performance this Friday and Saturday, December 5 and 6. Tom has performed at many schools in Florida and Georgia, and arrives in Wilmington after successful appearances at the Hub Pub Club (Winston-Salem) and the Deja Vu (Raleigh). Tom sent us the following biography.

The first time Tom Parks ever performed was as the MC for a high school talent show. It was at this time, when Tom first stepped out on that stage, in front of all those people, that he decided what he wanted to be; a Certified Public Accountant.

In 1973, armed with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Journalism from the University of Florida, Tom Parks moved to Atlanta to take his place in society and found it had already been taken. (A high school drop-out from Denver got it in 1970 while Tom was taking a final exam in Comparative Religion. The guy was now making $28,000 a year with stock options.) A

Dear Sir:

The members of the Philosophy and Religion Department unanimously protest the slur against four great world religions which you printed on page 16 of your November 19, 1975, issue entitled "Give Me A Hand." It is an example of the worst kind of narrow-mindedness that is totally out of place in an institution of higher learning. In seeking to glorify Jesus by vilifying all other religious leaders, it thereby is an insult to Jesus as well, completely out of harmony with His teaching. But its worst offense is that it reflects complete ignorance of the religions vilified.

We would suggest that whoever was responsible for including it in the Seahawk seriously consider, by way of reparation, enrolling in Dr. Robbins' course on World Religions next semester (P&R 232), so as to try to overcome such prejudice and avoid henceforth embarrassing UNC-W, cheapening Christianity, and offending millions of our fellow men who sincerely embrace other religious traditions.

No Malice Intended

Dear Editor,

As the contributor of the article "Give Me Your Hand," I would like to thank you for your concern and interest about the article.

As to its being an example of narrowmindedness, I must agree. I do, however, dispute your modifying it with the "worst kind." Never the less, I accept the epithet. Jesus himself said: "Because strait is the gate and narrow is the way which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." (Mt. 7:14)

The purpose of the article, of course, was not to vilify other religions, but merely to point out the fact that Jesus Christ is the only way to salvation, eternal life, and relatt the article. My only purpose and thought was compassion of my fellow man, who regardless of religion or lifestyle are lost and without salvation through Jesus Christ.

As to its being an "insult to Jesus" and "out of harmony with his teachings," I leave that with intelligent readers who can read the words of Jesus and see for themselves what he said.

I will gladly accept your invitation to the World Religions course, and since you all are so open minded, I invite you to attend a church of my choice and listen to the ministry of a spirit-filled man of God for a semester—who knows! Perhaps you too will get this prejudice which sets men free—Jesus Christ my Lord.

Sincerely,
W.R. Riley

Loose Ends and Knots

Someone took a "cheap shot" for the faith on page 16 in the last issue of the Seahawk with a little article entitled, "Give Me Your Hand." This style of building up one faith at the expense of another is a "cheap shot" and does little good for anyone except to elicit the response, "Isn't that a quaint way of putting it." It is not a question of truth or falsity or the right of expression but of one's style in expressing an opinion. I think the command Jesus gave was to "love your neighbor as yourself." Unfortunately it has been misconstrued to read "Do unto others before they have a chance to do unto you." There are a few people we may call into question on this issue: First, the person who wrote it in such ego-boosting style; next, the person or persons who submitted it unsigned and finally, on the same account, our editor for allowing it to be printed without proper credit.

One other knot needs to be made a loose end. The last Stillpoint column manuscript did not end with 69—it was inserted. According to our beloved editor, the figures appearing at the end were a count of the number of lines in the article and someone neglected to extract them before final printing. Outside that clarification two humorous points came to light. Actually there were 70 lines in the article and the editor said that he thought those numbers implied only "Class of '69." He is more aware now.

So much for cheap shots and fine print. I wonder what this issue will hold for us.

And in case exams become too frantic and this paper bird does not fly again, I wish you all a merry and blessed Christmas.

Til later,
Vivan Martindale

Ronald Reagan: Ford's Clear and Present Danger

Last week, as has been expected, former California Governor Ronald Reagan officially entered the race for the Republican presidential nomination, giving Gerald Ford a bumpy road to travel in his quest for a term of his own winning. Long ago, when speculation first began that Reagan might jump into the ring, most observers gave him little or no hope of succeeding. Later when Reagan held off a formal announcement of candidacy, he was given less hope by the day. It simply seemed impossible that the Republican Party would turn away an incumbent of their own party.

But when Mr. Reagan finally declared that he will challenge President Ford, his campaign seemed to have as much momentum as any declared candidates', including Ford's.

Right after his announcement Reagan left on a political swing through key primary states, including New Hampshire, North Carolina and Florida. He was received warmly everywhere he went, especially in Florida, whose primary could provide the upward thrust that Reagan needs to establish himself an equal (or even controlling) partner at the Republican National Convention.

Now the question is: can Reagan convince the Republican Party that he is more in line with their thinking than is the President? Perhaps more importantly for Republicans: can Reagan keep the White House within the GOP if he is given the party's nod in 1976?

Reagan is certainly no force to be ignored. His dissociation with the politics of Washington, which he is quick to remind you of, is only one factor in his favor. He represents the revival of the right-wing conservatism, which has been overshadowed in liberal politics by so many liberal candidates who seem always to outnumber moderate or conservative candidates.

The Republican Party has long been the home of the most conservative element of our population. But the minority Republicans are under no circumstances going to be able to place their own candidate in the White House by themselves. Both Ford and Reagan know this, as do the members of the Republican Party. This is why many of them feel that Reagan does not appeal to a broad enough share of the voting public to win in November, and therefore are reluctant to support the Reagan campaign.

In trying to assure himself the Republican nomination, President Ford may very well be defeating himself. He has frantically gone in search of his own constituency from which he can launch his electoral bid.

Reagan, on the other hand, has been quick to concentrate his concerns of those issues which are important to the conservatives of both parties and conservative independents. Despite Ford's attempts to claim the conservative bloc his own, Reagan seems to be more attractive to that force.

Unlike Ford's performance in Washington, Reagan, as governor of our largest state, showed consistency in administration and accomplished much for that state before leaving the governor's office. This statewide executive experience provides Reagan with a much broader base than Ford's Congressional district in Michigan.

Another factor on Reagan's side are the early primary states, where his organization has secured a firm ground that may enable him to embarrass Ford early in the campaign. In New Hampshire, Florida, and North Carolina, Reagan's chances look good against Ford. While Ford has no primary experiences, Reagan does have a taste of primary campaigns from 1968 against Richard Nixon.

A showing of 40 per cent in either of these states would prove beneficial to Reagan's campaign, giving him greater viability as a national candidate; whereas a showing of less than 50 per cent would put Ford in a position to seriously consider quitting the race, as Lyndon Johnson did in 1968 when Eugene McCarthy defeated him in New Hampshire's primary.

If Ford is pushed out of the race by primary defeats, it will not mean an automatic nomination for Reagan. Already, former Nixon loyalist John Connally has said that he may possibly enter the late campaign if things do not go as he would like to see. Vice-President Nelson Rockefeller, while publicly supporting Ford, refuses to rule out another try. And Senators Charles Percy (Illinois) and Charles Mathias (Maryland) are waiting in the wings to see what develops.

But Connally, being a Democrat-turned-Republican, may be viewed suspiciously by lifelong Republicans, and Rockefeller, Percy and Mathias, being liberals, are not likely to garner enough support within the conservative party, so that none would pose a serious threat to Reagan's eventual nomination.

If Ford can get his campaign going before those early primaries and can prove his strength to the Republican voters, Reagan's chances may fade away. But if Ford does not quickly move to a clear position up front, Reagan may well dismantle the President, and the Republican convention will be all but a victory celebration for the conservative from California.

CPS SHORTS

The Jock and The PomPom

(CPS)--The federal law against sex discrimination called Title IX has been invoked on behalf of males, too, occasionally at the request of women's groups. The coordinator of the local National Organization of Women (NOW) education task force urged Oklahoma University (OU) officials to postpone try-outs for the pom-pom squad because it excludes males in clear violation of Title IX.

The NOW coordinator, Johanna Lee Morgan, said that failure to equalize opportunity to participate in the pom-pom squad "could jeopardize OU's federal funding."

The pom-pom squad is not funded directly by the University but uses its facilities. Morgan also claimed that the advertisements for the squad were in violation of Title IX. Advertisements were directed to "girls" and no mention of male participation was made.

"EZ-A's" For Stanford Students

(CPS)--Three Stanford students are cashing in on "EZ-A" study guides they compiled for University chemistry, biology and physics classes. The guides consist of all the exams given during the last two years for the courses with correct answers and some explanations.

"This is a combination of a money-making enterprise for us and a service for Stanford students," one of the student-entrepreneurs said. "We got the idea after noticing how many of our friends asked us for old exams when they were taking these classes."

The students are selling the booklets outside each class before and after it meets at $3.50 per booklet.

Although one professor called the price "exorbitant," another said he thought the idea was "rather enterprising."

Students behind the venture estimate that they've sold booklets to 12 to 15 per cent of each class.

High-Powered Hot Dogs

(CPS)--A high-powered hot dog shot at a Michigan youth sent him to an area hospital early in October, Michigan state police reported.

Troopers explained that Todd Sexton and a younger brother were coming home from hunting when Todd's brother removed the pellets from a 12-gauge shotgun shell and replace them with a wiener. Then he shot Todd in the leg. Troopers said the hot dog bullet broke the skin in two places. Sexton was treated and released at a hospital. No charges were filed against the younger brother.

Bad Coffee Not Illegal

(CPS)--A watered down cup of coffee is always a disappointment, but most people's reaction is simply to grumble and find another place to buy it.

But a Suffolk County, NY judge was so upset that his coffee was weak, that he allegedly had the vendor brought to his chambers in handcuffs and threatened to revoke his license unless he stopped watering down the coffee.

As a result of this incident, a state commission has recommended that the judge, William M. Perry, be dismissed. The vendor has sued him for $5 million.

The incident began when the judge sent out for two containers of coffee from a truck stationed outside traffic court in Hauppauge, NY. Ten minutes later, police officers ordered the vendor to come to the judge's chambers to see about the coffee "because it was so terrible." The vendor claimed that he had been taken through the lobby of the building in handcuffs to his great embarrassment.

Cereal Box Clocks

(CPS)--Most people read their cereal boxes, empty them and throw them away. Not an Oregon State University student who hasn't thrown a cereal box away since 1973. Gene Koozer cuts them up for clock works.

"I've had the best luck with Cheerios and Wheaties because these boxes don't seem to warp very much," Koozer said. "I've tried just about everything from Grape Nuts to Corn Flakes to Raisin Bran but they just don't hold up as long."

Koozer started making clocks from cereal boxes when he tried to imitate a clock made in the 1800's which had wooden gears. But Koozer found that he didn't have the tools to work with wood so he decided to try cardboard. "It really worked well, it took less tools and it cost a fraction of what wood costs," Koozer explained.

Of the 16 clocks Koozer has constructed, only one has been sold. Koozer said he doesn't have the time to make money off them. "The kick I get out of building them is the main thing, along with the satisfaction I get when people comment on them," he said.

Koozer said he is working on a clock now that will strike the hours and another one that will tell the month, day and the position of the sun and stars.

"A More Perfect Union"

America, too, is a political life--rare, risky, even fragile: A democracy, where every citizen has an equal voice in the affairs of the country. What is unique about our form of democracy?

Our constitution called for a "more perfect union" among the newly independent states, instituting a "federalism" which combined the advantages of liberty and stability. "Power checks power," was the maxim the founders followed, crafting a delicate balance among the executive, legislative and judicial branches.

How well has it worked? How about our theory of judicial review of the constitution? Our political system? Now that everybody has a vote, how much does the vote of a single individual matter? The constitution calls for a "representative government" with power invested in the people, who delegate this power to elected officials. If their performance does not please the people, what can they do?

These and other related topics will be discussed at the fourth town meeting of the American Issues Forum sponsored by the Wilmington-New Hanover County American Revolution Bicentennial Association to be held in King Auditorium, Education Building, UNC-W at 8 p.m., Wednesday, December 10, 1975. The meeting is open to the public and admission is free. Come to listen and express your ideas.

The distinguishing members of the panel are: Dr. Syed Ahmad, Assistant Professor of Political Science, UNC-W; Mr. John A. Jones, City Manager; Mr. Dan W. Eller, County Manager; Mr. B.D. Schwartz, State Representative; Mr. Wayne Jackson, Station Manager, WECT-TV; Mr. William K. The cook-out and hay ride sponsored by the Pi Kappa Phi little sisters turned out to be an overwhelming success. The temperature, being in the low 40's, didn't cause any low spirits because there was an ample supply of anti-freeze for everyone.

The Pi Kappa Phi Alumni Dance was also a big success. With a crowd of over 200 persons, it didn't take long for the festivity to reach its peak. The dance was held at the Elks Club and music was furnished by the Alpaca's.

The Pi Kappa Phi intramural basketball team has started out in good form with a 3-0 record. The Pi Kappa team is looking forward to upcoming games with the other fraternities on campus.

We followed up the ceremonies with a lively PJ party and wish to thank all who attended for making it a success, especially our nominees for chapter sweetheart, Sherri Hendrix and Jeri Lynn Whitfield.

The brothers hope the family that the Department of Social Services selected to receive our Thanksgiving Basket had an extremely nice Thanksgiving and wish for them all the best that God can provide.

To the Virgins, to Make Much of Time

by Robert Herrick

Gather ye rosebuds while ye may,
Old time is still a-flying;
And this same flower that smiles today
Tomorrow will be dying.

The glorious lamp of heaven, the sun,
The higher he's a-getting,
The sooner will his race be run,
And nearer he's to setting.

That age is best which is the first,
When youth and blood are warmer;
But being spent, the worse, and worst
Times still succeed the former.

Then be not coy, but use your time,
And, while ye may, go merry;
For, having lost but once your prime,
You may forever tarry.

Sammers First Annual Photography Contest and Show

Don't be put off by the name. The sponsor is Sam Mansfield, trained at the University of Kentucky, veteran of seven one-man shows of his own in the Washington, D.C. area. His latest is being held at Fuller D'Albert in Fairfax, Virginia. His photography has accompanied articles for several magazines and government publications.

WHY: The paradox of a new art form is its rapid growth, yet limited outlet for its showing. In a word: PHOTO-GRAPHY. Photography has grown in popular appeal at a phenomenal rate over the past few years. However, the amateur photographer has had little opportunity show his work or get needed exposure. It is with this problem in mind that Sam Mansfield is holding this show.

WHERE AND WHEN: To be held during the Bicentennial in a downtown Washington, D.C. gallery. The exact date and location will be announced as soon as possible. (Colorfax Gallery at 15th and L Streets in N.W. Washington, D.C. in June/July.)

WHO: College students only. WHAT'S IT TO YOU? Exposure! Prize Money! First Prize: $150 Second Prize: $100 Third Prize: $50 AND approximately 100 Honorable Mentions! ALL to be included in the show.

HOW: 1. Color and Black and White photography can be submitted in sizes up to 8 x 10. (If photographer wants work returned, please send self-adressed, stamped return envelope to size.)

2. Label all pieces of art as to owner and address.

3. $1.00 entry fee per photo (no personal checks, please.)

4. Deadline: February 25, 1976.

5. Submit to: Sammers First Annual Photography Contest and Show; P.O. Box 243, Falls Church, Va. 22046

Educational Benefits

The Office of Veteran Affairs would like to remind all students receiving VA Educational Benefits to come by the Office of Veteran Affairs to make sure you are certified for the spring, 1976 semester. Some of your certifications will expire December, 1975. To avoid the inconvenience of having your benefits terminated, please check on your certifications.

In order to remain eligible for VA Educational Assistance, you must fill out a class schedule form for the fall, 1975 and spring, 1976, complete with grades, no later than January 9, 1976. Failure to do so will result in termination of your VA certifications.

Those of you that have not completed the requirements for a degree and your original entitlement of 36 months has expired may be eligible for a 9 month extension. Those of you that have completed the requirements for a degree, regardless of application for graduation, are no longer eligible for VA Educational Assistance unless you have time remaining on your basic eligibility of 36 months. Contact the Office of Veteran Affairs for more information.

The Office of Veteran Affairs would like to wish all students much success in their academic endeavors and encourage your scholastic best during the remaining weeks.

MISSOULA, MONTANA-- America's longest bike path is being readied for the Bikecentennial. It's the Trans-America Bicycle Trail, and is being prepared by an organization called Bikecentennial '76.

During the past two years, the Bikecentennial organization—now some 40 strong—has been mapping out the trail, all of which is on secondary, paved roads. One of the purposes of the trail is to take a good, long look at historic and rural America at the same time. Toward this end, the trail parallels or traverses the Oregon trail, the Continental Divide trail, the Lewis and Clark trail, the Santa Fe trail, and the Chisholm trail. It also goes through Colonial Virginia, the Ozarks, and the Great Plains.

Not up to riding the 4,300 mile trail next summer? Bikecentennial is offering shorter trips along the way. Choices range from 12 days for the shortest tour, to 82 days for riding crosscountry.

If you wish, you can ride with a group led by a Bikecentennial-trained leader, and stay at the hotels which the group has helped develop (called Bike-Inns). Or, you can camp out all along the way, and ride at your own pace. Either way, by registering with Bikecentennial, you receive their well-researched guidebooks and maps.

The cost? Up to $600 to ride cross-country, with three meals a day and overnight included. Other, less expensive options are available.

If cycling is your thing, contact Bikecentennial '76, P.O. Box 1034, Missoula, Montana 59801, for more information.

LIVE FROM KING

AUD. : THE

Are you ready? It's here! It's tonite! The night you have all been waiting for has finally arrived. The excitement is building... the tension is getting greater. Do you think you can control yourself until 7:30 p.m., tonight in King Auditorium (Education Building). Yes, it's the Mr. UNC-W pageant - right here - right now - TONIGHT!!

It's beauty on parade! That's the only name possible, and do we have some fantastic looking guys for you. Let's see, while I glance down my long list of contestants, I find - ah, there's Charles Ashton, a sophomore, majoring in Forestry. Next, Charles Balser, a junior, majoring in accounting, and there's Gordon Dean, a P.E. major and a senior Alan DeWitt, a junior majoring in engineering; Don Horn a freshmen majoring in Marine Biology; Craig Sexton, a landscape architect and a sophomore; Senior Steve Shields is majoring in Psychology; James "Boomer" Wichon, a sophomore, Elementary Education major; Bill Wilkie, a senior, majoring in psychology; and last, but not least, Jeff Williams, a Biology major and a senior. Well, now you have it. Don't they just make your mouth water? what a group of men, and wait till you catch a view of those bodies. Now girls, we only ask on thing: please don't molest these handsome fellows before they have a chance to complete the show. After all, who wants an exhausted Mr. UNC-W? Once the pageant is over, they're all yours.

And talk about talent. These guys are just loaded with it. Do you enjoy guitar music, vocals, comedy routines? How about juggling acts or impersonations? We've got it all and more. What a show - What a night of fun and entertainment.

Come gaze at these guys when they appear in suits and ties. Swoon when they present themselves in those "little" bathing suits. (Just don't touch!) Let yourself relax and enjoy yourself. Sit back and enjoy the music of Bob Long and Kelly and Pat Jewell; Mark Leonard, and the terrific comedy act, "The Mad Flatterer".

Well, I guess that's all I've got to say; but, then, what more is needed? I want to look, touch, wish.....not talk. We'll all be expecting you, so see you there. Oh, don't forget to bring your friends, maybe even an enemy or two. Students bring your ID's, there will be a .50 admission charge for all non-students.

FCA Presents Program

The newly-formed chapter of FCA on the UNC-W campus will host a series of unusual and inviting shows of programs December 5, 6, and 7 in Kenan Auditorium at 7:30 PM, "Living Art," by Bill Leach, entertainment by Bunny Martin and special FCA Guest Athletes.

BILL LEACH

crawls pictures which come to life with sound, motion and color... all before your eyes. His unique program using electronic equipment for background, is not only fascinating but inspirational as well. He has selected a different theme for each night's performance.

Each night the program is prefaced by the color prelude of inspiring music with the motion of kaleidoscope colors supplementing a specially selected painting in ultra violet splendor.

His first program is entitled "See It Like It Is" in which the scene is a national park depicting the things which go on there during the day and night.

On second night, Leach will draw a space picture which he calls "The Visited Planet," where the audience imagines they are riding in a rocket headed for the moon.

Leach climaxes his three nights with his most moving and meaningful picture. It is the "Crucifixion and Resurrection," showing the scene in Jerusalem leading to Calvary and the triumphant emergence from the tomb.

No kidding, he's the Yo-Yo Champion of the world, having won the title in actual competition with the world's best in Toronto, Canada...

Also an expert magician, juggler, singer-guitarist and humorist, Martin has thrilled audiences from Coast to coast. He does everything in the world with Yo-Yo's--and several things out of this world--including striking matches in clenched teeth with spinning Yo-Yo's. Another favorite trick is the "hair cut;" he places a half-dollar on the ear of a volunteer, then knocks the coin to the floor without the Yo-Yo hitting the ear. Roger Staubach has been given "hair cuts" during several of Martin's shows. And though a man of few words, Martin's short message is long remembered.

He holds memberships in International Platform Association, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, International Brotherhood of Magicians, Outstanding Young Men in America, and Fellowship of Christians in the Arts, Media and Entertainment.

Martin has performed before such athletic groups as the Dallas Cowboys, New York Jets, Buffalo Bills, and national conferences of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, has appeared on "Grand Ol' Opry" in Nashville and entertained students at the Air Force Academy, has logged thousands of performances for various groups--large and small--such as civic clubs, Chambers of Commerce, churches, schools, sports banquets, conventions and many others.

Hawks Drop Opener

The UNC-W Seahawks opened their season Monday when they traveled to Charleston, S.C. to face the Citadel Bulldogs.

In the early going the two teams were tied at 6-6, but then the Citadel scored two unanswered baskets to take a lead which they never relinquished. The bulldogs spread the lead to as much as 18 points during first half play, but the bvisitors fought back to cut the lead to 35-25 at the half.

Several times during the second the Hawks cut the lead to nine but were unable to get any closer as they missed the front end of several one-and-one free throw opportunities. The final score showed the Citadel 81, UNC-W 63.

The Seahawks were out-rebounded 38-25 although Coach Mel Gibson felt the two teams should have been more closely matched on the boards.

Leading scorer for the Hawks was freshman, David Wolff, who Gibson cited as having an outstanding game. Senior co-captain Ernie Lynn was the only other Hawk in double figures with eleven points. Keith Yow was the leading rebounder with seven.

In sizing up District 29 teams this year, Gibson feels Campbell College will be the team to beat. The other five teams UNC-W, Pembroke, Atlantic Christian, Shaw, and Fayetteville State are all fairly even and it should be really close for the remaining playoff spot.

This Saturday the Hawks meet Augusta College here at 7:30. Augusta posted 19 wins and 9 losses last year and are always strong in the Georgia Athletic Conference. Gibson sees this meeting as a real toss-up and it should be an excellent spectators game.

UNC-W Volleyball Club

A club to promote the advancement of the sport of volleyball is now being formed on campus. The club will be coed and anyone can join whether they have had any prior experience or not. One of its functions will be to introduce the game to those who do not have knowledge of how the game is played today.

A team (club team) will be formed out of the club and will play other clubs such as N.C. State and UNC-Chapel Hill, among others. A schedule will be made up for the spring semester and there will be both home and away games.

There will be an organizational meeting Thursday, December 4 at 11:30 AM in the back gym. Those interested may also contact Ronnie Chaplin in dorm room 307.

Five Seahawks Make All-District 29

PEMBROKE-Campbell College's NAIA 29 champions place nine players on the 18-man All-District soccer team announced today by Dr. Ray Pennington, chairman of the District.

UNC-Wilmington, which won the regular season title but lost to the Camels in the playoff, was next in number of players chosen with five. Both Atlantic Christian and Pembroke State had two selectees each.

Chosen from Atlantic Christian were: Chuck Rierson, sophomore, Greensboro; and Chris Smallwood, sophomore, Fairfax, Va.

Named from Pembroke State were: Bob Fowler, junior, Wayne, Pa.; and Eric Ricioppo, junior, Lynbrook, N.Y.

Six repeated from last year: Brite and Lotierzo of Campbell, Fleri and Rada of UNC-Wilmington, Smallwood of Atlantic Christian and Ricioppo of Pembroke State.

Of the 18 players chosen, only four are from North Carolina.

Barry Rosen to Present

"People Music"

By Sara Linden
Staff Writer

Some people would call it folk music—but Barry Rosen, who should know, has described his music as people music.

Whatever it's called, it will probably be fun to listen to if samplings Rosen played at a friend's home Friday night are any indication of what will be available to Wilmington audiences this week. Rosen is appearing Wednesday night at Kenan Auditorium as part of University Fine Arts Lecture series.

A 1972 graduate of Queens College in New York, Rosen has a string of college and coffeehouse appearances to his credit in the northeast, and has the happy advantage of expressing a special liking for the Wilmington area which he discovered two years ago.

In fact, he was on one of many visits to friends here last week when arrangements were made for him to give a concert for the series.

Samplings of his work reveal an appeal that goes far beyond the obvious one to college students of his own age.

"I'll Understand," a sometimes painful, always thoughtful song about moving and travelling is one of the songs Rosen describes as his favorites—his song combines idea and emotion to completely absorb his audience's attention and allow each listener to find something emotionally of himself and for himself in the song.

Although he doesn't debunk protest songs, Rosen has apparently turned from the occasionally stereotyped pollution and anti-war songs to what he describes as songs of personal growth and experience.

"I try to tell a story in my work, and have a theme running through each concert. I try to tell the story in much the same way you would write a book," says Rosen.

The song "I'll Understand" was written while Rosen was staying at Wrightsville Beach. In a lonely, bored mood, suddenly the movement of the waves and flight of seagulls came together to form the song before Rosen left the area for another appearance in some other part of the country.

He describes himself as "a people, moving, travelling type of person," an integral part of his career plan. Rosen, who has been pursuing a fulltime music career since graduation in June, has travelled over the West and Midwest as well as Northeast in his car Nebel with his 12-string guitar Filbert and a six-string alternate guitar he also sometimes uses in his concerts.

Although he has performed for audiences for five years, he says he decided to travel over the country getting his name before the public gradually before actively pursuing a more ambitious recording career.

"I had the chance to do some recordings a couple of years ago, but felt I wasn't ready. I wanted to travel over the country, getting my name known before going into records, because if you cut a record and it lies on the shelf not selling in the towns around the country, they don't usually give you another chance," says Rosen.

"I've always had a good reception where I've gone, and this frightens me a little," says Rosen.

In addition to coffeehouse and college audiences, he recently had an engagement in New York's Carnegie Hall, and has played for national college audiences at the United Nations.

Though his travels are constant, he comes back periodically to this area and to his friends at "Sassafras Farm," a peaceful farm with animals in the Masonboro area owned by some close friends of Rosen's whom he met on his travels here two years ago.

Rosen wrote a song entitled, "Sassafras Farm," describing the warmth, fresh air and friendliness here which he says attract him far more than his native New York. "I consider this home," he says.

Like many other songs Rosen has written, it was worked out sitting in the warm and pleasantly informal living room of Sassafras Farm with the children of the house.

Rosen's appearance at UNC-W's Kenan Memorial Auditorium next Wednesday marks his first appearance in the South. He has not worked out all the details of his concert, but says many times his mood combined with the mood of the audience will guide his choice of songs.

"Mostly, I think of my music as entertainment, I just try to generate a good time, caring about the music I play and my rapport with the audience," says Rosen.

Judging by the easy and warm way he performed Friday for his friends, the audience Wednesday night will have the entertainment and good time Rosen wants to generate.

Advance tickets for the concert, which begins at 8 p.m. may be obtained for $2 by calling the auditorium boxoffice at 791-9695.

UNC-W students will be admitted free by identification card, and high school students admission charge is $1. (Reprint from Star-News)

Steve Morrison Solos

A recent graduate of UNC-W will perform his own compositions for the coffeehouse audience on Saturday, December 6, at 8 and 10 PM. Steve Morrison is a familiar name to many music lovers at UNC-W, having been a concert committee chairman during fall semester '74. Morrison may perhaps be more famous, however, as the creative force behind Creekwood, that popular country-rock group enjoyed by students not only in Wilmington, but across North Carolina.

As in love with music as ever, Morrison has stayed busy since Creekwood disbanded, working on his style as a single performer and writing more songs. He is presently employed with the Wrightsville Beach Parks and Recreation Department. Come hear where Steve is now.

Christmas Program Set

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington Community Orchestra presents its Christmas program Tuesday, December 9 at 8 PM in Kenan Auditorium. Come enjoy holiday music from "Amahl and the Night Visitors" and "Nutcracker Suite," and join in with a medley of Christmas carols. Tickets are $2 for adults, $1 for students, and may be purchased at the door. Season tickets are also available for a savings.

Nobody sounds like Deborah, nobody even looks like her; what comes from the stage is completely Deborah McColl. It's a magic show. Deborah's special magic will provide a welcome respite from the rigors of exams in the coffeehouse on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, December 11, 12, and 13. Deborah will perform twice on Thursday, and three times on Friday and Saturday. Schedule a study break with Deborah. You won't be sorry.

weaker person in the face of this kind of disaster would have given up and moved back in with his parents. Tom's parents moved and didn't leave a forwarding address. That left two alternatives, become a comedian or go into a coma... so... The second time he stepped on stage was late in 1973 at the tender age of 23. A career was launched.

Since that time Tom Parks has appeared with such greats as Neil Sedaka, Red White and Blue Grass, Dr. Hook and The Medicine Show and J.J. Cale. Tom is now in the process of writing a book entitled "How to Raise Chinchillas in your Temporal Lobes", a definitive guide to selecting a college and what to expect from four years of all night poker, eight o'clock classes and institutional food. (Hint: Euell Gibbons has one.) To support his growing need for paper and pencils, Tom is also touring the country speaking on high school fads, college grads, plants in heat and his mother's cooking. Tom and his side-kick Flo will begin their zanyness at 8 PM and 10 PM each night, sharing the stage with Barry Rosen (Friday) and Steve Morrison (Saturday).

Faculty Night Big Success

By Mark Leonard

The unanimous opinion of those in attendance for Faculty Night in the Coffeehouse (Monday, November 24) was that it was "fantastic!"

The first entertainer on stage was Mark Switzer, guitar instructor from the Continuing Education Department. Playing a handmade classical guitar, his music had the audience listening deeply, feeling what was played.

The second entertainer was Ms. Debbie Gimple of the Drama and Speech Department. Her dramatic readings from the works of Dorothy Parker were entertaining and thought-provoking. The crowd both laughed and cried with the feeling put into her readings. She made you feel that you were surrounded by props, yet the stage was blank except for her. Very good performance!

Mrs. Lela Henderson, a secretary from the Modern Language Department, entertained last. She played piano and sang in a completely different way. The crowd got into her act all the way by throwing money, singing along, and yelling "encore".

Day Concert Set

Needed

The coffeehouse is now accepting artwork by students, faculty, and staff for display in the coffeehouse. All that anyone has to do is bring their art by the Student Activities Office in the Pub between 9:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. We would really like to see a lot of university art displayed in the coffeehouse. Works by Will Whitson are on display in the coffeehouse at this time, but they will be returned to him soon. So, if anyone would like to show their work on-campus at the coffeehouse, come on by and show us what you have to offer. All submissions will be returned to the artists after a short period of time. Your cooperation will be greatly appreciated.

Rick Dennis
Coffeehouse Coordinator

Mr. Wiley's Electronic Music Class (MUS 303) will present a concert of their original compositions in the coffeehouse on Wednesday, December 10, at 8 PM. The compositions, many supplemented by light shows, will be pre-recorded and are the work of Larry Ausley, Tony Murphy, Terry Ward, Robert Benson, Howard Talley, Michael Harris and John Johnson.

The New Pub

With the completion of the coffeehouse, the Pub has a whole new look on the inside! The hall lobby and rec room all have a bright, modern feeling, while the coffeehouse provides an old-fashioned, casual atmosphere. Come see for yourself!

Suggestion: Give an Album for Christmas

It is that time of year again when everyone is out in all the confusion, wondering what to give to the one they love, or hate, for Christmas. I say, give an album or tape. They are not too expensive and the selection is really enormous.

Here, then, are several selections I think would make excellent gifts to that person on your list. The personality of the receiver should first be known before the record or tape is purchased.

FOR THE HARD ROCKER

RITCHIE BLACKMORE'S RAINBOW Polydor PD 6049

Anyone who is in to hard rock, DEEP PURPLE style, will really appreciate this selection. Blackmore has now left Deep Purple and gotten back to the group's old sound to the point where it sounds more like them than they do. This is the new group's RAINBOW's first album and is an excellent piece of material.

Rainbow's lead vocalist, Ronnie James Dio, is a cross between Deep Purple's old vocals and David Byron of Uriah Heep. Blackmore's guitar work remains very well done throughout the album. In fact everything holds together so well, it is hard not to believe this group could have been together for years.

Best cuts are: "Man on the Silver Mountain", "Catch the Rainbow", "Temple of the King", "Sixteenth Century Greensleeves", and "Still I'm Sad". This album will keep your rocker moving from start to finish.

FOR THE ONE YOU LOVE

ERIC CARMEN Arista AL 4057

This album is for the one you love because it is all about the tradition themes of love songs, put in new and very good songs.

Eric Carmen was lead singer for the Raspberries up until this album, which is his first solo attempt. Here he really shows his talents as never before. He has written all the material as well as worked out some excellent arrangements. Although he still sounds like a Raspberry, the album is better than anything the group did together.

The most interesting cut on the album is "All By Myself". The lyrics are simple but good and the piano work by Carmen is very well done. This is one of the most moving love songs written this year and real classic of the LP.

Other good songs are "That's Rock 'n' Roll", "Great Expectations", "Last Night", and "Sunrise". This album has to make that special girl shed a tear when you are not there.

FOR THE PERSON WHO LIKES EASY GOING ROCK

DARYL HALL & JOHN OATES RCA APL1-1144

Although Hall and Oates have made three or four albums this is the first one I have heard. It is also their first album on RCA.

The cover and inner lyric sleeve are a little misleading and give the impression that this is another weird, far-out, heavy group. This is totally wrong as they are another white soul type group. In fact, they remind me of and old Temptation album or something in that line. All this is done very well and will please anyone in that bag.

Interesting songs are: "Camellia", "Out of Me. Out of You", "It Doesn't matter Anymore", and "Ground for Separation".

FOR THE PERSON YOU HATE* BUT DO NOT WANT THEM TO KNOW IT

ILLUSION

Isotope
Gull GU.6-40751

I hate the record. You will hate this record. And the one you hate but have to get something for anyway will hate the record.

This Isotope's second album and one of the poorest examples of this type music I have ever heard. The group is from England and have taken the sound I identify with German music and done God knows what to it. Have they added Jazz? Have they added Rock? If you find out please let me in on it.

With groups like Tangerine Dream, Gong, Can and Nektar around, Isotope has not a chance.

FOR THE COUNTRY-ROCKER

MOONRIDER

Anchor ANCL 2010

If your friend likes country-rock, this is the album to give him. This is Moonrider's first album and it is country-rock, English style. Some how they manage to pull "America's Own" off pretty well.

They sound like many American groups ranging from the Eagles to Poco. The songs, however, are their own and are written and recorded only as the English would do them.

Cuts of interest are: "Angel of Mercy", "Good Things", and "Too Early In The Morning". Your friend will love these unless he reads the cover and finds out the group's English.

FOR ANYONE WHO LIKES GOOD HARD ROCK

NAZARETH HAIR OF THE DOG A&M SP 4511

I was unaware anyone was making music like this until I bought this album for the nice single now being played on the radio, "Love Hurts". Boy was I surprised when I played HAIR OF THE DOG for the first time.

This album is the best shitting rock 'n' roll albums I have heard since the split of Juicy Lucy in the early 70's. NAZARETH are like Juicy Lucy, Aerosmith, Mountain, Black Sabbath, Deep Purple, Z Z Top, and Uriah Heep all rolled into one. Their music never stops and could bring life to the dearest party you could ever have.

Best cuts are: "Hair of the Dog", "Love Hurts", "Whiskey Drinkin' Woman" and "Please Don't Judas Me". This album starts where the others end.

FOR THE THIRD GENERATION OF ROCK

ROXY MUSIC

SIREN
A&M SD36-127

This album is for those who like the new directions rock is going through. This is not Roxy Music's best album, but will more than likely be liked in this country as they have brought their style down to that of the average American group.

This album is not as heavy as the other four and complicated arrangements have been held to minimums. Bryan Ferry still holds the group together with a voice unlike anyone alive.

One of the best cuts off the album is the English single, "Love is the Drug". It has just enough of the "bump beat" to really become a popular song in this country. If it ever gets air play.

Other good cuts are: "Whirlwind", "She Sells", and "Could It Happen To Me". The album has the fuzz but lacks the zap the other Roxy Music albums have. It is still better than most albums out anyway.

FOR THE COMEDIAN

SPARKS INDISCREET Island ILPS-9345

This album is the perfect one for that friend of yours who is a laugh a minute. It keeps you wondering what next? What are they going to sing about next?

Like Roxy Music, this is the Mael Brothers fifth album and one of the best yet. Here they play some good rock songs with an occasional fun cut, or the other way around.

The best songs on the album are: "Hospitality On Parade", "Get In The Swing", "Pineapple", "Tits", "The Lady is Lingerin'" and "In The Future". The Future is what this is all about.

Well, there you have it. Now go to a record store and buy albums and tapes for everyone on your list. If one of your personality types does not fit the above I am sure you can find something that will please anyone. Till then: ROCK-OUT!

MR. UNC-W '76

An event unprecedented in the history of UNCW took place on the campus on December 4 as James 'Boomer' Wishon was crowned the first Mr. UNCW. A large and enthusiastic crowd observed the coronation in King Auditorium. Ten gents vied for the title. Each of the contestants were observed by a panel of eight judges in swimsuit, dress attire, and personality. The judges were Kay Tiblier, Gwen Culbreth, Patsy Hope, Dr. William Malloy, Beth Hicks, Marjorie Smith, Jan Donahue, and Jim Braswell.

The seven semi-finalists were judged in a talent competition. The talents ranged from the sober song, 'I Believe', to the satirical John Denver impersonation of playing a guitar on a tennis racket. The five finalists were each asked a question about sex-role reversal situations.

After the votes were tallied, Boomer, a sophomore education major, received the coveted title. The crowd seemed pleased after watching him participate in the swimsuit competition wearing boxer shorts, do a monologue on 'Dicky the Stick', and respond to a question on being a pregnant unwed girl. Boomer's joking manner stimulated the audience. He received an assortment of gifts including two kegs of beer from Budweiser, a dinner for two at Angelo's, and a gift from the UNCW Bookstore.

Boomer's court consisted of first runner-up, Bill Wilkie, a senior majoring in psychology, who received a night for two at the Patio with his pal. Second runner-up was Steve Shields, also a senior majoring in psychology. He was awarded a gift from the Bookstore.

During the judges' various deliberations, entertainment was provided by Mark Leonard, Kelly Jewell and Friends, and the comedy act, 'The Mad Flatter'.

The pageant was co-ordinated and emceed by Robert Maxey and Becky Young as a project for Kay Tiblier's sex-role class. It provided hours of free entertainment for a packed audience of students, faculty, and interested members of the community. Could the success of the pageant cause it to become a contagious tradition on the campus of UNCW?

Homecoming '76

February 9-14

Yes fans, it's that time of year again. Time to pull out all those old green and yellow streamers you've been saving since that frantic time last year. Time to plan those Homecoming Week parties and plan for those post-Homecoming Week hangovers. Time to welcome back our long lost alumni to their annual visit to UNC-W. Yet everyone involved senses a bit of difference and distinction in this Homecoming and the beloved event in past years.

The major and most important difference this year is the parade. For the first time in the long history of the Homecoming celebration, the parade will be held in beautiful downtown Wilmington. For sure; it will not have the color and excitement of the Macy's Christmas Parade, but with enough motivation and excitement on our own part, no one will know the difference. Dignitaries and celebrities from all across the state are making plans to attend, and it is requested that you be one of those.

As cliched as it may be the theme for this year's Homecoming is "Bicentennial '76." But, when you look at it from the standpoint that none of us will be around to see the U.S. age another 200 years, this seems as appropriate time as any for UNC-W to make an attempt at a celebration. All floats, banners, etc., should built around this theme and, incidentally, prizes will be awarded for the best float, banner, spirit, etc. Who do I have to be to win? Any breathing individual or individuals with enough initiative to do so.

This year, more than any other, Homecoming Week offers something for everyone, and I mean everyone. So, for those motivated individuals who want to start marking the calendar now, here's a schedule of how Homecoming shapes up thus far. This is subject to several additions that are "up-in-the-air" or in the planning stages at this moment. Information on advance ticket sales, prizes, meetings, etc. will appear in future SEAHAWKS.

People, Homecoming will not be what those few "talented" individuals do to plan and start the wheel in motion. It will be no better than what you want it to be. More later.....

Fledgling

Now is your absolute last chance to buy a yearbook. 1976 Fledgling subscriptions will be taken on January 19-23. The price is $5.00 for each student taking 6 or more hours (since they're paying students fees) and $8.00 for everyone else.

You can purchase a subscription any afternoon upstairs in the pub (Student Services Building.)

No additional books will be ordered.

EARTHQUAKE

BY DARLENE PEARSALL

This is the first (and possibly the last) Seahawk for this semester. Recent reports from a psychic and various scientists reveal that an earthquake is likely to occur in the Wilmington area in the very near future. Many people are skeptical even though all of the psychic's past predictions have come true. She publicly announced the earthquake about a week ago. It would be awfully embarrassing if she were wrong.

Support her in her valiant efforts to save the Wilmington community. On January 17, if you don't feel the earth move, shake your furniture around for a while and scream a lot. Break all your windows, dig a deep ditch around your house or apartment, and then go outside and jump on your roof until the entire building caves into the ditch. Simulate a tidal wave from Wrightsville Beach with your garden hose; and yell, "boom" loudly so that your neighbors will think the nearby nuclear plant has exploded.

That should just about do it. So relax and have fun.

I'll probably be hearing about it on the news because I don't know about you, but this is one reporter that's going to be out of town for the weekend.

"the way we were"

1976, What will it have in store for us at UNC-W? What issues will encompass our fair school? 1975 held pleasant as well as unpleasant memories for all of us.

Out of state students witnessed an increase in tuition and in state students almost felt the same crunch.

The publications as a whole also felt a dollar crunch. The Fledgling, after running out of yearbooks, was forced by the high rise in printing cost to start charging a $5.00 subscription rate for the first time in the school's history, but now at least one is assured that there will not be a shortage of this commodity.

The Atlantis, the literary magazine, almost sunk beneath the sea but the UNC-W Senate threw out a life saver as the Atlantis was sinking for the third time and appropriated more greenbacks to prevent its disappearance.

The radio station, WCNU, also got new appropriations last semester to alleviate past as well as present problems and although the student body was unable to tune in to the "soft explosion of Wilmington", we are assured that the D.J.'s will be ready for 1976.

The Seahawk has had its problems along with its successes in '76. A new typesetting machine replaced the outmoded trouble makers after the Senate appropriated the much needed money. New newstands adorned each building for availability of the newspaper. New machines break down as easy as old ones. Money has been short and advertising managers too. Seahawks have been fat and meaty and so have the bills. The Potpourri page proved new and adventuresome and Dear Darlene's poison pen brought laughter to the hearts of our students and faculty.

President Hobbs and the UNCW Senate have been fighting a hard and hopefully not a losing battle for stoplights at the Reigel Road entrance and have received many promises, but

Hobbs Speaks

Welcome back! I'm looking forward to this Spring semester which I hope will benefit each of you socially and academically. Keep in mind that the events for our 1976 Homecoming will take place during the second full week in February. Many events are being planned in which all students will be invited to participate. Each class will be assigned a specific role in the events for that week. We will be releasing more information about the homecoming in the days to come. Let's plan to get out and support our special Bicentennial Homecoming. Also, sometime in March, student elections will be held. Now is the time to think about candidates for each office.

Once again the Business Club is sponsoring the Used Book Sale to help the students fight the high price of buying new books. I want to express my thanks to the Business Club and I hope their efforts will prove worthwhile for the student body.

Best wishes for a successful semester!

LETTERS

The enthusiastic cheers of the third floor frat club have been well appreciated during the home basketball games so far this year. It is very seldom that a small school is fortunate enough to have such loyal students to cheer their home team on to victories. The students of this school appreciate this loyalty.

The students of this school do not appreciate certain faculty members tearing down and taking away the sign that has become a trademark of this cheering section. Whether the sign was tasteful or not is a matter of opinion. The best way to dampen school spirit is for faculty members to take rash action as they did at Saturday night's basketball game. If people complained about this sign, then the appropriate action would have been to ask the third floor cheering section to remove the sign - not tear it down yourself. Duncan Dawkins where are those life saving devices? May 75's efforts bring 76's answers.

Parking space blues was sung on the campus of UNCW in '75 and in '76, we are hearing the same old tune in new words--'the green grass rush.'

In sports as well as many other campus oriented projects, the main concern was apathy. The Spirit Club got off the ground with a 50's dance which even the Fonzy would say was 'cool'. The newly formed organization will provide an atmosphere of spirit for our UNCW teams, both male and female. The girl's volleyball team had a winning season but a waning crowd. The soccer team finished first in the district and ranked number 10 in the south; but home games brought damp seats to spirited supporters.

The Bookstore was hampered with bad checks last semester; and they suggest one uses less rubber cement to prevent the big bounce.

Religion, too, became a daring issue on campus this semester as the Philosophy and Religion department protested the article, 'Give Me Your Hand' which appeared on the black and white pages of the Seahawk. They felt that it was a cheapening of Christianity. The submitter stated that he meant no malice.

Yes, folks, the Coffeehouse is a reality with food and entertainment; and '76 promises to fill you with both.

Believe it or not, this campus has its first Mr. UNCW in the person of James 'Boomer' Wishon. Congrats to you and may your reign be full of bright sunny days.

Thanks for your support in '75 and your continued support in '76 as the Seahawk will try to fill you in on all the campus scoops. We hope the new year will bring brighter todays and tomorrows to each of our UNCW family.

Dear Editor,

I am calling for a revamping of the library's book-lending policy as it pertains to faculty members. It has been explained to me that a faculty member may renew a book for as many times as he or she wishes. If he wishes to keep the book without renewing it, he is under no threat of penalty or fine. In fact, his or her name may not be disclosed to the person who desires the book, lest this professor be disturbed in any way. Several perfunctory calls are made to the delinquent book-borrower by a member of the library staff. The staff admits that there is nothing that they can do to reclaim the book other than to gently remind the faculty member of his obligation by phone.

Students must not only pay fines for overdue books, but their grades and transcripts are held in abeyance until their borrowed books are accounted for. Why not instate a form of retribution for those faculty members who can't quite seem to realize their social obligations as members of a university? For example, would not many overdue books be pouring into the library if paychecks were withheld at the end of each semester until the professors' borrowed books had been returned?

I am now waiting for a faculty member to turn in several books that have been due since June 2, 1975. This is not the first time that I have encountered this problem. I feel that it is time to update this policy in accordance with the standards of a true university. With the administration's acknowledgement that many students are as interested in acquiring book-knowledge as are faculty members, a new faculty book-lending policy might be one means by which a more egalitarian concept of education could be put to practice.

There's Little New About Our Old Friend Wallace

Again this year, Governor George Wallace of Alabama is asking American voters to change his address from Montgomery, Alabama, to Washington, D.C., proclaiming that he's the one can set the country back on a road to recovery from the mistakes of our past. MR. Wallace likes to think that one of those biggest mistakes is that we have failed to elect him our president. Not so, in my opinion, for bypassing Wallace is one of the things we surely did right.

Since 1964 Wallace has been around as a sort of protest candidate. In that year, he emerged in a late effort to dethrone Lyndon Johnson. In 1968 he appeared as a third party alternative to the candidates of the two major parties, saying that most Americans were disenchanted with the recent drifts of those two parties.

1972 saw Wallace again surface as a challenge in the primaries, and he likes for us to think that he would have been the Democratic nominee had it not been for the whipping bullet of a madman's gun. Though Wallace did win some of the major primaries and had a sizeable share of delegates at that time, it is indeed inconceivable that he could, under any circumstances, have captured the Democratic nomination from the party regulars.

Now in 1976, Wallace has come forth telling of the "new" Wallace who believes he is just the remedy for all of our problems. He has said that he wants to work within the Democratic Party, but he has not ruled out a possible third party fling if he thinks the major parties are not offering what the American people want.

Throughout these three unsuccessful bids, and now his fourth that will certainly end the same, there has been one unifying characteristic: Wallace has served as the voice of protest. In each campaign, he has concentrated on those issues which set fire within the hearts of voters. He has mastered the art of manipulating the emotions of people, bringing out all their inner wants and fears in public defiance of the "system."

This quality in Wallace—that of brazen demagoguery—is what makes him more an actor than a statesman.

It might be argued that Wallace's third attempt in 1972 established him as a viable candidate within his party, by virtue of his wins in primary elections of that year. But a close examination below the surface of these results would indicate that these wins meant little of nothing at all.

First, it must be understood that Wallace had an easily available issue to ride in the '72 primaries: that of school busing. The impact of forced busing was at a climax in states such as Michigan, Florida, and Maryland, where Wallace won a plurality of those states' delegates to the national convention.

Especially in Michigan, busing was the major issue. There had been spots of protest in that state for several months. Another factor in the Michigan vote was the allowing of Republican voters to cross over during the primary and vote for Democratic candidates. Many anti-busing sympathizers crossed and voted for Wallace as a means of voicing their protests.

Also an influence in the voting in Michigan and Maryland was the attempt on Wallace's life that occurred while he was campaigning in Maryland. This created a fairly large sympathy vote for the candidate who almost lost his life seeking their votes. Soon after his Maryland and Michigan victories, Wallace told us that this proved he was a national candidate, not a regional one. But his confinement in a hospital prevented him from carrying on the vigorous campaign he had. He fell behind in delegate strength and by convention time was not a serious threat at all.

Now this year the "new" Wallace has come again, like a perennial termite out of the woodwork that eats at the establishment of the Democratic Party. Though many Democrats have warmed to the idea of sharing ground within the party with Wallace, such as Ted Kennedy who made a pilgrimage to the Governor's state this past year, most party members look at him with distaste and distrust.

The justification of these unpleasant feelings can be seen, however. It was Wallace in 1968 who denied the Democratic nominee, Hubert Humphrey, the White House. The election, which Humphrey lost by a fraction, was thrown to Richard Nixon because of the votes drained by Wallace in the traditionally Democratic South. Wallace knew full well he had no chance of winning on a third party ticket, but his stubborn nature allowed him to go ahead with the race, thinking he was showing the "big boys" that he would not blow away with the wind.

There has been little indication of the great change that Wallace insists has occurred. His speeches are still filled with catchy phrases aimed at his now famous "average citizen." He is constantly reminding us of the mess our country is in and promising that he can change all that.

He has countered attacks on his health by pointing out the success of wheelchair-bound Franklin Roosevelt. He has challenged those who say that he is not well versed on foreign affairs by traveling to Europe to meet with Western leaders. All of this, he has done in the name of politics.

Wallace's entire public career has been more politics than accomplishment. Granted he has unified the state of Alabama and done an adequate job of governing that state. But always in the back of his mind is the thrill he receives from a presidential campaign. He does well at pointing out the problems of our country; he does nothing to propose workable solutions.

Wallace with his campaigning is like a child with his favorite toy. He'll never be president. If it was at all possible that he could win his lifelong game, he would be like the child who loses his toy, and becomes bored at the prospect of no more games.

Veteran

Affairs

Tips

The Office of Veteran Affairs at UNC-W would like to welcome all returning and new students to our campus. We wish you much success in your academic as well as social endeavors. We exist to provide educational assistance, peer and professional counseling, remedial services, tutorial services, and to coordinate existing campus services to best serve the needs of the veteran students.

We would like to invite all veterans and dependents receiving VA educational assistance to join the Veterans Association here on campus. The date and time of their meetings will be placed on various bulletin boards around campus.

Those veterans who received tuition deferments through the OVA are requested to please bring a copy of their receipt of payment by the OVA on the date payment is due. The OVA would like to stress the fact that any change in ones credit hour load must be reported to the OVA. Failure to do so may result in an overpayment by the VA and possible complications in receiving your VA educational benefits.

The Tutorial Assistance offered by the VA has been increased to a maximum of $60 per month. If you are having difficulty in any subject area, please utilize this service. It is not counted against your basic entitlement. To utilize Tutorial Assistance one must (1) acquire a statement from OVA to your instructor stating you need for tutorial assistance. (2) come by the OVA for the necessary forms and a listing of persons qualified to tutor in various subject areas. (3) if you have an individual in mind to tutor you who is not on the OVA listing, make sure he is certified to be a tutor by the department chairman in that subject area.

Please Note

(1) All veterans and dependents certified by the OVA must fill out a class schedule at the OVA.

(2) All changes in ones credit hour load must be reported to the OVA and the Registrar's Office.

(3) Those of you that have not completed the requirements for a degree and your original entitlement of 36 months has expired may be eligible for a 9 month extension. Those of you that have completed the requirements for a degree, regardless of application for graduation, are no longer eligible for VA Educational Assistance under your present program of training.

(4) Please check the Veterans Bulletin Board at least once a week for important information. It is located on the first floor of the Alderman Building next to the Chancellor's office.

The Office of Veteran Affairs is located in the Alderman Building, Room 109. Please feel free to come by during the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 12:00 p.m. and 1:00 p.m. and 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. For the convenience of night students the OVA will remain open from 5:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. on the second and fourth Wednesday of each month beginning January 28, 1976.

Girls Club

"Where do you work?"
 "Girls Club."
 "Oh, yeah, Brownies, troop leaders..."
 "Wait, wait. No, Girls Club."
 "What's that?"
 "Well, it's a club for all girls between the ages of 6 and 18 years old to come to after school and on Saturdays. It's a place for them to let off steam, be themselves, and participate in a wide variety of activities such as batik, physical fitness program, cooking, crafts, sewing, sports, drama, tap dancing and many other exciting things they plan for themselves."
 "Oh, now I see, you're like the 'Y what-cha-ma-call-it.' Not the men's one but the women's one."
 "No, not actually. We do offer a number of programs but most are not that formal. For one thing a girl pays only $3 a year for membership which covers the cost of most of our classes. See, we are more like a club. Some girls come just to learn skills, but most come to have a place where they can be with friends. Many of their parents work and the Girls Club offers a relaxed atmosphere with adults they can talk with, argue with or play with. But most importantly with people who know they are there and care."

"Do you need volunteers?"
 "I thought you would never ask. We need volunteers to read stories with kids, teach crafts and songs, go to the gym or to communicate with one child. We had college volunteers last semester who produced plays, taught bowling and crafts, went on retreats—they were fantastic."

"We need people with ideas. People who can see their pay in something besides dollars and cents, who want to give..."

"We are a United Way Agency. Thanks to you it works for all of us."

Crisis Line/Open House

The New Hanover Drug Abuse Committee will sponsor a new training class for volunteers who would like to work with Crisis Line/Open House beginning on Monday, January 19, 1976 at 7:30 p.m. in the library at St. James Church. The location is Third and Dock Streets and the sessions will be conducted once a week for six weeks. This training will focus on the development of listening skills and the use of community resources for telephone counselors.

To assist with our agency's recent reorganization we will also be conducting a training class for phone counselors who are presently working with Crisis Line and who desire training in first aid, legal problems, interviewing skills, and specific medical and/or drug problems to qualify them for volunteers as walk-in counselors in the crisis intervention component of our program. This training will begin on Thursday, January 22 and 7:30 p.m. in St. James Church library at Third and Dock Streets.

These training classes will be the first after our program's efforts to continue to change with the community's needs.

The combination of Open House/Crisis Line increases our capabilities to cope with the myriad of problems that surface in our facility, and with professional back up services from agencies such as the Mental Health Center, The Health Department, and other community professionals we hope to raise the standard of these services.

We would welcome volunteers of all ages and all walks of life and the only criteria for participation is that a volunteer successfully complete all sessions of training. Fee-free to contact us at 610 Market Street or phone us at 343-0145 for additional information. Our program depends on people who take time to care about the others around them. More information is available in the display case in the lobby of the Student Union, and from our table in the lobby of Hoggard.

"Lazy" or "Spoiled"?

The Lower Cape Fear Association for Children with Learning Disabilities is an organization of interested parents, teachers and persons in allied professions who want to see that all children have the opportunity to reach their potential, and most especially those children with a Learning Disability.

Children with Learning Disabilities are often the child with the "hidden handicaps". The symptoms may be so slight they are simply regarded as "lazy" or "spoiled." These children are usually failing in reading, spelling, writing or arithmetic, but the teacher insists he could do the work "if he'd only try."

The symptoms may be mild. The child may be hyperactive or lethargic; aggressive or withdrawn, a superb athlete or completely uncoordinated. However, each teacher will agree that the child is "different." The attention span may be short, certain memory disorders may be present and frequently they will have difficulty in understanding abstract concepts. Seemingly they often lack a basic understanding of their world—such as body image, form and spatial relationships. Experts agree that despite the symptoms, the intelligence is there.

Only in recent years has this problem come to light and these children identified under a myriad of terms, names and descriptions. But no matter what they are called, many will inevitably fail in school and become "dropouts." The most conservative estimates number such young people as 2 to 3 percent of the school population; others run as high as 15 to 20 percent.

ACLD is an entirely volunteer organization. Therefore, you can be a vital force in helping us. No talent is too small to be of worth. We need all kinds of help... office workers, envelope stuffers, organizers, etc. At UNC-W, the following ACLD members will serve as a resource for students who wish to tutor children with learning problems. Call Eleanor Wright (ext. 307), Sherred Weidner (791-2910), Justene Lerch (799-3424) or Lucille Shaffer (799-4577).

Lower Cape Fear Juvenile Services Center

The Lower Cape Fear Juvenile Services Center is a facility for the detention of youths brought to the attention of Juvenile Court and it performs diagnostic evaluations of these young people. These evaluations include a battery of testing devices to measure intelligence, school achievement, personality problems, family relationships, and vocational aptitudes. Also included in each evaluation is a personal interview with both child and parents. After each child is evaluated recommendations are made to Juvenile Court to facilitate informed decision-making on the part of the Judge regarding that child.

Part of the success of the Center is due to the involvement of volunteers who are willing to give of themselves and their time to help youth who are in trouble, or may soon be involved in the Juvenile justice system due to their own questionable conduct. It takes a minimum of 15 hours from start to finish to evaluate each child. Under the guidance of the Center staff, volunteers are used to help in these evaluations and this enables the staff to efficiently handle the increasing volume of cases being sent to the Center.

I have been doing volunteer work at the Center since October, and find it educational, interesting, rewarding and enjoyable. I have been trained to administer all the various tests and evaluate them. I also have been given the opportunity to participate in interviewing social histories and have had the experience of observing the Evaluation Committee discuss the individual cases and form their recommendations. There have also been many opportunities to interact with the youth on a personal level. It has been a valuable experience to see how an agency works toward a goal of service for the community and the individual. All of this has been a terrific experience which has greatly influenced me and given me a sense of accomplishment. My education has been spread over a number of years and has been centered in the academic classroom. Through volunteer work I have been able to apply some of the theory I have learned and see how flexible one must be when applying it to an actual situation.

Each semester there is an increasing need for volunteers at the Juvenile Services Center. We need people who want to become involved with the testing, social history compilations and evaluations. There is a tremendous need for UNC-W students to just talk with the residential youths and offer their friendship. We are looking for volunteers to initiate and supervise recreational activities, both indoors and outdoors, and people with craft, vocational, and musical talents, etc. to teach and aid our youth. Also needed are volunteers to serve as short term tutors in educational subjects. The scope of this program is limited only by the volunteers themselves.

Do you think this program sounds interesting and would you like to know more? If so, let's talk and see what we can do for each other. I am willing to talk any time and can arrange for you to visit the Center. If you are interested, call me at 791-6265 or call Barbara Richardson, Social Worker, 675-0594. We, and the troubled youth of our community, need your help.

The National Foundation-March of Dimes

With every justification, America celebrates 200 years of unprecendented success. Concern for individual rights. The National Foundation-March of Dimes considers the most important of these is the right to be born healthy. Our goals, then, are to discover, then overcome the causes of birth defects which effect more than 200,000 American children every year—that's 700 a day . . . or one every two minutes.

What is a birth defect? A birth defect is a disturbance of body structure, function or chemistry which is present at birth. It may either be inherited or the result of some occurrence during pregnancy. Many birth defects do now show up until late in infancy, childhood, young adulthood or even middle age.

Birth defects can be prevented. Research has already developed two major preventive vaccines that virtually eliminate the ravages once caused by rubella and RH disease.

The March of Dimes supports research directed at hereditary and environmental factors and their effects on the developing embryo. They are finding out how to diagnose birth defects earlier and how to treat them more effectively. March of Dimes funds also support The Salk Institute in San Diego, where world renowned scientists work to discover more about the basic causes of birth defects. In addition to their research programs, the March of Dimes supports Genetic Counseling programs, prenatal care programs in cooperation with medical and other health authorities, and other service groups in many communities; and they are also making it possible for more hospitals to have the necessary personnel and equipment for providing intensive care nurseries for babies with birth defects.

What can you do? Your local county chapter of the March of Dimes has just merged with four other counties (Pender, Brunswick, Columbus, and Bladen) to form the Southeastern N.C. Chapter. With a local office here in Wilmington, we are hoping that this new chapter will be the center of community information and action, serving to mobilize and augment local resources, carrying out public health education projects, working with other agencies and service organizations and fund raising for research and medical service programs.

From its beginning in 1938,

The March of Dimes has depended upon an alliance of medical science and the "junior" who keeps the community aware of how important partnership is between health, professional and private citizens. We need your help and support. If you would like more information about the March of Dimes or would like to help with public health education programs, fund raising or office work, please contact Stacie Banks, Executive Director at 763-5667 or write P.O. Box 3247, Wilmington, N.C. 28401.

Remember, Birth Defects are Forever, unless your help.

Volunteer! It's Worth it

Volunteering. There must be at least a thousand good reasons for it, for none of which I can claim credit. Volunteering for me is a very personal thing. For the time and energy I expend, I receive an abundance of reward. I feel warmth, love, understanding, and I hear the laughter of children doing things they have never been able to do before. There's a glow of confidence in a person's eye when he feels that he is progressing and bettering himself. I like the feeling I get when I see so many people working toward a better life for themselves and others. I think I could write an impressive list of reasons for volunteering in the swim program, but only two are of any great importance. First, the children, who so deeply need and sincerely appreciate my help and secondly, their love and admiration with which I am abundantly paid.

Eddie Gibson

They are Human Beings

During the Fall semester, I volunteered at the YMCA to help with the Adapted Swim Program as a requirement for one of my courses: The Psychology of Exceptional Children. At first I was an observer, but after two weeks began assisting the participants in swimming exercises.

This program was very helpful in removing my negative attitude about the physically and mentally handicapped. I've always regarded people who were deformed in any way as abnormal; they were people not to be touched or cared for but to be looked at. This isn't the case! They are human beings, just like you or I, with the same needs as we have. They want to be loved and understood also.

Working at the YMCA has certainly opened my eyes and mind and broadened my horizon of understanding and acceptance. Many times books make things seem so terrible, just showing the negative side, which is offensive.

This outside project has been very helpful in my appreciation and observation of the exceptional child.

It would be great if we could get more people involved with this program so a one-to-one relationship between participants could be reached.

It means so much to the children and the adults for people to take time out for them. Also, this could be a very meaningful time for you. My personal experience created a deep concern so that I will stay involved during the next semester, and hope to continue as long and whenever the opportunity exists.

"MEMORIES MAY BE B

WHAT'S TOO PAINFUL TO REMEMBER ,

By Ray Warren

The party is over. Even the hangover of the day after is but a memory. The new year is here. It will be a special time. America, the greatest country in the world is celebrating two hundred years of independence. Already classes have resumed and UNC-W students have begun to look to the future. Before totally losing ourselves in books, beer busts, basketball, and exams, however, let's take a moment to look back on the year just completed. In many ways "it was a very good year."

CONTROVERSY

Perhaps disharmony and contention are natural human conditions. Like every year, 1975 had its share of controversies. The first such storm broke in April with a proposal before the North Carolina legislature for an increase in tuition costs. Fortunately, the cries of anguish which issued from each of the campuses of the university system reached the legislators in time. The opposition was especially vigorous at UNC-W, as it was feared that the increase would halt the school's rapid growth. Due to the protest of this and other campuses, in-state students were spared, but out-of-state students were forced to ante up $100 more a year before returning for the fall term.

Another major issue developed in September. Returning students were shocked to discover that, despite the payment of their activity fees, there just were not enough annuals to go around. Apparently the student senate had failed to allot enough funds to ensure each student a yearbook. Angry students charged the senate with negligence and shortsightedness. Senators, for their part cited the squeeze on S.G.A. funds and the Fledgling's previous financial mismanagement. For a time the two sides stood in stalemate. The Fledgling insisting that another shortage was inevitable and the senate asserting its inability, or unwillingness, to allocate additional funds. Happily, a compromise arrangement allowed the yearbook to charge a $5.00 subscription, both to increase funds and to determine the number of annuals to be required. The new arrangement didn't please everyone, but it did gain Senate approval. The yearbook staff is looking for a boost to its subscription drive this semester.

Parking and traffic control were big issues in '75. Students who were lucky enough to survive the dangerous Regal road and main entrances were confronted by an apparent lack of parking space. Pleas from the student senate achieved nothing but promises from state government. UNC-W will get its traffic light - someday...perhaps after the next state election. The parking problem resulted from distribution not quantity. There were always parking spaces somewhere. Students with classes in Marine Science, however, weren't too happy about parking in "South 40" and hiking cross country to class. Fortunately, the situation has eased, somewhat.

PEOPLE

Cher, Jackie Onassis and Robert Redford...? What do they all have in common? Celebrity status is their trademark. The popularity of magazines like People Weekly testifies to the human desire to know everything possible about famous men and women. UNC-W is blessed with it's own celebrities. None of them have appeared in People yet, but all are up and coming.

In February the Seahawk announced the arrival of one of the year's brightest stars, Reverend Vivan Martindale. Reverend Martindale quickly achieved a strong rapport with the student body. Perhaps his greatest achievement was his ability to relate to people of various religious values.

During March, a UNC-W student, Charles Smith, brought fame to the college when he was re-elected to lead the Student's Nurses' Association of North Carolina. The first male elected to the post, he was also one of the few officers ever offered a second full term.

April brought to the limelight the newly elected S.G.A. officers. Carol Moore, who was elected vice president, has garnered much praise for her handling of student senate meetings. Sharon Davis was installed as secretary. Steve Hobbs, the new president has frequently appeared in the pages of the Seahawk in connection with his many activities. He frequently "speaks out" to express his views to the student body.

The fall semester began with new editors for the UNC-W publications. No sooner had they assumed their duties, however, than several serious problems placed them on the firing line. Robert Maxey, editor of the Seahawk, faced severe criticism from students dissatisfied with paper's coverage of the yearbook difficulties. Darlene Pearsall was faced with a lack of cash which threatened to insure another shortage of yearbooks. After much discussion, the subscription plan put Fledgling on solid financial footing again. Sam Barbee, editor of the Atlantis, faced a similar financial woes. The Atlantis was saved by a senate allocation, however, and was highly praised for its literary excellence.

Other personalities of note included Dr. Moseley, who made an unprecedented trip to the Soviet Union, and Dr. Shinn, who was instrumental in organizing the Schweitzer Awards.

ARTS, CLUTURE* AND ENTERTAINMENT

The Fine Arts and Concert Committees of the S.G.A. presented various activities and shows during the past year.

The movies were well attended and well received. There had been some fears that Last Tango in Paris would cause a bit of controversy. The brief exile of "flesh" magazines from the bookstore had left censorship in a bad light, however, and the show went on without any problem.

The concert committee ran into some problems. The Marshal Tucker Concert (which everyone agreed to be a wonderful show) was, unfortunately, quite disorderly. Due to the serious damage that ensued the concert program was threatened with extinction. After some restrictions were adopted to prevent similar recurrences, smaller concerts were allowed. Paul Winter Consort played to a diminished, but enthusiastic audience during the fall semester.

Paul Winter Consort

Other entertainment features to remember are Howard Warren's "Pantomime Extravaganza", the Archer's - a Christian rock group who played to an enthusiastic following, and the disco show given by WCNU in the Pub.

A new dimension to entertainment was added with the opening of the coffeehouse. Excellent touring talent as well as local groups were featured. The Mr. UNC-W pageant became the first of its kind in the area. Hopefully, it will be the start of a long tradition.

HAPPENINGS

What is a happening? A happening is something out of the ordinary. Something apart from the day to day routine.

Super Sunday sponsored by the S.U.P.B. was a super day of fun and games. Whacky Wednesday: likewise. The 50's dance, held by the Spirit Club, was the social event of the season.

The year began with a bang at the Homecoming celebration. Despite the fact that the Seahawks were not victorious, the celebrations were unequalled in magnificence. The parade was highlighted by a number of floats, including the winning entry, sponsored by T.K.E. Two dances were also featured.

An emotional event occurred in April with the dedication of the dormitory as 'Galloway Hall, Galloway was a freshman here before he died in a tragic accident.

November featured the biggest "happening" ever on the UNC-W campus. Three unique and wonderful people were honored for their service to mankind. The first Schweitzer International Prizes, honoring the famous doctor, brought people from around the world to Wilmington. Not only did they provide an opportunity for students to speak with, and learn from the recipients, but the ceremonies were a great boost the prestige of the school.

SENATE CONSIDERS FLEDGLING WOES.

BEAUTIFUL, AND YET,

WE SIMPLY CHOOSE TO FORGET...."

One thing for certain, barring another tuition increase by the legislature, UNC-W should continue to grow in both size and influence. The organization of a Spirit club points to a growth in school pride. Come to think of it, we've got a pretty good future. Now, if we can just get through this earthquake.....

Other people and events that made the news

Another milestone was reached with the opening of the coffeehouse. Not only does the "Good Wood Tavern" offer an outlet for local talent, but it also provides a nice place to meet friends and spend an evening. The project was brought to fruition by a lot of long hard work by the Coffeehouse Committee.

Other events to liven up life on campus included the well-remembered Halloween party in the dorm, Dr. Cleo Dawson, who scandalized women's libbers, and, of course, the Mr. UNC-W pageant.

TRENDS

Psychics seem to be a leading feature in the news, of late. As of yet, however, none has attempted to predict what the future holds in store for the Seahawk campus. We can only look at the past year at the involvement and dedication of so many people and hope for a bright tomorrow.

GUITARISTS

The Entertainment Committee for the Good Wood Tavern invites you to enjoy two distinctive evenings of song, provided by two imported Wilmingtonians. Although each plays a guitar, their styles are completely different, as are the music eras from which they take their material.

Dakota Joe Diamond will be featured Friday night, January 16. Diamond was born during a snowstorm on a six hundred and seventy acre cattle and rodeo stock ranch in North Dakota. He lived there until he was fifteen, then moved to Cambridge, Massachusetts to see "the rest of the world." It was there that he became involved in folk music, and realized the traditions and history involved in the songs he used to sing every day on the ranch. Diamond played his first gigs at Cambridge's Club 47, and learned much from the other musicians there. Then he hit the road, playing in such places as Billy's (San Francisco), the Hungry i (Chicago), Crazy Mama's (Arkansas) and the Big Fleet (Key West). "They weren't all famous and they weren't all good, but that's the way to learn music," observed Diamond. He is now living in Wilmington, singing and writing.

Saturday night's entertainment will be provided by Ed Danilowicz, a performer who pleased Tavern customers with his shows here in November. However, Danilowicz is now into jazz, so this performance promises to be quite a contrast to his last one. Presently a student, Danilowicz employs a unique playing style, best described as "left-handed, backwards, and upside down," that must be seen to be believed.

Shows both evenings will begin at 9 and 10. Bring a friend and enjoy the food, atmosphere, and live entertainment of the Good Wood Tavern.

Performer Impressed With College Audience

As I watched this bearded person set up two microphones on stage, one for himself and one for a three foot avocado plant named "Flo", I thought this guy must have a good wit, or be a tacky ventriloquist act.

Well, he was not a ventriloquist, nor was he tacky. He was just one of the more witty individuals I have encountered.

Tom Parks, and that is his real life name, began just being funny when he was fifteen. He officially began his career at the age of twenty-three, and I might add that it has been a successful career, also.

Although he has not yet received international fame, he stays busy working conventions, nightclubs, and colleges in the southern United States. Tom and his agent are presently making headway with a three minute spot on NBC's Saturday Night Live.

Tom has been greatly influenced by such comedians as George Carlin, Gabriel Kaplan and Steve Martin, but is still one performer who maintains his own style.

"I'm beginning to write my material, not only relying on ad libs and instinct. But the most important thing is that I have fun," Tom said. Truly, few Americans can say that they enjoy their occupation.

Tom is not just doing silly humor. He can also be quite satirical when he comes to subjects that just don't quite jive.

"Madison Avenue packages what the consumers are to believe."

"Image counts; reality doesn't!"

This Lenny Bruce type humor is an area that Tom is very interested in, but can not always do because, "Some Audiences aren't receptive to it: either they don't understand it or they don't appreciate it."

Tom appeared at UNC-W's own Good Wood Tavern on December 5 and 6, and if you missed him, you truly did yourself an injustice. Besides, Flo was magnificent—she didn't blow a line.

A compliment we can all be proud of is that Tom liked the UNC-W audiences as much as any he had ever played. Along with Tim Bays and Deborah McColl, other December Tavern performers, Tom was impressed with our students' awareness and appreciation for the more subtle material. And this is no public relations from the man; he disdains pretense. If he says so, it's the truth.

Deborah, Tim, and Tom are even interested in a return performance here—all three on one stage. This would be an occasion!

So, . . . drop by Linda Moore's office in the Pub or inform any of the Tavern personnel that you would like to see them all return.

Who knows? Maybe we'll see results, and get entertainment second to none. Sam Barbee

CLUB TID BITS

Ju-Jitsu Club

We are now accepting new members. All male and female persons are welcome. There will be a beginners club. The first meeting is Thursday, January 15 at 4:00 in the front of the gym.

Ju-Jitsu is the art of persuasion. The Japanese people believed if a person became upset or angry enough for violence he was insane. It is the duty as a friend to contain him until he has regained his senses. Ju-Jitsu is strictly an art of self-defense.

Fledgling

The first yearbook staff meeting of this semester will be Thursday, January 16, at 6:00 p.m. It is essential that all staff members attend. Anyone interested in joining the staff is extremely welcome.

Karate Club

The American Hapkido Karate Club will begin practice Monday, January 12 at 6:00 p.m. in the upstairs portion of the gym. Classes are conducted every Monday and Wednesday nights from 6:00 to 8:00 p.m. The class will encompass various aspects of the martial arts including kata, kumite or sparring, self defense, ju-jitsu, and physical conditioning. The content of the class has been designed for both men and women. A special beginner's class has been organized this semester. New members will be accepted during the first four meetings only. If you are interested, but not sure that karate is for you, stop by and watch our class. Visitors are welcome to observe. For more information, Contact Bob Evans or Danny Henderson.

The Motoburyu Karate Club offers classes to all interested students presently enrolled at UNC-W. Motoburyu is an Okinawan form of karate and our club is the oldest martial arts society on campus. Classes will begin January 14 and new members will be accepted til January 28. Previous members are requested to attend. Both men and women welcome and invited on M-W-F at 4:00 - 5:30 upstairs in the gym.

Pi Kapps

After a short but festive Christmas Holiday, the Pi Kapps started off the 76 year with a big New Year's Eve blast! Spirit is up, and everyone is looking forward to a big Spring Rush. All the excitement starts the 14th with a traditional Pi Kappa Phi Wednesday night Hump Party. Next on the calendar is UNC-W night at the Pi Kappa Phi House with free beer for all UNC-W students.

This will take place Saturday night, January 17, come stag or drag. Ask any Brother or Little Sister on campus for directions on how to get to the Fraternity House, or call 763-6632.

Well, as the old saying goes, the number one man on campus comes from the number one Fraternity on campus. We would like to congratulate Brother Jim Wishon for taking first place in the Mr. UNC-W Pageant.

In closing, the Brothers of Pi Kappa Phi would like to cordially invite all UNC-W students to come out to the house and help us get this spring semester off right.

"... just amazed"

An award-winning photo, taken by Forrest W. Frazier, 7377 Gallia Pike, will be on display at the Kodak Photo Gallery in New York City, January 13 through March 13, as part of a major presentation of finalists in the 1975 Kodak International Newspaper Snapshot Awards (KINSA).

Frazier, a senior at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, is represented by a silhouette of a motorcyclist at a local hill climb. The color photo was a winner in the Huntington Herald-Dispatch summer snapshot contest, and as such was submitted to the international competition where it competed for $55,000 in cash and travel prizes. KINSA, sponsored annually by Eastman Kodak Company, last year drew more than 300,000 entries.

What prompted Frazier to take the picture?

"I had never been to a motorcycle hill climb before and I was just amazed," says Frazier, who has been taking pictures for two years. "I just happened to have my camera with me and couldn't resist trying to get a picture."

Frazier's picture will be featured at the Kodak Photo Gallery, 1133 Avenue of the Americas (at 43rd Street), along with the black-and-white and color photography of photo amateurs from throughout the United States, Canada and Mexico. The Gallery is open to the public from noon to 5 p.m. Monday and from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday and Saturday.

Dear Darlene,

Do you think that Vitamin 'E' gives you an enjoyable sex life?

Pre-Med Student

Dear Pre,

No. I think men are a lot more fun.

Dear Darlene,

You're constantly responding to letters from girls complaining that they have small bustlines. You assure them that it's nothing to worry about. What about us guys who have sex organs that are smaller than average?

Little Man

Dear Little,

I feel that the same advice applies to you. Having a small bustline is no cause for concern.

Dear Darlene,

I have extra large nostrils. When I have to stand up before a class and give a speech, I sometimes become so embarrassed that I burst into tears and flee from the room. When I wipe my nose on my shirt-sleeve, it leaves it wringing wet. What should I do?

Don't Sign My Real Name

Dear Snouz,

Wear short-sleeve shirts.

Have you got a problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write Dear Darlene in Care of the Cherry Hill Mental Hospital.

simple yet effective melodies of the music. From start to finish the album is very well done and will amaze you Steeleye Span fans who think they are the only ones doing songs like these.

If it can be said that one cut is better than another on this album I would say the best would be “Oakey Strike Evictions” or “Jolly Beggar” or “Peggy (Overseas With A Soldier).”

This album is by far the best of the three Jack the Lad has made to date.

the future. With the release of their second album, later that year, their being influenced by Steeleye Span becomes more important as does the merging of that folk-rock style and the style of Lindisfarne.

THE OLD STRAIGHT TRACK
Famous Charisma CAS - 1094
(import)

The second album, THE OLD STRAIGHT TRACK, is done very similarly to how a Steeleye Span album is done in that the group has used the old English Folk song as a means for departure from rock. Most songs tell stories or legends and are very well worked out. Importance lies in the harmonies of the vocals and the

This third and latest album is really a very good album in that JACK THE LAD have managed to merge the sound they had with Lindisfarne and the use of the English folk song.

For example, they sing about a modern day subject in “Smokers Coughin’” and then follow this with a traditional Folk song, “Captain Grant.” This is done so well that the time lapse between the two is not important at all.

To sum up: JACK THE LAD is a group for you to look for in the future. They have out three albums, all of which are good in their own way. Out of these albums, there is something everyone will like, even enough to gain your interest in this English Folk-rock sound. Use your head and ears and give it a listen.

In 1973 the English Folk-rock group, LINDISFARNE, split up with part of its members reforming LINDISFARNE and the rest forming the new group, JACK THE LAD.

At the time of their split, Lindisfarne was one of the best groups around of its type and the reformed group continued and improved upon its style. JACK THE LAD, however, began to change things slightly as they went back far into the roots of the English Folk song. This was much inspired by another English group who is doing well in America now, STEELEYE SPAN.

The group contains three members from Lindisfarne: Simon Cowe, Ray Laidlaw and Rod Clements, and Billy Mitchell. In less than a year, the group was ready for the public and released the first album, IT'S JACK THE LAD.

IT'S JACK THE LAD
Elektra 7E - 1014

This album was released in America in 1974. It is a good album yet goes to show that the group was not all together at that time.

Side one is nice but relies too much on the style of Lindisfarne. However, they still manage to add something new to their material as they use a more American type country-rock sound at times. The best cut on this side is called “Fast Lane Driver,” and is so because the song is excellently written and performed. Other good cuts on the side are “Plain Dealing” and “Turning Into Winter.”

Side two opens with “Why Can't I Be Satisfied,” and sounds very much like the earlier group. This cut is exceptionally good in that the group proves that with the freedom they now have, they have more room for improvements.

“Song Without A Band” follows and is in no way similar to what has been on the LP so far. Here, we are led into the type music the group will choose as their own. Featured on the song is Steeleye Span's vocalist, Maddy Prior.

This album is very important to the group's history in that it shows what the group had been doing and would do in coastal resources seminars set

GREENVILLE--A series of seminars on coastal resources will be offered at UNC-Wilmington on Thursday evenings between January 29 and June 24.

The series is sponsored by the East Carolina University Environmental Education Program in cooperation with the UNC-Wilmington Division of Continuing Education and the UNC-Wilmington Marine Science and Environmental Studies Program.

Each of the 10 programs will be held in King Auditorium at 8 p.m., and is designed to be of interest to county commissioners, members of planning boards, civic organizations, teachers and lay persons interested in the state's coastal areas.

According to Stephen Benton of the ECU Environmental Education Program, the seminar series will provide coastal area citizens with an in-depth understanding of reasons behind existing coastal regulations, by thorough presentation of the geologic, natural, cultural and economic history of coastal N.C.

"The series will explore natural forces at work in this coastal area," he said, "and will give consideration to the human history and population of the region and suggest ways to balance human values with the natural coastal systems."

A schedule of programs and speakers in the series follows: Jan. 29: "The North Carolina Coast Through Time: A Geologic History," Dr. Stanley

Riggs, ECU professor of geology;

Feb. 26: "The Role of Vegetation on the Southern Barrier Islands of N.C.," Dr. Paul Hosier, UNC-Wilmington assistant professor of biology;

March 11: "Historical Settlement Patterns and Associated Submerged Cultural Resources: Southeastern N.C.'s Underwater Archaeological Potential," Gordon Watts, underwater archaeologist for the N.C. Division of Archives and History;

March 25: "The N.C. Sport and Commercial Fishing Industry," Dr. Gilbert Bane, Director of Marine Sciences and Environmental Studies, UNC-Wilmington;

April 8: "Coastal Animal Life Styles," Dr. James Parnell, UNC-Wilmington professor of biology;

April 22: "Coastal Processes and Coastal Erosion," Dr. William Cleary, UNC-Wilmington assistant professor of earth sciences;

May 13: "Groundwater and the Coastal Zone," Richard Schriver, groundwater hydrologist for the N.C. Dept. of Natural and Economic Resources;

May 27: "Weather and Storms," Dr. Duncan Randall, chairman of the UNC-Wilmington Dept. of Earth Sciences;

June 10: "Coastal Zone and Population Pressures," Albert Sharp, UNC-Wilmington instructor of sociology;

June 24: "New Hanover County and the Coastal Area

Management Act," John Hooton, chief planner for the N.C. Dept. of Natural and Economic Resources Southeast Field Office.

One Continuing Education Unit will be granted by ECU to persons who attend at least 80 percent of the programs, which can be applied toward certificate renewal by New Hanover County teachers.

Further information about receiving credit is available from Stephen Benton of the ECU Environmental Education Program, Division of Continuing Education, East Carolina University, Greenville, N.C., 27834.

Good Wood Tavern presents Kathy Black & Catesby Jones

The Entertainment Committee for the Good Wood Tavern has announced that Kathy Black and Catesby Jones will be on campus this Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday (January 26, 27, 28), performing two shows in the Tavern each evening. Obtained as a result of UNC-W's membership in the Coffeehouse Circuit, Inc., they are a husband and wife team that Variety Magazine recently described as "a most promising pop duo." Using voice and guitar, they blend their own compositions with innovative versions of others' work. Freedom of expression is the main goal of their performance, which is characterized by good audience rapport and an entertaining, professional format.

Ms. Black and Jones share varied backgrounds as well as interests. Ms. Black lists among her likes movies, books, animals, and places she's never been to before. Jones' interests span from agriculture to theatre to ocean related activities. Perhaps this variety helps account for their musical range. Folk-pop, Blues and funk are all represented.

Remember that the Good Wood Tavern offers a food service which opens at 4 p.m. each day. Stop by tonight for some good food and some especially good entertainment. There will be the usual 50 cents cover charge for this entertainment, which begins at 8:30 and 9:30.

Jessie Rehder Short Story Contest

All UNC-W students are invited to submit stories to the 1976 Jessie Rehder Short Story Contest.

Awards will be given to the winning stories--$100, first prize; $50, second prize; $30, third prize; $10, honorable mentions. The prizes will be financed by the UNC-W Jessie Rehder Memorial Fund.

The awards presentation will be held March 11, at 11:30 a.m., in the SRO Theater.

All entries should be submitted to the English Department by Friday, February 27, 1976. Winning stories will be considered for publication by the Atlantis, the UNC-W literary magazine.

letters to the editor

PRIMARY MISSION

Dear Editor,

Ms. Janet Martin's recent letter to you warrants clarification by the library.

Ms. Martin is correct in that faculty members are under no threat of penalty or fine. However, the faculty has typically been most cooperative in responding to our requests to return books desired by another patron. In the few cases in which faculty have not responded, a librarian or I have contacted him/her, and have always been successful in obtaining the desired book.

Immediately after reading Ms. Martin's letter, I questioned the library's Circulation Supervisor, and was informed that the desired books had been returned to the library and were held for her at the circulation desk for approximately two weeks, but were returned to the shelves on January 15 inasmuch as she had not called for them.

The library has for some time provided a "hold service" for students and faculty alike who need materials which are currently checked out. Should the desired book not be on the shelf, patrons may provide the circulation desk attendant with the call number and title of the book, and when the book is returned to the library, it will be held for one week for the requester. In cases where the desired book has already been in circulation for two weeks, the library will make every effort to contact the borrower and request its return.

The primary mission of the Randall Library is to support the academic program of UNC-W by serving the reading, reference and research needs of students and faculty. The library staff is here to guide and help patrons in finding the information which they need. Students are encouraged to express their needs and suggestions, for this provides important feedback which is vital in establishing and maintaining appropriate programs of service.

Sincerely,
Lenox G. Cooper, Jr.
Director of Library Services

BOYCOTT HOMECOMING

Dear Editor,

Because of the Student Government Association's lack of interest in the cultural and social needs of the minorities of this campus, all people (women, orientals, Indians, Blacks, and Whites) are asked to Boycott Homecoming!

Thank you for Your Support,
WANTU WAZURI

THANK YOU!

The UNC-W Business Club wishes to thank Steve Hobbs and the S.G.A. for their co-operation and facilities. Ms. Linda Moore for her advice and support and all those students who participated in the recent used book sale. For those of you who failed to come by Friday, January 16 for your money or your books, please contact Chuck Balser (458-8398) or Paul Walker (791-3438) before January 31.

We have enjoyed serving all the students and look forward to serving you in the future.

SEX: DO YOU? DON'T YOU?

feel discriminated against at UNC-W

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 states that, "No person . . . shall on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any educational program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance.

This means it is now illegal to discriminate against either men or women in any university affiliated activity. In order to enforce Title IX and bring UNC-W into compliance with its various statutes, a committee was formed last semester composed of volunteer students, faculty and other persons whose knowledge of specific areas was seen as vital in carrying out an effective investigation of whatever sexual discrimination existed on the UNC-W campus.

Investigation is of obvious import here as it would be impossible to eliminate any discriminatory practices if we did not know where they existed. Since it would also be impractical to try and speak with every person on campus, we have decided to utilize a campus-wide questionnaire (via the Seahawk) so that every student, faculty member or employee will have the opportunity to voice their own experiences and thoughts in this area without placing themselves in a personal risk situation. While this particular investigation is being conducted by the student subcommittee, we must emphasize again that anyone affiliated with this institution is encouraged to aid us and themselves in providing us with this valuable information. Please note that this is a preliminary survey which hopefully will point out problem areas where more complete investigation is called for.

Before you begin to fill out this questionnaire there are several points which might need clarification:

1. Title IX is not "Women's Liberation" - we are concerned here only with the unhappy situation which has existed in our society where a person's sex (which he or she had nothing to do with in the first place!) has restricted the rights and opportunities of that individual to live according to their own beliefs, abilities and desires.

2. In any investigation of this type where strongly ingrained traditions are being questioned, those doing the questioning will be accused of "hair-splitting" and being overly concerned with picky details . . . damn the accusations - bureaucratic institutions thrive on details (How many detailed forms have you filled out during your career as a student or employee?) and so we justify our own inclusion of details in this questionnaire. The purpose is modification of what is wrong - not destruction of anything.

3. In addition, we are not attempting to substitute one inflexible situation for another. The point of this investigation is to aid in ridding ourselves of the restrictions of traditional sex stereotyping in our own institution - thus substituting flexibility (i.e., opportunity) for inflexibility.

PLEASE, it is absolutely imperative if we are to achieve anything, that you be completely candid about whatever evidence of sexual discrimination you have been a victim of, or a witness to. This survey is obviously anonymous so please do not be intimidated by the idea of something you say backfiring in your face. If, however, you would like to talk with one of us personally about this, we will be available: Jeanne Bolo, 256-3686; Judy Weeks, 1-253-4160; or Kay Sebian, 794-2722.

If we cannot be reached at home, you may contact us through Sandy Paul, secretary in the Psychology Department (extension 308) King Hall, Room 209 and she will set up a time when we can get together.

Another alternative is to write any problems you have encountered concerning sex discrimination on a separate sheet of paper and either place it in one of the boxes for the questionnaires or mail it to the Student Subcommittee, c/o Psychology Department, King Hall, UNC-W.

A Grievance Com. Mite, has also been established by the Title IX Committee and any specific grievances you may have against particular persons or departments should be presented to William H. Malloy, Compliance Officer, 113

Alderman.

Please realize the seriousness of this issue when you fill out this questionnaire - we are extremely eager to know your thoughts and experiences concerning this subject and hope you will take this opportunity to let your voice be heard. Boxes will be provided in every building on campus for your convenience in depositing your completed questionnaires.

We cannot thank you enough for your assistance and are greatly encouraged by your interest.

Obviously some of these areas will not apply to persons who have had no experience with them. Please answer only questions concerning areas you know something about and refrain from guessing about the rest.

I. FACULTY ADVISEMENT

In consulting with your advisor about your academic career:

1) Do you receive non-discriminatory advice concerning your major field of study, possible career choice, and post-graduate study from your advisor? Yes No

2) Does your advisor emphasize, directly or indirectly, traditional career options? Yes No

3) Do you think that you receive equal time and consideration from your advisor as other advisees of the opposite sex? Yes No

4) Has your advisor ever encouraged you to pursue a goal which has traditionally been reserved for members of the opposite sex? Yes No

II. FACULTY CONDUCT IN THE CLASSROOM

In the classroom situation (where the student is virtually a captive audience):

1) Do you think that you are discriminated against either through verbal innuendoes or through direct insults to your particular sex? Yes No

2) Do you feel that as a female/male you are encouraged to speak out on issues in a class discussion equal to the encouragement given to members of the opposite sex? Yes No

3) Do you think any faculty members have a definite prejudice towards either men or women which is manifested in their classroom behavior? Yes No

4) Do you think you have ever been unfairly evaluated strictly because of your sex or sexual attitudes? Yes No

III. COUNSELING

In using the services of UNC-W's Counseling and Testing Center:

1) Were you given a career choice test in which the occupations were typed according to sex? Yes No

2) Were you led by the counselor to believe that only traditional male or female occupations were appropriate? Yes No

3) Was the attitude of the counselor conducive to free choice in occupational goals? Yes No

IV. PHYSICAL EDUCATION

1) In any experience you have had with the Physical Education Department, do you think you were ever the recipient of prejudicial treatment on the basis of your sex? Yes No

2) Do you think adequate services and equipment are provided for both men and women by this department? Yes No

3) Is the time allotted for use of these facilities equal for both men and women, i.e., for teams and individuals? Yes No

4) Do you think that you are discriminated against in the type of apparel you are required to wear for P.E. classes (gym suits/underwear)? Yes No

5) Do you think the current laundry policy (males receive laundry service while females must launder their own gym suits) is discriminatory? Yes No

V. HEALTH SERVICES

1) Do you think adequate health services are provided equally for men and women? Yes No
If not, please specify:

VI. DORM STUDENTS ONLY:

1) Do you think the dormitory facilities are provided equally for men and women? Yes No

2) Are regulations and/or restrictions imposed equally upon men and women residents? Yes No

3) Do you think that disciplinary actions for dorm offenses are equally dispensed to men and women? Yes No

4) Are equal amounts of privacy accorded to both sexes? Yes No

5) Are housekeeping duties in the dormitory the same for both men and women? Yes No

VII. WORK STUDY/ASSISTANTS

1) Have you ever felt you have been discriminated against in the UNC-W Work Study Program either in the hiring practices . . . Yes No or in the assignment of tasks? Yes No

2) Do you feel you were discriminated against on the basis of sex in applying for or receiving a scholastic or athletic scholarship? Yes No

3) In applying for a loan or grant, do you think you were discriminated against because of your sex? Yes No

IX. STUDENT ACTIVITIES

In the area of student activities, (concerts, movies, speakers, social events, etc.):

1) Do you think that campus movies, concerts, lectures, etc. are equally representative of male and female audiences? Yes No

2) Do you think that the Pub caters more to the interests of one sex than the other? Yes No

3) Is one sex encouraged to support student activities more than the other? Yes No

4) Is the University Newspaper discriminatory toward either sex in its coverage? Yes No

HOMEcoming '76

February 9-14

"T-minus two weeks and counting . . ." and as every second goes by, Homecoming is that much closer. When plans are made as far back as one year ago, counting down seconds is not such an absurd thought.

One year ago, when every student turned their thoughts towards Spring break, Homecoming '76 was in the planning stages. One important element was lacking: student support. Yet time passed and those people involved dreamed of a celebration that involved all those integral parts of a student body, again not such an absurd thought.

People, that celebration has arrived. Yet, where is that support. Rumors have saturated the airways of the campus of a call for a total boycott of all Homecoming activities. Response from various clubs and organizations concerning floats, queen candidates, banners, etc. have been virtually non-existent. Commitments and promises that at one stage seemed a reality have suddenly appeared in the form of false hope. The next question is why? Answers to that could cover an entire edition, and even then enough could never be said.

This, in essence, is a last-minute appeal for the student body to find it within their power, not to neglect, ignore, boycott Homecoming activities, but, on the contrary, participate to the fullest.

A revised schedule of Homecoming activities is encompassed in this edition. Several additions have been made, most notably the fact that the Homecoming dance featuring "Shotgun" will be held at the Wrightsville Beach

Holiday Inn, just another reason why Homecoming '76 is the most unique celebration in the history of the school.

Elections for Homecoming Queen '76 will be held Monday, February 9, and Tuesday, February 10. Entry forms may be picked up in the SGA office and should be returned with a picture of each candidate.

Once again, prizes will be awarded for the Best Float, Best Spirit, and Best Banner (as demonstrated at the Homecoming game). The Seahawks opponent for the game is Campbell College, currently undefeated, and will be the most crucial test the 'Hawks will face for a possible tournament bid.

All in all, Homecoming will be an unforgettable experience for those who choose to participate. For those who don't, here's a thought to keep in mind: in the past, those funded activities that received the least amount of support were phased-out. Will we let Homecoming become one of those events?

SUPB Presents

Most Americans, regardless of their politics, will acknowledge that Abraham Lincoln and Harry Truman were two of the funniest men ever to live in the White House. Calvin Coolidge, on the other hand, usually takes the prize as the most somber of our Presidents. In the bicentennial comedy, "Heroes and Hard Cases," however, even Coolidge is given his rightful place among those who have contributed to the American sense of humor. There was the time, for instance, when a man approached President Coolidge, and begged, "You've just got to talk to me, Mr. President. Some friends bet me I couldn't get you to say more than two words." Without cracking a smile, the President replied, "You lose."

"Heroes and Hard Cases," presented on February 12 at 7 p.m. by the S.U.P.B. is more than a catalogue of famous wits. It is a complete bicentennial celebration, with Uncle Sam himself as the master of ceremonies. Along with the original music, the play features sketches, quotes, toasts and roasts and little-known historical facts about the great and the small, the winners, losers, and rip-off artists that made this nation what it is today. Appearing in the production are the Alpha-Omega Players, a national touring company from Rockport, Texas.

Ford, the Candidate, Should Be More of Ford, the President

On the tenure of Gerald Ford's White House continues, it is becoming more evident that he understands about as much about administering the affairs of government as just any other kid on the block. Though it may seem a harsh analogy, his bumbling in office has much similarity to his frequent stumbles of foot.

When Mr. Ford first took office it was generally the feeling that he needed the support of Americans to insure an orderly transition of government out of the shadows of Watergate. At that time Ford only had to give the public a feeling of security and a contrast to all the cloudiness that was only beginning to clear over the capital.

But then it became time to get on with the business of government. As the demands of the office returned to normal, however, Ford's ability to handle the job came under stricter scrutiny.

Perhaps Mr. Ford's first real test was the Moyaquez incident, in which an American ship was seized by Cambodian authorities. Ford decided to take a tough stand on this matter and came out as a sort of hero with the public, who overwhelmingly approved of his performance.

That incident never really was such a grand accomplishment for the man from Grand Rapids. If anything it reduced my approval of him from small to smaller. His attempt to show his toughness—that he would not allow America an embarrassment at the hands of little Cambodia—only ended in a macho display of military muscle that was just as embarrassing as the initial occurrence.

Another event that caused many to look twice at the ability of Mr. Ford to effectively fulfill his responsibilities is the well-remembered cabinet shuffle of early November. Proclaiming that the new faces were "my guys" Ford swept through his cabinet in a major shake-up. He waddled through the change with the grace of a bull in a china shop. In that shuffle, our Secretary of Defense, James Schlesinger, an open thorn in the side of Henry Kissinger, was replaced by a close Ford ally, Donald Rumsfeld. Ambassador to Britain Elliott Richardson was recalled to speed the resignation of Secretary of Commerce Rogers C.B. Morton. CIA chief William Colby was relieved and Chinese envoy George Bush was tapped to fill his place.

A bad mark on these three changes is that each is being fondled as possible vice-presidential candidates to join Ford's 1976 ticket. It is clearly evident that Mr. Ford was preparing each of these men for a possible call to his side, by getting their names in the press and before the public.

This becomes even more evident because of the untimely move by Vice-President Nelson Rockefeller to remove himself from consideration for a renewal status as Ford's sweep. Though both the cabinet and Rockefeller changes were planned, they were never meant to come simultaneously. But press leaks forced Mr.

Ford to announce his shuffle at about the same time Rocky announced his shuttle. One wonders if better planning on Ford's part couldn't have prevented this coincidental fiasco.

Perhaps the worst part about the "Halloween Massacre" (as it has come to be called) is the positioning of Bush at the head of the investigation-plaunted CIA. In dismissing Colby, Ford later found that it would be some time before Bush could leave his Chinese post, and thus Colby was asked to stay on longer than planned.

More disastrous was the choice of politically prone Bush, a former chairman of the Republican National Committee, to head the CIA. This agency was already under pressure from Congress to reform its political undertones. It is certainly not a place for presidents to audition their candidates for vice-president.

Still a third Ford blunder has come more recently concerning Secretary of Labor John Dunlop. Using his overused power of veto, Ford rebuked a construction picketing bill of which Dunlop had been the chief architect. Dunlop, suggesting that Ford had allowed political considerations to figure in his decision, resigned his office.

The President left Dunlop little choice in the matter; the Secretary could hardly stay on with such rebuttal from his boss. Yet Ford requested Dunlop to reconsider his resignation. That Ford could even expect one to work under such conditions is indicative of his often shallow thought.

What this all points to is that Ford is so worried about his political survival that he is unwilling to be calm and let the government take a steady progressive course. The irony in this is that if he would only work at being President instead of playing at political games, his troubles would not be as numerous as they are today; and neither would those of the American government.

SENATE MINUTES

A regular session of the UNC-W Senate was called to order on January 13, 1976 at 11:30 in room 201-A by Carol Moore.

Lance Ferrell gave the invocation.

A temporary suspension of the rules of order was made.

LeRoy Oakley reported for the Finance Committee. The committee met with Aaron McCrae, President of Wantu

Wazuri. They discussed the $3825 allocation they requested for National Black Week, which will be held during Human Relations Week. The Finance Committee recommended an allocation of $3000.

A motion was made to accept the Finance Committee's recommendation to allocate $3000 for National Black Week. The motion was seconded and discussion followed.

Aaron McCrae addressed the Senate and read letters from both the campus minister, Vivian Martindale, and the Student Affairs Committee supporting National Black Week.

Paul Laird called for previous question. It was seconded and passed.

Gary Shipman called for a roll call vote for the motion to allocate $3000. Those who voted in favor are: Rufus Butner, Clay Fairley, Kent Flowers, Paul Laird, Judy Bryant, Mary Swanson, Teresa Hege, Robert Jones, Ricky Patton, Gary Shipman, David Davis, Scott Olson, Captain Newborn, Karin Whaley, Veronica Gore and Ronald Sparks.

Those who voted against the motion are: Haddon Clark, Clark Sizemore, Barbara McKay, Carol Rains, Tee Sledge, Pam Reiner, Ray Warren, John Crawley, and Kevin Beard.

The motion was not carried.

A special senate meeting will be held on January 15 at 11:30. All senators are required to attend.

A motion was made for adjournment. It was seconded, passed, and the meeting adjourned at 12:30.

Respectfully submitted, Sharon Davis

Hawks Down Francis Marion: Loose Squeaker to Elon

Harold Jackson's 33 points and the four-corner offense paced UNCW to a 78-64 victory over Francis Marion College as the Seahawks' season record to 8 wins and 4 losses.

UNCW, who led throughout the contest, saw a second half 14-point lead cut to one, 53-52, with 8:42 left to play. The score remained close until the Hawks put a string together as Jackson made two free throws, Dave Wolff added another, and Delaney Jones scored a field goal and two foul shots. DJ finished with 21 points for the night.

The Hawks lost leading-rebounder Ernie Lynn early in the game because of a turned ankle but the rest of the team took up the slack as Wolff gathered eight followed by Jones, Jim Brogden, and Ricky McKoy with six rebounds each.

A second half comeback attempt by UNCW fell just short as they dropped their first home game of the season 59-58 to Elon College.

The Seahawks, playing what coach Mel Gibson called, "our best defensive game of the year", fell behind 35-29 after an ice cold first half when they hit on only nine of 33 attempts from the floor.

The Hawks warmed up in the second half, hitting 13 of 25 shots and took the lead for the first time 52-51 on a basket by Richie Brooks. The lead changed hands several times but the Seahawks were unable to get the ball and the lead which would have given them the opportunity to go to the spread offense.

With eight seconds showing on the clock and Elon ahead 59-58, the Hawks rebounded a missed foul shot and called time out. Ernie Lynn's last second shot, however, would not fall.

After the big District 29 game with Pembroke on Tuesday, the Hawks travel to Campbell on Thursday for the first of seven consecutive away games.

Women's Basketball

The UNCW women's basketball team opened their season by traveling to Laurinburg to face St. Andrews. The young Seahawks were defeated by the home team 52-41. One of the high points of the contest was the play of freshman Pattie Provost who grabbed 14 rebounds in the second half.

The Lady Hawks opened at home against Sandhills Community College and recorded their first victory 54-53. Sheila Boles led the attack with 21 points, scoring 15 in the second half. Julie Barden added 10 and Terri Kirby had 9.

In their last outing the team traveled to Wilson and were completely dominated by the more experienced Atlantic Christian team. The Hawks' inexperience really came to the surface as the committed 39 turnovers enroute to a 84-43 shellacking.

Coach Jan Donahue has been particularly pleased with the play of point guard Terri Kirby.

Next action for the women's team will be two away games against Campbell and Meredith.

Barowski Named All-South

Gene Barowski, a junior pre-med major, has become the first Seahawk soccer player in UNCW's history to be named to the All-South team.

Barowski played center full-back in the Seahawk defense which recorded 10 shutouts enroute to a 13-2 season. Coach Calvin Lane feels Barowski is highly deserving of the honor. "Gene is an extremely versatile and steady player who always seems to be in the right spot."

Mika

People may think there is not another country in the world that has done more in Rock music than America and Great Britain. This is true, but, in the last decade the other countries of Europe have done their best to catch up with us. Germany has given us Amon Duul, Karthago, Can and Tangerine Dream. Holland produced Focus and Golden Earring. Italy - Premiata Forneria Marconi, and Greece- Aphrodite's Child.

Now, the Eastern World is becoming a part of the Rock Music Scene and the SADISTIC MIKA BAND have to be the biggest thing from Japan to hit America since the transistor radio.

The SADISTIC MIKA BAND was formed in 1973 and produced their first album late that year.

In 1974 they were discovered by Chris Thomas, ex-producer of Roxy Music, and were brought to England with the release of their second album, "BLACK SHIP." Two singles were released in 1975 from this album, which made the English charts. In October 1975 they did their first English tour with Roxy Music, but have yet to appear in America. From this time on they became more and more popular as people gained interest in this group from the Far East.

FROM JAPAN, THE SADISTIC MIKA BAND

The group was formed by Kazuhiko Kato, who had been a famous Japanese Folk singer, and is named after his wife, Mika, who is lead singer on many of the songs they do.

The style of the group is the most interesting thing about them as it seems they were doing some Disco material even before it was popular. They also do light to hard rock and Reggae. All this is done with a slight Oriental sound added. (The "BLACK SHIP" L.P. was sung entirely in Japanese but "HOT MENU" contains some English vocals.)

Kazuhiko Kato

SADISTIC MIKA BAND

HOT MENU

Harvest SHSP - 4049 [Import]

From the first bars in this album you know you are in for a unique experience. Opening the L.P. is an instrumental entitled "Time To Noodle." This is some of everything in their sound as Reggae, Rock and Disco are all worked in together, and, very well done.

Following this is a slow rock number, "Mummy Doesn't Go To Parties Since Daddy Died," which sounds silly by its title. Not so at all as the cut remains as one of the best on the album for its guitar work alone.

"Aquablue" is next and is the first song on the LP to feature lead vocalist Mika. The song sounds a bit innocent but has a nice melody and is recorded at tops (which all the band's songs are).

"Mada Mada Samba," a reggae number, and "Hi Jack" end the side with the latter being the group's latest English single. "Hi Jack" is a very interesting number in that it begins in Japanese, and ends in English vocals. The song is an excellent choice for a single and could even have a chance on the unpredictable American charts these days.

"Okinawa (Strange Fish)" and "Style is Changing" open side two and are the best cuts on the album. Here, the Mika Band produce two powerful rock songs in every sense of the word. "HOT MENU" is what these cuts are all about.

"Style is Changing" is most interesting as it shows an attempt at the Roxy Music type sound which comes off lacking only the vocal power of Bryan Ferry.

"Funkee Mahjong" brings the album near an end and is an excellent Funky number. (You "bump" fans could knock each other out with this one.) Opening with a slow oriental type sound, the song takes a short time to get down to it, but, once it does you can not get enough.

Well, I guess that is about it for the SADISTIC MIKA BAND at this time. "HOT MENU" should be out some time very soon in this country and the "BLACK SHIP" is available here as SADISTIC MIKA BAND, Harvest ST-1135.

This is definitely a group to look into. If you do not, it is to your loss. Not mine. Till then, ROCK-OUT.

cultural week controversy grows

Black Cultural week is an annual event in February which places emphasis on the American black experience. During the past four years, the celebration has been observed on the campus of UNC-W. This year, however, questions concerning the funding of an expanded program for Black Cultural Week have created a protracted and rather bitter controversy within the S.G.A. and the student body.

Several senators were unconvinced and rose to explain their opposition. The opponents of the allocation did not take issue with the idea of Black Cultural Week itself, but rather offered several objections to S.G.A. funding of the Wantu Wazuri program. Among the arguments presented were the lateness of the request, the failure of Wantu Wazuri to seek the money when the S.G.A. budget was being drawn. Wantu Wazuri's program or a wider human relations type of program. Proponents of the allocation charged the opposition with racial prejudice. Opponents reported numerous threats of reprisals from some members of Wantu Wazuri and charged blackmail. The leaders of the organization, however, denied the charges.

Wantu Wazuri is urging all students to boycott homecoming to protest the senation. Reaction to the boycott call, however, has been basically negative and the action may be producing an effect opposite to the one intended. Through the agency of the Wilmington Journal, a local black oriented newspaper, the organization has appealed to the black community to give financial support to their program. According to the latest issue of the Journal, the the racist attitude of the Student Government Association. Aaron McCrae, reports that Wantu Wazuri is "actively exploring all legal avenues open to us." Whether or not this constitutes legal action against the S.G.A. is not presently known.

Because the Journal article was not entirely correct and made several unsubstantiated charges, the senate has appointed a committee to write a request by Wantu Wazuri, a campus organization which seeks to provide representation and social activities for black students, requested $3800.00 from the S.G.A.

to sponsor a program for Black Cultural Week. At the January 13 senate meeting, the finance committee reported favorably on a reduced request for $30000.00. The request provoked some rather heated opposition and discussion.

Proponents of the allocation pointed out that the planned program would benefit the entire community and would be a stimulating cultural experience. They emphasized that UNC-W was one of the few campuses that did not sponsor a Black Cultural Week or a similar program. Aaron McCrae, president of Wantu Wazuri, read a number of letters in favor of the program. Among those lending support to the Black Cultural Week were Vivian Martindale, the campus minister, the Student Affairs Committee, Linda Moore, Director of Student Activities, and Dr. Malloy. "I think that the dimension of a Black Cultural Week has been lacking at UNC-W, and in this bi-centennial year, their recognition of the accomplishment of minorities is a sound one," commented Ms. Moore.

program was planned without student or senate knowledge or participation. Several senators expressed fears that granting such a large amount of money to promote a program primarily designed for a special interest group would cause other such groups to demand a similar allocation.

Doubts were also expressed about the propriety of allotting funds for a program basically designed for a single race.

Supporters of the Wantu Wazuri request countered that the planned program included at least one white and American Indian speaker. They also asserted that all students would benefit from the program. Despite these arguments, however, the vote on the allocation fell one short of the necessary two thirds majority required to allocate money.

Carol Moore, who supported the request, advised Wantu Wazuri to meet with the finance committee to seek a smaller allocation. She called a special meeting for the following Thursday. Several confusing side issues developed during the debate on the allocation of the $3000.00. The name Black Cultural Week caused several senators to object. These senators preferred the name Human Relations Week. It was unclear whether the proposed money would be used to RUSH !

With the beginning of the spring semester, two fraternities on campus have kicked off their rush activities. Pi Kappa Phi and Tau Kappa Epsilon are sponsoring numerous open parties and other fraternal functions for all interested students.

TKE plans to hold several keg parties on Tuesdays and Thursdays for men wishing to find out about their organization. Their activities will be held at their house, 4507 Wrightsville Avenue, beginning January 24 at 8:30.

The Pi Kappas are having rush for the Brotherhood as well as the Little Sisters. Students interested in either side of Greek life are invited to the Pi Kapp House at 120 Yorktown Drive, on Wednesday and Saturday nights for the next two weeks beginning January 21 at 8:30. If students have no transportation it can be provided by calling 763-6632.

LAST CHANCE FOR YEARBOOKS

Due to a typographical error in the last issue of the Seahawk, yearbook sales will be extended for 3 additional days, February 4-6. This is absolutely the last chance to subscribe to the '76 Fledgling. The cost is $5 for all students taking 6 or more hours and $6 for everyone else. Subscriptions will be taken each afternoon upstairs in the pub.

After completion of the first phase at UNC-W, the student to act as coordinator of the program.

V.I.C.E. SQUAD AT UNC-W !

During the summer of 1974, David Brickley, a student of UNC-W, attended a workshop in New York to learn about videotape and the use of videotape equipment. From that point, Brickley has mastered his craft and is in charge of the V.I.C.E. Squad—that is, the Video Incorporated Campus Entertainment Squad, which was the Videotape Committee.

What is videotape? Videotape might be compared with eight-track or cassette tapes which provide recorded music. Videotape, however, is a media of sound and a televised image. Videotape equipment transmits a program from the tape to a television monitor.

Recently the students of UNC-W were privileged to see, hear and experience Kurt Vonnegut's film "Between Time and Timbuktu" part nightmare, part fantasy and total enjoyment. Videotape may also take the form of Super Fight III, the third boxing match between Mohammed Ali and Joe Frazier, which was presented at the Good Wood prior to its national television airing.

In fact, the videotape may present almost any subject matter—from "Flash Gordon" to "Reefer Madness" to "Future Shock." These are but a few of the programs that Brickley has offered for our viewing pleasure.

In the midst of presenting these goodies, Brickley has had to haul the videotape equipment all over campus and has attempted to teach a crew of volunteers to operate and maintain the equipment. Because of the sensitivity of the equipment and its constant movement around campus, it needs much care to keep it functioning. Brickley has had to move the equipment because he had no definite viewing area. He now hopes to limit showings to the Good Wood Tavern, the snack bar, and the dorm. Showings will be on Monday and Tuesday.

Videotape not only entertains but may also be used as a teaching device. One example of this was "The Navajo Way," a study of the Navajo culture, which was offered in the fall of 1975 and was taken into classrooms for viewing.

Videotape has a versatility and an appeal that insures its continued progress. It seems here to stay and hopefully it will remain active at UNC-W.

MASTERS PROGRAM FOR SOCIAL WORKERS

A master's program in social work is now offered at UNC-W. The two-year program was designed basically for those persons already employed in social work who wish to improve their skills.

The program at UNC-W is part of the master's in social work program at Chapel Hill. Before entering the program at UNC-W, students must be accepted into the master's program at Chapel Hill. Students may, however, take a maximum of six hours without acceptance into the program, such students being given credit for these hours upon acceptance into the program. must enter the second phase at Chapel Hill. This phase lasts for one full school year. This allows area social workers to study for and receive their master's degree in three years two years of part-time study at UNC-W and one year of full-time study at Chapel Hill.

Lela Moore Hall, of the New Hanover Department of Social Services, was instrumental in bringing the program to UNC-W in 1971. In 1973 John Wasson came from Chapel Hill

THE SOAPS PLAY AT UNC-W

If the old saying, "You can depend on it, if it's perennial," is true, then every year students can depend on racial trouble surrounding homecoming.

Like crab grass, this problem crops up every year, stifling the rest of the student body with dread. Whether or not it is caused or aided by the homecoming celebration is unclear. What is clear, however, is that this year is another episode in the never ending soap of, "Dramatic Discrimination."

"Dramatic Discrimination" stars such biggies as Randy Redneck and Rufus Racist. Instead of following the lawful method of change, as advocated by Aaron McCrae, they have threatened, in the grand ole tradition of the West, to take the law into their own hands. Vandalism and Destruction is the only course of action open to these people.

If according to the Senate minutes, the main objections of the representatives is the name of the week, Black Cultural Week, and the fact that the Wantu Wazuri did not submit their request during budget time, then I charge the senators to overlook this and look at the issue, not the technicalities.

It would appear to make more sense to resolve the question of whether or not is fair to allocate $3000.00 to a single organization when so many clubs are in need of financial support, instead of bickering over dates and names.

If the senators are in such a quandry about the issue, why don't they put the allocation to a referendum? Wantu Wazuri is not concerned with specific dates for their celebration, but rather with the desire to perform some sort of public service.

"I UNDERSTAND HIS SKI INSTRUCTOR IS ALSO HIS CAMPAIGN MANAGER!"

The Gadfly: ALLOCATION DENIED

At 8:30 in the morning, I send my body to class and my mind usually arrives some time after. While waiting for reunion of the two, I read the SEAHAWK to see what happened last week and see if I can figure out where we will be next week. Usually it's not hard to figure out that I will be here in the same classroom next week, older, but not too much wiser.

So when I opened the pages of the January 28 issue of the SEAHAWK I did not expect anything exciting. However, on page two in letters to the editor, I noticed a letter entitled "Boycot Homecoming." Propping open one eye, I read that the Wantu Wazuri club would like everyone to boycott homecoming because the S.G.A. was insensitive to, "The cultural and social needs of the minorities of this campus." On page six, under two columns headed "Senate was running for office told the Wantu Wazuri that he was aware of S.G.A. discrimination as concerning blacks on campus. Black students, said Hobbs, were not being permitted to participate in the S.G.A. as they should be, and student funding discriminated against black students. Steve Hobbs said he would do all he could to change the situation. Now it seems that all this was merely the old "promise them anything, but give them nothing," campaign tradition. Steve Hobbs is not mentioned in either the January 13 or 15 meeting's minutes as coming in support of the Wantu Wazuri request.

Lo, turning down the Wantu Wazuri request, the S.G.A. has not merely turned down a club's request for project funds, it has turned down the blacks on this campus. The Wantu Wazuri is a highly active club that has carried out projects promoting the black community, but the white as well. After having allocated funds for beer parties, and there is certainly nothing wrong with beer parties, and other light entertainment, the failure of the S.G.A. to contribute to National Black Week on this campus, can only be seen as an insult to every black at UNC-W.

Such an insult is a serious thing. The Wantu Wazuri club will not merely stand idly by as witness by the "Boycot Homecoming" letter, but will take action. I don't expect rock throwing, chanting crowds of blacks on this campus. Wantu Wazuri club members, at least the ones I know, are sophisticated, articulate, and quite aware of the massive machinery ready on hand to aid minority groups.

So I do not expect that it will be an obscene note on a brick crashing through a window, that will announce to the S.G.A. that their insult has been duly noted. I expect a lengthy legal document suspending all S.G.A. expenditures until a charge of discrimination is investigated. Such a development will freeze all student clubs fundless, and the S.G.A. will find itself powerless to allocate any funds.

for the letter and reason to prop my other eye open.

Reading the Senate Minutes is usually about as interesting as an acne commercial, but when I got to the fine print said,

"A temporary suspension of the rules of order was made," things got as interesting as a strip tease act. I suddenly know how Elijah felt when he saw that small black cloud on the horizon. Whenever a suspension of the rules of order is made in a process usually ruled by the rules of order, it's a safe bet something disorderly is about to happen.

Sure enough, something did happen. The Wantu Wazuri club's request for $3825.00 was whacked to $3000.00, a roll call vote was made, and despite a 16 to 10 vote, the request was denied. All this happened on January 13.

On January 15, a special meeting of the senate was called to order and again the rules of order were suspended. It sounded as if it were getting to be a habit. The Wantu Wazuri Club's request was now $2500.00.

Rufus Butler then made a motion to amend the motion to allocate $2500.00 to National Black Week, he proposed to rename the week and call it Human Relations Week. Why Mr. Butler did not care for the name National Black Week, I do not care to speculate. However, dear readers, you may desire to do so.

To top off this unusual meeting, a motion was made to vote by secret ballot. It is always heartening to see senators so willingly take the responsibilities for their actions. Once again, the request for funds was denied.

Now one might ask what all this means. At first glance, it might appear that the senate was merely reluctant to allocate $2500.00 of our money to a club project. Which only proves once again that appearances can be very deceiving.

The S.G.A. of this campus is not noted for its attention to minority groups. A contribution to National Black Week would seem to be a good first step in remedying this situa-

letters to the editor

Dear Sir:

Your school is invited to participate in the third annual National College "Pitch In" Week, April 5-9, 1976. College "Pitch In" is sponsored by Budweiser and ABC Radio Network. Last year, schools from all over the country participated.

National College "Pitch In" Week awards five $1000 first place and five $500 second place awards to the schools that carry out the most creative "Pitch In" project—which could range from a beautification project to ridding the college campus community of a litter problem.

Any college or university or any approved organization on campus is eligible to participate. Please notify all eligible groups.

If you would like more information about National College "Pitch In" Week, please notify me and a 1976 "Pitch In" program kit will be sent to you.

byline: Bobby Parker CARTER PULLS AHEAD

The results trickled in from the first test of the campaign of '76 and quickly showed former Governor Jimmy Carter of Georgia coming out on top in the preliminaries of the delegate selection process in Iowa. Since this contest was considered the first barometer of campaign strength in a crowded Democratic field, Carter's 27 per cent showing immediately placed him as the frontrunner for the Democratic nomination.

Carter was expected to do well in Iowa. His organization was operating well and he spent much time campaigning in the state. The effort paid off considerably for the liberal Georgian, and added more momentum to his growing campaign. Although a majority of the delegates that were chosen were elected as uncommitted to any candidate thirty seven percent, Carter finished well ahead of all other candidates.

But Carter was wary of the frontrunner label. Perhaps he was remembering the downfall of frontrunner Edmund Muskie the Maine senator, who four years ago, was forced out of the race because he failed to fulfill the expectations that came with the role. In 1972's New Hampshire primary, Muskie did not run as well as predicted, and the eventual nominee, George McGovern, cut into Muskie's considerably. Thus, Muskie was seen as falling downward in political strength, and by the time of that year's Wisconsin primary dropped out of the race. Carter's concern was probably centered around the fact that with his new role of frontrunner he would be subjected to closer scrutiny by the press, which would produce more and stronger attacks on his record and positions on issues.

Already a rash of articles about Carter have appeared throughout the media, threatening overexposure that could very well hurt him in these early days of the '76 campaign.

Not only will he be a press target in the future campaign but he could likely become the main target in the future of all the other nine Democrats and two Republicans who share his aspirations. For many of them Carter, with his new burst of momentum, will be the man to beat to establish their own credibility. They are bound to be bombarded with questions about Carter, and the effect of their answers could be damaging to Carter's image.

The image is, at present, one of Carter's advantages. He comes across as everyone's friend—a good old country boy who wants to help the average American by running the government. He has a very magnetizing attraction in the fact that he is not from Washington and not a part of the government that has borne so many problems and few solutions.

The effect of the Iowa caucus results on the future campaign cannot be certain. Carter may carry his momentum into the New Hampshire primary (on February 24). On the other hand, another liberal candidate like Senator Birch Bayh (Indiana), former Senator Fred Harris (Oklahoma), or Representative Morris Udall (Arizona) or a conservative such as Senator Henry Jackson (Washington) could be as strong contenders as Carter in that race. Any one of the entrants might win this first-of-the-nation election duel.

In Iowa, Bayh ran second with a less-than-expected 13%; Harris was third with a great-than-expected 10%; and Udall placed a very poor 6%. Jackson and Sargent Shriver, the only others to actively campaign at all, were far behind the pack.

A week later in Mississippi, the second state to begin its delegate selection process through the caucus system, the old boy George Wallace won a sizeable majority, with Carter a poor second. Wallace's share was surprising because it was generally thought that the hope of his campaign rested solely within primary states where his "give 'em hell!" slush could conjure up votes from his gullible public.

Shriver ran a respectable third in Mississippi, mainly through the turnout of a sizeable black vote. Senator Lloyd Bentsen from neighboring Texas showed poorly at the end of the list. What the Mississippi vote shows is that Carter's new role is not going to work magic. He's going to have to run as hard as ever (which, incidentally, is pretty hard) to maintain enough steam to see him through the long campaign ordeal.

However, the frontrunner label will benefit Carter more in primary states than in caucuses because many more people will participate. A solid win in New Hampshire would put him in a great position to overcome Wallace in Florida, and a victory in Florida would put him in command of the field.

Whatever the outcome in New Hampshire and Massachusetts (March 2), the results of these two primaries will tell us more of who can and will survive. Bayh, Shriver, Udall, and Harris must do well to remain in the race. Wallace is not likely to be affected very much by the vote in these left-leaning states, although he probably will try to capitalize on the bussing woes of South Boston.

Even though there is a candidate that can be singled out as the considered frontrunner now, that is not likely to greatly affect the race. Carter's gain in capturing that label will be minimal. There is still no clear, real leader of the pack; and Carter would do well to steer clear of the dangers that accompany his newly acquired status.

EDITOR BIDS FAREWELL

To: UNC-W Student Senate

For the past three years I have served on the Seahawk staff and this past year I have had the distinct privilege of serving as its editor. It has been a joy to serve as head of this organization. My staff members have been a very loyal group and have supported me in all my endeavors. The Seahawk has been my primary concern but now I find it necessary to turn my attentions towards my profession. This semester I will be doing my student teaching. The Seahawk is too vital an organ on this campus to not receive my fullest attention.

We have had many accomplishments as well as many problems last semester, but I hope you will best remember the Seahawk under my editorship as a period of progress and growth.

Since my appointment was approved by the members of the Senate, I feel it appropriate and an obligation to ask you to accept my resignation on this day, January 27, 1976. I hope and pray that you will support the new editor and staff in all their endeavors so that the Seahawk will continue to spread its wings and embrace the students at UNC-W.

Sincerely yours,
Robert Maxey

BETTE

SONGS FOR THE NEW DEPRESSION

Atlantic SD-18155

In most cases, when a group or person waits two years before putting out a new album, you find the album to be not worth the wait at all. The last Pink Floyd and Led Zeppelin albums, both fair albums, are prime examples of this in that the longer you wait, the better you feel the album should be.

The wait for this new Bette Midler album has been long but, for once, worth the time spent. On this one you can tell that she has not just sat around collecting royalties from her earlier LPs, but has made improvements.

To begin, the album contains a very good variety of songs and celebrities. The tunes vary from nostalgic to recent songs, some co-written by Bette herself. Moogy Klingman, of Todd Rundgren's UTOPIA, produced the album and Rundgren, Dylan and he, appear on some of the cuts.

If it is possible, I would say Bette Midler's voice has gotten much better or production is at tops one or the other. The vocals are very clear and do not seem to yell "hey, you guys, I'm from New York" as much as her first two LPs did.

Side one contains two very well done nostalgic cuts with "Strangers In The Night" and "Old Cape Cod." The first of these two has been speeded up some and is done differently than I have every heard it before. "Cape Cod," however, is done very traditionally with excellent harmonies.

Dylan's "Buckets of Rain" and "I Don't Want The Night To End" by Phoebe Snow, are also on this side. "Buckets" is very good with Dylan singing duo with Bette and "Night To End" contains excellent guitar work by Todd Rundgren.

The best cut on this side is one co-written by Miss Midler entitled "Mr. Rockefeller."

The song is about a girl who is broke trying to find out if Rockefeller is still doing fine. This song ties in with the album title, NEW DEPRESSION.

Side two also contains two older songs of the Late fifties and early sixties sound. "No Jesting" and "Tragedy," the latter made famous by the Fleetwoods, are the cuts and both are done very well.

Best cut on this side is the opening song, "Shiver Me Timbers," and contains some excellent harmonies all by Bette.

To sum up, this album is really good. That is not saying everyone will like it, but I am sure everyone will like something on it. I just hope it is not two years before her next album.

DAVID BOWIE

STATION TO STATION

RCA-APL1-1327

What can David BOWIE be up to now? In the beginning we saw him as the folk singer. Then the classic female movie star. Then the spaceage Ziggy who turned into Aladdin Sane who turned into the Diamond Dog who turned into disco. And now King of disco, I suppose!

Well, with the release of the YOUNG AMERICANS LP the stage was set at disco and STATION TO STATION stays very close to that line of music. (At least there is no big change with this one.) Maybe this time everyone will have some idea what this album will sound like before they hear it.

STATION TO STATION is a much slower album than any Bowie has done to date. It moved peacefully from song to song and gives the impression Bowie is happy with this type disco-like music.

The title cut opens the album and is more or less in two parts. The first part is slow and takes some time to get going, but, it is quite good. The trouble with the song takes place when the faster, second part of the song comes up. There seems to be no transition between the two at all, making the entire cut split down the middle.

"Golden Years" is next and is the follow-up single to Bowie's last hit "Fame." Once again Bowie has chosen a disco type number for his single release and is doing very well on the charts. This is really ironic to me in that it takes Bowie's worst material to gain a chart record when his earlier styles are by far his best material.

The last cut on this side is "Word On A Wing" and sums it all up in the line "And I'm trying hard to fit among your scene of things." For this, the side lacks the "Bowie Originality."

Side two opens with "TVC 15" which is based on Rock 'n Roll, but loses something somewhere. It has a rock beat and everything else but something is not there and you cannot put your finger on it.

"Stay" and "Wild Is The Wind" end the side and are much like to cuts on side one.

To sum up STATION TO STATION is far from the best album BOWIE has done. Because he has given in to top 40, his material has gone to just average. The originality that made him what he was is no longer there.

I wonder, when was the last time Bowie listened to Ziggy Stardust? Till then.

Jimmy Buffett: Homecoming Concert

Yes sir, folks. We're actually going to have a concert.

Wednesday, February 11, Jimmy Buffett will appear at Kenan Auditorium with comedian Tom Parks at 8:00 pm.

"Playboy" magazine called Jimmy a "poetic picnic." His country-rock music abounds with humor and poetic sensitivity. His three albums on the ABC/Dunhill label hint to the humor. His first album, "A White Sport Coat and Pink Crustacean," has the immortal "Great Filling Station Holdup" which has gone down in the annals of Americana as a country-classic.

His second album, "Living and Dying in 1/4 Time," Jimmy shows both sides of his personality. One nice tune called "He Went To Paris," is sung and played with a setting sun. The lyrics speak for themselves.

But the warm summer breezes

The French wine and cheeses
Put his ambitions at bay.
And summers and winters
Scattered like splinters
And four or five years slipped away.

On the same album is a tale of ripping off machines from the local convenience store.

Who's gonna steal the peanut butter,

I'll get a can of sardines.

Running up and down the aisles of the Mini-Mart.

Sticking food in our jeans.

Buffett's third album, "A1A" was named for a highway in Key West, Florida where the album was recorded. Once again, Jimmy's humor surfaces in a song, "Life is Just a Tire Swing," written after he drove a rent-a-car into an Illinois lawn that had a hanging swing. "My Whole World Lies Waitin' Behind Door Number Three" was written about an uncontained love for Monty Hall.

So, if you like good music and good lyrics, make it down to the Pub February 2 and pick up your tickets. They are $3.50 in advance and $4.00 at the door. Admission is limited to UNC-W students and guests. Anyone who writes the tender lyrics, "Honey, let's get drunk and screw" can't be all bad.

North Carolina State University

Yes fans, it's that time of year again. Time to pull out all those old green and yellow streamers you've been saving since that frantic time last year. Time to plan those Homecoming Week parties and plan for those post-Homecoming week hangovers. Time to welcome back our long-lost alumni to their annual visit to UNC-W. Yet everyone involved senses a bit of difference and distinction in this Homecoming and the beloved event in past years.

The major and most important difference this year is the parade. For the first time in the long history of the Homecoming celebration, the parade will be held in "beautiful downtown Wilmington". For sure, it will not have the color and excitement of the Macy's Christmas Parade, but with enough motivation and excitement on our part, no one will know the difference. Dignitaries and celebrities from all across the state are making plans to attend, and it is requested that you be one of these.

As clinched as it may be, the theme for this year's Homecoming is Bicentennial '76. But, when you look at it from the standpoint that none of us will be around to see the U.S. age another 200 years, this seems as appropriate time as any for UNC-W to make an attempt at a celebration. All floats, banners, ect. should be built around this theme and, incidentally, prizes will be awarded for the best float, banner, spirit, ect. Who do I have to be to win? Any breathing individual or individuals with enough initiative to do so.

This year, more than any other, Homecoming week offers something for everyone, and I mean everyone. So, for those motivated individuals who want to start making the calendar now, here's a schedule of how Homecoming Shapes up so far. This is subject to several additions that are "up in the air" or in the planning stages at this moment. Information on advance ticket sales, prizes, meetings, ect. will appear in future Seahawks.

Deadline for entries for Homecoming Queen '76 is Thursday, February 5, 1976. Entry forms can be picked up in the S.G.A. office starting January 14 and must be accompanied by a picture, if possible. Elections will be held Monday and Tuesday, February 9 and 10 in the designated areas. The winner will be announced at the game on Saturday, February 14.

LADY HAWKS LOOSE TO PEMBROKE & CAMPBELL

The Lady Hawks of UNCW had a rough week as they lost two games.

In their opening game of the week the Hawks dropped a 53-34 decision to the women of Pembroke State University. UNCW was never really in the game as Pembroke ran up a 32-19 halftime lead and then continued to build on it in the second half.

For the second game of the week the Hawks traveled to Buies Creek to face Campbell. Poor play in the first half by the Seahawks led to a 72-42 defeat. Sheila Boles had another outstanding game for UNCW scoring 21 points.

The loss left the Hawks with a 1-4 record for the season. Next action will be tonight in Hanover Hall against East Carolina University. Game time is 7:00.

In a defensive battle at Hanover Hall, UNCW defeated arch-rival Pembroke State University 47-40.

After trailing 24-22 at the half the Seahawks employed a tight defensive to hold Pembroke scoreless for the first 9 and one-half minutes of the second half and took a 30-24 lead which they stretched to 13 points, 39-26.

Late in the contest Coach Mel Gibson moved the Seahawks into the four-corners but turnovers and missed shots hurt the Hawks and allowed the Braves to pull within four 40-36.

The substitution of Ralph Peterson into the game gave UNCW the additional ball.

Harold Jackson and Keith Yow paced the Seahawk attack with 16 points each.

handler needed to preserve the win.

UNC-W suffered its first district loss of the season as they were defeated 77-60 by Campbell College.

Campbell, ranked 14th nationally, upped their season's record to 15-1 while the Seahawks moved to 9-6.

The Hawks jumped ahead early 6-2 but the Camels then outscored the visitors 8-0 to take a 10-6 advantage. Several times in the first half UNC-W pulled close and an Ernie Lynn layup near the end of the half brought the Hawks to within one 34-33 but the Camels again scored to hold a 36-33 halftime advantage.

Midway through the second half a Campbell surge saw the Hawks fall behind 68-53 as the Camels rolled up the victory.

For UNC-W, Keith Yow scored 18, Lynn 10, and Harold Jackson and Dave Wolff had nine each.

High Point College hit a red-hot 76 percent of their first half shots and finished the night with a 64.3 percentage as they rolled over UNC-W 83-64.

At one time in the first half the Hawks trailed 16-14 but then the Panthers blitzed ahead 47-26. UNC-W managed to bring the halftime score to 47-31.

Lynn had 18, Wolff 12, and Jones had 11.

ROAD GAMES AND FRATS

The Seahawks, now 9-7, have an excellent record at home (8-1) but have found victories on opposing courts hard to come by having won only one of six.

The Hawks have had some stiff competition in their away games facing the likes of East Carolina, Western Carolina, and Campbell. Their role as visitor does not get any easier as they begin a three game road trip this weekend.

Friday the Seahawks play Baptist College at Charleston and then travel to Statesboro, Ga. for a Saturday game with Georgia Southern College. After a days rest they move on to Macon, Ga. where they will face Mercer University.

The Seahawks now stand 2-1 in the all important District 29 with three district games remaining. UNCW is in a good position to capture one of the two top spots in the district for post season play.

Tau Kappa Epsilon made their biannual appearance at an athletic event when they showed up at the Pembroke game. TKE makes a big appearance at this particular game because the Pembroke TKE's always show up in force. The two groups sit on their respective sides of the gym and holler neat things like "EAT ONE!" back and forth.

Homecoming will witness the appearance of not only TKE but Pi Kappa Phi and Delta Upsilon. Their main intrest, however, will be to see how their candidates for homecoming will do.

It seems to me that one of the functions of these fraternities is to support the athletic teams of this institution. Admittedly there are a few scattered frat members who show up at games, but the enthusiastic support I've seen fraternities at other schools display is definitely lacking at UNCW.

NURSES PLAN ACTIVITIES

The Freshman Nursing Students of UNC-W have elected a student to represent our class in the election of the Student Nurse of the Year Contest. We wish to congratulate Mrs. Nancy Jackson as she was voted to represent us. Nancy has written a paper "Nursing '76," which she will present and have viewed by a district committee composed of: The District President of SNA of North Carolina, The 1975 District Student Nurse, District Advisor, a Doctor or nurse or member of the allied medical profession, a qualified person not in the medical profession, and a newspaper editor and/or representative from a TV or radio station. The judges will judge the candidates on the basis of their qualifications and essays. Nancy, we'll keep our fingers crossed!

More Good News About SNA

The Student Nurses Association has adopted a "forgotten" patient at Cherry Hospital in Goldsboro, North Carolina. This patient lacks family members or someone just does not care. We do! The SNA is now sending this client a sum of money to buy various items that can make her life a little happier. The Freshman nursing students go to Cherry Hospital this summer for psychiatric training. At this time we will meet our adopted patient. What a meaningful experience it will be for this person and for the Student Nurses.

The activities of SNA are "never ceasing." The SNA of North Carolina will hold their State Convention March 10-14, 1976 at the Sheraton Inn in Charlotte, North Carolina. The SNA of UNC-W will attend this convention and look forward to the learning experience, the excitement of the campaigning for Student Nurse of the Year, and oh yes, the food galore!

For the local highlights, the SNA is sponsoring a cover dish supper for all the nursing students. Each person will bring their "special dish" to share with each other. This event will be Thursday night, February 26 at 7:00 p.m. We wish to invite all student nurses, first and second year. Instructors, we want to see you there!

Last, but certainly not least, the members of the SNA of UNC-W wish to thank our SNA leader, Mrs. Carla Lewis for her support in all realms of the Student Nurses' Association, past and present. Thank you, Mrs. Lewis! B. Gibson

spencer appears in good wood

The Good Wood Tavern presents in concert, from Atlanta-Peter Spencer-appearing one night only: Friday, February 13, shows at 9:30 and 10:30.

Anyone who has seen Peter Spencer perform will acknowledge that he is one of the finest guitar technicians around. He creates an arresting synthesis of ragtime, country blues, fiddle and banjo styles, County and Western, folk and Indian ragas on his oversized Grammer "flat-top." And a closer view of his music reveals both penetrating original compositions and a dynamic and captivating stage personality that borders on the scandalous.

Peter in recent years has been "just kicking around the country," entertaining to the West in San Francisco and to the East in London-now he will hang his hat in Wilmington-a one-night stand-be sure and make it over-bring your honey and your brew!

Saturday Night Special in the Good Wood Tavern, February 14. Appearing for the third time, fellow student and local musician, Ed Danilowicz-a repertoire of new and quite unique musical techniques, emphasizing jazz as always. Bring your honey and brew-shows will begin at 9:30 and 10:30.

COMEDY in history

Henry Ford, an American who made history, was once quoted as saying, "History is more or less bunk." In preparing their bicentennial comedy, the Alpha-Omega Players of Texas discovered that our nation's history was not all bunk, but a lot of it was pretty funny. Supplementing their historical research with original material and contemporary music, the national touring company designed a theatrical celebration of the lighter side of the past 200 years.

The production is a comedy revue, with Uncle Sam as the ringmaster. Assisting him, the ensemble portrays other famous American symbols. The Statue of Liberty, Little Miss America, and Fred Schwartz. The producer said he put Fred Schwartz in the play as a substitute for the American Eagle because, in the producer's words, "The American Eagle is a great symbol for freedom, but he can't play the guitar."

Drexel Riley, Alpha-Omega's director talked about the serious side of preparing a bicentennial comedy. "We didn't do a satire. Instead, we researched actual facts, quotes, and events, then we staged them in a way that would point up the basic humor of a person or situation."

In working on the script, the company came to believe that American humor was a direct result of the American ideals of freedom and independence.

"Humor on a wide scale," says Mr. Riley, "is only possible in a free society. The roots of genuine humor are the imperfections of human beings and their institutions. Obviously, this type of humor is possible only when people are free to comment on these imperfections."

Registration Set To End Feb. 23

Are you registered to vote? If not, you should do so as soon as possible to be able to cast your ballot in the 1976 presidential preference primary in North Carolina. The primary is scheduled for March 23, but registration for the contest ends of February 23.

All United States citizens 18 years of age and over have a legal right to vote, as well as a national responsibility. A great many eligible voters fail to vote each year because of a simple lack of interest or because they do not understand their eligibility.

Persons wishing to register should visit the Board of Elections office of the county in which they maintain legal residence. For students who are still supported mainly by their parents, their legal residence would be in the home county of their parents.

For those students who are originally from New Hanover County or who maintain a self-supportive residence here, the office of the Board of Elections is in its new location at 149 North Fourth Street in Wilmington. This office has just recently moved from the old facility on Third Street.

Mr. Louise Rehder, Executive Secretary of the New Hanover County Board of Elections, reports that the office is open Monday through Friday from 8:00 until 5:00. Students who must register in other counties but will be in Wilmington on the day of the primary may apply in their home county for an absentee ballot between Feb. 23 and Mar. 17. These ballots must be returned to the home county Board of Elections by 6:00 p.m. on March 22, the day before the primary.

Similar absentee policies will be in effect for the state primaries on August 17 and the general election on November 2. This year's state primaries are being held separately in order to shorten the long state campaigns.

The March presidential primary will include several Democratic candidates: Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia, former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma, Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, and Gov. George Wallace of Alabama. Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona and Sen. Robert Byrd of West Virginia are considering the race. A deadline for filing is set on Tuesday, Feb. 3.

The Republican race will pit President Gerald Ford against former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

At the time that one registers, he chooses whether he will register Democratic, Republican or independent. An independent voter cannot vote in the presidential or state primaries since these are partisan elections to decide party nominees.

Also on the ballot in March will be three referendums. Two will be state constitutional amendments concerning the process of financing bonds by local governments, and another will concern the issuance of bonds for state institutions of higher education. A further explanation of these referendums will appear in next week's Seahawk.

If you are eligible to vote, register now in order to voice your opinion in these important elections. If you are unsure of any election procedure, visit your local Board of Elections who will be glad to answer any questions.

Sanford's Exit Enlivens Primary

the withdrawal of Terry Sanford from the presidential campaign has produced a flurry of new interest in the North Carolina presidential preference primary, as more than one of the other ten Democratic contenders have expressed a desire to enter the March 23 contest since Sanford's departure.

The former North Carolina governor made a public announcement January 23 that he would bring his national campaign to a close and end his efforts in the New Hampshire and Massachusetts primaries. Sanford had been concentrating his early strategy on a respectable showing in those two early primary states to establish himself as a nationally recognized candidate.

Before his announcement, there had been some speculation that Sanford would remain in the North Carolina race and run as a favorite Son candidate. But at his press conference from Durham, Sanford declared that he would not enter his name on the ballot of his home state.

His name will, however, appear on the Florida primary ballot, though he will not actively campaign. As a result, Sanford will still receive federal funds to pay any debts of the campaign. These funds cannot be used for any personal expenditure and a percentage of any amount left must be returned to the government.

With Sanford's name off the N.C. ballot, several of the other Democratic candidates have decided to enter the race and test their strength here. Before Sanford's withdrawal, most observers saw the primaries as only a showdown between Sanford and Alabama Governor George Wallace. Wallace soundly defeated San-

CPS Shorts Marijuana and Cancer

(CPS)—Marijuana, that wonderful, euphoria-producing weed, can also produce cancer, if a recent report published by a professor at Indiana University at Bloomington is correct.

Dr. Milos Novotny, associate professor of chemistry, concluded that marijuana is even more carcinogenic than tobacco. And as if that result is not painful enough, the report added that "the marijuana constituents that make cannabis marijuana attractive for its smokers, the so-called cannabinoids, are most likely precursors for formation of carcinogens."

In other words, the more potent the dope, the more carcinogenic it is. That Columbian you just paid an arm and a leg for may not only be dynamite but poison as well.

Thumb Down On Schools

(CPS)—America's love affair with its public school system is over.

Only 13% of American adults would grade their local schools "A for excellent"—a 30% drop from five years ago—a recent national survey conducted by the Ford Foundation has found.

Many of the adults who voted thumbs down on public schools were recent graduates from the public school system. Only 6% of the 18-29 year-olds and 9% of those who have recently attended college gave the schools a top rating, a fact which the survey report termed a "warning signal" to schools.

Top on the list of dissatisfaction was "lack of discipline," followed by "bussing," "lack of financial support," "poor teachers," "large-sized classes," "poor curriculum," and "crime."

More than half of those sampled would like to send their children to a special school that maintained tight discipline, a strict dress code and emphasized the three R's.

The survey report did not indicate which age group supported stricter schools.

Sight for the Blind

A Massachusetts inventor has developed a machine that can read printed pages aloud to blind people.

According to its 27-year-old inventor, Raymond Kurzweil, the machine can read almost any typeface found in newspapers, magazines, and journals. In its first public demonstration in January, observers said the machine spoke in a flat, halting voice with a trace of a Swedish accent.

The machine also has a keyboard lettered with braille dots that allows a blind person to type commands ordering the machine to slow down or spell out a difficult word.

Maybe they gave you the right to vote because they thought you'd never use it.

$43.2 MILLION BOND ISSUE ON MARCH 23 BALLOT

By Ray Warren

On March 23, along with the presidential primary, the ballot in North Carolina will feature a question of vital importance to the University system and to UNC-W. The voters will be asked to approve a $43.2 million bond issue to finance capital improvements at State institutions. Included will be $1,665,000 to finance a new classroom office building at this campus.

The bond issue comes in the wake of the controversial appropriation of $28 million to East Carolina University for the expansion of their two year Medical school. North Carolina Central University and North Carolina Schools of the Arts were also granted funds for new construction. The legislature was unable, however, to provide for the needs of each of the 16 campuses of the university system. The voters will now have to decide whether to spend the necessary money for the much-needed additions to the other 13 schools. The bonds have the support of the Chancellors of the 16 university campuses, including the three which will receive no funds (E. Carolina, NC Central, and School of the Arts.) Also supporting the bond issue are State Treasurer Edwin Gill, the UNC Board of Governors and William Friday, President of the university system.

UNC-W's share of money from the sale of the bonds, approximately 1.6 million dollars, will be used for the construction of a new classroom building. According to Dr. Malloy in the student affairs office, the new building will allow the modern language and math departments, "which really have no home of their own" to function more efficiently. The building will have 22 classrooms, six seminar rooms and 22 faculty offices. Dr. Malloy pointed out that faculty office space is especially lacking at present. In addition, the Alderman Administration Building, which now houses classrooms utilized by five academic departments, will be freed for administrative use.

The necessity of the new classroom building is attested to by enrollment figures for the past ten years. During the period from 1965 until 1968, before Wilmington College became a part of the university system, enrollment increased by only 1.78 percent. After the campus was consolidated with the university of North Carolina, however, enrollment increased by 51.5 percent in the next three year period. In the past three-year period enrollment has increased an astonishing 70.2 percent!

Due to the present depressed economic conditions, there is some question whether the voters will approve such a large bond issue. All members of the university community are urged to promote and vote for the improvement bonds. Chancellor Wagoner plans to meet with the Student Senate to elicit student support. He will also appear with the Chancellor from Fayetteville State University on Channel 6 television to support the bonds. All students are urged to register to vote before the February 23 deadline and to support the bond issue. Students registered in other than New Hanover County should take the necessary steps to insure their vote by absentee ballot. In a very big way, the future growth of UNC-W is in our hands.

Traffic Improvements (part two) By Ray Warren

Last fall, as students and faculty returned to UNC-W for a new academic year, they were confronted by unprecedented traffic control problems. The rather large enrollment increase this year was cited as the main cause of the congested conditions. Harried motorists, however, were comforted by promises to ease the situation. Now, five months later, there is little evidence to suggest any action on the promised traffic improvements.

Dr. William Malloy, Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs, reports that at least one phase of the proposed list of improvements has begun. The University has obtained the funds to cut and pave access roads at the back of the campus. The roads will connect with Rose Avenue and College Acres Drive and are expected to ease the congestion at the front entrances. Surveying for the new roads has already begun.

Bicycle trails, another planned addition to campus transportation facilities, apparently will take some more time to assume reality.

The University has applied to the state for the necessary funds to build the trails. The construction cannot begin until next year at the earliest.

As welcome as new access roads and bicycle trails will be, the main concern of UNC-W students and faculty is the dangerous condition of the Reigel Road and College Road intersection. Traffic is often backed up for a considerable distance during peak traffic hours. Despite promises from state officials, no action has been taken to alleviate the situation. According to Dr. Malloy, "the bear is on the state's back. I don't see why we have to kill someone to get a traffic light," he continued, saying that students often play

"jodg'em" in order to get onto highway 132, he lamented the state's seeming unwillingness to live up to its promises of a stoplight and right turn lanes. In addition, he states that the front entrance had been closed to traffic in order to create a neater appearance at the front of the campus, with the understanding that a stoplight would be erected at the Reigel Road intersection.

Dr. Malloy echoed a theme of frustration often heard in the Administration Building. "I wish someone would write whoever is in charge of the department of transportation," he stated. Students who have similar feelings may want to do just that. The address of the state department of transportation is: Jacob Alexander, Secretary of Transportation Highway Building, Raleigh, NC 27611.

In addition it might be helpful to drop a line to Governor J.E. Holshouser, Jr., Administration Building, Raleigh, NC 27611.

Be sure to remind our friends in Raleigh that college students are voters and that this is an election year.

Financial Aid Information Now Available

The 1976-77 Basic Grant Application forms are now available in the financial aid office, 119 Alderman. Basic Grants provide $200-$1400 grants to needy students who are enrolled for at least six hours.

In the past only students who enrolled in post-secondary education after April 1, 1973 were eligible to apply. This regulation has now been eliminated, and all students may apply.

Steve Medlin, UNC-W's financial aid officer, advises all dependent students whose parents' income for 1975 did not exceed $12,000 to apply for a grant. He urges all independent students to apply.

He also urges all needy students to apply for institutional grants and loans, and the work-study program. The applications for these programs are available in the financial aid office.

LETTER TO EDITOR

To The Editor:

It appears to me that either you or one of your staff is prejudiced when it comes to the fraternities on our campus. Why you choose to distinguish us from other groups and organizations on campus, I don't know, but I do know it is very unfair and uncalled for.

As far as our participation at athletic events go, we're there but you don't know that because you don't know who all of us are. Just because we don't wear our jerseys and sit in one big group at the games doesn't mean we're not there. On the contrary, the majority of all three fraternities can usually be found at the gym on any given night of a home basketball game.

I was very upset with last week's paper not only due to this, but also due to the fact that you hurt three of the girls' chances that are running for homecoming queen. The TKE's nomination couldn't even been seen in her picture and you switched names under two of the other pictures. How do you think these girls feel after waiting and getting excited about the whole thing? I imagine it would be somewhat of a let-down, don't you think?

I think the brothers of Tau Kappa Epsilon could've directed their thoughts of their fellow brothers from Pembroke a little louder. As long as we're going to be put down by the paper we, as students, indirectly pay for—I think we should go out loud and fighting. I also think the Seahawk owes TKE, Pi Kappa Phi, and Delta Upsilon a big apology. Fraternally,
Allen Sheneman

Angola for the Africans

The "Angolan Problem" is a current international conflict of particular interest to Americans, primarily because of alleged American involvement especially covert CIA operations.

During an interview, Dr. Ahmad of the Political Science Department offered some insight into the backgrounds of the three factions involved in the fight for governmental control and the international consequences of outside involvement.

Ahmad, who taught at UNC-W for six years, is a native of India and an American citizen. He completed his undergraduate studies in India. His graduate work was pursued in England and the United States. He received his Masters Degree from the University of Manchester in Manchester, England, and his Ph.D. from the University of Tennessee in Knoxville. Ahmad's field of concentration is comparative governments and international relations. When asked why he chose this field, he replied, "I am interested in international relations, and the U.S. is no longer isolated."

Presently he teaches a political science course at UNC-W entitled "Political System of Africa."

The course is designed to give insight into the governments and politics of selected

African states. It is a survey from colonial days to the present, with emphasis on the contemporary economic, social and political problems. Special emphasis is placed on the Republic of South Africa and the Portuguese colonies.

This background helps him make a knowledgeable analysis of the conflict in Angola.

Ahmad describes Angola as "fourteen times the size of Portugal, twice the size of Texas." It shares a 1,500-mile border with Zaire and it also borders South Africa.

Angola was Portugal's best and richest colony. It has gold, diamonds, iron, coffee, and oil. Oil, according to Ahmad, was one of the reasons precipitating American involvement. Gulf has exclusive oil rights in Angola.

When asked about Soviet intervention, Ahmad stated the Soviet involvement revolves around an effort to cut down western influence. The Soviets back the popular movement for Liberation for Angola (MPLA), which was established in 1956 primarily to get rid of the Portuguese. The other two groups fighting in Angola, UNITA (National Union for the Total Liberation of Angola) and FNLA (National Front for Liberation of Angola) are pro-western.

MPLA also receives financial support from Algeria and is supported by the Mbunda tribe, of which one fourth of Angolan people are members. This group is led by Doctor Neto, a medical doctor, and controls Luanda, the capital of Angola. MPLA is considered to be the best-equipped group and is at present the winning faction.

FNLA, according to Ahmad, is older than MPLA and is led by Roberto, a practical revolutionist. FNLA is supported by the Bakongo-tribe, which encompasses 20 percent of the population. FNLA is the most pro-western of the three groups.

UNITA is supported by South Africa. South Africa wants to stop Communist influence. UNITA is comprised of the Ovimbundu tribe, the largest tribe in Angola. Its leader is Mister Savimbi, a proclaimed Maoist. Ahmad sums up South Africa's support of Mr. Savimbi in appropriate terms: "Politics makes strange bed-fellows."

A possible coalition of the three groups was discussed by Dr. Ahmad: "A coalition government is desirable but any government established will eventually become socialist."

In summing up the Angolan situation, Dr. Ahmad said that "Angola will not become a puppet for the Soviets and that from now onwards Africa will be for Africans."

MONEY!

$25 will be awarded to the person who designs the most representative pennant or emblem for the marine sciences at UNC-W. The emblem will be located on marine science equipment and may possibly be incorporated as the cover of FORAM, the UNC-W marine science journal. The contest is open to the entire UNC-W community.

RULES

1. The design must have the titles "Marine Sciences" and "University of North Carolina at Wilmington" (or "UNC-W") as a part of the design.
2. The design must be submitted to the Marine Sciences secretary on or before 5:00 p.m., February 23, 1976.
3. Name, telephone number, and address must accompany each design submitted.
4. One person may enter as many designs as he wishes. The designs will be judged by the editorial staff of FORAM. Entries will not be returned.

byline: Moynihan's Talent Should Not be Wasted

The resignation of United States Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan last week was not so surprising as it was unfortunate. Moynihan had introduced a new style to the normally motionless job of representing the U.S. in the United Nations. The good or bad effects of his stormy diplomacy are widely argued, and they will surely be re-examined in light of the ambassador's exit.

Moynihan, who formerly taught in the government curriculum at Harvard University, now plans to return to his position there. He said that he had spent nearly a month of indecision about whether to leave his post or not.

The former ambassador attracted the eye of Richard Nixon a few years back and served as an advisor to that president. Under Gerald Ford, Moynihan filled the diplomatic position in India before being named by Ford as this country's chief representative in the world body.

The traditional manner of conduct in recent times for the American delegation to the U.N. has been to quietly discourage those activities which have been contrary to the U.S. position. The veto power which the U.S. shares with the four other permanent members of the Security Council (Great Britain, France, Russia, and Communist China) has seldom been used by comparison with Russian vetoes.

But with the increased visibility of the presence of Third World nations, who are generally hostile toward the U.S. and the West, the American veto has been used more often to halt actions that are intolerable for our country.

Perhaps if the hostility of these Third Worlders had not become so open in recent years, Moynihan would not have surfaced as the outspoken enforcer of the American cause. In earlier years, there had perhaps not been enough confrontation within the U.N. to warrant a vivid challenge from the U.S.

But Moynihan seemed to come at just the right time, when the Arab world began to gear up a fight against American support for Israel, along with continued challenges from the Communist bloc and the developing nations.

With such odds against us, it would have been disastrous for the U.S. to sit still and carefully overlook the open hostility. We desperately needed a strong voice to lead our defenses against those U.N. foes.

Moynihan was an unorthodox sort of diplomat. His speeches usually lacked the cautiousness of most American officials who deal in foreign affairs.

He once called the U.N. General Assembly, which is the body that houses representatives of all member nations, a "theatre of the absurd." From the General Assembly had come the strongest and farthest-reaching challenges to U.S. policies.

Though resolutions passed by the General Assembly have little effect on world events, they are an accurate measure of world opinion. In recent years, the Assembly has become a showplace of resentment against the superpowers, including both the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

Though this drift against the U.S. was clearly evident, there were few American officials who were willing to publicly denounce it and fight back for the American positions—until Moynihan came.

When the Ugandan tyrant Idi Amin addressed a warmly receptive Assembly gathering, calling for the "extinction of the state of Israel," Moynihan countered with a speech before the AFL-CIO in which he labeled Amin a "racist murderer"—a very accurate choice of words.

State Department officials, including Secretary Henry Kissinger, were at first slightly amused at Moynihan's attack, welcoming an occasional tongue-lashing. But later repercussions from the Third World community changed their tune, and from then on, Moynihan was only an irritation in Kissinger's ironclad organization.

Still later when the General Assembly passed a resolution equating Zionism with racism, a blunt strike at Israel, Moynihan again came out strongly against the proposal. It was an expression of continued support for Israel, and a rebuttal of the African, Asian, and Communist nations which had combined forces to pass the resolution.

When Kissinger's disapproval of Moynihan's style first began to surface, the Ambassador offered his resignation only to be met with declarations of full support from both Kissinger and President Ford. The offer came at about the same time as Ford's big cabinet shuffle, and Moynihan's exit at that particular time would have only added to the uneasiness of that personnel change.

Moynihan was a pillar of strength in the position he held. He brought about long-needed changes for the role of the U.S. in the U.N. His resignation is indeed unfortunate, but perhaps just as well if he was to be hampered by Kissinger's disapproval.

Some speculators have predicted he will now seek the Senate seat of New York's James Buckley; Moynihan says he only wishes to return to his teaching.

Whatever he does, he is likely to do well. Moynihan has a strong reserve of abilities that are well-used in difficult situations, enabling him to be an effective executor of his own sound judgement. His personal talents are too valuable to remain untapped.

Rock and Rolling on Campaign Trail

(CPS)—The latest tactic in presidential campaigning is enlisting the support of rock stars, to play benefit concerts and make endorsements. The Allman Brothers and the Marshall Tucker Band has netted $100,000 for Jimmy Carter. Maria Muldaur has sung for Tom Hayden's California Senate campaign, and Arlo Guthrie is lined up behind Fred Harris.

But while the liberal Democrats are cashing in with music stars, the Republicans are singing a different sort of blues. Rock and roll backing for conservative Republicans is hard to find.

The President Ford committee confessed recently that they "don't have anyone lined up yet." Ronald Reagan's headquarters has tentatively enlisted the support of crooner Pat Boone.

Even Henry Jackson, whose hawkish views on Vietnam are returning to haunt him, is having trouble obtaining rock and roll backing. According to Electra Asylum chairman Joe Smith, Jackson is "light years away from where they're at."

Cut Cauliflowers to Conserve Energy

(CPS)—During the next energy crunch, unfeeling families will cut gas consumption as well as trimming cauliflower, tomatoes and melons from their diets.

The reason, according to scientists at the Connecticut Agriculture Experiment Station, is that high levels of energy consumption go into bringing those foods to the table.

Female Jocks Already Cashing In On Title IX

(CPS)—While some schools dig in for battle over compliance with Title IX regulations requiring equal sports facilities for men and women, other schools have jumped the gun. As a result, increasing numbers of women are receiving athletic scholarships.

Nine women at Stanford University were recently awarded scholarships totaling over $30,000 while UCLA is forking over $57,000 to help 49 women in nine sports this year. Penn State University will raise its (CPS)—Sex is the latest addition to the list of student activities that former FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover tried to stamp out.

Information uncovered by the Senate Intelligence Committee recently revealed that Hoover authorized FBI agents to forge letters from parents to protest "free love" at the University of Texas.

Hoover, angered by a news report describing students' sex lives at the Texas school, approved letters forged on locally obtained stationery that would protest such goings-on at a state supported school. The letters were sent to regents as well as state senators, pretending to be from irate parents who were considering sending their children to the University of Texas.

They claim that it takes as much energy to build a family car as is needed to grow an acre of cauliflower. The scientists estimate that up to 20 barrels of oil are used to cultivate cauliflower and bring it to the marketplace.

In comparison, field crops such as wheat, oats, and corn need only four barrels of oil per acre to bring them to maturity.

total number of free rides from 18 to 30 in 1976 and the University of Texas is also planning on expanding its scholarship program for female athletes.

Although the Title IX guidelines do not take full effect until July, 1978, the University of Miami started offering scholarships to women in 1973. Since then, its women's swimming team has jumped from 18th place to first in national championships.

Yes, But What Does It Mean?

Two Up, With a Side of Mace

(CPS)—Patrons of a small restaurant in Aspen, CO, were served an unusual entree recently: chemical mace.

Impatient with the slow service, one of the customers, William D. Noonan, pulled out a can of mace and wafted the dining room. Among those who were seated in the room at the time were the Aspen mayor and the city manager.

"They'll never tell us there's an hour-and-a-half wait there again." Noonan told his friends as they fled the teary scene. Later in the evening, Noonan turned himself in to the police.

The mace spraying was "stupid," admitted one of Noonan's friends, "but it should be every citizen's right to spray politicians with mace from time to time."

SHOTGUN!

The Homecoming Dance will be held at the Holiday Inn of Wrightsville Beach. The performing band will be Shotgun. Shotgun is one of the finest dance bands UNC-WV has ever had. The group has a well-rounded repertoire and is capable of playing anything that can be danced to. Shotgun will begin at 10:00 and play until 1:00 a.m.

The dance is to be semi-formal but this will not be a rigid stipulation. Brown bagging will be permitted at this dance since no free beer will be provided. Set-ups may be purchased from the Holiday Inn. I am sure this dance will provide the finishing touch to Homecoming week.

Students free with one guest. Alumni are admitted free.

The Alpha-Omega Players, a national touring company, will present "Heroes and Hard Cases, A Bicentennial Comedy" on Feb. 12 at 11:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. in the Good Wood Tavern. The show will be a historical comedy revue with music, designed to celebrate the bicentennial with a laugh. The production is sponsored by the S.U.P.B.

ALLYN WINSLOW, of Bedford, Massachusetts, is on his second tour with Alpha-Omega Players. A graduate of Austin College in Sherman, Texas, he has appeared in everything from Shakespeare to musical comedy. Allyn and his wife, Alex, were married during their last tour, between performances of "The Diary of Adam and Eve," in which they play the title roles.

ALEX WINSLOW, of Louisville, Kentucky, has been active in drama since high school. She was the voice for many radio commercials in Indianapolis, as well as being an advertising copy writer. She produced and directed "The Stronger Dynamics of a Play" for educational television. This is her second tour with the Alpha-Omega Players.

SUSAN HANSON was born in Aspen, Colorado, and raised in Rapid City, South Dakota. A true Westerner, Susan rides, skis the Rockies, and plays the guitar. Her writing covers such fields as songs, poetry, stories, and scripts. She had a play produced at Arizona State, and worked as a writer with Grass Roots Television in Aspen.

KERRY PHILLIPS, in his second season with the Alpha-Omega Players, is from Port Neches, Texas. Kerry received the Best Supporting Actor award in 1973 and the Best Actor award in 1974, for his portrayal of Henry Higgins in "My Fair Lady." In his last tour with Alpha-Omega, Kerry received wide acclaim for his portrayal of the title role in the national premiere tour of "Where Are You Going, Hollis Jay?"

DEAR DARLENE

BY DARLENE PEARSON

Dear Darlene,
I used to believe that being a virgin was the only thing that was morally acceptable. This factor caused me to break up with all of my boyfriends in the past. Now, I realize that they were right and I was wrong. Therefore, I started on the pill. My problem is that although I'm on the pill, I'm still a virgin because I no longer have any boyfriends. What should I do?

Ready, Willing but Lonely

Dear Ready,

Do what any self-respecting, intelligent girl in your position would do—write your name and phone number on some bathroom walls.

Dear Darlene,

I've just moved into my first apartment. I used to live in the dorm with another girl. Sometimes, it's a little lonely when there's no one around but me. How can I enjoy myself while alone?

Down

Dear Down,

Buy a vibrator.

Dear Darlene,

Several times last semester, you besmirched the image of dogs by implying that they are unattractive and undesirable animals. When one guy wrote you and said that he had a date with an ugly girl, you replied, "So you went out with a dog." As an avid dog lover, I want to say that was completely unfair.

Pup Pal

Dear P.P.,

I plead guilty. And I hope that every dog that reads this will forgive me.

Have you got a problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write Dear Darlene in Care of the Cherry Hill Mental Hospital.

POTPOURRI

The curtain of night enveloped the fleeing lovers.

Though fiery trials had threatened, oceans of longing had kept them together.

Now, a new icicle of terror stabbed at the embroidery of their existence.

SEAHAWK SPORTS

SEAHAWKS DROP TWO GAMES

Another dry spell spelled defeat for UNC-W as Georgia Southern whipped the Seahawks 78-53.

Early in the second half, UNC-W trailed by only six points, 36-30, but for the next ten minutes Hawks baskets were few and far between as the homestanding Eagles outscored them 22-4 to put the game out of reach.

Co-captain Ernie Lynn was the only Seahawk in double figures with 12 points. Lynn also captured 11 rebounds. Freshman Dave Wolff and Delaney Jones each scored eight points.

Thursdays the Seahawks travel to Wilson to play Atlantic Christian for an all-important district encounter.

The inability to win outside Hanover Hall continued to plague the Seahawks as they lost the first two games of a three-game road trip.

Baptist College of Charleston handed the Hawks the initial defeat as the Baptists held off a last minute Hawk rally to procure a 61-59 win.

The score was close throughout the contest until UNC-W, trailing 54-49, was unable to make a basket as Charleston scored seven points to jump ahead 61-49.

Against a Charleston stall the Seahawks scored the last 10 points of the game to pull to within two. Harold Jackson led the Hawks with 18 points, Ernie Lynn 14, and Delaney Jones had 12 points.

SHEILA BRYANT AND Patti Provost move in on loose ball.

WOMEN'S TEAM BOUNCES BACK

After a slow start the UNCW Women's basketball team put together back-to-back victories over Meredith and East Carolina.

Against Meredith, the Lady Hawks staged a second half comeback to gain a 64-55 victory. Sheila Boles led the Hawk attack with 26 points.

Trailing 30-22 at the half UNCW played steady ball and overcame the Meredith lead.

Toni Bryant contributed 14 points and Julie Barden added 10. Denita Hayes had 8 and Patti Provost scored 6.

In the ECU game Sheila Boles again had a big night as she scored 29 points in the 61-59 overtime victory.

Once again the Lady Hawks had to come from behind after being down at the half 35-28. At one point they trailed by seven in the closing minutes and managed to tie the score and send the game into overtime. Boles hit three free throws near the end. The win brought the women's record to 3-4. Bryant had 15 points for the Lady Hawks.

Coach Jan Donahue says the team has been playing good defense and have rebounded well, but numerous turnovers have hurt.

Saturday the Lady Hawks will meet Campbell prior to the men's game.

DISTRICT 29 STATISTICS released from Pembroke State show UNC-W's Harold Jackson and Dave Wolff placed among the leaders in three of the four categories for the first 11 games of the season.

The district scoring leader is Thomas Blue of Elizabeth City State with a 26.0 point average. Jackson is ranked thirteenth with 15.9 points per game.

Blue also leads in rebounding, making 16.4 grabs per game. UNC-W does not have a player listed among the rebound leaders.

Wolff's 61.8 field goal percentage places him fifth while Campbell's Sam Stagger's 65.3 mark leads the district.

The free throw leader is Harold Jackson with an exceptional mark of 90.0 percent from the line. Dave Wolff places third with 78.3 percent.

LAST WEEK'S COMMENTS on the participation (or lack of participation) by fraternities at UNC-W athletic events brought responses from several fraternity members. Their action can best be summed up in a quote from the movie "Deliverance" with that unforgettable line, "EEEEEEEEE."

In a conversation with two members of TKE, I explained that my point had been that in the last three years I've missed only about three home basketball games and the only time I've seen any great support by any of the three social frats is during the Pembroke-UNC-W game and, of course, homecoming.

The TKE's said the turnout for the Pembroke game is a traditional thing where the PSU TKE's come here for the game and then a big party. The scene is repeated at Pembroke.

Their main concern was the bad publicity they felt they received when I reported the comments the two groups yelled at one another during the game. My intention was not to put the yelling down for its content (I may have made a few obnoxious calls on occasion myself) but rather for its purpose. To me the TKE's seemed more interested in each other than the game.

An interesting point that came out in our talk was the feeling the TKE's have that they are catching it from all sides. In addition to pressure from the administration they feel that scholarship athletes at UNC-W are discouraged from joining fraternities.

TORRID ACTION marks intramural basketball play.

CLUB TID BITS

Biology Club

The Biology Club has been recognized and plans a full semester of activities. New officers have been elected. They are: President David Webster, Vice-President Tim Hoggard, and Secretary-Treasurer Wayne Barbee.

On Feb. 24, Dr. Stuart A. Marks from St. Andrews college will present a lecture entitled "African Subsistence Hunting." All lectures are open to the public and refreshments will be served.

Earth Science

The Earth Science Club is sponsoring a Yard Sale, Saturday, Feb. 14 to raise money for a display case for the Earth Science Department. An exact time and place for the sale will be posted at various places on campus. Any contributions (sellable material) or support would be appreciated.

There will be a meeting Thursday, Feb. 12 at 11:30 of the Earth Science Club. Final preparations for the sale will be made at that time. All interested Earth Science, Geology, Geography or Engineering Majors welcome.

Medical Science

Anyone contemplating a career in a Medical Science field should attend the UNC-W Medical Science Society meeting on Thursday, Feb. 12 at 11:30 in C114. Dr. Neill Musselwhite, of the regional Medical Science Society, will speak from experience concerning pharmacy and applied medicine.

African Summer '77

All students interested in African Summer '77, please meet in Room 151, Marine Science Building, at 11:30 am. February 17. The itinerary and expenses will be discussed.

Pi Kappa Phi

The big event is finally here, Homecoming '76, and the Pi Kappas are fired up; contrary to the biased article published last week concerning Fraternities and their lack of interest in Homecoming activities. Besides sponsoring a Homecoming candidate, the Pi Kappas will be out in full force during the parade and game, and encourage all students to participate.

Congratulations goes out to the Pi Kappa Phi intramural basketball team with a big 11-0 record. Tickets are on sale now for a car wash Feb. 14 sponsored by the Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity. The car wash will be held at the Long Leaf Phillips 66 station on Saturday morning from 9:00-2:00. Tickets will cost $1, and can be purchased from any Brother.

Fledgling

There will be a Fledgling staff meeting on Thursday, Feb. 12 at 6:00. Since deadlines are impending, it is necessary that everyone attend.

Job Interviews for Seniors

Graduating seniors are again reminded that they have an open invitation to sign up for job interviews with firms, companies and agencies that are scheduled to send representatives to the campus during the spring semester.

All interested persons must go to the Placement Office, Room 113, Alderman Building to sign up for appointments and to receive related material. As in the past, one-half hour interviews will be allocated to students on a "first-come, first-serve" basis.

Realizing the scarcity of jobs, the Placement Office is very anxious to assist the students of the university in their efforts to acquire employment.

If you are interested in any of the listings below, please do not hesitate to sign up for an interview.

Summer Jobs

Summer job placement specialists at Opportunity Research report that the improving economy will provide good opportunities for summer job placement this summer.

National Parks, guest ranches and resort areas are looking for their "biggest" year ever. Mr. Citizen's tight pocketbook for the past few years has substantially reduced the number of summer-time travelers and vacationers, however, this year the improving economy will encourage literally millions of families to head for vacationland U.S.A.

The gas scare of the last two years does not appear to be an issue for this summer which should provide an added incentive for vacation travelers.

Job placement specialists at Opportunity Research indicate that there will be in excess of 50,000 good summer job opportunities at National Park facilities, State Parks, dude ranches and private summer camps. Students are urged to apply early (prior to April 1) as the good jobs go fast. Free information on student assistance for summer job placement may be obtained by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to Opportunity Research, Dept. SJO, 55 Flathead Drive, Kalispell MT 59901.

SENATE MINUTES

A regular session of the UNC-W Senate was called to order on January 27, 1976 by Carol Moore at 11:30 in room 201-A.

Rufus Butler gave the invocation.

Robert Maxey addressed the Senate and resigned as editor of the Seahawk.

President Steve Hobbs addressed the Senate. He appointed Robert Jones to replace Robert Moore as Chairman of the Board of Elections.

The appointment of Robert Jones as Chairman of the Board of Elections was accepted unanimously.

Gary Shipman reported for the Homecoming Committee. The homecoming dance will be held at the Holiday Inn at Wrightsville Beach. The dance will be semiformal. A surfing movie will be held on Wednesday night of Homecoming Week.

The motion was made to send a letter of rebuttal to the Wilmington Journal. The motion was tabled. A committee was set up to write a letter.

A motion was made for adjournment. The motion was seconded, passed, and the meeting adjourned at 12:05. Respectfully submitted, Sharon Davis

SEEING Is believing?

Dr. Hall of the UNC-W Philosophy Department states, "The seeing is believing idea, which is inherited from the Renaissance, has brought us to the point of reaction in which many people are turning away from science and to anti-rational attitudes."

The over-reaction to Clarisa Bernhardt's prediction of a January 17 earthquake helps support Dr. Hall's statement. The self-professed psychic did manage to cause quite a rumble, although her prediction was wrong. Some people left town. Others took out earthquake policies. And still others made jokes of the whole thing.

When asked about Clarisa Bernhardt, Dr. Hall said she is a "irresponsible nut" and that psychic phenomena has nothing to do with earthquakes or at least it has not been proven to have.

Dr. Hall does not deny the existence of psychic phenomena. However, it can be taken to extremes: "I don't know where it [psychic phenomena] fits. Therefore, we can neither afford to dismiss it altogether or abandon rational and scientific balance in accepting it." Gardner

Reward Offered

A $25.00 reward is being offered for the return of gold watch with a black band, engraved "Beth loves Vernon." It belonged to the owners parents and has a great deal of sentimental value. Call 762-1198 after 2:00 and ask for Beth.

the still point

"The Still Point" has been stilled... at least temporarily. This has been a strange two months. The Seahawk slowed down in the face of exams last December and we left for a snowy Christmas in New York. We came back to spend registration week handing out cokes and opening a backlog of mail. Then I took off for a 10-day trip to Israel and Rome with Dr. Weitz and a group of people from his lectureship. The group had a great time, a lot of fun and learned a great deal. I'll share some more reflections in a few weeks and for those with any interest, I'd be delighted to bore you with my two hundred (200!) slides. I also managed to bring back a cold which has since developed into a case of bronchitis and the flu together (a strange hybrid I could do without.) As I write this from solarium I hope you will forgive the inconsistency of this column and I look forward to again being involved on campus very soon.

S.G.A. Elections

Elections for positions in the Student Government Association of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington will be held March 16 and 17. All interested persons who qualify to run for office must pick up a Petition for Office form from the SGA Office (upstairs in the Pub) beginning February 16. Deadline for returning the completed form to the SGA office is Thursday, Feb. 26 at noon.

In order for a student to qualify to run for any office of the SGA, three requirements must be met. First of all the student must be taking at least 12 semester hours. Secondly, he must have an overall GPA of 2.0 as of the fall semester, 1975, which the Elections Committee will verify with the Registrar's Office. Your signature on the Petition for Office form permits the Registrar's office to verify this. The final criteria that must be met is a Constitution Test to be administered and graded by the Elections Board Chairman. This test will be given Friday, Feb. 27 at 12:30 p.m. in the Good Wood Tavern.

For further clarification, I shall quote from Section III of the Board of Elections Bylaws: "Any student may be eligible to run for any office if they qualify as a regular, full-time student, have a minimum of 2.0 GPA and have scored a passing grade on the constitution test, with exception of the office of president and vice-president where only members of the rising junior and senior classes are eligible."

LOU REED - from Berlin to Coney Island

BAD COMPANY - GOOD COMPANY

LOU REED

CONEY ISLAND BABY

RCA - APLI - 0915

Let's go back to 1973 and see what Lou Reed has been up to over the past three years. 1973 was his best year since the split of the Velvet Underground in the late sixties. BERLIN was released that year and acclaimed one of the best albums of the year by many magazines. Never had such an album been made and it has yet to be topped by any similar to it.

In 1974 REED released the SALLY CAN'T DANCE LP and critics were mixed in their views of the album. The album was very different than any he had done and was definitely an improvement over the LP's he had made before BERLIN.

Then in 1975 he completely destroyed the image he had built up with his release of METAL MACHINE MUSIC. This album has since been named the pits end in Rock music and received the Award for the Worst Album By A Human Being in the latest ROLLING STONE.

Reed has gotten rid of the blond hair and black fingernail polish and produced CONEY ISLAND BABY. The album is a little more loose than BERLIN and SALLY, but still remains somewhat good.

"Crazy Feeling" opens the LP and is a good cut in that it is an excellent example of the type rock Reed does. The vocals are almost in a fast-talking style often used by Reed (if not all the time).

Following this is "Charley's Girl" which is about some of the strange people Reed knows. It is believed that most of his songs are written about people and things he has seen during the strange years of his life.

"She's My Best Friend" is also a fair cut on this side and contains some heavy instrumentals. "Kicks" closes side one and is somewhat Rock-jazz. This is a fair cut also, if you like shit.

Side two opens with the real winner on the album, "A Gift (to the women of the world)" which he feels is himself. The moral to the song is that "it's hard to settle for second best when you've had the best" or something like that. The music is good if you can overlook the corny lyrics.

"Nobody's Business" is also on this side and is also a fair cut. This one goes to show you that the thing that makes LOU REED good is his ability to write material to fit his style.

The title cut ends the album and is the best cut on the album. Here, Reed uses everything he has to express an emotional song. This is almost like what BERLIN was all about.

To sum up: this album is very good, if you are a LOU REED fan. If you have never liked Reed you probably will not like this album either. CONEY ISLAND BABY is a great improvement over the Metal Machine album but does not come close to BERLIN. Then again, LOU REED may never to anything like BERLIN again. Till then, ROCK-OUT.

BAD COMPANY

RUN WITH THE PACK

SWAN SONG SS-8415

Well, here we are with Bad Company's third album and one more real shit kicker of a rock & roll album it is. The only thing is that there is really nothing new about it. The songs are all very similar to what is on the other albums and the vocals too remain similar.

What has happened is what I suspected all the time. Bad Company began as the super-group of all times. There was the heavy rock sound and vocals of FREE mixed with the excellent guitar of MOTT THE HOOPLE which equalled the perfect group. Their first album was perfect. Not a mistake on the whole thing. How they expected to ever top the first album is very hard to see.

Now do not get me wrong on this, for this is a very good album. Bad Company has not gotten any worse or better, but remains excellent.

RUN WITH THE PACK is somewhat slower than the first two albums in that most of the cuts are similar to "Weep No More" off the STRAIGHT SHOOTER LP or "Seagull" from the first album.

It is also hard to say which cuts are the best and which would make the best singles. I would suggest "Simple Man" and "Silver, Blue and Gold" as possible singles, but I am sure any of the cuts could be eligible.

If this album goes as the others have, you will probably hear almost everything off of it sooner or later. I am sure it is another gold for BAD COMPANY.

Jimmy Buffett

STEREO REVIEW: He is easygoing, funny, open, and appears to be peripherally amused when he is on the stage; he seems to be following his own advice: "Laugh at it, that's the secret."

PENTHOUSE: Buffett is one of the new breed of educated, hip country singer-songwriters, somewhere between Kris Kristofferson and Steve Goodman, though he is a better performer and conceivably a better writer than either one.

LOS ANGELES TIMES: Jimmy Buffett is a casual country-folk singer who comes on like a good ol' country boy who just wants to make everybody feel friendly and happy.

HOMECOMING '76 - A MIXED BAG

by Ray Warren

An unusual quiet descended on the UNC-W residence hall Sunday morning. Only the hallways and lobbies, cluttered with toilet paper, beer bottles and a variety of spilled beverages, gave testimony to the events of the preceding 24 hours. Despite the generally disappointing lack of interest in the Homecoming celebration, the humiliating victory over the first place Campbell Camels by the Seahawk basketball squad helped to lift the spirits of dorm residents and off-campus students alike.

The most successful and well-attended events took place Saturday night. In addition to the two basketball games (the women's team made a valiant effort, but went down in defeat), the night also featured the coronation of the new Homecoming Queen and the after-Homecoming dance. The title of Homecoming Queen was captured by Ms. Theresa Finch, sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega fraternity.

The Fledgling entry, Debbie Nichols, was named first runner-up. After the game, jubilant students joined in masse to invade the Wrightsville Beach Holiday Inn for the big dance. The band, "Shotgun," proved to be of unusually good quality and many in attendance danced the hours away. There were a number of complaints, however, about the inadequate facilities. A number of students apparently decided to turn the event into a drunken spree and openly flouted their disregard for the semi-formal dress code requested by the dance committee.

The other events of "Homecoming Week" generally fell victim to the student apathy which runs rampant at UNC-W. "Funny Lady," "Going Surfing," and the North Carolina Symphony were moderate successes. Jimmy Buffett was a sell-out, but rowdy students who insisted, with typical Jr. High immaturity, on consuming alcohol and marijuana in the Kenan Auditorium despite the well-known rules against such practices, may have eliminated concerts from the list of activities on this campus.

Already banned from the Gym, future concerts may also be barred in the Kenan Auditorium as a result of student conduct at the Buffett show.

The dinner theater met with a different fate, being cancelled altogether because of the usual lack of interest. "Divided We Stand" was a critical success, but less than a popular success, as less than one-fifth of the student body cared to attend their free performance on a Friday night.

The Homecoming Parade also came close to death for a time. It survived in an abbreviated fashion, mainly due to the efforts of a few dedicated students and the campus fraternities. Tau Kappa Epsilon's liberty bell adorned entry captured the prize for best float.

THE TKE'S PARADE their prize winning float, the liberty bell

On the whole, Homecoming '76, was a mixed bag. There was some who worked feverishly to make it a success, but most students proved that, despite their well-known interest in partying, when it comes to hard work to support school spirit, Seahawks just don't give a damn.

Big Buddy Program

by Ned H. Martin

Could you enjoy a walk on Masonboro Island on a sunny summer day, dreaming up the origin of a weathered plank of wood with a 10-year-old boy? Or how about a trek through the woods with a boy and a dog on the first crisp autumn day? Or bowling with a young friend on a rainy winter's afternoon?

If these activities appeal to you, but you don't have a youngster that you can share experiences with, the Big Buddy Program can perform the necessary introductions.

The Big Buddy Program of Wilmington currently involves about twenty young adults (18-35) who have formed special one-to-one relationships with youngsters (ages 7-14) as a result of being "matched" on the basis of interests and personalities by the administrator of the program, Mr. Sid Bradsher of Family Services.

Big Buddies generally get together with their Little Buddies each week for 3-5 hours. The time together can be spent in any mutually satisfactory way. Beachcombing, swimming, hiking, fishing, bowling, picnicking, exploring, visiting museums, and shopping are some of the ways my Little Buddy and I have spent our Saturday afternoons together.

My relationship with my Little Buddy brings me joy that exceeds the sum total of all the fun times we've had together. Although we were comfortable as Buddies from the day we met, it has taken months for the trust we now enjoy to develop. It's because of the solidity of our relationship that I enjoy it so much.

Occasionally problems arise in Big Buddy-Little Buddy relationships. Monthly meetings of all the Big Buddies are held to enable us to compare experiences and share ideas, and usually the group can suggest a way to alleviate the problem.

Prior to being assigned a Little Buddy, each prospective Big Buddy participates in a brief orientation designed to introduce the program and to sharpen one's awareness in interpersonal relations. An introductory meeting is planned for Monday night, February 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the Pine Valley Baptist Church, Annex 1, and an orientation session will be held on Saturday, February 28 in the same location. Current Big Buddies will be present to discuss their experiences with those interested in becoming Big Buddies. We welcome you - men and women - to join our group ... and be a Buddy!

Seventh Graders

To The Editor:

I would like to voice my opinion on some of the past issues of the Seahawk, and especially the latest issue. I feel the Seahawk has improved somewhat since the first September issue; yet, overall, the whole paper seems to be suffering from a lack of editorial efficiency which I feel is badly needed.

I am referring to several articles in which the typing and proofreading were so bad I could hardly make sense of what was being written. I realize printers make mistakes, but editors can proofread and catch those mistakes before the final edition goes to the presses. And, I agree with Allen Sheneman that the homecoming queen pictures could have at least had the correct name underneath them, even if the pictures didn't come out very clearly. I feel sorry for those girls whose names were switches—you could have at least reprinted the pictures with the correct names underneath them in the February 11 issue.

Finally, Darlene Pearsall's column has to win the prize for best junior-high humor ever published. Who does she think she's writing for? And although you claim that letters to the editors will be "subject to editing for libel and profanity," the "Seasons '76" column prints such glorious phrases as "real shit kicker" and "this is a fair cut also, if you like shit." You seem to have set a double standard for yourselves as far as editorial policy is concerned.

Although I feel the Seahawk has a definite voice in campus life, I feel that voice would be heard louder if you would raise your standards from junior-high to university level. We can identify much better with a person our own age, rather than a seventh grader.

Sincerely,
Jeanne Newsome
Sophomore English Major

Motorcycle Parking

To The Editor:

I know that the parking situation is bad at UNC-W. I have already racked up two parking tickets this semester. The parking situation is even worse for those of us who ride motorcycles.

As a motorcyclist, I have had many bad experiences on this campus. Unlike other schools I've been to, this school has not got a place marked especially for motorcycles. For cars and bicycles, yes, but not for the motorcycles. As a result, motorcycles get banged up and, as in my case, get parts stolen off of them.

You can park three motorcycles in a space marked off for one car. So it seems like the officials would allot a special place for motorcycles. Or look at it this way. If the officials at UNC-W let bicyclists park their bikes on the grounds, why not let the motorcyclists park their bikes on the grounds.

So, until there is something done about the parking places for motorcycles or the security (if there is any) of the parking lots, I guess I, along with the other guys who ride motorcycles, will just have to hope that John the Ripper-Officer doesn't like the way that motorcycle would look in his garage. If the motorcycles are kept together, then the security of the campus can keep a closer eye on them as a whole.

EDITORIALS —

Expletive Deleted's Are Fine But . . .

The Seahawk welcomes all letters to the editor and particularly those which offer constructive criticism concerning any aspect of this institution.

A letter in this week's issue from Jeanne Newsome raises some basic questions concerning Seahawk policy and quality and merits some comment.

Apologies to Sherrie Hendrix and Debbie Brooks are in order. The misplacement of their names in the February 4 edition was indeed an error on our part. We blew it. However, a reprint in the February 11 paper was not possible due to the great volume of material for that issue and the fact that voting had already taken place.

There is no double standard where profanity is concerned. Expletive deleted's are fine but the line is drawn on profanity when it is used in reference to an individual or to excess. In order to call Joe Schmoe a son-of-a-bitch, one must first prove that Schmoe's mother is a registered AKC poodle. Does the Seahawk reserve the right to edit for libel and profanity? You'd better believe it!

Interestingly, of the many comments received on the Dear Darlene column, Ms. Newsome's is the first negative reaction. This may say something for the sophistication of Ms. Newsome's humor, or the lack of it, in the case of the many others we have heard from.

Finally, Ms. Newsome so carefully reads the Seahawk she has undoubtedly seen an ad which has appeared in several issues. The ad states "in bold type, 'SEAHAWK Staff Needed.'" Included in the list are reporters and writers, layout people and proofreaders.

Such observations are appreciated but proofreading talents would be more beneficial if done on Monday nights prior to the paper being sent to press.

Out on a Limb

Predictions for the New Hampshire Primary

Next Tuesday, voters in New Hampshire will provide the first insight into a clouded and crowded field of candidates, giving the American public the first hints about who will and will not survive in this election year. The primary there will not determine absolutely which candidates will remain in the race, but what will be determined is the relative strength of each man who is entered there.

The Republican ballot will hold the names of President Gerald Ford and his challenger, Ronald Reagan. The former California governor is expected to give the President a hard run, and a less than 50 percent showing for Ford would be very embarrassing. It is very difficult to predict which will win, but to venture out on a limb, I expect a narrow victory for Ford, probably around 57 percent to Reagan's 43 percent.

This will not be a strong showing for Ford, and he will then have to look forward to an even tougher Florida primary in March.

For the Democrats, it will probably end in a free-for-all brawl with no clear-cut winner, and following the examples of earlier caucus states, there will be a single share of uncommitted delegates. Perhaps 25 percent or even more, will be selected uncommitted.

The Democratic ballot includes seven aspirants: Former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia, former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma, Kennedy-in-law Sargeant Shriver, Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, and Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, and anti-abortion candidate Ellen McCormick. There is also an active write-in campaign underway for Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota.

Carter should place first among the contenders with about 18 percent of the vote, followed by Harris with 16 percent. Jackson, the only conservative in the pack, should score third with 15 percent. Bayh and Udall should trail with about 10 percent and 8 percent respectively, plunging both their campaigns in deep trouble. Shriver will probably drag in with a token 5 percent. Humphrey should edge McCormick with 2 percent to her one percent.

This will be my first attempt at predicting an election outcome. These figures are based only on months of reading about and following the campaign. They are certainly subject to inaccuracy.

Anything can happen in that first primary. The results will certainly be an important indication of what can be expected in the remainder of the campaign.

Spring Maintenance

Mr. Dave Lupkin and the maintenance crews have several important projects planned for this spring. Students will not be charged that will make their lives at UNC-W much easier.

This week, we will see the streetlights come back on. The lights have been revised so that two out of every three will cut off at 11:00 p.m. to save power.

Students will soon notice soil samples being taken behind King Hall. This area is one of several chosen as a possible site for a larger, new book-store.

The parking lot by the gym is being paved. There will also be land clearing for a new lot to be located between Lot E and F street near the proposed new bookstore site.

Ramps for handicapped students are currently being constructed at Hoggard Hall and the Administration Building. More ramps are being planned.

Two new and badly needed access roads will also be built this spring. A road between Galloway Hall and Rose Avenue will be built along existing fire lanes. Another road will extend from College Acres Drive to the corner of F street by the Marine Science Building.

Chris Potter

Rehder Short Story Contest

UNC-W students have until five o'clock, Friday, February 27, to enter their short stories in the Jessie Rehder Short Story Contest. Each student may submit one or two stories to the English Department.

The Jessie Rehder Short Story Contest was created as a stimulus for UNC-W student writers. It offers money prizes, recognition for outstanding writing abilities, and competition between fellow students.

Prizes for the winning stories are: $100, first prize; $50, second; $30, third; and two honorable mentions of $10 each.

The contest is financed by the UNC-W Jessie Rehder Memorial Fund. The fund was established as a memorial to Miss Rehder and as an encouragement to student creativity.

tivity.

Jessie Rehder, a Wilmingtonian, was the director of the creative writing program at UNC-Chapel Hill for twenty years.

Besides encouraging student writers, Miss Rehder was a writer herself, as well as a teacher.

She published two textbooks: "The Story at Work" and "The Young Writer at Work." Also, in the realm of fiction, Miss Rehder's best known work was "Remembrance Way."

Revolving around writers and writing, Miss Rehder's life was influential not only by her own contributions but by her involvement with her students.

It is appropriate that the UNC-W short story contest is named after Jessie Rehder.

1976 Student Travel Catalog

The Council on International Educational Exchange (CIEE), the largest student travel organization in the U.S., is giving the 1976 Student Travel Catalog for free. What's in it for you? If you're affiliated with a college, university or school, there's plenty! If you're a teacher, a student, or an administrator, the Catalog has 50 pages of bargains, benefits and travel advice just in time for your next trip.

For a copy of the Student Travel Catalog, write to CIEE, Dept. EMC, at 777 United Nations Plaza, New York, New York 10017, or 236 North Santa Cruz, No. 314, Los Gatos, California 95030, and enclose 25 cents to cover postage costs. Or, if you're in the neighborhood, stop in and pick up a copy at either office—they're both open from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.

African Subsistence

On Feb. 24, in M-151, Dr. Stuart Marks from St. Andrews Presbyterian College will present "African Subsistence Hunting." Dr. Marks holds a B.S. degree from North Carolina State, a M.S., and a Ph.D. from Michigan State. Dr. Marks has traveled and studied in Africa extensively. This lecture should be of interest to all biology and anthropology majors, as well as faculty.

Senate Minutes

A regular session of the UNC-W Senate was called to order on February 2, 1976 by Carol Moore at 11:30 in room 201-A.

Rufus Butner gave the invocation.

The minutes were read. A correction was made. The homecoming parade will be held at 3:30 instead of 3:00 on Friday.

Gary Shipman reported for the Homecoming Committee. The lunchbox theatre is cancelled.

Robert Jones reported for the Elections Committee. Elections will be held on March 16 and 17.

Carol Moore organized a committee to write a letter to clarify matters in the Wilmington Journal.

Carol Moore asked members of the Senate to propose a minority standing committee to represent minority viewpoints on campus. She asked Carol Rains, Ronald Sparks, Captain Newborn, Robert Jones, and Clay Fairley to propose this committee.

A motion was made for adjournment. It was seconded, passed and the meeting adjourned at 12:15. Respectfully submitted, Ms. Sharon Davis

GALACTIC GHOU NO FOOL FINDS SPACESHOTS COOL GRUEL

(CPS)—Scientists have discovered what appears to be another "Bermuda Triangle" in which craft flying through a certain area encounter weird difficulties such as broken gear and disrupted radio transmission.

Relax, however, if you're planning a trip, unless it's to Mars. The area scientists are worried about is located in space about 35 million miles from earth and 135 million miles from the sun. That spot, which stretches for about 5 million miles, is the celestial stomping grounds of the "Great Galactic Ghou!" who has just gobbled up his seventh space ship.

The Ghou!'s latest victim is the U.S. Viking spacecraft currently headed for the angry red planet where it is scheduled to look for signs of life this summer. The Viking craft lost one of its three soil sampling ovens in a mysterious explosion. Other Ghou! casualties include a battery of the Mariner 7 which exploded while in the Ghou!'s lair, a Mariner radio which malfunctioned temporarily but went back on after leaving the Ghou!'s orbit and two Mariner craft which lost their guiding star upon reaching the area but later regained it after leaving.

"It's uncanny," says John Casani of the Pasadena Jet Propulsion Laboratory. "The Ghou! always seems to know when we're coming his way."

The Ghou! has no apparent ideological hangups. Two Soviet space shots, Zond 2 in 1964 and Mars 1 in 1965, has also been stung. Those two ships lost their radios as they crossed into the Ghou!'s orbit and they never came back on.

BUT WHERE'S HAL PHILLIP WALKER?

(CPS)—Constipation, icebergs and Jesus are the top issues in several presidential campaigns currently being waged around the country.

The candidates, however, are not Carter, Ford and Reagan, but rather Whitford (Ernest), DuMont(Don) and Waggoner (Ira). The three unknowns are among 87 people who have registered with the Federal Election Commission in Washington because they are running for president. President of the United States that is.

Ernest Whitford, a Californian, says constipation is the number one cause of illness in the country and so he would require manufacturers to add bran or roughage to all processed foods. Don DuMont, from Chicago, claims to be founder and director of God's Own People in the USA and he began his campaign by diving into a swimming pool to symbolize "diving into the presidential swim." Ira Waggoner, also from Illinois, wants to drag icebergs out to California so the runoff will irrigate the surrounding deserts.

FOREIGNER GETS BICENTENNIAL HONOR

(CPS)—Which animal best represents America on the occasion of its bicentennial? The horse, according to a poll of children conducted by the Humane Society of the U.S. The Society polled thousands of U.S. youngsters and the immigrant creature brought to America by Spanish conquistadors won over the bald eagle, a true American, which finished second. Other native Americans such as turkeys and salmon finished far down the list.

YES, BUT WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

(CPS)—If you are in college taking a writing course, or even if you have younger brothers or sisters in high school English courses—composition as opposed to literature—you and they will find that the longer, more pompous and the less well-organized sentences you write on yours or their essays, sentences like this one, for example, you will receive better grades from your teachers, many of whom can't recognize good writing, a Chicago researcher has found.

"Heroes and Hard Cases"

The people who saw The Alpha Omega Players perform "Heroes and Hard Cases" last Thursday got a first-hand view of real entertainment.

The show included music, dancing, history, and comedy. The variety was blended appropriately and performed by the Eastern Units of The Alpha Omega Players.

The players are Allyn Winslow, 25, who is originally from Bedford, Mass.; his wife, Alex, 25, from Louisville, Kentucky; Susan Hanson, 24, from Aspen, Colorado; and Kerry Phillips, 24, from Port Neches, Texas. They now call Hometown, U.S.A., their home.

The show very effectively from one intense mood to another throughout the performance. They included something for everyone in the production.

Kerry and Alex wrote the music and lyrics for "Heroes and Hard Cases." They found out that they had to do this only two weeks before rehearsals started, and as Alex put it, "Necessity is the mother of invention."

After the end of the present tour in May, Allyn, Alex, and Susan plan to return to school to work toward their M.A. degrees in Theater. Kerry plans to go "to New York to be found."

The four have been together for two complete nine-month tours. They usually meet in Rockport, Texas on July 15 and rehearse for six weeks.

After the rehearsals, they hit the road and work solid except for a Christmas break. On an average tour, they travel 50,000 miles and give 270 performances throughout the East.

According to Alex, "the touring is fun, but we're all ready for a break."

Creekwood at Good Wood

Creekwood, a wooden-country-rock band is back together after months of economic strife on its individuals. Now that employment worries are over with, the trio is now planning to accept playing dates again with their upcoming appearance at the Good Wood starting them off. They are looking forward to a very enjoyable evening on campus in the Tavern's informal setting.

A little background on Creekwood:

Jerry Powell, originally from Rocky Mount, N.C., the group's bassist has played with a number of bands ranging in style from soul to country to rock. Not only does he play a crazy bass but he also is very accomplished on guitar and throws in some sweet vocals.

Paul Roethlinger, the lead guitarist and lead vocalist has also played with several bands, mostly rock. His superb voice is the backbone of Creekwood's singing. Paul arranges all the harmonies and assigns various parts to Jerry and Steve.

Steve Morrison, Creekwood's songwriter, has never played with any other band as the others, because of a lack of interest in performing radio dictated tunes that most local bands have to do because of demand. Steve has written dozens of songs for Creekwood in the past and about half the songs performed by the band are his compositions. Steve also plays a clean twelve string and is quick to harmonize vocally.

Most people remember Creekwood from their performances with Renaissance and the Earl Scruggs Revue a good while back here on campus. They were very impressive to both audiences. Most of the club dates played by Creekwood were in the Raleigh area at the Deja Vu and The Pier.

Creekwood will be performing Saturday, Feb. 21 at UNC-W's Good Wood Tavern beginning at 9:00 p.m. with free admission. Don't miss this show.

Kenny Mingo

Kenny Mingo will appear in the Good Wood this Friday night. A native of New York, Mingo is an acoustic guitar and harmonic virtuoso who has played in numerous pubs and colleges in New York State. His music is varied, with folk, blues and old tradition... songs interspersed with original compositions. Mingo recently moved to Wilmington to use his carpentry skills building boats. Stop by and enjoy this newcomer! His two shows are scheduled for 9 and 10 p.m.

"Blazing Saddles"

The traditional Western movies, which have thundered out of Hollywood in the half-century since Bronco Billy began to head 'em off at the pass, enter a new era this year.

The occasion is Warner Bros. "Blazing Saddles." This is, in brief, the whackiest shoot-em up that ever was. And it comes, naturally enough, from the comedy genius of two-time Academy Award-winner Mel Brooks.

Mel directed "Blazing Saddles" and co-authored the script. This left him enough time to play the gaudy role of Leptomane, the most girl-hungry Governor who ever toolled through the Territory.

In this super spoof of good guys versus badies, a fine flock of stars races in and out of the turbulent town of Rock Ridge. Cleavon Little, a Tony Award-winner and one of TV's brightest young actors, is the Black sheriff with a private plan for keeping the peace. Gene Wilder, who came into crime with "Bonnie and Clyde," is the over-the-hill gunfighter turned whacko on whiskey. Slim Pickens, in his 130th film role, leads a kinky band of cutthroats.

Harvey Korman, Carol Burnett's leading man and winner of three Emmy Awards, stars as the go-for-broke bureaucrat enlisting half-wits and nit-wits to reshape the West. No horse opera has it made without a bad room singer. "Blazing Saddles" co-stars Madeline Kahn as a Teutonic warbler with big eyes for the sheriff.

Also starred are George Furth, author of two Broadway hits, "Twigs" and "Company,"; Alex Karras, former footballer All-Pro four times with the Detroit Lions; David Huddleston, Liam Dunn, John Hillerman and Claude E. Starret Jr.

Busy Mel Brooks, who won an Oscar for best story and screenplay with "The Producers," even worked out a second role for himself in "Blazing Saddles" - a half-Jewish Indian chief whooping it up in war paint.

By any day's Hollywood standards, "Blazing Saddles" has a huge cast. Included in the wildest action a Western has ever known are the Hell's Angels on horseback, German soldiers, forty dancers, a pack of camels, thirty stuntmen and a Brahma bull. Then there's Tarzan and Cheeta, foxy starlets - you should excuse us - Adolph Hitler, all involved in the wildest pie-throwing fiasco since the Keystone Kops.

Filming of "Blazing Saddles" ranged from a huge Western set constructed at the Burbank Studio to the scorching Mojave Desert, where the great Count Basie and his orchestra did one day's shooting in the dunes.

The comedy Western was produced by Michael Hertzberg. Co-authoring the screenplay with Mel were Norman Steinberg, Andrew Bergman, Richard Pryor and Alan Unger. The "Blazing Saddles" theme song is sung by Frankie Laine.

Be a Big Buddy

WHAT IS A BIG BUDDY?

... a Big Brother or Big Sister who is eighteen years old or older who can volunteer two or three hours per week to spend with a Little Brother or Sister. Most of all, a Big Buddy is a good friend.

WHAT IS A LITTLE BUDDY?

... a child who for one reason or another lacks a readily available male or female adult relationship and who needs the influence and attention of an adult in addition to his parents. Often the child is having problems mainly because of the lack of positive attention.

ARE THERE OTHER REQUIREMENTS?

Yes. You must fill out an application, be interviewed, and attend orientation sessions. Each volunteer is asked to commit a year to the program and attend a monthly meeting with other volunteers. DO I HAVE TO BE ATHLETIC?

No. Children are as different as adults so there is a need for all kinds of interests and activities to share with Little Buddies. Big and Little Buddies will be matched according to interests and other complementary characteristics.

HOW DO I LEARN MORE ABOUT THE BIG BUDDY PROGRAM?

Biology Club Minutes

A regular meeting of the UNC-W Biology Club was called to order on Tuesday, February 10, 1976 by David Webster at 11:30 a.m. in room M-151.

Julia Odom addressed the club and suggested that the senior members of the Biology Club and a few faculty members of the Biology Dept. have a luncheon or some similar fellowship in order for the students to know the professors better and vice-versa.

Possible discussion topics would be graduate school, job opportunities, etc. Dr. Padgett suggested that a meeting of this type be held in the evening to avoid schedule conflicts. Dr. Kapraun reported that according to tradition, the Biology Club has always held a party for senior members at Amory Park and should attempt to do the same this year. Julia suggested that anyone interested in arranging such a gathering contact her sometime soon.

Dave Webster then announced that on February 24, Dr. Stuart A. Marks from St. Andrews College will present a lecture entitled "African Subsistence Hunters." This lecture is open to the public and will be presented either in the Marine Biology building or King Hall (final location to be announced). Refreshments will be served.

Following this announcement an excellent slide presentation was given by Tim Powell, Earl Haddock, and Dave Webster on the work of the terrestrial group on the biology trip to Ecuador in the summer of 1975. The meeting was adjourned at 12:20 p.m. Respectfully submitted, Wayne Barbee

SEAHAWKS BOMB CAMPBELL, 82-66

Homecoming was a little nicer this year as a result of UNC-W's 82-66 victory over district leader and nationally ranked Campbell College.

The Camels, ranked tenth in the nation's small college poll, shot only 36 percent from the floor as the Seahawks played excellent defense.

Coach Mel Gibson had to constantly juggle the lineup in an effort to keep players out of foul trouble. Despite his efforts, Dave Wolff fouled out midway through the second half and Harold Jackson followed with 6:44 left to play in the physical contest.

Jackson led all scorers with 26 points as he hit spinning jump shots off the key. Delaney Jones added 14 points and 14 rebounds and Ernie Lynn also scored in double figures with 11 points.

Midway through the first half the Hawks outscored Campbell 12-0 to take a 26-14 lead. The Camels cut into the Hawk lead but a last second basket by Lynn gave UNC-W a 37-25 halftime advantage.

UNC-W shot a blistering 80 percent to keep the lead throughout the second half although Campbell made several rallies...

Freshman Todd Lickliter came off the bench to help the Hawks run the four-corner offense.

Jim Brogden, who quarterbacked the Seahawk attack, had another outstanding floor game.

Overall, it was an outstanding team victory. UNC-W led the rebounding battle 41-31 and was 26 for 36 from the foul line.

Next home action for the Hawks will be Feb. 24 when Western Carolina invades Hanover Hall.

ERNIE LYNN SKIES over Camels for two

Lady Hawks Bow

UNC-W's women's basketball team lost to the Campbell Women's team, 68-55.

The Lady Hawks played the Camels a much closer game than the previous meeting of the two teams.

The score was close throughout the first half of play but a Camel spurt in the closing minutes gave them an 8 point halftime advantage.

Sheila Boles once again paced the Hawk attack.

The Hawks started strong in the second half but hit a cold streak midway through and could not get a shot to fall. Campbell pulled away to the final margin of 68-55.

Women's Softball

Are you a frustrated female? Take your frustrations out on a softball February 23 at the gym. That's when tryouts for UNC-W's women's softball team will be held.

A great number of girls have expressed an interest in the team that will be coached by Mrs. Lewis of the P.E. Department. Practices will be held daily.

Two games have already been scheduled with Methodist College. There will also be a double elimination softball tournament at N.C. State in Raleigh. Mrs. Lewis hopes to schedule more matches with area colleges.

An Experience: BLACK CULTURAL WEEK AT UNC-W

by Ray Warren

"Lift every voice and sing,
Till earth and heaven ring.
Ring with the harmonies of liberty
Let our rejoicing rise
High as the listening skies.
Let it resound loud as the rolling sea.
Sing a song full of faith that the dark past has taught us.
Sing a song full of the hope that the present has brought us.
Facing the rising sun of our new day begun . . ."

With the singing of Lift Every Voice, often called the Negro National Anthem, the fourth annual celebration of Black Cultural Week came to a close Friday night. The week-long program, sponsored by Wantu Wazuri, featured numerous guest speakers as well as dramatic and musical presentations.

Wantu-Wazuri president Aaron McCrae opened the celebration Monday night. Featured on that occasion were the Willis Richardson Players. The integrated cast presented "In White America," a dramatic presentation of the various stages of Black American history.

Two speakers were featured Tuesday night. Ms. Thelma Yarbrough, a former UNC-W instructor, spoke of the frustrations of the Black experience in America and questioned the relevancy of the nation's Bicentennial celebration to Black people. Professor Kwame Arkin, a native of Ghana in West Africa, spoke on African culture. The professor came out strongly against foreign involvement in troubled Angola. Replying to the argument that the United States must counter Soviet influence in the area, Arhim stated that "having gained independence, the Angolans are unlikely to accept a communist master to replace a capitalist one."

Wednesday featured two of Wilmington's most prominent citizens. Mr. Thomas Jervay, editor of the Black-oriented Wilmington Journal, spoke on the role of the press in the Black community. Jervay, to whom the cultural week celebration was dedicated this year, vigorously defended the need and usefulness of the Black press. He related the danger of daring to speak the truth in an often racist society and recalled one politician's remark that he would be elected to public office "come hell, high water, or the Wilmington Journal." Reverend M.L. Dillingham, pastor of Ebenezer Baptist Church, followed Mr. Jervay. Reverend Dillingham discussed the role of the church in the Black community. He defended the Church as the one institution where black men could always for "one hour a week" unite together as full-fledged citizens of God's kingdom. While accepting the spiritual mission of the Church, Rev. Dillingham also asserted the church's responsibility to bring social justice and spread the truth. He cited the numerous black clergymen such as M.L. King and Rev. Ben Chavis as examples of men who fully espouse the gospel precepts of truth and justice.

The Wilmington race riot of 1898 was the focus of Thursday night's activities. The riot was dramatized in music, dance and dialogue by the College Players. It was an emotional experience utilizing background voices and light effects to convey the sense of terror, pain and loss felt by the black community during and after the violence. A symposium on the effects of the riot, both past and present, followed the dramatization. The audience showed a great willingness to discuss the issue.

Several people questioned whether the racial climate of the city has changed since 1898, but several members of the discussion panel, including Dr. Mosely and Dr. Helen Edmonds, expressed a belief that the situation has moderated considerably in the past 75 years.

Friday, the last night of the cultural week celebration, featured Dr. Helen Edmonds. Dr. Edmonds is an internationally known authority on Black History. She has served on several federal committees and authored several books including Black Faces in High Places and The Negro and Fusion Politics in North Carolina. Edmonds warned her audience to avoid "gimmicks" such as separatism and "back to African movements." The country is moving into a time of conservatism, she warned, not unlike the period following Reconstruction. "I'm not sure we need any new civil rights legislation," she stated, "but we do need adequate enforcement of existing legislation." She urged her audience to work together for positive advancement of Black people. On the bicentennial theme, Dr. Edmonds defended Black participation in the celebration.

"This is the only country I know," she remarked, reminding the audience that Black history is an integral part of American history. She suggested positive projects for the Black community to adopt in celebration of the bicentennial. Among her suggestions was the preservation of the honors and awards from the old Williston High School, which produced some of Wilmington's most prominent leaders. "I am not advocating Jim Crow Schools," she stressed, "but merely the preservation of Williston's past honors as a part of local Black culture."

She also suggested taped interviews with elderly Black citizens to document oral traditions and aid future writers of local Black history. Dr. Edmonds closed her remarks by cautioning the audience not to get so wrapped up in self-awareness and their own Blackness that they lose sight of the whole American situation. The celebration of Black Cultural Week was fittingly brought to a close by James and Samuel Johnson's famous words, "Let us march on till victory is won."

S.G.A. Elections

Elections for positions in the Student Government Association of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington will be held March 16 and 17. All interested persons who qualify to run for office must pick up a Petition for Office form from the SGA Office (upstairs in the Pub) beginning February 16. Deadline for returning the completed form to the SGA office is Thursday, Feb. 26 at noon.

In order for a student to qualify to run for any office of the SGA, three requirements must be met. First of all the student must be taking at least 12 semester hours. Secondly, he must have an overall GPA of 2.0 as of the fall semester, 1975, which the Elections Committee will verify with the Registrar's Office. Your signature on the Petition for Office form permits the Registrar's office to verify this. The final criteria that must be met is a Constitution Test to be administered and graded by the Elections Board Chairman. This test will be given Friday, Feb. 27 at 12:30 p.m. in the Good Wood Tavern.

For further clarification, I shall quote from Section III of the Board of Elections Bylaws: "Any student may be eligible to run for any office if they qualify as a regular, full-time student, have a minimum of 2.0 GPA and have scored a passing grade on the constitution test, with exception of the office of president and vice-president where only members of the rising junior and senior classes are eligible." Elections Board Chairman Robert E. Jones

V.I.C.E. SQUAD

by Mitchell Dutch

Recently David Brickley, head of the V.I.C.E. Squad (Video Incorporated Campus Entertainment Squad), went to the UNC-W dorm "in search of intelligent life." The purpose of the raid was to give dorm students a chance to air their gripes about dorm living. Squawks ranged from incompatibility of roommates to not enough social life, too much noise and the old standby—the edibility of cafeteria food.

Brickley said that most of the complaints were the usual ones associated with life on campus. In other words, people have always complained and would probably continue to do so. The result of the expedition was "Is There Intelligence in the Dorm?", a videotape shown Feb. 16 and 17.

Brickley has also done another campus-related film, "Campus Security, A Clash of Lifestyles." The film recorded a panel discussion concerning campus police and narcotics agents on campus.

The third of the V.I.C.E. Squad's series of campus films will be an interview with Chancellor Wagoner. The chancellor will discuss future plans for the UNC-W campus. "What's Happening for UNC-W" will be of interest to all who want to know what sort of developments to expect at UNC-W.

It would also be of interest to all students to keep an eye on V.I.C.E. Squad programs because the V.I.C.E. Squad may well be watching you.

EDITORIALS

SENATE SAVES SEAHAWK

It's true that the Seahawk is a day late; but there's an old expression—"better late than never." In the case of the Seahawk, it was almost never again.

Editors resigned, advertising directors quit, and debts accrued. It was discovered last week that the Seahawk had become insolvent. It seemed that there would be no more newspapers for the rest of the year. With their backs to the wall, the two co-editors turned to the Senate for help.

On Monday afternoon, the Finance Committee was informed of the situation. By Tuesday afternoon, a proposal was placed before the Senate to rescue the paper from its overdue bills. The proposal was unanimously approved. And the Seahawk lives on.

The Seahawk, the official newspaper of UNC-W students, is published weekly on Tuesday for Wednesday distribution. All articles should be in the Seahawk office by five on Friday for publication on the following Tuesday.

Buildup
March 1976

The University Theater presented its third production of the year this past weekend. Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest" proved to be an unqualified success. The parody of social manners and morals in upper class Victorian England seems to have lost none of its relevance.

Basic to the success of the comedy was the actors' ability to utter the most ridiculous of statements in a most serious manner. Each of the actors carried the play off wonderfully and seemed totally ignorant of his own triviality.

Don Ansell as John Worthing and Flynn Rivenbark as Algernon Moncrieff, proved to be suitably over-pampered products of wealthy Victorian society. Both spoiled hypocrites set out to obtain the hand of the woman he loved.

The women, however, really carried the show. Leslie Jordan was absolutely perfect in her part as Gwendolin Fairfax. Her manner and delivery were absolutely convincing. Aurelia Huff conveyed all the empty headedness and limited outlook expected from pretty little Cecily Cardew. Penny Pridemore lent the necessary force and battle-ship personality required for her portrayal of Lady Bracknell.

A third little mating game was evident between Cecily Cardew's governess, Miss Prism, and the Reverend

"Earnest" -A Success

Chausable. Joel Perry gave Chausable a certain hypocritical dignity, while Susan Richey allowed the intentions of Miss Prism to show rather blatantly. Both handled their roles exceedingly well and were in all respects convincing.

Ed Danilowicz, as Lane, and Tee Sledge, as Merriman made excellent use of snide glances and voice inflection to indicate that perhaps the butlers were the only real people on stage. It was obvious that they could see behind the other character's masks of respectability. This skillfully allowed the audience to identify with them.

The only point one could raise in disapproval of the production might be the question of voice quality. Several times southern accents tended to mingle with the desired English one.

Flynn Rivenbark's high squeak did not necessarily conflict with his characterization, but did tend to grate on one's nerves.

All and all, however, it was a beautifully cast and directed show. Hal Knowles managed to utilize the tiny SRO Theater to maximum potential with his "theater in the round" set design. The lighting was perfect and well utilized. Congratulations to the cast, crew, and Ann Fitzgibbons for sustaining the well-earned reputation of the University Theater.

Abortion in Politics

"Abortion as a top political issue is negligible," explains Dr. Ahmad of the UNC-W Political Science Department. He feels the majority of the people agree with the Supreme Court's decision of 1973: during the first three months of pregnancy, it is between the doctor and patient; during the next three, the states can regulate procedures; and in the last three, states can ban it.

Dr. Ahmad says that "unemployment, inflation, economic recovery and foreign policy are far more important issues," with unemployment probably at the top of the list.

Dr. Ahmad suggests that domestic problems are more important than international; states' rights is a prime example, although campaigners use this issue every year. When speaking of issues, however, Ahmad points out that "money is still the mother's milk of politics."

When asked who will win the election, Dr. Ahmad chuckled and answered (objectively), "Whoever the Democrats nominate."

NORTH CAROLINA PRIMARY

North Carolina March 23 presidential preference primary is becoming an increasingly important race in the long trail to both the Democratic and Republican nominating conventions this summer. As one of the earliest primaries in this election year—preceded only by four others—the race is shaping up as a major influence on the campaigns of those who will be running here.

For the Democrats, this latest focus on North Carolina comes in the wake of the withdrawal from the race of former Governor Terry Sanford, the native candidate whose efforts ended in frustration with the grueling campaign ordeal. With Sanford's name on the ballot, most observers and other candidates expected a showdown between Sanford and Alabama Governor George Wallace.

The expectation of the Sanford-Wallace duel, from which Sanford would have had to revenge a sizable defeat in a similar 1972 contest, allowed only former Governor Jimmy Carter of Georgia to express an interest in joining the race.

But since Sanford's exit, not only Carter but Washington Senator Henry Jackson, former Oklahoma Senator Fred Harris, and Arizona Representative Morris Udall jumped into the ring. Senator Lloyd Bentsen of Texas had also planned to enter before he reduced his campaign to a favorite-son effort.

Although Harris and Udall have not announced the actual extent of their campaigns in North Carolina, Carter, Jackson, and Wallace have indicated a strong effort will be waged on their part.

What this points to is an active Democratic primary battle among those three contenders. It will be an all the more interesting match-up because the Florida primary two weeks earlier is likely to pit those same three candidates in a very crucial contest.

The Florida primary will be important in that it will be the first election of the '76 campaign in the South. It will also be the first important battle between Carter and Wallace who each will be trying to claim the title of representative for the "New South." (If Wallace emerges the victor, the "New South" label will be grossly inaccurate since the Alabamian represents much of the leftovers of the "Old South.")

Either of these three men has the potential to score a victory in Florida. Wallace, who won there handily in '72, has a slight edge, but it is very possible for Carter, with his newly acquired momentum, to win a delegate plurality. Jackson, too, could conceivably put together an upset victory, with a strongly active round of campaigning. (Jackson, among others, trailed Wallace in Florida in 1972.)

A Florida victory for either of these men would put the winner in the position that he must run well in a second state with the other two, to prove his durability—and that state would be North Carolina.

Already, signs can be seen of the active campaign that is sure to come. Former Senator Sam Ervin has endorsed Jackson and former Governor Bob Scott is backing Carter. Wallace has a well-established following that remains from the '72 race.

Carter's objective in both Florida and North Carolina will be to cut the margin of victory that Wallace established in both states in 1972, showing that he can compete with Wallace on the home territory of both men. Wallace's objective will be to repeat his victories of '72 and show that he still has the same appeal that he had then.

Jackson, though a distant long-shot to come in first, will be shooting for a second-place outcome in either state to prove his strength and bolster his campaign.

Probably the only way for Jackson to finish second would be for Carter to finish third, since Wallace has a constituency that is not likely to drift away very easily. Wallace is virtually guaranteed a first or second place showing in both primaries; Jackson at best can expect a second place.

That means that the pivotal spot will belong to Carter, who could win outright or trail in second or even third. The main factor in determining his showing will be the strength of his momentum coming out of New Hampshire's primary and other caucus states. If by the time of the Florida race he is marked as the distinct front-runner, his chances there will be substantially increased; and a win over Wallace in Florida would put him in an excellent position to take North Carolina.

Carter, Jackson and Wallace are the three strongest men in the Democratic race now. If the eventual nominee is to be one who has battled in the early primaries and caucuses, it will most likely be Carter or Jackson. Though Wallace has strength, he has little to offer in the way of an electable nominee. It is very unlikely that the loser in Florida will subsequently abandon his campaign—each of them has too strong an organization to be stopped by one primary loss.

What is very likely to happen in Florida is a slight Wallace victory, with Carter second and Jackson third. This would be a strong showing for each man and thus make North Carolina's primary that much more crucial for each of them. For the loser, he must bounce back here; for the winner, he must maintain a respectable showing.

No matter what the Florida results, if the current trend of the campaign continues, North Carolinians will find themselves in a very bright spotlight on March 23. The decision of voters here will now have a much greater bearing on the national Democratic campaign than had initially been expected.

SHORTS FROM CPS

COLLEGE

We Can't Go On Meeting Like This

(CPS)—The Danes have come up with a new concept in penology that may have young men looking for crimes to get busted on. In a prison at Ringe, on the island of Funen, they've imprisoned 26 women convicts alongside 50 young male prisoners, and plan to allow them to visit each other.

Sex plays a large role in homes for the retarded and colleges in Denmark, according to prison inspector Erik Anderson. He sees no reason not to permit sex in prison as well. "Why not permit sex in prisons?" he asks. "We think, we hope, it will improve the atmosphere."

And The Text Is At Kitty's Massage & Bookstore

(CPS)—While Salt Lake City police seized copies of Deep Throat recently, students at Westminster College were being treated to a class showing the finer points of what the city fathers are cracking down on. The interdisciplinary class was called "Obscenity and Pornography in American Film and Literature."

The class attracted 70 intent scholars to study books such as

"Tropic of Cancer" and recommended that they do independent research on hard core pornography.

And in Salt Lake City, independent research might require more effort than in other cities. City officials attempting to crack down on smut were dragging two pornographers through the courts at the same time Westminster was teaching its four-week class.

Food for Thought

(CPS)—The surprise in the applause surprise cake which took first place in a recent cooking contest was dried earthworms. For concocting the best recipe using dried earthworms, a Minnesota woman won $500 and first place in the North American Bait Farms bake-off.

The bait farms sponsored the contest to promote the use of earthworms as a protein substitute in human food. The company claims that up to 72 percent of the worms' weight is pure protein.

Some university professors think the idea of insects for human consumption would be nutritionally valuable because they contain protein, fats and carbohydrates. But the exoskeletons could present a problem, an Iowa State University professor said. "I don't believe human beings could digest it."

Another Iowa State University noted that North American Indians used to eat grasshoppers and other people ate grubs, but said he doubted modern Americans would adapt the idea of eating insects readily.

"A much more practical solution is not to go out and catch the bugs, deep fat fry them and eat them whole, but to extract the chemicals from them and put that in other parts of the diet as a supplement."

Student Placement

On Monday, March 22, 1976, Mr. Lewis Pleasants of Renn-Enterprises Limited will be on campus to interview graduating seniors who are interested in acquiring employment with his company. Renn-Enterprises is a company that specializes in safety equipment.

Also, on April 26, 1976 ACTION, which includes Peace Corps and Vista, will have a representative on campus. He too, will conduct interviews for possible employment.

placement.

ACTION informed the Placement Office that is has undergone several major changes in its recruiting procedures. The revision involves a pre-slot system that is designed to match potential Peace Corps and Vista Volunteers with specific openings.

To schedule an interview with either of these representatives or to acquire additional information, contact the Placement Office, Room 113, Alderman Building.

American Youth Hostels, Inc.

If you're looking for an exciting way to spend the upcoming Bicentennial Summer—cheap—check out "hosteling."

American Youth Hostels, Inc. is a non-profit, non-sectarian organization dedicated to promoting enjoyment of the outdoors through traveling. You can hike, bike, canoe, horseback ride or travel a variety of different ways. Overnights can be spent in one of the 151 Youth Hostels across the United States (or in one of the 4,500 International Hostels overseas) for anywhere from $1 to $3.50 a night.

Hostels aren't fancy! They provide simple sleeping accommodations, with a bed, mattress and blankets (separate dorms for men and women), a "common room" for recreation—where you can meet and talk with hostellers from all over the world, hot showers and a kitchen, complete with the use of stove, pans, etc.

Membership in American Youth Hostels is open to everyone regardless of age! The yearly fee is $5 for under 18; $11 for those 18 and over.

Write for a free pamphlet about hosteling on your own. Or ask for the AYH trip folder, "Highroad to Adventure 1976" which lists preplanned, all-expense trips (with a leader). The address is: American Youth Hostels, Inc., National Campus, Deleplane, Va. 22025.

SEAHAWKS WHIP GUILFORD: FALL TO ELON

UNC-Wilmington's Seahawks continued their Hyde and Jeckle routine as they whipped powerhouse Guilford College 95-82 at Hanover Hall and then traveled to Elon where they were smashed by the Christians 106-80.

In the Guilford game, the Hawks played what Coach Mel Gibson called "a near perfect game."

UNC-W trailed by as many as ten in the first half but came back in the closing minutes behind the shooting of Harold Jackson to trail by only four 46-42.

In the second half the Hawks pulled even and then matched the visitor, point for point.

With the game tied at 26 all, Gibson sent the Seahawks into the four corners.

With Jackson in the middle, the Hawks ran the corners to perfection, scoring the next five points to take a 81-76 lead. From that point on, UNC-W crashed in at the free-throw line to win it going away.

Jackson led all scorers with 33 points. Dave Wolff turned in a fine all around performance and scored 18 points. Delaney Jones continued to be tough off the boards as he grabbed 13 rebounds and scored 12 points. DJ's defensive play sparked as he blocked four shots. Gibson was extremely pleased with the team effort and thought everyone put out one hundred percent!

The Elon game followed the same script as many other road games for the Seahawks this year.

The first half was close and ended with UNC-W trailing 47-41.

The Seahawks tied the score at 47 and 50 but then Elon spurred ahead 61-53, and continued to build their lead.

For the Hawks Jackson scored 25 points and Wolff scored 21. Jones and Lynn had six rebounds each.

This week's game will be the last for seniors Ernie Lynn and Harold Jackson.

Sheila Boles goes up for a jump ball against St. Andrews.

Women's Team Wins Two

The women's team of UNC-W claimed two big victories last week in their bid for a playoff spot.

First the Lady Hawks slammed St. Andrew's College 63-46 as Sheila Boles scored a game high of 26 points. Toni Bryant added 14 points.

The Hawks were in control throughout the game and led at halftime 34-24.

Against Methodist College the Hawks built an early lead and then had to scrap to preserve a 62-60 win.

UNC-W controlled first half action and at times looked as though they were going to turn the game into a rout. A last minute spree by the Monarchs cut the Hawk lead to seven at 30-23.

The Seahawk lead fluctuated through the second half. Turnovers by the Hawks allowed the Monarchs to cut the lead and tie the game.

Clutch shots from the corner by Toni Bryant and a full court press kept the Seahawks ahead. Scoring for the Hawks was as follows. Boles 23, Bryant 10, Massari 3, Creech 4, Barden 16, Hayes 4.

The wins put UNC-W in a good position for a playoff spot in the state tournament in Chapel Hill next week.

HAWKS VIEW

by Jim Braswell

In the past, there have been comments from students that wished UNC-W would schedule more "big" schools. Well, step right up boys and girls, it's baseball season and such a deal we got for you.

How does a doubleheader with last year's number two team in the nation sound? That meeting will take place in April when the Seahawks host the University of South Carolina who lost the national championship to the University of Texas last year.

Also on the schedule are Clemson University, North Carolina State and the University of North Carolina of the Atlantic Coast Conference. UNC-W defeated Carolina last summer to win the summer league championship.

Other NCAA division I schools in this season's schedule are Yale and Dartmouth of the Ivey League, East Carolina of the Southern Conference and independent Georgia Tech.

Playing some of the bigger name schools is nice, but in most cases the level of competition is just as good, and in some times better, in the NAIA. The Hawks will have their hands full when they face Methodist, Campbell and arch-rival Pembroke State.

Thomas Blue of Elizabeth City State is dominating the District 29 individual statistics. Blue, a 6 foot 6 sophomore from Wilson, N.C., leads three of the four categories.

In the scoring statistics, Blue is averaging 25.6 points per game. Harold Jackson of UNC-Wilmington ranks fourteenth with a 16.2 scoring average.

Blue's 16.4 rebounds per game is tops for that category and he is also the field goal percentage leader with a 69.3. UNC-W's Ernie Lynn's 59.0 percent moved him into the number six position.

Harold Jackson continues to lead the district free throw shooters. Jackson has made 78 of 89 attempts for an 87.6 percentage.

Sanchez in Concert

Mr. Sanchez began his study of the guitar at the age of 12. He began his studies at the Conservatory of Music in Madrid at the age of 13; studying music and guitar simultaneously. While at the Conservatory he studied with the Professor of music, Regino Sain de la Maza; as well as taking private instruction with Juan Garcia de la Mata for one year and the great classical professor of guitar Hario Herrero for four years.

After six years in the Conservatory, Mr. Sanchez became attracted to Flamenco music and started an extensive study of the media. His natural aptitude for Classical and Flamenco music enabled him to progress swiftly in its perfection.

His professional career started in 1950 with a touring company in Spain. In 1957,

Mr. Sanchez became the first guitarist of the Company Rosario Ballet Espanol. He played classical solos and Flamenco accompaniment for the dancers.

From 1962 to 1968, Mr. Sanchez became first guitarist with Antonio Ballet de Madrid making concert tours around the world; Europe, Africa, Asia, Middle East, South America, Central America and North America.

Mr. Sanchez has made numerous recordings in Spain and South America, both solo and with the Flamenco Company. He has performed before the King and Queen of Denmark and for Spanish Royalty.

Knothole Blues in the Good Wood

The Knothole Blues Band will splinter into being Thursday Feb. 26 in the Good Wood Tavern: not one act but three, all for one, one for all, and all for free! First, that semi-big band sound that makes you wish you lived in the Bowers during the Depression; simply stuck inside the St. James Infirmary. Then, the real blues with Reverend ("Guitar Bill") Thompson, a professional performer since 1911—guaranteed to jerk you out of the middleclass complacency doldrums. Last but (maybe) not least, Kelly Jewell and Robert Long will assume their affecting stance of harmless melancholy and defiant nihilism as they try a little harder to salvage some grace and wisdom from a hilariously confusing adolescence. All this and more, as saith Uncle Kahlil: the entire ensemble will gather at last and swing you into brief heaven. Make your plans now; people are rumored to be gathering caravans as far away as Castle Hayne, because they know they Knothole Blues Band will prostitute their music for the mere passing of a hat. Shows will be at 8:00 and 9:00.

Wanted—Students—Dead or Alive

Coming in late March to the Good Wood Tavern will be a real earth shaking event. The temporary name we have given this event, Student Entertainment Night, hardly reflects the show you will see. Plan on a cavalcade of entertainers who just happen to be students of our own UNC-W. Some of the stars you have seen before, some you may never see again. If you are a student and would like to participate in this event, talent is not required, contact: Richard Boles, Room 234 Galloway Hall (Dorm) or Linda Moore, Student Activities Office. Richard Boles Coffeehouse Entertainment Committee

Series of Concerts Scheduled

UNC-W Festival of American Music concert series is scheduled for March and April. Frank Wiley, UNC-W music teacher, proposed the idea as a bicentennial project. The music presented at the concerts will be compositions by Americans.

There will be a total of seven concerts. Only at the first will admission be charged. The UNC-W Festival of American Music is partially funded by Friends of UNC-W. A wide variety of music and instrumentation will be included in this series.

March 8 will be the date of the first concert which will feature the Community Orchestra in Kenan Auditorium at 8:00 p.m. This small orchestra is made up of UNC-W Music Department faculty, students and talented town musicians. One of the pieces they will be performing is "Negro Folk Symphony," by L. Dawson.

A North Carolina composer, Roger Hannay, will be the guest performer on April 12 at 8:00 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium. Mr. Hannay and the UNC-W Music Department faculty will perform his compositions for instruments and chorus.

UNC-W composition students will present their own compositions on April 8, Room 114, in the Kenan Building at 8:00 p.m. Their work will be judged by Roger Hannay and the winners announced that day.

The other concerts will be the UNC-W Wind Ensemble and Concert Choir on March 26 at 8:00 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium. Nancy Ping and Richard Deas, pianists, will present American Piano Music, Room 114 in the Kenan Building, April 1, at 8:00 p.m.

March 28, Frank Wiley, organist, and Beth Marshburn Bell, soprano, will perform at the Temple Baptist Church at 3:00 p.m. Then on April 22 the UNC-W music faculty and guest artists will perform American Chamber Music in Kenan Auditorium at 8:00 p.m. This concert will be a multimedia including electronic music, dancing and visual effects as well as solo instruments.

The whole series will present a variety of American compositions and looks promising as a UNC-W bicentennial music celebration.

Pi Kappa Phi

Congratulations goes out to our fine basketball team, who ended their regular season Monday night, defeating the TKE's. The Pi Kappas ended the season with a big 12-0 record. Tournament play starts next week and we feel confident that our team will come out on top.

Pi Kappas were well represented in the Homecoming parade as well as the Homecoming basketball game contrary to popular belief that fraternities on campus do not get involved in school functions. The Pi Kappas had a representative for Homecoming Queen: Sweetheart, Miss Brenda Moss as well as Mr. UNC-W, Boomer Wishon, in the parade. We also had a float and a 60 foot firetruck upon which all the Brothers and Little Sisters rode on.

Pi Kappa Phi is holding its Spring Dance March 13 at the Elk's Club on Oleander Drive. Music is provided by Blacksmith, a popular group from Charlotte, N.C. Free setups are included. Everybody is invited to come. Tickets are available from any Brother. Mike Alward Historian

The Student Nurses Association of UNC-W is proud to announce Mrs. Nancy Jackson as the winner of The Student Nurse of the Year Award. Nancy presented her essay "Nursing '76" to a committee consisting of The 1975 Student Nurse of the Year, a registered nurse, a minister, and an Orthopedic Surgeon. This committee questioned the candidates on various subjects pertaining to the medical, surgical field. Nancy came out of the conference room from questioning, scared to death, but that "extra bit" of adrenaline that flowed brought her to victory. Congratulations Nancy! SNA is proud of you. B. Gibson Tuesday's lecture was an overwhelming success. Dr. Marks spoke in front of a full house. There are several more lectures on the calendar for this semester. On March 9, Daryl Wiley from the Sierra Club will present a lecture. Everyone is invited and refreshments are served.

ATLANTIS

ATLANTIS will be having a staff meeting on Thursday, Feb. 26 at 11:30 a.m. in K201.

All interested students are invited to attend. The meeting will pertain to staff and editors for this semester and next year.

Deadline for Atlantis

March 12, 1976 is the deadline for UNC-W students to submit their short stories and poetry to ATLANTIS to be considered for publication in the spring issue.

The UNC-W literary magazine is a student publication composed solely of student writing.

To all students interested in working on the ATLANTIS, there will be a staff meeting on Thursday, February 26 at 11:30 a.m. in K-201. Staff and editors for this semester and next year will be discussed.

The ATLANTIS also sponsors other special publications with the help of money from the North Carolina Arts Council. APPARITION is a Halloween edition, SIREN is a collection of UNC-W student essays, a poetry brochure is published, as well as a calendar for the school year.

Besides these outlets for student creative writing, there is the University Poetry Contest every fall semester and the Jessie Rehder Short Story Contest each spring.

What is a Forum?

There is a new publication on campus. It is the "FORAM," a journal of marine sciences. It is dedicated to undergraduate research at UNC-W, to provide pertinent information on marine sciences, and to serve as an organ for undergraduate expression. It is published four times a year. Anyone may pick up a free copy of the journal in room M-242. Information for contributors may be found in the journal.

Attention Non-Degrees

You are eligible to fill 2 positions in the Student Senate. Any non-degree student may run for these positions.

President Steve Hobbs

On Tuesday, January 27, 1976, S.G.A. President, Steve Hobbs spoke to the Student Senate on State Financial Assistance for UNC-W, Activity Fees, UNC-W Honor Code and the UNC-W Board of Elections. His speech is as follows:

Good Morning! As all of us know, we are rapidly moving into the spring semester of 1976. Today, I have come to speak to the Senate and inform each of you of several activities and issues of interest that are important to our campus.

On March 23, North Carolina voters will decide whether or not the State will issue $43,267,000 in capital improvement bonds for state-supported institutions of higher education. One reason for this bond referendum is because of the revenue shortage that severely limited direct appropriations for the needed capital improvements on 13 of the 16 campuses. If this bond referendum is approved on March 23, then UNC-W will receive $1,665,000 for the construction of a classroom building, plus a portion of $1,500,000 to be used to remove architectural barriers to aid the handicapped and Occupational Safety and Health Act projects and land acquisitions.

Shortly after I was inaugurated as your President, I joined an effort to defeat a proposal in our State's Legislature to increase our tuition $200 - $300

Short Story Contest

All students who submitted their stories to the Jessie Rehder Short Story Contest are invited to the awards presentations to be held on March 11, at 11:30 a.m. in the S.R.O. Theater.

Portions of the winning stories will be read by Doug Swink, UNC-W drama instructor.

The awards presentation and the reception which follows the ceremonies will be provided by the North Carolina Junior Sorosis.

GUATEMALA

The Spanish Club is collecting money this year to aid victims of the recent earthquake in Guatemala. Estimated number of casualties is over 20,000, and many thousands have been left homeless. Just last year, the Spanish Club underwent a similar project and collected $500 to aid victims of the hurricane in Honduras. The Spanish Club would like for every student, faculty and staff members, as well as all the clubs and fraternities here at UNC-W to make a donation to this worthy cause.

Spanish club members will be approaching you on this matter. Please give generously! All UNC-W clubs and fraternities can send their donations to the Spanish club in the Modern Languages Department in Kenan Building.

Thank You.

a year per student. Today, I am endorsing and pledging my strong support for the approval of this referendum that, if approved, will benefit our campus in future years. I urge each of you to also actively support the passage of this referendum.

On Thursday, the Student Affairs Committee will meet and discuss the appropriating of our student activity fees. Dr. Ned Martin, Chairman of this committee, and I agreed that before we could efficiently study our fees we should have the fees of the other campuses. After several months, we have finally received the breakdown of the fees of most of the UNC campuses. With the efforts of Dr. Malloy, North Carolina Association of Student Governments and the General Administration, we now have the fees to begin our study. To insure that this body has input, I will invite some of the non-student members to attend a Senate meeting so the Committee can entertain your recommendations.

This year I have been serving on a faculty-student committee that has been assigned the task of establishing an honor code and judicial system to assist in alleviating academic dishonesty on our campus. Many of the members wanted to establish courts for this purpose and I have encouraged the usage of the Student Superior Court. The committee has approved a judicial system consisting of the Student Superior Court, an Appeals Court and a Supreme Court. The specific details of this system have not been completed, but they will be soon because of the urgent need for such a system so students can be treated as fairly as possible. The committee's recommendation will be referred to Chancellor Wagoner for continued consideration.

Effective February 1, Robert Moore will be stepping down as chairman of the Board of Elections because he will be student teaching this semester. I am very appreciative of his dedicated work as the chairman this year. I would like for the Senate to approve my nomination of Robert Jones to fulfill the duties of the chairmanship of this important SGA standing committee.

Not too long from now, SGA elections will be held for the 76-77 academic year. Because Homecoming is during the second week of February, elections will be held in March. Filing for any position in the SGA will open on Monday, February 10 and continue until the 27th. Elections have been tentatively scheduled for March 16 with runoffs on March 23. I am sure that Robert will be releasing more information concerning the elections in the days to come.

Thank you!

SEASONGS '76

This song is up to you, all along.

*You never knew
This song is coming on through to take you for a ride.
It's tested, true and tried...
even though it almost lied...*

Following this are the two best cuts on the LP. "Heavenly Homes" is the first one and really quite a good slow rock number. (Comparable to this cut is "Space Baby" by the Tubes.) Live for Now is the main theme as "heavenly homes are hard to find," and "not the world's design."

"Ships in the Night" is next and as fitting as you can get. "Crying to the Stars" is next and is another beautiful song. I have played this cut over and over and each time I am reminded more of Jimi Hendrix. The guitar work here soars and cries and is heavy; very similar to Hendrix is his earlier work. (Listen to the last half of "Little Wing" on AXIS: BOLD AS LOVE.)

"Sheep that Burns" ends the side and is very well written and performed. Once again the lyrics are very important with the shortness of youth as a focus point:

Nine...! Is the moment of truth

Your youth is a mask but it's not made to last

For we all have a past to outrun

When the mask comes undone

The song is very effective in the way it is done in that the song begins as "youth" in a rampage of rock. Then a dream of youth, "youth" is interpreted when the awakened character is faced with the truth.

After this, side two has a hard time in keeping up with side one. However, it does contain several good cuts. One such cut opens the side and is entitled "Beauty Secrets." Here the group remains very strong as on the first side.

"Life In The Air-Age" is also a fair cut on side two. Here is expressed the urge to return to things as they were in less complicated times. "Crystal Gazing" must also be mentioned here for its Bowiesque style.

To sum up: BE-BOP DELUXE is not for you who are just into music, for their lyrics are made with the music and not for it. Others will more than likely appreciate the quality and skill the group has in producing a modern rock sound while still reflecting the past. Quite remarkable I would say. Till then, ROCK OUT.

Be-Bop Deluxe has been one change after another since its beginning in the early 1970's. With this album, I hope everyone has settled down for good for this is BE-BOP's best yet.

For a short history: BE-BOP DELUXE was formed in 1972 by Bill Nelson. The album AXE VICTIM was later released and then Nelson disbanded the group and took on the members of Cockney Rebel, who Steve Harley has disbanded. This did not work so Nelson disbanded again and finally ended up with the present group and the album FUTURAMA in 1974. Now have you got that straight?

It is written that "their music is a fusion of all forms of contemporary popular music, erupting in an exciting sound that moves from early rock styles to the cold wastes of space..." This, I believe, is what the group's style is all about for their music and lyrics reflect rock from the days of Elvis and Little Richard to the present world of Bowie and Steve Harley's Cockney Rebel. Here you have a group playing space rock with bobby socks.

Opening side one is "Fair Exchange" which is space age rock 'n roll in all its action. The song takes the sound and ideas of the 1950s and places them in 1976. The change in values appears to be the main subject with Nelson ending by saying:

VOTE SGA ELECTIONS

TWO VIE FOR PRESIDENCY

Duffy Robinson

When Duffy Robinson asked me to be his campaign manager it didn't take me long to answer "yes." While usually I shun things political, there are times when it is necessary to stand up and be counted. A quick review of the candidates left no doubt in my mind as to the one most qualified, the one who should be elected. I hope you will agree with me after reading the rest of this article.

You might have seen Duffy, listed as William H. Robinson on the presidential candidate list last year. He lost only by fifty votes running against a candidate supported by the Greeks. However, Duffy had been in student government before this presidential bid. He had represented UNC-W as an alternate delegate to the N.C. Student General Assembly when Rocky Moore was president of the S.G.A. The N.C. Student General Assembly's proposals are quite often seriously viewed the N.C. legislature and sometimes become N.C. law.

In less lofty, but certainly no less important circles Duffy has helped the students of UNC-W in several ways. As chairman of the Housing Committee he has helped to put a roof over students' heads. As co-manager of the Good Wood Tavern he has helped students heads in a different fashion by providing a jovial atmosphere. Lately Duffy has also sent a proposal to the administration proposing that in addition to beer, wine be allowed at Good Wood Tavern. Remember this on election day, fellow winos! Duffy's platform puts emphasis on increased budgetary effectiveness, and increased communication with the student body. Both these points will be vital to the growing SGA at UNC-W. With every one chipping in $12.50 in student funds, the SGA will have about $80,000 to use this coming year. This sum is not peanuts. For years the SGA budget has been a sore issue because the treasurer seemed to take only a minimal interest in his job. Duffy intends to appoint a highly qualified person who is also highly motivated to the position of treasurer. Also, all budget meetings will be public so you can come and see where your money goes.

If you have ever tried to get in touch with the SGA president or anyone in the SGA, you know how hard it is. If elected, Duffy or a secretary will be in the SGA office at regular hours so when you go in search of an SGA official you won't grow a long beard while searching.

I feel that Duffy Robinson is the best candidate for SGA president for several reasons. Unlike Debbie Lewis, who is editor of the Seahawk, editor of the Fledgling and in training to become a nurse, Duffy will be able to devote his time, outside of class, to the SGA alone. As for Duffy's other opponent, Gary Shipman, the last two SGA presidents were Greeks and it would be nice to have a change.

So, when you go to the polls, engage your brain before you fill out the ballot. A vote for Duffy Robinson might be the nicest thing you could do for yourself as a student at UNC-W.

Gary Shipman

As cliché as it may sound, success does speak for itself. During the past two years, my success on the campus of UNC-W has been immense, which can only be attributed to the students of UNC-W, along with some hard work. There are many times when success motivates one to seek further success, and this was one of the many things that led me to decide to seek the office of President of the Student Government Association.

As far as qualifications are concerned, the list is lengthy. The past two years have been cluttered with duties and responsibilities and here are just a few. I have served as President of the Freshman class and voting member in the Senate. During that year, I was appointed vice-chairman of the Homecoming Committee, a position that a freshman had never held. Also, I served as a student member on the Student Affairs Committee, along with several other committees within the framework of SGA. During the winter, I was appointed a delegate to the North Carolina Student legislature and served as Sergeant-at-Arms in the House of Representatives during the annual general session held in Raleigh. During the spring of 1975, I was elected President of the Sophomore class.

Shortly thereafter, newly-elected President Steve Hobbs appointed me as Chairman of the Homecoming Committee. I again served on the Student Affairs Committee and presently am serving as a member of two "ad hoc" committees on Academic Dishonesty and Student Activity Fees. During the fall of 1975, I was appointed chairman of the UNC-W NCSL delegation, a position which I feel acquaints me with statewide campus issues. But most importantly, my most outstanding qualification is the supreme desire for this college to become one of the leaders of all institutions in North Carolina, and I believe SGA can play a vital role in this goal. If votes were composed of qualifications alone, my name may be a unanimous choice. Yet every candidate must have ideas and strong objectives to back up their qualifications and here is a brief outline of just a few of my intentions.

My primary objective is a re-organization of the finance structure within the SGA. Currently, finances are handled primarily by the Treasurer and his Finance Committee. Yet this committee only serves to approve or disapprove budget requests for a recommendation to the Senate. The sole responsibility for budgeting the books of the SGA lies in the hands of the treasurer, a job that even the most skilled accountant and bookkeeper couldn't handle. Upon my election, I will appoint, upon the advice and consent of the Senate, a "Treasury Committee" of which the Treasurer will chair, composed of members that are well-acquainted with accounting and bookkeeping processes that will be assigned specific SGA funded organizations and will audit and balance each organization's books. In turn, the Treasury will have a "main book" that will have a running total of all allocated SGA funds, along with figures on the savings account and contingency fund. No longer will an organization be able to deficit spend or threaten to exhaust their funds without a pre-fact knowledge. Because of any foreseen conflicts, the Finance Committee will remain intact and perform its normal duties.

In budgeting, an organization should first place priorities to those areas that need greater emphasis than others. My priority is communication, a problem that has been apparent on this campus for too long. I will see that those organizations that can supply the needed communication, not only on campus but city and statewide, be supplied with the necessary funds that will insure the students at UNC-W are fully aware and motivated on the activities and issues on this campus that have so long been ignored.

Motivation will be a key word in my administration. I have plans for many programs that are too extensive to outline in one short article. Yet the basis of all of these programs revolves around more student involvement and contentment than ever before.

Success really does speak for itself. I want that success to continue. Yet, I cannot do it alone. That is why I am asking you to vote for me. Gary Shipman, for President of the SGA on March 16 and 17. Success speaks for itself.

Editor's Note: Ms. Lewis was associate editor of the Seahawk during the fall semester but is no longer affiliated with the paper. She was editor of the Fledgling for school year 1974-75.

Last week she was elected N.C. Student Nurses Association News Editor so she has dropped out of the race for SGA president.

Dear Editor,

Thursday night, March 11, appearing on our distinguished, and I use the word loosely, campus; Mr. Carlos Sanchez gave one of the most dynamic concerts in the flamenco guitar ever to be heard anywhere in this country. I might say that this university, dedicated to the furthering of knowledge and culture has never been so embarrassed in all of its history. Little over a hundred people managed to show for this performance. Three quarters of this audience were Wilmingtonians, and not UNC-W students. Why is this? Students were free and under absolutely no obligation! Citizens of Wilmington had to pay. To further our embarrassment, virtually no faculty members were present, and none from our music department. Is it that we are so much more interested in material things than for a few minutes exposing ourselves to the culture of another world. Are we that narrow minded or do we just plain have no cultural appetite? If this is true, why bother to call ourselves a University? Why don't we just rename ourselves Wilmington College or Wilco!

The few people that appeared at the concert can assure their fellow students of the quality of Mr. Sanchez's performance. In several of his flamenco ballads, one was led to believe that there were several performers on stage. Incidentally, Carlos Sanchez appeared last Monday in Clinton, S.C. and it was SRO in a 900 seat auditorium of the local community college. Think about it.

BALSER VS LAIRD FOR VICE-PRESIDENT

Fellow Students:

It's time once again to select your representatives for the coming year. I seek your support as a candidate for the office of Vice President of SGA but just as importantly, I urge your involvement--the school needs your voice. The first question usually asked is, "Is he qualified?" I feel my involvement in student activities, my service experience and my tenure as president of the UNC-W Business Club has given me not only the administrative experience needed for this office, but the opportunity I have had in serving others, qualifies me for this opportunity to serve all students. I do not believe that criticism of past administrations serves any useful purpose. The outgoing administration had done its best but we can always do better, that is the nature of academic life, to learn and better ourselves.

I represent no special interest groups and seek only individual support from those who I seek to serve. I have sought no one specific group's support except for the student body as a whole. Apathy is a recurring issue on this and many campuses. I have no easy solution but I do feel action can be taken in one specific area. The Constitution calls for an Interclub Council in Article 10, Section 3. We have not had an active, vibrant council but I feel such a Council could do much to stimulate activities and involvement. Instead of fragmentation we could have unification and a means for the interchange of ideas to provide activities for all students. It is also vital that as one of the fastest growing state institutions that our service to the students grow too.

I seek to serve your interests in this area. In seeking your support, I promise only what I can deliver and will deliver what I promise. The Office of Vice President can be active and vital and I promise to make it so. I chose this office because it permits me to be in constant contact with both the president, who I will assist, and with the Senate over which I will preside. With your support, I promise to represent your wishes and to remain available to all students for your advice, ideas, and criticisms.

Thank you,

Chuck Balser

Candidate for Vice President

Fellow Students:

In endorsing a candidate for the office of Vice-President of the Student Government Association, I hope you will consider this: The primary function of the Vice-President is, in accordance with the SGA Constitution, to preside over the Senate meetings. This in itself is subliminal. Prior experience is a necessity for this office. A sound working knowledge of procedure is essential, of course, but this says nothing of his influence exercised on decisive issues which invariably arise. To utilize this influence constructively, I feel that only through previously working with the Student Government Association and involvement in and with its many committees and with the students themselves can this officer execute the position effectively and beneficially to his constituents.

This year I was fortunate enough to have been accorded the privilege of serving the Junior class in the capacity of Senator while serving on three other SGA Committees simultaneously. I would like to continue to serve the student body in the capacity of Vice-President of the Student Government Association for the 1976-77 academic year and therefore ask for your support in the election to be held this upcoming week.

I have been asked what I feel the most pressing problem is on our campus. Of primary concern is the communication between students and their representatives. Perhaps I should have said the lack of communication. With an improved communication system many "problems" would never have developed in the beginning. There is no easy and inexpensive solution but this is one problem which I shall strive to eliminate.

I look forward to serving you in the '76-'77 school year.

Sincerely,

Paul Morgan Laird

VOTE IN THE SNACK BAR

Time

By Bobb Miller

The 1976 presidential race has advanced to a stage where it is now possible to extract a general idea of what we can expect at the climax of the campaign that will come for the Democrats in New York City and for the Republicans in Kansas City at their respective national conventions this summer. With the first four primaries behind us, the Democrats are becoming fewer and fewer, and the Republicans are coming close to a decision between an incumbent president and an ideological right-winger.

The Republican battle between President Gerald Ford and former California Governor Ronald Reagan is becoming more one-sided with each primary. Though Reagan is still drawing about half the vote, he has not won yet, and the press has already buried him. He vows to fight on, but with victories for Ford in New Hampshire and Florida, both once considered fertile Reagan ground, his hopes are quickly fading. It now appears that not only will Ford win the North Carolina primary but he will also go on to take his party's nomination with a momentum that is growing all the time. It seems, too, that Ford will have the backing of a united party against the Democrats in the general election.

It had been anticipated that these first few contests would narrow the Democratic field, with some candidates showing poorly and thus losing any momentum they had. After all, that's the greatest benefit of pre-convention primaries—ridding the public of the confusion and clutter of a numerous list of candidates of assorted caliber.

The First Round Is Over—And Who's Left Standing

The first primary in New Hampshire is always regarded as the pace-setter for the campaign. There is frequently more than one winner, and usually a few losers too. The actual vote in the primary is not half as important as the interpretation that the press applies to the outcome. The press, by determining the amount of exposure and focus given a candidate, can often make or break a candidate. A campaigner who fails to fulfill the expectations of the public polls is in store of serious trouble.

This year, New Hampshire voters produced two winners: former Georgia Governor Jimmy Carter and Arizona Representative Morris Udall. Carter won the numbers, leading in popular votes and committed delegates. But Udall's victory was an equally important accomplishment in that he took command of the liberal candidates (or progressive, as he referred to it) and placed a respectable second against three others whose political philosophies are not far from his own.

Noe one pulled out of the race after New Hampshire, but those three liberals lost much momentum. They are Senator Birch Bayh of Indiana, former Senator Fred Harris of Oklahoma, and former Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver of Maryland. Instead they headed for the next primary in liberal stalwart Massachusetts.

Things in Massachusetts were altered by the presence of three more candidates in addition to the five from New Hampshire: Senator Henry Jackson of Washington, Governor George Wallace of Alabama, and Governor Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania. In somewhat of a surprise, Jackson won this primary with Udall again polling a strong second. They were clearly the winners.

Wallace and Carter held their own, finishing third and fourth respectively. Again the three also liberals trailed the pack with Bayh taking the back seat this time. That was the fatal blow to Bayh's campaign, who was already in financial trouble, and he became the first victim of the primary road. He joined Duke University President Terry Sanford and Texas Senator Lloyd Bentsen, both pre-primary casualties, on the sidelines but all that was noticed was the absence of just another pretty face.

Those other two who offered company to Bayh in the backfield remained in the race, however. Harris, whose campaign is an issues-oriented one, is therefore not greatly concerned at this point with numbers victories as long as he gets a message told. Why Shriver hasn't dropped (indeed, why did he start?) is anybody's guess, but mine is that he just doesn't have the good sense to see he's finished.

I also suspect he's searching out another vice-presidential offer. No matter, he's determined to go on—but someone has to lose, don't they?

After Massachusetts, it was on to Florida where a Wallace-Carter-Jackson battle was taking shape. With Shapp also campaigning, Carter shocked old Wallace by running in an upset of the man who was there handily in 1972. This victory again pushed Carter out in front, and has been a major set-back for Wallace (though he won't admit it.) The Carter-Wallace confrontation had been a long-anticipated match with both of them the major contenders on Southern ground (though, granted, a more liberal southern state).

Carter is the real winner here. Wallace is a clear loser.

A second interesting development has also come out of the Florida primary. Shapp, after much expense there and a 3 per cent showing, pulled himself completely from the race, even vowing to remain out of the Pennsylvania primary. He had hoped to go to the convention in control of that state's large voting bloc as its favorite son. As a result of Shapp's move, Jackson revamped his strategy to enter in a friendly Pennsylvania and skip North Carolina, where a Carter-Wallace head-to-head is now inevitable.

Carter, Wallace, Harris and Shriver will compete in Illinois on March 16, probably finishing in that order. Then, for Carter and Wallace, it's on to North Carolina.

These two remain the only ones who will actively campaign here, following Sanford and Jackson's withdrawals. And it will be a major battle between the two southern gentlemen. Both are geared up for a strong run where Wallace won in 1972. (But remember Wallace won in Florida in '72.) If Wallace wins, he will have won a battle and be even with Carter, if Carter wins, he will have won the war. Wallace can hardly stand another defeat from Carter in the South. If Wallace loses, he's all but through, although I suspect the professional candidate will keep on going (and going and going).

Let's look at some comparative points of the two men. Carter, with his broad grin and boyish hair, did an effective job as governor of Georgia, reducing the state bureaucracy and promoting progressive programs for the state. Wallace, with his sharp eyes and slick black head, has dominated Alabama since he stood before schoolhouse doors shouting "Segregation forever." For most of that time, he has been steadily on the campaign trail, election year or not, while his state slowed in progress almost to the point of standstill.

Carter could conceivably get the Democratic nomination and be elected president. Wallace will never get either but will probably roll along the campaign trail until no one listens to his tired, retroactive rhetoric of demagoguery and propaganda anymore.

Other names will be on the N.C. Democratic ballot—Udall, Harris and Jackson. There will also be a spot for uncommitted delegates. But since national observers will be looking for the Carter-Wallace contest, your vote would carry more weight if cast for one of these two.

Carter is certainly not the perfect candidate. He has faced charges of taking unclear stands on issues at opportune moments. But he—indeed anyone—is much more desirable than Wallace. So if you're really not enthused about this choice, and you don't really want to vote for Carter, consider yourself voting against Wallace when you mark Carter's name. Believe me, you can render no greater service to your state than saving us the embarrassment of having that man win our primary and a majority of our delegates.

Wallace's time has now passed, and why Alabama even keeps him in their governor's mansion is beyond my understanding. Perhaps Florida was the beginning of the end. North Carolina could well be the second step. We, the voters, have that power. Let's do it.

What lies ahead for the Democratic convention is a power struggle between Udall for the liberals, Carter for the Moderates, Jackson for the moderate-conservatives, and probably Wallace for the reactionaries. Then, of course, for Minnesota Senator Hubert Humphrey, there will be a strong movement.

There is still a long time to go, however, and anything can happen. The first round is over, with several knockouts. It's going to get tougher to stay alive as the campaign goes on and only the strong will survive. It is still too early to forecast who will be around to take the party's nod this summer in New York City.

Burkie Wins Story Contest

Doris Ralph Burkie, a frequent winner in literary contests at The University of North Carolina at Wilmington, was presented the $100 first prize in the Seventh Annual Jessie Rehder Short Story Contest for her entry, "Once A Nurse, Always A Nurse." Mrs. Burkie won first place in 1974 and placed third in 1972. Miss Shannon Morton, Professor Emeritus of English at UNC-W, presented the prizes Thursday in a 11:30 a.m. ceremony in the S.R.O. Theatre. Second prize of $50 was presented to Richard C. Weiss for "A Small Shadow of Doubt," and the $30 third prize was awarded to Kirby Tyson for "Looking Out and Seeing In."

Honorable mention awards of $10 each were presented to Gregory V. Corbett for "Into a Hard Autumn Rain" and to Dorothy Kinlaw Hall for "The Jungle."

Judges for the contest were Dr. Joanne K. Corbett and Mrs. Elizabeth Pearsall of the English faculty and William F. Lowe of the Department of Modern Languages. Commenting on the entries, Lowe said, "The one element that struck me was the general excellence of the entries. All the judges agree that the stories showed a great deal of improvement in quality over those submitted in previous years."

Following the presentation of prizes, Doug Swink, associate professor of drama and speech, read excerpts from Mrs. Burkie's story. Guests were then invited to a reception honoring the contestants and hosted by the North Carolina Junior Sorosis.

The Jessie Rehder Short Story Contest is held in memory of the late Jessie Rehder, a Wilmington native and well-known North Carolina writer. Miss Rehder served for many years as director of the creative writing program at The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Prize money was furnished from the Jessie Rehder Memorial Fund at UNC-W which was established in 1972 to encourage student writing. The UNC-W English Club each year sponsors a flea market to raise money to replenish the fund.

Student Wins Chem. Award

Mr. Robert Glen Williamson, senior chemistry major at UNC-W, has been awarded the Student Award of the American Institute of Chemists. The award will be officially presented during ceremonies at Wake Forest University on April 24, and is given to a senior chemistry major who has displayed academic excellence in the field of chemistry.

Student Teachers

All students who plan to student teach either in the Fall Semester of 1976 or the Spring semester of 1977 must come by E-102 to fill out applications for student teaching placement. This must be done during the preregistration period from March 29 through April 9, 1976.

Barry Rosen Returns

Barry Rosen, a folk guitarist well known to UNC-W students, will return to the Good Wood Tavern Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, March 16-18. Show times are 8:30 and 9:30 p.m.

Rosen, a singer-songwriter-guitarist, transforms his travels and experiences into universal music and lyrics that resound with the strains of familiar life, people, love and fears, happiness and loneliness.

Since being a warm-up act for Seals and Croft, the James Gang, and John Sebastian, Barry has made a name for himself doing solo concerts as featured artist. He has performed for UN delegates, and has appeared at Carnegie Recital Hall in New York City.

A native New Yorker, Barry has made Wilmington his home, much to the delight of audiences who have heard him at UNC-W, as well as in other Wilmington locations. He has given successful concerts at the Community Arts Center, Kenan Auditorium, the Pub and the Open House Coffee House.

STORASKA SAYS NO TO RAPE

United Christian Campus Ministry at UNC-W is sponsoring and coordinating the presentation of Frederic Storaska and his rape prevention program, "How to Say No to a Rapist and Survive." The program will be held at 8:00 p.m. on March 22, 1976 in Kenan Auditorium at UNC-W and is free to the public. Rape and assault are problems which we fail to talk about because realistically they are often gruesome and frightening when dealt with seriously. Unfortunately comments are often relegated to horrified gasps to chuckles of involvement.

Mr. Storaska's approach is different. While stressing that rape is a horrendous crime and that nothing justifies it, he abhors the usual dispensing of "quick tricks" (i.e., tear gas pens, keys between the fingers, blowing whistles, knee to the groin) that sometimes work, but often put the woman in even greater danger. Basic to his program is recognition of the human element, understanding the emotional make-up of both victim and assailant. His aim is the reduction of violence from the attacker.

Mr. Storaska has presented his rape-prevention program to literally hundreds of colleges, universities and communities and has been asked to return by nearly 55 percent of his sponsors. In addition more than 275 cases have been reported in which his program has prevented serious assault and even saved lives. Mr. Storaska established the National Rape and Assault Prevention Center in 1972 and from that successful venture organized the National Organization for the Prevention of Rape and Assault (NOPRA) Inc. in 1974. He was the exclusive speaker on rape-prevention at the World Congress of Crime Prevention in May 1975. Storaska has also produced a film entitled "How to Say No to a Rapist-And Survive" which is being shown in this area by the Wilmington Police Department and has been approved by the New Hanover County Board of Education to be viewed by students in the high schools on a voluntary basis with opportunity provided for parents to preview the film. He has also written a book by the same title.

This program is supported not only by the Campus Ministry at UNC-W but also the Student Union Program Board and Student Senate of the University, the Student Affairs Department of the University Administration, the New Hanover County Task Force, the Crisis Line-Open House Program, the Wilmington Police Department, the Unitarian Universalist Fellowship, the Y.W.C.A. as well as several other interested groups and individuals from the community.

People from every segment of the community are invited and urged to attend because the crime of rape and assault are not respecters of race, creed, social, economic or intellectual status. Students are urged to come early since this program is open and free to the general public.

VICE Squad

David Brickley, chairman of the Video Incorporated for Campus Entertainment Squad, has put together almost two hours of video tape fun for the enjoyment of Good Wood Tavern patrons this week. At 7:00 each evening, Brickley's squad will show "In Search of Intelligent Life" (a documentary filmed in Gallo-way Hall), "V.I.C.E. Corners the Chancellor" (an interview with Chancellor Wagoner), the Contemporary Arts Ensemble in Concert, and the last chapter of "Flash Gordon Conquers the Universe." Don't miss the fun!

English Club Flea Market

The English Club will be collecting articles for the Jessie Rehder Flea Market in front of the cafeteria March 15-19 from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

All students are urged to check their attics, basements, garages, car trunks, and anything else that might harbor items that are worth selling and that the student will donate.

Items such as books, magazines, clothing, toys, nick nacks, etc. will be collected at the picnic table. They money from the sale of the items will be put in the UNC-W Jessie Rehder Memorial Fund which finances UNC-W literary contests and may in the future finance campus speakers and scholarships.

Biology Club

On March 23, Dr. Paul Hosier will lecture on Masonboro Island. Dr. Hosier is the resident expert on Masonboro Island. He has studied the island intensively for the last few years. There is talk of a picnic in the future, so show up at the next meeting to find out about it.

Senate Needs Club Budgets

Clubs and organizations who wish to request funds from the Student Government Association for the academic year 1976-77 must make a budget request no later than March 22, 1976 on official budget request forms.

Budget request forms may be picked up on the S.G.A. office on the second floor of the Pub. If the office is closed, the forms will be on the desk which is located in the hallway outside the SGA office.

Any club, group or organization which is now active or anticipates being active during the coming academic year is invited to make a budget request at this time.

Vetran's News

Those veterans and dependents receiving VA educational benefits who plan to attend the 1976 Sessions of Summer School should come by the OVA to be certified No later than April 1st 1976. If you are certified later than April 1 you will probably receive payment for one half the month of May and no payment for June, therefore get certified by April 1.

During the last semester and this semester we have asked you to turn in your class schedules to the OVA. Many of you have not done so, therefore, beware the consequences.

To our knowledge, the UNC-W Veterans Club has had only one meeting this Spring Semester 1976. That meeting had a very low turnout. It is with deep sorrow that we see the veterans organization dying from apathy and neglect. For those of you that are not aware, Veterans organizations all over the United States such as ours were in part responsible for the increase in G.I. Bill benefits, the Vet Rep on Campus program, the VCIP program (under which the OVA operates). They served as spokesmen for Veterans to our representatives and congressmen which caused the passage of most of our Veterans legislation. If our organizations are allowed to die, who will then speak for us? Together we have a voice and input to the decision-making process, divided and singularly, we have no voice, no power and no one listens. So get off your ...'s before it's too late. Keep your organization alive and functioning.

Gene Barowski Named All-American

Gene Barowski, UNC-Wilmington's outstanding full-back, has been named to the second team on the All-NAIA team. The team is made up from all teams in the United States which participate on the NAIA level and this denotes all-american status.

Barowski had an excellent year and was one of the main reasons the Seahawks were able to record ten shutouts.

Coach Calvin Lane cannot seem to be able to say enough good things about Barowski. "Gene is an extremely smart player. He anticipates well and always seems to have good field position."

Anyone who saw the Hawks in action last year knows Lane is not exaggerating. Barowski displays remarkable ability with both feet and he is phenomenal when heading the ball.

A junior pro-med student, Barowski's talents aren't limited to the soccer field. He is also on the Dean's List.

CRISIS, WHAT CRISIS?

SUPERTRAMP

Crisis? What CRISIS?

A&M SP-4560

This is a group I have wanted to do a review on for some time in that I believe they make some of the most interesting rock around these days. Is it apparent this group has worked hard to produce a style and sound of its own.

Being English, it took their third album, CRIME OF THE CENTURY, to put them on the American charts last year. In their own country this album made the top 20 of 1975. People in this area may remember this LP by the single which did well here last summer entitled, "Bloody Well Right."

The group's style is centered

around the vocals and music of Richard Davies and guitar and lyrics of Roger Hodgson. Bob Benberg on drums, Dougie Thomson on Bass and John Helliwell on wind instruments complete the group, making it a very well rounded together group.

Their sound is the most remarkable thing they have to offer. It is hard to describe this in words as it seems there are many influences. If I had to put a label on it, I would say it is rock with light jazz influences. The songs vary from almost hard rock to soft with writing and production managing to tie the work together remarkably. In this respect, I think they could be called a group's group.

CRISIS? WHAT CRISIS?, like its forerunner, is very well written, recorded and produced. "Easy Does It" opens the LP and begins with the theme of the album title as the song is whistled among the noise of a busy city. At first the guitar work and vocals are blended together perfectly, then, some excellent acoustical guitar work reaches the ear.

This quickly runs into "Sister Moonshine," which demonstrates both the power and beauty rock music can be when done well.

Continuing with this power is "Ain't Nobody but Me." Here is a love song with force, not just the run of the mill sweetie-pie bit. This one would be a good single.

Following this is SUPERTRAMP at their tops as "A Soapbox Opera" presents the group in the sad and meaningful style so popular on the CRIME OF THE CENTURY LP. Those of you who think there is not a place in rock music for orchestration should hear this cut.

Closing the side is a somewhat heavier cut, "Another Man's Woman." The keyboard work on this cut gives what would have been a normal rock song an attractive air.

Side two opens with "Lady" and "Poor Boy" with the first of the two reminding me of reggae, as far as the choppy piano and "Oh La La La" vocals go. "Poor Boy" is slower and a little jazzy with its horns. In this case the group sounds similar to Climax Blues Band but only in this case.

If there are any cuts on the LP I could say were bad, they would be "Just A Normal Day" and "The Morning". Then again, they are not really bad but somehow just do not sound as well done as the others. If the second side is played first, they sound much better than if starting with side one and going to them.

All in all: this album should be heard. Within no time at all, I am sure Supertramp could become one of your favorite groups. They hold your attention as well as produce excellent rock music. What more could anyone ask?

Presidential Candidate Jimmy Carter Pledges Open Administration

Former Georgia Governor Jimmy Carter, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, visited the campus of UNC-W last Friday as part of his campaign to win support in Tuesday's North Carolina presidential preference primary. Carter appeared before a standing room only crowd of about 1000 in Kenan Auditorium as part of the Politics '76 Series sponsored by the UNC-W Political Science Department.

Carter was accompanied by a sizable entourage of campaign workers, Secret Service agents, and national media reporters. Security for the event was visible as local law enforcement officers swarmed the campus and spectators were searched before entering the auditorium.

The program was precluded by entertainment provided by the Nashville Allstars, a band that travels with the Carter campaign. They began performing at 9:00, offering a selection of patriotic tunes until the candidate's arrival at about 10:10.

In his short speech, Carter pointed heavily to the emergence of the New South, which, he said, could conceivably offer the nation its next president if represented by men like himself.

Carter said that in his campaign travels throughout the nation, he had detected a "yearning of the people . . ." to restore a basic trust in government and pledged a government of "minimum secrecy (and) maximum frankness," if elected president. He noted that the "American people have been hurt in the aftermath" of national problems such as Watergate and Vietnam.

There is "a great need in the governmental process for young people to let their opinions be known," Carter said and young people have an "inquisitive mind . . . (with an) eagerness to change things for the better."

Referring to the country's system of income tax, Carter labeled it a "disgrace to the human race" and used an opponent's (Fred Harris) words to describe it as a system of "graduated loopholes" rather than graduated taxes.

Concerning recent revelations of illegal activity within the CIA and FBI, Carter called for openness in the intelligence operations and suggested that problems within these organizations be brought before the people and Congress. He vowed he would openly discuss any wrongdoing of the CIA and FBI that might surface during his administration with the public.

Carter also declared that

Israel should at all times be economically and militarily able to withstand any attack. He stated that equal opportunity employment should not try to be realized through the use of quotas based on population percentages.

About the Democratic National Convention, Carter said that a deadlocked convention would be a "political miracle" and predicted a first or second ballot victory for himself. He said that Washington Senator Henry Jackson is "my main opponent at this point" in the Democratic race.

Because of the cancelled news conference, questions from the local media were answered during the 10:00 program. This allowed time for only two questions from students and left many with unanswered questions.

SGA Election Results

Last week's elections resulted in a run-off for the positions of SGA President and Secretary.

In the presidential race, William Robinson received 134 votes and Gary Shipman received 121 votes. There were several write-in candidates. Ten write in votes were cast for Carol Moore while Debbie Lewis received 4. There were several others who received one vote each. A runoff is necessary because 143 votes were needed for a majority.

All votes cast for SGA secretary were write-ins. Jim Wishon received 17 votes and Tracy Miller received 5. There were numerous single write-in votes.

In the vice-presidential race, Paul Laird defeated Chuck Balser by a count of 135-101.

Class results were as follows:

Lee on Campus

Howard N. Lee, Democratic candidate for Lt. Governor will address the University community Wednesday, March 24, 1976 at 7:00 p.m. in King Hall.

His speech is open to the public and all are welcome.

Mr. Lee received his BA from Fort Valley State College in Georgia and his MA in Social Work from UNC-Chapel Hill. He was elected Mayor of Chapel Hill in 1969 and was twice re-elected by overwhelming majorities.

He is a member of the board of trustees of Wake Forest University. Mr. Lee has long been active in Democratic party affairs and currently serves as Democratic National Committeeman from North Carolina.

Lt. Gov. Hunt Visits

Lieutenant Governor Jim Hunt visited the campus of UNC-W on Thursday, March 18, speaking before an 11:30 audience in King Auditorium and later managing a bit of politicking as he walked about the campus meeting students.

Mr. Hunt's talk was received by an audience of only about 30 people, including students and faculty. He spoke for about 5 minutes, then fielded questions from the audience.

He stressed the importance of the university system to the citizens of North Carolina, stating that "each branch of the university should have its own mission." He pointed out the need to spread out the graduate programs, which are now concentrated in the Chapel Hill, Raleigh, and Greensboro campuses throughout all campuses of the university system.

Hunt also emphasized the importance of State aid to teacher education programs of the universities, labeling this as a "high state priority" which should be given immediate attention.

At the invitation of one spectator's question, Hunt stated, "I'm going to run for governor." That became apparent as he toured the campus and introduced himself to students in the cafeteria and other spots on campus.

Hunt later met with Chancellor Wagoner before ending his visit to UNC-W by Bobby Parker

Research Fellowship

Applications are now available for the third annual UNC-W Research Fellowship competition. Awards for 1976-77 in-state tuition will be offered to the six rising seniors who present the best proposals for doing original research under faculty guidance.

Students interested in applying for a 1976-77 Research

Fellowship should pick up application materials and instructions from their department chairman and discuss their research proposal with a sponsoring faculty member. Completed proposals and other application materials are due in to department chairman no later than Friday, March 26.

Call Ripley's

It has never been, nor should it ever be, the policy of a student newspaper to endorse candidates in an SGA election.

Last week's election results, however, were not just your everyday election results. Yes, friends, right here at UNC-W, we have a rather unique situation. You see we had two candidates running for SGA president and now we're having a run-off.

"Impossible!" you say? "Unbelievable!" you say? "Call Ripley's!" you say? (One person was heard to comment that next year only one person would run and he would lose. Personally I was reminded of that anti-Vietnam phrase, "What if they gave a war and nobody came?").

In last week's election edition we printed the statements of the two candidates. Both presented themselves as thoughtful, mature individuals who were only interested in serving the students of this school.

This was not evident, though, when the election results were known and it was decided a run-off was needed. One would have thought the two candidates were vying for the position of captain of a little league team instead of the position of SGA president of a university.

Shipman's "Success"

Dear Editor,

1. He failed to follow through with his obligations for the Coffeehouse, thus causing someone to replace him.
 2. He failed to help with the re-organization of WCNU.
 3. He failed to fulfill costly debate obligations by (a) failing to help the team debate during the 1975-76 year after he was sent to Omaha, Nebraska and Canada for a debate workshop; (b) failing to debate at all during this year; (c) failing to debate at a tournament to which he was sent.
 4. He failed repeatedly to fulfill various responsibilities to which he asked to be appointed, not only at UNC-W but also in the community.
- Do we need this kind of a "successful" person as SGA President?
- Sincerely,
Ed Stone

Think Before Voting

Dear Editor,

I know that at some events on campus there are problems or mass confusion. The past elections encountered such when the winners and number of votes for each person was not posted. We suddenly found out there would be a run-off between the candidates for SGA president since Mr. Robinson did not have a clear majority. This run-off came about due to people on campus writing in students of their choice (obviously qualified) for President.

On the day after elections, I spoke with Mr. Robinson. He was up in the air about the students' write-in votes. He wanted to do away with the write-in votes all together, therefore giving him a clear majority. He felt that the write-ins were not qualified according to the constitution, the section on candidacy. When told that I did not meet those qualifications, he asked me "kindly" if I was trying to get back in the race. I found later that there is no statement in the constitution to cover write-ins so they must not be illegal.

I told him that doing away with write-ins would leave only a minute senate. This got a response of "We'll just have to have more elections." He seemed extremely upset about the possibility of a run-off the next week.

When asked if this was how he planned to run the SGA, I got no real reply. It makes one wonder what the reasons are that Mr. Robinson has for wanting to be SGA President. Could it possibly be a one-way street?

Later that day, I heard about some information that had been fed along the grapevine to the right people at the right time. This was information concerning an incident in the past that occurred with Mr. Shipman. I would like to know why this story has been brought out at this particular time. Sounds like a U.S. Presidential political scandal.

I hope that students realize that they should vote on qualifications and student interest and not a personal basis. Do not vote on information unless you know it "first" hand. That includes anything I say even though it is fact. It is VITAL for students to vote for someone that knows about the situation they will be in. Someone who has worked with policies and has seen the workings of the organization from the inside to be able to see and understand problems.

I want to say that I have worked in many capacities with the Student Government for three years and do not want it to go down the drain. I hope students will please THINK before they vote for someone to be their President that is not interested in the student. You have to make the choice.

Thank you,
Debbie Lewis

Appalled at Candidates

Dear Editor,

I was appalled after having read the two campaign articles in the March 16 Seahawk, by the totally distasteful manner in which both candidates tried to pass the buck of all our SGA problems from the real culprit onto the treasurer. I can condone Duffy's accusation, that "the treasurer takes only a minimal interest in his job," as an uninformed opinion of what is involved in being treasurer. From working closely with the treasurers over the previous four years, I know how demanding that job can be and how much time each of our last treasurers put into that job. None had a "minimal interest in his job" as Duffy accuses, but were just too busy to put more into the job than they did.

Gary's statements, however, are a different matter completely. Gary is trying to place the blame for financial mismanagement on the Treasurer when indeed he and the Senate are truly to blame. Let Mr. Shipman read the Constitution and he will see that the Senate has sole responsibility for dispersal of Student Activity Funds and has the right and duty to require reports of all expenditures on a pro-facto basis if it takes the initiative to do so. Gary tells us he is so experienced and successful, so why didn't he demand reports while serving in the Senate for the past two years. Gary also wants to create an IRS-like bureaucracy to audit all books in lieu of the present treasurer's post. Why? Because the Senate, of which he's a member, has been lax.

Finally, Gary wants to brag about all his past activities. Well, I, for one, was present in the Senate when Gary, as Chairman of Homecoming, stood up and announced that if he didn't get more cooperation from other people on Homecoming then he wasn't going to do all the work himself and Homecoming could just do without. SGA Experience

Dear Editor,

In the light of recent verbal and written attacks against Gary Shipman, candidate for SGA President, I felt that it was my duty as a member of SGA and a concerned student that represents a large number that know otherwise to present these few facts to the populace that don't know the real matter.

I have known Mr. Shipman for quite some time, having worked in various positions with him. When he announced his intentions to run for SGA President, I didn't hesitate to think about where my vote would go. His qualifications were numerous, but overall, he possesses the necessary experience with not only SGA but with the administration also, to give this campus its primary necessity: progress. Yet, in noticing the qualifications and experience of Mr. Robinson, Gary's opponent, I have noticed one very crucial issue: where is his Student Government experience? I believe the answer here is simple: he has none. I sincerely believe that Mr. Robinson, the "self-made" Savior of all our problems, would create more problems than alleviate.

Several other questions arise also. Why did Mr. Robinson indicate that his only reasons for taking interest in the recent Black Awareness Week were "strictly political"? This statement was made in the personal presence of several high-ranking SGA and administrative personnel and frankly it sickens me. To think that an individual would use something like this as a glorification for his own sake is dispicable and inexcusable. Is this the kind of person that the students of UNC-W want elect? Speaking as an SGA member, I doubt it very seriously.

Also, attacks have come forth by several other students whose credentials for making such attacks should be examined. One student, Mr. Hales, attacks Gary on several of his proposals and indicates that the problems lie within an SGA that Gary has worked within. It should be noted that Mr. Hales is a former Vice-President of the SGA and his statements would seem contradictory since no other position except the President himself would allow for more change than the Vice-President. On the other hand,

VOTE THE SGA ELECTIONS

Gary Shipman

There are many times when one reflects upon certain incidents and they wonder how they ever arrived at their present destination. These past few weeks have been weeks of reflection and I have arrived at several conclusions.

I came to UNC-W from Raleigh, N.C. where I attended high school. My senior year was a year of decisions and my main and most important one was that of where I would continue my education. Following normal procedure, I applied at every major school (UNC, N.C. State, etc.) and one additional school that fit none of the criteria: UNC-Wilmington. I was accepted by all of these schools, fortunately enough, yet of all of them, I selected UNC-W, the smallest and least prestigious. The reasons were numerous, yet in the end, I narrowed it down to just a few. Geographical location was important and also the size of the campus. I didn't feel that my mind was equipped to handle the hustle-and-bustle of big college life. I also saw this campus on a "growing spree" and felt that I'd like to have something to talk about and compare ten years from now.

I immediately became involved in Student Government and had first intentions of setting the world afire and changing things overnight. I soon found that this wasn't the way things were done and there were always obstacles to put that fire out. I also found out that UNC-W was more than I had initially given it credit for. It had really just begun to grow and yet over the past ten years has been only one of two campuses to show an enrollment increase every year.

This campus is a place that I call a part of me. It provided me with my first college drunk my first college love and my first college exam (we all remember that!) Some have indicated that I must feel that the students owe me the position of SGA President merely because of several statements in last week's edition. Granted, they may have sounded somewhat brash but only because that at that time I was confident, as I still am, that I have the ability to hold the office of SGA President. Otherwise, I would have never filed the petition to run.

Several of my proposals have been questioned. It seems that my ideas of re-organizing the finances of SGA have surfaced a rather bold word: bureaucracy. It would seem somewhat obsolete to include this term, considering the structure of the finance system. The system doesn't allow an adequate way in which the treasurer may keep an undated, secure check on SGA funded organizations without an over-extension of his own personal abilities. My proposal alleviates the prevailing pressures placed upon the treasurer and allows for a superior, updated process. I think a better word for bureaucracy would be efficiency, which I'm sure no one can argue with. If efficiency is a bureaucracy, then let it be so.

It would also seem that any view towards helping solve the communication problem on campus has become an issue. Granted, additional budgeting alone will not solve the problem. But, with priorities in mind to give direction to this campus and an adequate monetary basis on which to operate along with hard work and motivation from those organizations (publications, scholastic or otherwise), this problem can be alleviated, bit by bit. No one need expect an overnight change. It will be gradual and yet feasible and realistic.

I have intentionally chose not to become involved in any sort of personality clash with anyone involved in this election. This isn't an election to see who can leave with the most pride. On the other hand, it is an election for the voters to decide who is most qualified and most equipped to handle the office of SGA President. This campus owes me nothing. If anything, the contrary is true. I owe this campus to the extent that I am asking to continue my service in the capacity of President for the 1976-77 school year.

Gary Shipman

Duffy Robinson

In past published statements, my opponent has rested his case for his presidential candidacy on past results. Mr. Shipman has told all of us how he has participated in quantitative terms, not qualitative. He has chaired or been a member of a large number of committees—but what has he actually done?

Both Mr. Shipman and I have stated that budgetary reform is severely needed. Over time, the main hindrance has been an inability of departments within the SGA to communicate among themselves. Mr. Shipman tends to correct this by increasing the governmental bureaucracy, in proposing to install more budgetary and accounting agents within the SGA superstructure. In my opinion, this move would serve only to increase the number of conflicts that now exist by installing simply another avenue for "buck passing." The plain fact is that communication channels need to be cleared up within government. The technicalities of accomplishing this task in our budgetary process should be delegated to one who knows finance and accounting principles well; and to one who also knows how to work with other involved parties, i.e., the school administration, in the supervision and allocation of our state connected student activity funds. But most importantly, to one who cares. I propose to appoint to the post of SGA Treasurer a senior accounting student who holds excellent academic records and the endorsement of the relevant faculty as to the student's capability of working with others.

Efficiently executing the delegated position of Treasurer would cure many of the "budgetary blues" the SGA now experiences. Let's cure the real problem now, not further mask it by my opponent's proposed increase of the bureaucracy. Further, Mr. Shipman has stated publicly that past performances (successes, if you will) in various campus activities have created a type of debt owed Mr. Shipman by the involved campus activity groups. Mr. Shipman further contends that any opportunities afforded him by the groups were a type of payment rendered to Mr. Shipman. Obviously, the question arises: Is Gary Shipman demanding the Presidency of the SGA as a final installment payment, paid by every UNC-W student for prior service?

In my tenures as Student Housing Committee Chairman, alternate Delegate to the North Carolina Student Legislature, and co-manager of the Good Wood Tavern, I have continually viewed the future as the true test of decisions made today.

In looking to the very short term future of next year, promise yourself involvement in student government activities. A vote for me will guarantee you that involvement and your decision of today will pass the test of the future unscathed.

Respectfully soliciting your support for President of the Student Government Assoc., William (Duffy) Robinson another student, Mr. Stone, makes several slanderous accusations. Slanderous to the point that he was out of school for one solid year and that anything he writes is history and hearsay. Therefore, any statements made by these two gentlemen should not be accepted at face value but put in another category: garbage.

Mr. Shipman has run a very low-keyed, personal campaign. He has chosen not to get into a one-on-one name calling contest, for which he holds my utmost respect. I realize that Mr. Shipman's comments of last week may sound over-confident almost to the point of conceit. Yet regardless of any personal interpretation, the truth remains that they are all factual. All in all, after our evaluation and look at everything in perspective, I'm sure that the voters will cast their vote identical to mine.

Campus Ministry Presents Concert Artist, George Britton

Another unusual and outstanding program will be presented by the United Christian Campus Ministry at UNC-W, under the direction of the campus minister, the Rev. Vivan Martindale.

The nationally acclaimed folksinger, George Britton, salutes America's two hundredth birthday with a selection of songs in the Bicentennial tradition of the American Revolution. The many talented Britton possesses a mastery of folk and classical guitar as well as the seventeen string lute combined with a beautiful baritone voice that makes him a great performer. He began his musical career in opera and classical music; however, travelling around the country he became more and more interested in the music of the people.

George Britton's name became synonymous with the folksong movement when he conceived and organized the Philadelphia Folk Song Society; the Society of the Classical Guitar and started the popular Main Point, a coffeehouse in the Philadelphia area.

A performer on radio, television, recordings, on series and with orchestras, he has traveled the length and breadth of America. Singing in fourteen languages, he brings to life the art of the troubador and the poetry of the bard. With the same instrumental skills of those travelling minstrels of yesterday, Mr. Britton rekindles the charm and showmanship used by those who told of events great and intimate in verse and melody.

George Britton has dedicated his life to blending the best of both repertoires into a vastly appealing and electric communication for young and old. Some of the songs sung to lute and guitar include, "Springfield Mountain," probably the first original American folk ballad, based on the story of an actual occurrence, the death by snake bite of Timothy Merrick. Another, "High Barbaree," a sea chanty, tells the story of battle between a frigate and the infamous Barbary pirates—one of our older chancies. "Pretty Saro" is early American, from the days of indentured servants who served as virtual slaves to colonial land owners to pay their passage to the New World. The story of the Boston Tea Party is told in "Revolutionary Tea." This song was very popular during Revolutionary times. These, plus others make up Songs of Colonial America and aptly salute the birthday of our great Nation.

George Britton is not only an excellent concert artist but also participates in and leads religious programs. Mr. Britton will provide music for a creative pre-Easter communion service led by Rev. Martindale for anyone who wishes to remain after the concert.

General Admission to the concert is $1.00. UNC-W students, 50 cents. Concert is March 29, 1976 at 8:00 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium at UNC-W.

Tim Bays Returns

The Coffeehouse Entertainment Committee proudly announces the repeat engagement of Tim Bays, accomplished blues guitarist from Atlanta. Bays appeared in the Tavern just one night last December. The many friends he made will be happy to hear that Bays will perform here for three nights next week—Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, March 29, 30 and 31.

Now with the Coffeehouse Circuit, Inc., a New York agency supplying colleges with coffeehouse-type entertainers, Bays has appeared at numerous colleges where his special combination of dialogue and song has been readily received.

Bays will give shows at 8:30 and 9:30 each night. As usual for such professional entertainment, there will be a 50 cents cover charge.

Student Entertainment Night

The Coffeehouse Entertainment Committee is looking for more student entertainers. No great talent is required! If you play an instrument, sing, read poetry, are a comedian, or can provide any kind of entertainment, come and see us! This most wonderful and outrageous event will take place in the Good Wood Tavern/Game-room area. Sound and lights will be available. The event is scheduled for April 2, a Friday night. If you are interested, please contact Richard Boles, Room 234, Galloway Hall or Linda Moore, Student Activities Office in the Pub. We need you in this, our bicentennial year!

Gershwin Presentation

The challenge of sustaining nearly two hours of fast-paced, musically and emotionally demanding entertainment would be enough to test any performer's resources. Jack and Sally, appearing in GEORGE GERSHWIN-AN AMERICAN SKETCHBOOK Thursday night in Kenan Auditorium at 8:00, not only meets the challenge, they meet it with such grace and charm that it makes the whole look delightfully easy. Behind their relaxed and accomplished performance, however, lie years of preparation and an unusual combination of qualities.

No mere "song-stylist" could do justice to the work of America's greatest composer. The music of George Gershwin demands voices of unusual range, power and brilliance. With over 12 years of professional vocal study between them, Jack and Sally have the superbly trained voices to interpret the dynamic music of Gershwin as it deserves to be interpreted.

Wagoner Okays Wine in Good Wood

Chancellor Wagoner recently approved the Coffeehouse management committee's request to allow students to bring wine into the Good Wood Tavern. As with the bring-your-own-beer policy, the freedom to bring your own wine is governed by regulations set down by the North Carolina Alcoholic Beverage Control Board:

(1) Only unfortified wines of not more than 14% alcoholic content may be brought in.

(2) Only one quart (32 ozs) of wine per person.
(3) Students must be able to show proof of age 18.
(4) Wine may be brought in only after 5 p.m.
(5) Proof of age, alcoholic content of wine and volume of wine is the responsibility of each student desiring this privilege, and such determination will be made to the satisfaction of the Student Union Night Manager on duty.

STEVE HOBBS SUMS UP TERM IN OFFICE

With the inauguration of new SGA officers, the term of former president Steve Hobbs came to an end Monday night. As he prepared to hand over the reins of office, I spoke to Steve about his year in office as SGA president. The retiring president characterized his year in office as basically a time of progress, tempered by a few disappointments.

One event of great importance to the former president was the defeat of the proposed tuition increase for university students. The proposed increase came before the North Carolina General Assembly only a few weeks after his inauguration as SGA president. Feeling that decisive action was called for, Steve immediately "got on the horn" and met with the faculty assembly and Chancellor, in an attempt to gain support for the defeat of the increase. He also contacted several legislators to solicit their support. The eventual defeat of the proposal was gratifying to Steve. "I felt that education is one of the most important things in a person's life and the increase would hinder many people from coming to college."

The dedication of Galloway

Hall was another event that Steve looked on as a high point in his administration. As a senator, he made the original proposal to name the dormitory for Ed Galloway, the first student to die on campus as a result of an accident. "It's nice to name buildings after heavy financial contributors," he commented, "but I was pleased to see the dorm named for a deceased student."

Traffic was a major concern for students throughout president Hobbs' term in office. The Reigel Road intersection caused considerable concern. Steve contacted Lieutenant Governor Hunt and wrote several letters in an attempt to secure the much needed stoplight at that intersection.

Steve said he was pleased with the performance of the board of elections this year. "The Board operated better and more efficiently than before," he commented, and he praised the work of Robert Moore and Robert Jones as election chairmen.

Perhaps one of the bigger accomplishments of the Hobbs' administration was the reform of the judicial system. With the expected approval of the Student Honor Code by the administration, students will have an opportunity to defend themselves against charges of dishonesty. Any student who feels that he or she has been unfairly charged with dishonesty or plagiarism may bring suit in the Student Superior Court which will have original jurisdiction in these matters. This new duty will help to activate the student court system. "From this point, the student court should be able to diversify and expand," he continued.

Financial reform was another area where Steve felt important progress had been made. He supported the hiring of an Administrative assistant. This person would coordinate the work now being done by many different people. As an example, Steve cited the office of treasurer. "The treasurer should be a treasurer, not a bookkeeper," he said. This assistant would also provide a continuity between SGA administration and would be able to answer questions about SGA actions in past administrations after the officer themselves had graduated.

Also on a financial vein, Hobbs commented that for the first time in a number of years no SGA account is running a deficit. As the fiscal year runs until July 1, this could change, but as of the end of his term all accounts are in the black. This should allow the new senate to appropriate money without worrying about "bailing out" old accounts.

Steve sounded a final positive note by expressing contentment with the passage of the State education bond issue. The bonds will allow the construction of a new classroom building on this campus. In order to boost support on this campus for the bonds, Steve utilized the mass media and the North Carolina Association of Student Governments to push for their passage. He also contacted several gubernatorial candidates to enlist their support.

When asked about disappointments during his term, Steve conceded that there were a few. He expressed dismay at the student senate's failure to fund Wantu Wazuri's program for Black Cultural Week. "We were financially able," he commented, "and I felt that it would have been educational and would have helped to close the communication gap on campus." Steve also expressed disappointment in the Seahawk which he felt often failed to act as an aid to communication between the presidency and the student body. He felt that more coverage of SGA activities would have helped students to understand what their student leaders were doing. A final disappointment was the slowness in which the Student Affairs subcommittee of the Board of Trustees have proceeded with his requested study of the breakdown of student activity fees. He had hoped to utilize this study to recommend possible reforms in the allocation of these fees.

Despite these setbacks, Hobbs expressed general contentment with his year in office. He also expressed his appreciation to those who worked so hard in his administration. Those who Steve especially felt contributed so much to the general welfare of the student body are Eric McLamb, former press secretary; Tom Hodges, administrative assistant; Jo Sharp, executive Secretary; and Leonard Hutchins, Attorney General. Steve concluded by expressing his deepest personal thanks to the student body for their support of him during his term in office.

Vaughan Wins Award

Earl Monroe Vaughan, a UNC-W student, won an honorable mention in the Irene Leache Literary Contest which is held annually in Norfolk, Virginia. The contest is sponsored by the Norfolk Society of Arts.

His essay, "The White House Syndrome," was chosen from a field of fifty-two essays from North Carolina, Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Vaughan's essay recounts his visit to the White House as a high school student and its effects on his "ideals." His understanding of his emotions and his desire to correct the world are displayed in amusing jabs of his own thoughts and actions while in the plush Executive Residence at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

He was in Washington, D.C., courtesy of an essay contest he won in high school. While there, he was taken on a tour of rooms in the White House which are rarely seen by tourists. Labeling his experience as a "once upon a time story," Vaughan said that he left there a different person. He realized that with precision and determination a person could be anything or do anything he wants.

Twenty-one years old, Vaughan is a weekend sports reporter for the Fayetteville Observer, though he lives in Leland. He has worked at the Observer since July 1972 and plans to continue in journalism after he graduates next fall.

Vaughan is a determined man who never lets up. At the present, he has an essay entered in the UNC-W Essay Contest as well as one in a national contest sponsored by Wells Fargo and the Smithsonian Institute. He also has plans to enter the Norfolk Contest again next year.

Robinson Wins

In a rather close vote, William "Duffy" Robinson defeated Gary Shipman in the run-off election for SGA President. With less than 15% OF the eligible students voting, Robinson garnered 204 votes (53.2%).

The election was characterized by a rather low-key campaign on the part of both candidates. Both candidates emphasized their past service to the university and promised a more efficient administration of SGA business.

In the runoff for SGA secretary, Tracy Miller narrowly defeated Jim Wishon. The vote was 177 to 171 (a margin of only 50% to 49.1%).

Construction on the new road which will connect the Marine Biology Building with the Education/Psychology Building is well under way.

This should vastly improve travel around campus.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Executive Branch

Dear Editor,

I have worked closely with SGA President Steve Hobbs this 1975-76 academic year as the presidential press secretary. It has been my duty to stay informed on the various activities, legislations, and other duties Steve has been involved with, to give advice on these matters, and mostly, to inform the students of UNC-W on the actions that were taken. Still, there are students who criticize our president for being lax in his duties. Some specific complaints have been that he has been lazy, has not been available to the students to take up matters of business, answer questions, etc., has not informed the students concerning what he is doing and has done as our president, and he has not represented the student body very well in general. I see, however, where these complaints are invalid and ultimately unfair.

One major reason for these complaints is the responsibility of the SEAHAWK newspaper in printing articles submitted by the executive branch of the SGA. Several times I have submitted articles of importance concerning Mr. Hobbs' activities and achievements which have benefited our campus and the Seahawk has been as long as three weeks in printing them or the Seahawk failed to print the article.

On one occasion toward the end of January, the Seahawk lost an article to which we had to submit another copy; still the article was three weeks late being printed. That one particular article was on the speech Steve delivered to the Student Senate concerning up-coming student elections (recently held), the recent school bond referendum, and the student honor code. Two weeks ago I submitted an article concerning Steve's actions in support of the school bond referendum, and it was not printed (hopefully it will be printed in this issue). Because these articles were not printed on time, the SGA president has been scorned for being irresponsible and unconcerned. But still, the Seahawk promptly printed articles from students criticizing Steve for failing as our president. There is no reason why these letters that degrade Steve were printed when the articles of his actions were not. This has been unfair. Shouldn't matters of concern to the students, the achievements of our student body president, take some priority in the Seahawk?

I realize that there are those students who hold personal grievances against Steve, those who opposed him in the SGA elections last year, and those who could care less what goes in the SGA; these are the ones who have done almost all of the complaining concerning Hobbs' administration. Their complaints have stemmed from personal grudges and the will to complain about anything they want to pick on. There have been many students who have praised Steve's work, and if they felt that something was wrong, they took it up with him instead of blindly criticizing him.

It should be pointed out that Steve Hobbs has been a successful president of the student body. At this point, to my knowledge, there is no account receiving SGA appropriations that will have incurred a deficit balance that a future Senate will have to bail out. Steve fought along with other SGA presidents and state legislators against the proposed tuition increase. He has set up a committee to work on and has personally worked on a solution to the fair distribution of the student activity fees. He was instrumental in having traffic lights approved for the exit at south campus. He also worked in favor of and approved having the dorm named after the late Edmund Galloway. He has worked on judicial revisions, financial revisions, and election reforms in our student government as well as revisions in the student honor code. The SGA office, mostly the president himself, has kept an "open-door" policy for students seeking information, etc. Of course, Steve cannot be in the office every hour he is not in class, but either he, the SGA secretary, or I have been in the office most of the time. These are but a few of the actions Steve has taken as the SGA president to benefit the students.

Although I have worked closely with Steve during his administration, I have given my opinions, submitted articles, etc. based upon facts; I have not attempted to falsify any information in writing this letter. I think that credit should be given where credit is due. Steve Hobbs certainly deserves a great deal of credit.

Eric McLamb
Press Secretary, 1975-76

Treasurer is OK

Dear Editor,

I would like my fellow students to be aware that regardless of the baseless allegations made by the Student Government Association presidential candidates, our SGA Treasurer, LeRoy Oakley, has done a superior job in his post and has brought order to what had previously been a chaotic situation.

He has performed his tasks as Treasurer conscientiously using skill, thoughtfulness, maturity and very hard work. The new administration will be hard-pressed to appoint a Treasurer better qualified or with a better attitude toward his duties.

Intern Program

Internships offering grants up to $600 plus travel and research expenses are available from the Population Institute for students interested in working on population growth and environmental issues.

Students who participate in the Intern Program will work closely with state legislators and agencies in researching and analyzing population-related issues, policies and legislation. While continuing to attend regular college or university courses, the intern will also spend part of each week (10-12 hours min.) with his/her sponsoring agency, meeting with other groups and individuals, doing needed research and writing and making periodic trips to the state capitol. Each intern will arrange for academic credit for the internship with a faculty advisor.

Generally, internships run from September through May or June, but summer programs in selected states will be available. The program outline is flexible and alternative approaches to research of population policies will be considered. Project states will be selected in late spring on the basis of available placements. States currently under consideration include: Ala., Ariz., Cal., Colo., Conn., Del., Fla., Ill., Ind., Iowa, Ky., Mass., Md., Minn., Maine, Miss., Mo., Mich., Neb., N.J., N.Y., N.C., Ohio, Pa., S.C., Tenn., Tex., Va., Vt., Wash., W. Va.

In 1975, our interns:

- Developed innovative proposals for state futures commissions in Oregon, Michigan, New York, and Vermont;
- Provided the research that resulted in near passage of bills allowing minors access to contraceptives in Hawaii and North Carolina;
- Coordinated information and action among environmental groups in a successful effort to get full funding for land use planning in Oregon;
- Developed a unique proposal for resolving a difficult conflict between air pollution regulations and high density development for the Governor's Office in Colorado;
- Pulled together new and important data on funding for family planning services in Massachusetts and Maine.

The Intern Program is a project of the Population Institute, a non-profit organization concerned with population problems and other issues affecting the quality of life. It seeks to relate to and evoke positive response from key leaders in our society in helping balance population growth with resources.

Application deadline for the September, 1976-May, 1977 program is April 30, 1976. Students interested in applying should request application forms from: David E. Baker, Director, State Student Intern Program, The Population Institute, 110 Maryland Avenue, N.E., Washington, D.C. 20002

Democrats Now Have Choice of Four

The last time I looked at my list, there were four Democrats who still have a chance at capturing the party's nomination for president in 1976. But for each one of them there are as many reasons why they will have trouble getting the nomination as there are reasons that they will.

This list contains two who are racing in the primaries—front-running Georgian Jimmy Carter and strong-running Senator Henry Jackson of Washington. Of the eleven candidates who began the trek down primary road these two have survived the ordeal and emerged as the clear victors from the crowded field.

Carter has pieced together a most remarkable, if not paradoxical, coalition of voters which has delivered the largest delegate accumulation of any candidate. He won primaries in four of the five first states, while successfully establishing himself as the Southern man's candidate over George Wallace in both Florida and North Carolina, both once solidly Wallace country. He is now enjoying the position of frontrunner for the nomination, and if he can defeat Arizona Representative Morris Udall in Wisconsin and Jackson in Pennsylvania, he'll be very difficult to stop indeed.

But Carter has his problems too. Running against the Washington establishment, he has irritated many party regulars who dislike an outsider going over their heads. He has also been criticized for fence-sitting important issues in a deliberate effort to distort voter opinion on his stand on the issues. If Carter is to be the nominee, he'll have to pull a George McGovern-type surprise and have the delegate strength in his hand before the convention for a first- or second-ballot win. A brokered convention would hardly turn to Carter as a compromise.

Henry Jackson is the other winner from the primaries. His somewhat surprising victory in Massachusetts over a bulging list of liberals, in that most liberal of states, placed him as Carter's strongest opposition in the remainder of the primaries. With labor strength that would probably support Sen. Hubert Humphrey if he were to actively campaign, Jackson is expected to sweep New York, then face a head-to-head match with Carter in Pennsylvania. Jackson would be more acceptable to party regulars than Carter since he has spent many years in Washington as a respected member of the Senate.

But Jackson lacks a personal charisma that is so helpful to a candidate, especially in the November election. He currently trails Carter as the announced candidate with the second most committed delegates. A brokered convention would be unlikely to select Jackson, so the Senator's chances are still a longshot.

The other two possible nominees are California's unorthodox Governor Jerry Brown, who is entered as a favorite son in his home state and is floating the idea of entering more primaries, and, of course, the leader in all the opinion polls, Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota. Brown's refreshing youthfulness and Humphrey's vast experience have projected each into the Democratic ring as strong possible contenders.

Governor Brown exerts a special appeal that is irresistibly teasing the Democrats.

The 37-year-old decided to claim California's delegate state and has said that he might enter such late primaries as Maryland and New Jersey. If he wins delegates in those two states, plus controlling the California slate, he will have a strong voice at the convention.

But Brown can only hope for a deadlocked convention-to which he would be very attractive. Many Democrats are concerned about his relatively short list of government service. (He was California's Secretary of State before becoming Governor, the only two major positions he has held.) They see Brown as a more attractive vice-presidential contender to balance their national ticket and Brown would probably be patient enough to accept such a role.

That brings us back to the name that's been mentioned so often—Humphrey. The non-candidate who is continuing to lead everyone in the polls is finding it harder and harder to stay out of the active campaign. As the Democrat with the best name recognition nationwide, he looks now to be the best shot the party has to defeat Gerald Ford (no, not Ronald Reagan) in November.

The greatest danger for Humphrey is that he may be enticed into the later primaries, lowering himself into competition with the other candidates. As he stands now, out of the thick of the battle between personality snipers, he can avoid the chance of losing to any other candidates. If he were to lose to any candidate while actively participating in any state, he may as well kiss the nomination good-bye.

There is still much to be done before one candidate can be singled out, whether through the primaries or by means of brokerage at the convention. But the field has been narrowed down to only four possibilities—and that's a far better situation than the twenty or more who started the campaign with high hopes of a victory in November, all with varying degrees of chance for success.

LOWER TUITION PUTS PRES BEHIND SINK

(CPS)--At private schools where tuition has soared during the past decade, new plans of action for reducing costs to students have been devised by thrifty administrators.

At Franconia College in New Hampshire, cutting tuition almost $700 a year has put the college's president and its dean of students in the dining hall washing dishes while students try their hands at cooking, running the bookstore, keeping the school's books and recruiting next year's freshman class.

The changes are all part of a radical reorganization which has cut the administrative staff by 40 percent. The idea, according to Franconia president Ira Goldenberg is to attract students of more modest means (although tuition is still $4,985 a year) and help the college break even financially next year.

More important, Goldenberg claims, is starting to take "the concept of community seriously. Even if we were in fat city, we would be doing the same thing."

TIGHT ADMISSIONS PROVOKE STUDENT SUICIDES

(CPS)--Open admissions are no more at West German universities and the tight entrance requirements are killing the students—literally.

German authorities attribute two recent suicides to abnormal pressure in classrooms across the country, where most students who graduate are unable to get into college because there just isn't any room. This year, only 35,000 students will be admitted to West German universities, out of over 80,000 applicants. Officials predict more of the same for the future.

"For those who don't make it, the future means either waiting four or five years until a place opens up, giving up the idea of a university education and a professional career, or going into the army," explains one German educator. "Girls can't do anything at all but wait or give up," he adds.

UNDER THE COVERS WITH

(CPS)--What kind of man reads Playboy? A secretive one apparently, who doesn't want people to know he reads Hugh Hefner's slick, glossy plaything.

That is the conclusion of the recently released Simmons Survey, a yearly study that supposedly determines how many total people actually read each edition of the nation's 65 leading magazines.

"Playboy comes out in a fascinating way on terms of where it's read," a Simmons executive told The Wall Street Journal. "It's amazing how often it's read in someone else's home."

Only 14 percent of Playboy's "pass-along audience" (as distinct from its "primary audience") borrow the magazine and take it home, the survey found. Twenty-seven percent read it in someone else's house and 37 read it at work.

Added the executive, "The number of pages opened to is greater than any other publication. The compulsion is to fly through the pages. You don't want to miss anything."

Among other things, the Simmons Survey also discovered that the biggest winner among the top three weekly news magazines is the conservative U.S. News and World Report. Newsweek's readership was said to have declined sharply over the past year, and more female readers are turning to Time, whose overall readership remained steady, according to the Survey.

Seahawks Split with High Point

UNC-W split two games with High Point College this weekend to bring their season mark to 12-8.

In Saturday's game, the Hawks ran into High Point's Dan England who allowed only three hits and three walks while striking out ten to shut-out UNC-W 4-0. The Panthers scored two runs in the fifth inning and added two more in the ninth.

Phil Lambert took the loss for the Hawks, giving up seven hits, two walks, and two runs in five and one-third innings. Randy Prosser came in to replace Lambert but the Panthers continued their attack getting seven more hits and their two final runs.

Van Lewis, Jerry Yandrick and Mac McLean got the Seahawk hits. Yandrick doubled in the seventh with one out but England struck out the next two batters.

Sunday the Hawks evened the score as they pounded out 12 hits for a 4-1 victory.

The Seahawk attack was led by Catcher Randy Ourt with three hits, while leftfielder Richard Lancaster, third baseman Richard King, and designated hitter Swain Smith collected two hits each.

Mike Robbins upped his season's record to 5-2 as he went the distance for UNC-W giving up seven hits and striking out four. He allowed no walks.

UNC-W scored the first run in the second inning when Lancaster walked and was driven home by Richard King's double. The Hawks added another run in the fourth when Randy Bernhardt running for Randy Ourt scored on Swain Smith's single.

UNC-W put the game away when they scored twice in the seventh inning. Van Lewis opened with a walk. Larry File's single drove him home. Ourt then sent File home with his third hit of the day.

Next home action for the Hawks will be Tuesday, April 13 when they host Elon College.

What's the best basketball conference in the country? Why, the Big Ten, obviously. Didn't Michigan humiliate Eastern power Rutgers? Didn't Indiana whip UCLA?

So where does this leave the ACC's claim to fame as the best conference in the country? For a long time, I've been a staunch supporter of the "ACC's the best" theory, but now I'm taking a second look.

First my personal favorite, UNC.

Year in and year out, the Tar Heels have been rated in the top ten, and have been post season play. But for all those years all they have to show is one NIT championship and one appearance in the NCAA championship game (I'm referring to recent years). Several occasions Carolina has made it to the semifinals. One time they were upset by Indiana, another time they were upset by Purdue, and in 1972 they were upset by Florida State.

Last year the Heels were upset (there's that word again) in the Eastern regionals by Syracuse. Perhaps upset should be written "upset."

Don't smirk NCSU fans, you're next.

The Wolfpack was undefeated in '73 (26-0) but probation prevented tournament play and took it all in 1974. But during those years State had a guy named David Thompson on their roster and how many of those are running (jumping) around.

Thompson's senior year, 1975, saw the Pack lose to Carolina in the ACC finals after Maryland had swept the regular season championship.

State plays one of the lightest outside schedules of any team in the conference. The NCAA didn't count three of State's 19 victories when considering post season bids this year because they felt the three teams involved were not of major college status.

And now Maryland, or as it is better known throughout the world, "The UCLA of the East." You gottal give Lefty one thing—he's tried, and tried and tried. The Terps have never made it to the NCAA playoffs on their own. In '73 they got to go by virtue of State's probation but they were knocked off in the first round. Since then they have received at large bids under the new 32-team system but Drisell has never won the ACC tournament outright. This year Maryland managed to move the tournament to Landover but once again the Terps left empty handed. Maybe if it was played in Lefty's backyard...

Duke is trying to regain the golden Verge-Marlin years but they still have a long way to go as does Wake Forest.

Virginia captured their first ACC championship this year beating State, Maryland, and Carolina, the three best of the ACC. But when Virginia got to the Eastern regionals, they lost to DePaul.

Clemson faces an uphill battle with probation and the possible loss of Tree Rollins to the pros. The Tigers have not lived up to their billing in the past few years.

South Carolina is seeking re-admission to the Conference but its record isn't so hot either. Frank McGuire's team of Roche-Riker and company went undefeated in the ACC and were then soundly beaten by Penn. in the Eastern regionals.

Many fans argue that the ACC Tournament takes too much out of the teams and leaves nothing for the NCAA playoffs. I can't buy this. The champion of the best conference in the country should not find the going as tough as the ACC record shows.

The ACC may be the most competitive, the most equally matched, but the best... I'm not so sure.

Committee Proposes Honor Code Policy

The following is a proposal from the Ad Hoc Honor Code Committee to establish a uniform policy on academic dishonesty, including the institution of a judicial system to hear cases of its violation. The committee welcomes suggestions, and if interest is sufficient, a hearing may be scheduled. Comments should be sent to Dr. Ned Martin, Chemistry Department.

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington is committed to the proposition that the pursuit of truth requires the presence of honesty among all involved. It is therefore this institution's stated policy that no form of dishonesty among its Faculty or Students will be tolerated. The following definitions and procedures are provided in the interest of helping all to realize the high value that is placed on academic integrity and the means that will be employed to insure its preservation.

I. Academic Dishonesty Offenses

Many forms of academic dishonesty are too obvious to require definition. Cheating on tests, providing or receiving unauthorized assistance, tampering with grades and records, stealing exams beforehand, and other similar misdeeds are patently dishonest and need no further discussion.

There is, however, one offense that has not always been subjected to the full disapproval it deserves, and that is plagiarism. Therefore, the following description is provided so that the policy of this institution is clear.

Plagiarism is the act of taking the work of someone else and passing it off as one's own. It is doubly unethical, since it deprives the true author of his rightful credit and then gives that credit to one to whom it is not due. It is thus a form of thievery as well as fraud, and is thus totally out of place in an institution of higher learning.

Since in stealing the work of another one can use it in different ways, there are different kinds of plagiarism. The following three kinds are described by Harold C. Martin and Richard M. Ohmann in their book, The Logic and Rhetoric of Exposition (1963):

A. Word-for-word copying. Whenever someone else is directly quoted, honesty and courtesy require acknowledgement of the source. The text should be placed in quotation marks and its exact location should be indicated either in the text itself or in a footnote.

B. The mosaic. To intersperse a few words of one's own here and there while basically copying the work of another is obviously unethical, unless one clearly acknowledges that this is being done. Should there be a valid reason for doing so, then quotation marks or a general footnote should be used to show what belongs to the source and what is one's own contribution.

C. The paraphrase. Once more the crucial point is acknowledgement. Sometimes one can paraphrase in order to simplify, abbreviate, or improve upon an original, but the reader deserves to know what is being presented to him and whose work it represents. Therefore, acknowledgement of the source is required.

In summary, the stated policy of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington on all these forms of plagiarism is clear: conscious use of sources is always to be acknowledged.

II. Judicial System

In order to enforce the policy of academic integrity, a mechanism for handling violations is provided. To ensure justice and protect individual rights, a three court system is employed.

A. Student Superior Court

The Student Superior Court is composed entirely of students appointed by the President of the SGA. It consists of a Chief Justice, four Associate Justices, an Attorney General, and a Defense Attorney. A defendant may choose his own defense attorney, so long as that person selected is not a member of the court system. The Chief Justice presides over the court.

B. Court of Appeals

The Court of Appeals consists of two students (the Presidents of the senior and junior classes) and three faculty members (appointed by the Committee on Committees for one-year terms). The court elects its own chairman at their first meeting, and the chairman presides for the entire year.

C. Supreme Court

The Supreme Court is composed of the Chancellor, the Vice-Chancellor for Academic Affairs of the Academic Dean, the Chairman of the Faculty, and the Vice-President of SGA. The Chancellor presides over this court.

D. General Court Rules

1. No individual can serve as a member of more than one of these three courts.

2. The presiding officer of each court is responsible for maintaining records of each proceeding. The records are filed in the Student Affairs Office.

3. The courts shall function in such a way as to insure the right of due process and fair hearing to every defendant, including the presumption of innocence until found guilty, the right to know the evidence and to face witnesses testifying against him, and the right to advice and assistance in his own defense.

III. PROCEDURE

A. Out-of-court Settlement. When a teacher suspects a student of academic dishonesty, the first avenue of resolution may be private. If the penalty proposed by the teacher is acceptable to the student, the incident can be dropped; the teacher must, however, be sure the student is aware of his option to go through the courts. In cases of clearcut academic dishonesty, the court system is to be used.

B. Initiating Court Action

1. The Student Attorney General must first be contacted by either party; he is then responsible for gathering data pertinent to the case.

2. After meeting with both parties, the Attorney General must determine a date for their appearance before the Student Superior Court.

3. Once this process is complete, the defendant must be allowed a reasonable time to prepare his defense. All cases should be handled expeditiously so that court proceedings should be underway within two weeks of the initial charge, ordinarily.

C. Court Procedure

1. The presiding officer will appoint replacements in cases of conflict of interest or unavoidable absence.

2. The five judges decide by majority vote on the innocence or guilt of the defendant, and also on the penalty.

3. The defendant may appeal an adverse decision to the subsequent court; but if he is found innocent by any one of these courts, the case is at that point automatically closed, and the student cleared.

D. Penalties for Proven Offenses

The courts have discretionary power in determining penalties, considering all circumstances in each case. However, the following guidelines are considered generally appropriate:

1. First Offense: an F on the paper or test concerned.

2. Second Offense: an F in the course.

3. Third Offense: recommendation to the Chancellor that the student be suspended for the semester or expelled.

Nurses Attend Convention

Six members from the Student Nurses' Association of UNC-W attended the State Convention March 10-13, in Charlotte, North Carolina at the Sheraton Center. Elections of state officers took place and one of our members from SNA was elected State Editor of The Hypodermic, a quarterly nursing publication. Congratulations goes to Debbie Lewis for this honorable and most important title. SNA is sponsoring the District Elections Meeting, April 17 with lunch and a program in the Good Wood Tavern. The program, "Emergency First Aid," will be held during the tallying of votes for District offices. Some of the SNA members have planned a skit involving emergency care.

SNA is making a lot of progress this year, so take notice nursing students! Think about joining the association. You'll be glad you did! B. Gibson Publicity Chairman

Dance

Rosewater Blue of Hampton, Fla., will perform for UNC-W Wednesday night, Apr. 7. Rosewater Blue has recently been touring as a concert group but will combine original rock and bluegrass music to dazzle the dance floor tonight. This four man band produces its music with the use of guitars, bass, drums, banjo, and "steel guitar."

The Rec Hall of Wrightsville Beach has been rented for the occasion. Students will be admitted free upon presentation of ID card. Students are allowed one guest. Public admission will be $2. Dance Committee Chairman Bill Wilkie

Earth Club

Earth Club meets almost every Thursday at 11:30 in Seminar Room No. 237 of the Marine Geology Building. Most of our efforts this semester have been directed towards purchasing a display case for the Earth Science Department however there are still many activities that need to be considered for this and following semesters.

The Earth Science Departmental Picnic is planned this semester for April 10 at 12 noon until at Babcox-Wilcox. It is limited to majors and their guests at $2.50 per person—this covers beer and fixens. Everyone interested is urged to pay prior to April 5 so that all necessary arrangements can be made. See Dr. Zullo or Dr. William Harris.

All Earth Science majors especially prospective majors, freshmen and sophomores are especially welcome and urged to become involved in the department so that such events as field trips and large scale activities can be planned for their benefit—the Earth Club can make it happen.

Earth Science majors are also reminded that the Seminar Room No. 237 is available for their use as a study room (when not in use for other academic purposes) also unlimited coffee is available for $1 a month payable to Mrs. Smith.

SALMON PIE

- 5 fist-sized potatoes
- 1 lb. box of frozen mixed vegetables
- 1 stick of butter
- 2 pie crust shells

When you're sitting around with nothing to do, don't know what to eat, don't have anyone to meet, organize these guys and eat their surprise. It doesn't take long and it's hard to make it wrong, so, why not?

Simply start by boiling the peeled potatoes. Proceed as if you were going to reincarnate them into their mashed state.

If you want to make nice mashed potatoes; boil them tender, drain, add one stick of butter, mash the works as best you can, (as you are mashing, add a few specks of milk--notice that a little goes a long way) salt and pepper your new friend to suit your taste.

Now back up a few steps and remember that boiling potatoes tender takes about twenty minutes. Take advantage of these minutes by preparing the other ingredients: boil the vegetables for about 10 seconds and let them sit in water for a while, drain the can of salmon, clean out the bones and dark meat.

After the potatoes have been metamorphosed, drain the vegetables and mix with the mashed potatoes. Now mix the salmon with the vegetables and mix with the mashed potatoes. Now mix the salmon with the vegetable-mashed potato combo. Dump your new concoction into a pie shell that is resting in a pie tin. Shape a nice high mountain. Place the other pie shell over the mountain and press out all the excess substance. Poke a few holes in the pie and place it in a 350 degree F oven for about 30-45 minutes or until the crust is brown. Then simply sit back and violently attack your new masterpiece. Good luck!

I guess it's true. Linda Moore, Director of Student Activities, has her hands in just about everything.

If anyone has heard a Genesis album they can tell you that this group is one of the most moving and totally different rock groups out today. They produce a sound no one can come close to and have created it so as no one can really describe or put a label on it, besides the word Rock itself.

Forming in 1968, it took the group two years before they began to reach perfection with their second album, TRESPASS. Even on this album you can tell that the group has something special.

Then, in 1972, the magic began to take its shape with the release of two somewhat revolutionary LPs, NURSERY CRIME and FOXTROT. Lead singer Peter Gabriel took center stage with these LPs also as he became the master of disguise in the group's live performances. This led the group to be known as one of the best live acts in rock up until Gabriel's sudden exit from the group last year. Theater Rock had come to the stage and Genesis was the only group to use this form to its greatest expectations.

Even with these two great albums and the group's fancy type stage shows, America did not really take the group as serious until the release of their fifth album, SELLING ENGLAND BY THE POUND, in 1974. With this album the group changed to the Atco label and produced one of the best rock albums of that year. SELLING ENGLAND was an epic in that it was put together as a story (the earlier LPs were similar but usually each song was a story; however, the idea was begun on the second side of FOXTROT with "Supper's Ready").

Here the group began to get air play on the album on FM and the title on AM radio. Things looked as if Genesis had made a slow but sure start.

As a followup to their success, the group released their first double album in early 1975. THE LAMB LIES DOWN ON BROADWAY was its title and with this the group and album gain many different reactions. This was their first LP which did not gain the group very much ground. Genesis was known as a group you could sit down and hear a complete album, and enjoy every minute of it. LAMB LIES DOWN broke this tradition in that the four sides of the album were too long to spend the time on.

Late in 1975 Gabriel left the group only saying that it had begun to depress him to perform with the group. The other four members have stayed together and Genesis is once more a beginning.

A TRICK OF THE TAIL is a remarkable beginning for the group now in that they have managed to keep the same sound, almost saying Gabriel was not needed anyway. Phil Collins had done some lead vocals and backing vocal on the other albums; so as Gabriel left, Collins was able to step in and sing lead as if Gabriel had never been there. The other members of the group have also been with the group since the beginning of their success. They are Mike Rutherford, Tony Banks and Steve Hackett.

The album itself is perfect (if I may be so bold to say that about an album). It is totally beautiful from start to finish and remains in the Genesis tradition.

Opening this LP is "Dance On a Volcano," and this cut proves Genesis is the master of what they do. With this cut (as any of Genesis' songs) everything is total cooperation. It's not the vocal or the guitar or the drums or the synthesis, but t-o-t-a-l GENE-SIS.

"Entangled" continues this feeling. Though it is slower music than its forerunner it again proves Genesis to be perfect. As the title suggests, the music moves at a steady speed as the words entangle in the mind. The bridge between the lyrics of the song enforces this entanglement as the mood of mystery and adventure creep into the act.

"Squawk" follows and is a little heavier than the other songs thus far. Genesis defines a Squonk by saying it "is of a very retiring disposition, and due to its ugliness, weeps constantly." It is easy prey for hunters who simply follow a tear-stained trail. When cornered it will dissolve itself into tears." The story is explained in the lyrics as the hunter enters the forest to catch the Squonk. The Squonk is captured in a sack and cries as the hunter carries it from the forest. The crying stops and the hunter looks into the sack only to find a pool of tears.

Closing the side is "Mad Man Moon" and is another slow cut. It could be called a fantasy type love song and the lyrics are very good.

If this desert's all there'll ever be Then tell me what becomes of me.

*A fall of rain?
That must have been another of your dreams.*

Side two opens with "Robbery, Assault and Battery." The story is of a robbery but it has a much deeper meaning than those of the simple lyrics as do most of Genesis' lyrics. The music here again fits arm in arm with the lyrics as each reinforces the other.

"Ripples" is next and is the best cut on the album. The music is as visible as ripples on a lake. The whole effect of the song is real and reality. Its point is made clear in the one line "it's the last time you'll look like today" as all things change from day to day. After a bridge the song comes to a strong finish reinforcing the fact "ripples never come back."

Ending the album are the title cut and "Los Endos," an instrumental. "A Trick of the Tail" is a very interesting cut and asks if music can evoke the imagination. As an end to it all, "Los Endos" becomes a hard rock finally with bits and pieces of the other songs combined.

To sum up, all I can say is hear this album. It is not to dance to nor is it something to just put on background music. It is rock. It is meaning. It is a beginning. It is Genesis.

POOR PROSPECTS FOR CLASS OF '76

(CPS)—Those who have hit the resume route have already found out the latest news on the job market for college grads: employment prospects are bleak. To be more exact, this year's graduates face possibly the worst job outlook ever.

The number of job offers for students graduating in the spring is smaller than last year's figure, according to a recent study released by the College Placement Council. "And just about everyone agreed that 1974-75 was a tough year," said the council, an organization made up of career planning directors at universities.

Job offers to students at 159 colleges are 16 percent lower this year than last year for B.A. candidates, the report said. For master's degree candidates the decline is 25 percent; for doctoral candidates, 32 percent.

The biggest drop in job offers appears to be for students graduating with degrees in the humanities and social sciences. Offers for B.A. candidates in those fields decreased by 26 percent from last March.

The next largest drop—23 percent—was for engineering students. Then came the sciences, with a 12 percent decrease and business fields with a 4 percent drop.

The drop in engineering and business fields is puzzling, the council said, because estimates from employers last November indicated that job prospects were expected to be good in those fields.

Accounting, banking, insurance and chemical and drug companies made about the same number of offers as last year, while offers rose from the automotive, electrical machinery, research-consulting and tire and rubber firms.

Starting salaries at the BA level range from an average high of $16,788 for engineering students to $8,580 for humanities majors, the council said.

One bright spot in the council's report was that undergraduates received 27 percent more job offers this year than in March of 1975. Job offers to women were also 36 percent higher at the master's level.

Job offers to men declined 20 percent for undergraduates and 13 percent for master's candidates.

Nevertheless, the number of jobs offered to women is still only 16 percent of the total offered to B.A. candidates and 15 percent of the number offered to master's degree candidates.

Robinson's Inaugural Address

In receiving an honor, and the great responsibility, contingent upon the honor of being elected Student Body President; I am humbled. My administration has the distinct privilege as serving the student populace, on our country's bicentennial year; a year of re-examination of our country, its system of government, its problems and faults, its assets and advantages and its Presidents; past, present, and future. Since 1776, strife, internal dissension, economic instability, war, poverty, disease and unnecessary death has plagued the American people; but the American people have answered back: To strife and internal dissension, they have answered with domestic tranquility; To economic instability, they have answered with the greatest, most powerful, most efficient, and equitable economic superstructure known; in the entirety of documented history: To war, they have answered with the mightiest might, and protected peace; To disease and unnecessary death, they have answered with the most technologically advanced medical treatments and facilities known to modern man; and they continued to answer: to answer any serious external threat; or internal problem, with the words, we will succeed; we will change; we will overcome; we will continue to be a people just, and free.

Tomorrow will bring the answers of this administration, to the Student populace of UNC-W. As chief executive of the student body, I pledge to answer all problems, with the same tenacity, with the same, deliberate attitude of success, that so characterizes the great American people. To assist my actions, and to aid my answering the problems of the student body; will be my nominees to the respective standing committees, under the auspice of the Student Government constitution. To date, I have chosen three people, two will chair standing committees; and one by executive order, will fill the newly created position of Secretary of External Affairs. To chair the concert committee, I have chosen Mr. Walker O'Quinn. To fill the position of Secretary of External Affairs, I have chosen Mr. Art McMurtrey. To chair the finance committee, and therefore, to become Treasurer of the Student Government Association, I have chosen Mr. Mark Wax. Mr. Wax is a rising senior accounting student, who carries a reputable grade point average, the recommendations of the Chairman and relevant faculty members of the School of Business and Economics; but most importantly, he is one who carries a sincere desire, and overabundant dedication, to effectively and efficiently fulfill the duties of his appointed office. Each person now filling an executive position in my administration, and every one to fill such positions has, and will pledge, aggregate administrative policy continuity, individual, proactive leadership of their respective committees; and most importantly, direct communication with all students.

For it is the aggregate of student populace endeavors that creates all problems, and that same aggregate that remits all solutions, this is truly government of, for, and by the students: and as Americans first, and students second, we promise to continue to answer.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

As vice-president of the SGA this year, I was approached by students concerned about the apparent lack of academic excellence in the Physical Education Department. Through them I learned that the curriculum currently being offered is more suited to the days of 1936 than 1976. Even though new courses are being implemented, they do not provide all the necessary reforms. Faculty reform may also be needed. Seniors are suddenly finding themselves inadequately prepared to find success in the job market, especially in the teaching field. I have begun inquiries into these charges and will continue until I can provide satisfactory satisfactory answers for the students. A college education should enrich a student's life, not waste his time and money.

Concerned students, P.E. majors and non-P.E. majors and concerned faculty may respond to me at 12 Bahama Drive, Wrightsville Beach.

SHORTS FROM CPS

COLLEGE

SERVICE

CLASS, MEET YOUR NEW PROFESSOR, HARVEY WALLBANGER

(CPS-ZNS)--Nobody at Illinois State University is arguing about the lab fee in professor Jack Beno's class. They use it to buy gin and tonic, you see.

Beno teaches a class on Alcohol and the Accident Phenomena where a passing grade depends on a student's ability to get looped and then safely negotiate a road test. Most students flunk the test, Beno says, and that's why he started such an unusual class.

"Most students don't understand how even minimal amounts of alcohol affect their performance," explains bartender, er, professor Beno.

LEWD DUDES SPARK NUDE FEUDS

(CPS)--Students at Stockton State College in Pomona, New Jersey would be a little hot under the collar when the subject of the school's sauna bath pops up--if they were wearing collars, that is.

"I don't like it because the guys don't dress," complains one female student, echoing various negative comments about nudity in Pomona's newest mixing spot. "They wear towels," she continues, "but they fall off and they don't care." Stockton athletic director Don Bragg says it's not all the boys' fault, however. "Girls say it's disgusting," he explains, "I immediately go in to give them hell and there's two girls in there with no clothes."

Bragg is confident that no serious problems exist in the school's hot box possibly because the campus police drop in on a regular basis. "There's no promiscuity or sexual activity going on there," he declares.

SUPER FLY

(CPS)--Up for bid these days in the New York book auction market is an "open fly" copy of Mark Twain's Huckleberry Finn. This is the work of a p...sman who, in a moment of creative abandon, altered an engraving in an 1884 edition so that the fly of an old man's pants was open. Starting price for the book is expected to be $5000.

STUDENTS GAIN LEAST FROM BUCKLEY PRIVACY ACT

(CPS)--Students, supposedly destined to become the big winners when the Buckley Amendment took effect one year ago, have turned out to be the act's biggest losers.

The Amendment, sponsored by Senator James L. Buckley (Cons.-R NY), armed students with the right to inspect their personal files kept by their school and restricted the number of outside persons and organizations able to have access to the files, which in the past often contained information on students that had nothing to do with their academic situation.

But today, bureaucrats in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) are still quibbling over the act's final guidelines, school officials are still wondering what the whole thing means and students seeking admission to colleges, professional schools and graduate programs have been hurt by counselors' refusals to write honest letters of recommendations.

"The guy (Buckley) had good intentions but it's a lousy piece of legislation," a Pennsylvania high school principal told The New York Times. "It's going to force the colleges more and more deeply into a numbers game. It's very unfair to the youngsters."

The main problem with the act appears to be counselors who are spooked by the specter of suit-bearing students now that they can see what is being written about them. The counselors, fearful of offending with an honest assessment of a student's talent, have opted for bland, innocuous letters of recommendation which admission officers say are "useless" in determining a student's worthiness to enter a school or program.

The plans of the Coastal University Diving Association reached maturity in the sun-drenched Florida Keys during the spring break. Hauling two boats and driving four cars, the entire group converged on John Pennekamp (JP) Coral Reef State Park in Key Largo on Sunday afternoon. The group included: Randy Stanley, Bob Beatty, Randy Beatty, George Sakash, Lee McLeod, Duncan Dawkins, Tom Sakash, Fred Hornack, Jr., and Sr., and Steve Burnett.

They visited the "Christ of Abyss" area, the Molasses Reef, the Keys-Looe Key Reef, the University of Miami Pidgeon Key Environmental Station, and Key West.

The curriculum committee will hold a hearing on April 20 to discuss the committee's responsibilities as they relate to the recommendations of the long-range planning committee. The hearing will be in the Library Auditorium at 11:30. Interested students are invited to attend.

DELTA UPSILON

On Saturday, April, Delta Upsilon Fraternity held its annual Founders' Day and Awards Banquet. Dinner was in the Garden Room and the dance was in the Board Room of the Wilmington Hilton. Music was by Skin Deep of Winston-Salem, a very decent band. A rose was given to each of the brothers' dates, and a bouquet of flowers was given to Sherry Hendrix, the fraternity sweetheart.

Frank Wullenwaber received the Best Brother Award. The Best Pledge Award went to Hidy McEachern. John Munroe received the Alumnus of the Year Award. "Tiny" Sheneman got the Best Athlete Award. "Big John" Trowbridge was the Best Football Player, and Tom Whitfield won the "Snake" Award.

Installed as new officers were:

Allen Sheneman - President
Frank Wullenwaber - V. Pres.
Leonard Hutchens - Treasurer
Tom Whitfield - Chapter Relations Secretary
Hidy McEachern - Secretary
Delta Upsilon also installed two new brothers, Hidy McEachern and Charles Gainey. After drinking the traditional 140 ounce Mug, one of the initiates had to be literally carried out. A fantastic time was had by all who attended. Thomas W. Whitfield Chapter Relation Secretary

Hawks Drop Two In Azalea Tennis

UNC-Wilmington's tennis team had a rough Azalea Festival as they lost both matches in the Azalea Festival Tennis Doubleheader.

Other teams participating in the event were UNC-Charlotte, Campbell College and Pembroke State.

In Friday's opener Campbell beat Pembroke 7-2 and UNC-C whipped the Seahawks 6-3.

UNC-C-UNC-W results were:

Singles - Dean (W) d. McCune, 6-2, 6-7, 6-0; Sink (C) d. Goulding, 6-2, 6-1; Kinney (C) d. Shackelford, 6-3, 6-2; Shoaf (C) d. Vail, 6-2, 6-2; Belk (C) d. Currie, 6-1, 6-2; Burnette (W) d. Barry, 6-2, 1-6, 6-4.

Doubles - Dean-Goulding (W) d. Sink-Kinney, 3-6, 7-6, 6-1; McCune-Phillips (C) d. Vail-Shackelford, 6-1, 7-5;

Belk-Cornwell (C) d. Currie-Burnette, 6-1, 6-4.

On Saturday the Hawks faced Campbell while Pembroke met Charlotte.

Once again Pembroke and UNC-W came out on the short end with Charlotte winning 9-0 andd Campbell edging the Hawks 5-4.

Results were:

Singles - Hering Dean (W) d. Herring, 6-0, 7-6; Goulding (W) d. Doyle, 6-3, 6-2; Miller (C) d. Shackelford, 6-2, 6-1; Vail (W) d. Ramsey, 5-7, 7-6, 6-2; Smith (C) d. Burnette, 6-1, 6-4; Steed (C) d. Carroll, 6-3, 6-4.

Doubles - Dean-Goulding (W) d. Herring-Ramsey, 6-1, 6-2; Doyle-Smith (C) d. Vail-Shackelford, 6-3, 6-4; Miller-Steed (C) d. Currie-Carroll, 6-4, 6-4.

A future UNC-W athlete, no doubt.

Andy Burnette drives a backhand against UNC-C.

UNC-W Falls to ECU, 7-2 Slams Campbell, 14-5

A fourth inning grand-slam home run by East Carolina's Joe Roenker blew the Pirates by the Seahawks and pushed them to a 7-2 victory.

ECU scored runs in the first and second innings in addition to the big fourth inning. Parker Davis was charged with all seven runs.

The first inning run came on one hit, a walk, and a wild pitch. A hit and two walks scored the second run.

ECU opened the fourth with a single and the runner advanced to third on Swain Smith's error. A wild pitch and two walks scored a run and loaded the bases for Roenker.

Mike Hunter came on to pitch the last five innings and allowed only two hits and struck out four.

The Hawks got on the board in the fifth when Randy Ourt and Richard Lancaster got back to back singles. Lancaster and courtesy runner Randy Bernhardt advanced on a ground out and then scored when the ECU right fielder dropped Mike Good's fly ball.

Larry File and Lancaster each had two hits for UNC-W.

They Hawks let loose against District 29 foe Campbell getting 17 hits en route to a 14-5 victory.

First baseman Jerry Yandrick collected two doubles and a single to drive in five runs and Richard Lancaster added a two-run homer in the third inning.

UNC-W scored four runs in the second, four in the third, one in the fourth, three in the eighth, and two in the ninth.

Larry File had three hits, Van Lewis had two including a double, Randy Ourt two singles, and Swain Smith two singles. Smith, Lancaster, and Lewis had two RBI's each.

Senior Thurston Watkins got his second win against no losses. He pitched five innings, allowing four hits, four runs, and seven walks, and he struck out seven. Randy Prosser took over for the last four innings and was charged with one run and six walks while striking out four.

The win gave UNC-W a 13-9 record and a 2-0 District 29 mark.

Next home game for the Hawks is April 22 when they host the University of South Carolina.

Golfers Place Second

UNC-W's golf team placed second in an eighteen team field at the Elon College Invitational in Burlington, N.C. Seahawk Bill Peterson won the individual portion of the whole tournament with a 74-69-143 which placed him five shots ahead of Junior Nance of Pembroke State who shot 74-74-148.

Top team totals were as follows:

Elon - 608
UNC-W - 613
Campbell - 622
UNC-C - 625

Seahawk Scores

Bill Peterson - 74-69-143
Jerry Clapp - 76-82-158
Charlie Hause - 78-79-157
Gary Smithwick - 80-78-158
Hugh Primrose - 77-82-159
Bob Williams - 88-82-170

The Seahawk finish was more noteworthy because it was done without star Charlie Roberts who was bedridden with the flu.

UNC-W is now 5-4 on the season and face Pembroke State and Atlantic Christian College this week.

Next week the Hawks will participate in the District 29 tournament.

Is this sport? You'd better believe it!

Educational Testing Service Policies

PRINCETON, N.J.—On many Saturdays this school year, hundreds of thousands of high school and college students will be sitting for exams developed by Educational Testing Service (ETS).

And, as they have for years, ETS staff members will be joining them as selected test centers throughout the country. Their job: to make sure that everything goes all right and perhaps find ways to improve the testing situation itself—for the sake of the student and the test center supervisor.

Toward these ends, almost 200 ETS staff members will drop in, announced and unannounced, at any of the 6,000 centers in operation during the 22,000 test administrations scheduled throughout the year. Their mission is to watch and listen and report back to the ETS director of program relations, William B. Brettnall.

According to Brettnall, the test programs most often involved in these routine observations are national programs administered by ETS, such as the College Board's Admissions Testing Program and the Law School Admission Test. Scores from these particular exams are used as part of the admissions process by colleges and law schools.

The ETS Test Center Observation Program has several purposes, Brettnall says. One is to keep ETS staff informed about actual conditions faced by the students at the test center. Is the seating adequate and comfortable? Is the lighting good? Is the center free from disruptive noises? "We want to make sure that appropriate ETS staff have personal experience with the facts of life of a test administration. ETS program directors and those who write supervisors' manuals should see the results of their work in action."

The visits also have another goal. That is to help test center supervisors with administrative problems or perhaps suggest improvements. These supervisors, almost always local educators experienced in test center administration, insure that the appropriate testing facilities are available at the center and that everything goes along well during the actual testing.

Supervisors are encouraged, Brettnall says, to tell ETS what problems they face and, if any, to make suggestions for improvements. "And we listen to them and make changes, when necessary," Brettnall adds.

"In other words, we want to be sure that we do not allow ourselves to become isolated in any ivory tower and insulated from the practical effects of our work. We continually need hands-on experiences to maintain and improve our test administration procedures."

ETS test center observers undergo a training program to help them understand the role they are expected to play. And when they go out into the field, they carry a letter of introduction, manuals for administering test programs, a center contact report form and other material.

After the observation is over, the findings are reported back to ETS. Comments might range from exceptionally well-run center, all procedures followed, to poor lighting in the cafeteria or inadequate directions to test room or rest rooms. The report goes into each center's file at ETS for follow-up action. Deviations from standard procedures also are pointed out to the supervisors with suggestions for improvement, while good procedures are acknowledged and shared with other centers.

Brettnall also points out the staggering, but often little-realized, job both ETS and the supervisors do to make sure test booklets, answer sheets and back-up materials are at the designated centers and match the number of students scheduled for testing. "Consider, for instance, ETS must arrange for almost 3,000 test centers across the nation to be staffed and available on the same day for a large College Board administration, and have test materials there for each student who has registered. It's a complicated logistical operation."

The College Boards are developed and administered by ETS for the College Entrance Examination Board, a nonprofit association of more than 2,000 schools and school systems, colleges and universities and associations and scholarship agencies.

ETS develops and administers the Law School Admission Test for the Law School Admission Council, a nonprofit corporation representing more than 150 law schools accredited by either the American Bar Association or the Association of American Law Schools.

Spring Concert

The UNC-W Concert Choir under the direction of Richard S. Steen will be presenting its Spring Celebration Concert Friday, April 23 at 8:00 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium.

The 35-voice choir will perform country band marches and even a hoedown dance while representing various aspects of American life and culture. The UNC-W Chamber Singers, a select group from within the choir, will present humorous selections from nineteenth century America as well as several authentic and parodied temperance songs. The patriotic theme of America's Bicentennial will be represented in a contemporary rendition of America The Beautiful. Familiar folksongs such as Shenandoah will also be presented.

Admission to the concert is free for all UNC-W students with I.D. cards. Students will receive a ticket at the door, which will admit one to a reception to be held in the campus dorm lobby following the concert. Keg beer and other beverages and more live singing will be the fare at the reception. Richard Steen, the choir's director, encourages all students to support the campus choral organizations by attending the concert and reception, where a good time can be had by all.

Super Sunday

The Student Union Program Board will present our second annual Super Sunday bash. Music will be provided by Mission Mountain Wood Band! There may be other groups, depending on how tight our money situation is. We plan to have numerous games such as: tug of war, water balloon toss, triangle racing, and many others. This year the event will take place in the Pub area. There will be food in the Good Wood Tavern.

Mr. Allen's regular menu. We plan a separate area so all you parents can bring the kids and drop them off. We hope to see twice as many people, faculty, staff and students, as we had last year. If you would like to participate in the games come by the Student Activities Office in the Pub. As always we need people to help us with these events, so, if you're interested in that come to the above address and find out more. Super Sunday will be on April 25, and will start around 2:00. Come out for the music, fun and games! Richard Boles S.U.P.B.

SUTHERLAND THE SILENT LETS HIS WORK SPEAK

Not since the "talkies" came has there been a film star as quiet as Donald Sutherland. Off-screen at any rate, he rations words like water in the desert.

"I'm frightened of being boring," he says with humor and honesty. "And that's the truth."

He is so reticent that when he is cajoled into meeting journalists-always with the politest reluctance-he calls on his friend Elliott Gould, should he happen to be in the vicinity, to help him through the ordeal.

Significantly, the subject on which Donald Sutherland is most reticent of all is Elliott Gould. After their joyously anarchistic teamwork in "M*A*S*H," they are together again in a comedy called "S*P*Y*S," a Chartoff-Winkler production directed by Irvin Kershner for 20th Century Fox release and premiering Wednesday, April 21, at Kenan Auditorium. They are misfit CIA men in London and Paris, on the run from pretty well everything and everyone.

MINING FOR GOULD IN "S*P*Y*S" COUNTRY

He may not be the world's most incisive or coherent talker, but Elliott Gould is a man who genuinely cares about what he says and whom he's saying it to. He can be both amazingly frank and obstinately uncommunicative and has an almost surrealistic way of confronting the interviewer.

He even speaks in a kind of blank verse: "I love to work," he says, "because I guess I work to love." There is always a purpose in working outside of myself. We've got to work for one another, you know, that's how we get through, working for one another. If there are certain areas where you can't work you've got to make it work. That's art and craft, you know; I'm a craftsman but I prefer not to think at all and just be there as it works out."

Elliott Gould and Donald Sutherland, blood brothers from "M*A*S*H," are together again in "S*P*Y*S," a movie Gould describes as a "semi-serious comedy" about two CIA men walking a deadly tightrope in a paranoid world of peepholes and boobytraps.

Sept. 8, 1976

Mountview Theater Company

Coming to our campus directly from London, England, this entourage of distinguished English actors and actresses will be presenting a full day of activity to stimulate the theatrical community. Their day consists of an open workshop that morning with a matinee performance of "Midsummer's Night Dream," an evening presentation of the "OH What A Lovely War," and finally a late musical night show, "Mixed Doubles." All this free to UNC-W students.

Oct. 24, 1976

The Cousteau Story

The marvels of the "Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau" comes to our campus in the form of a film and lecture by the long time director of the popular series, Bill MacDonald. The film includes excerpts from Cousteau's first films and film footage dealing with the inventions of the aqualung. Don't miss it.

The series also includes sponsorship of the University Music Series so that UNC-W students will be admitted free. Two special attractions include half week residences and work shops by the Claude Kipins Mime Theater and Paul Taylor Dancers.

Physical Education Department

The UNCW Physical Education Department has become the center of growing student criticism in the past two weeks. Several students have publicly made a variety of charges about various aspects of the P.E. program. Investigation has revealed that a certain amount of dissatisfaction does exist among students. This dissatisfaction apparently stems from a variety of sources and is concentrated in three basic areas of concern.

One area of student dissatisfaction is the curriculum and program required for P.E. majors. Several students have charged that the courses now offered do not adequately prepare them for positions as physical education teachers and, therefore, hinder their ability to obtain employment. According to several students, the present program is oriented towards the teaching of games even though most elementary schools are abandoning the game approach for a greater emphasis on movement. These students also charge that no program has been developed to deal with teaching Junior or Senior High school students, to deal with handicapped children who are now entering the regular school system, or to deal with co-educational classroom situations. In addition, certain important skills such as working with the balance beam and trampoline are not taught even though such knowledge is expected of prospective P.E. teachers. Reportedly, this lack of preparation has caused several local school systems to shun UNCW graduates and made getting a job extremely difficult for graduates of the university.

Upon hearing these statements, Coach Miller, Head of the Physical Education Department, commented on the record of his department. We can't guarantee that every student graduating from this school is going to get a job, he conceded, but he added that 'southeastern North Carolina is saturated with our grad-

No Uniform Policy of Faculty Evaluation

By Bobby Parker
Recent inquiries into the system of student evaluation of faculty at UNC-W have revealed that this university has no existing uniform, campus-wide procedure regulating this service, a void that eliminates what many students and administrators feel is an important outlet of student opinion. Because there is no established policy to provide for such evaluation, each academic department is free to decide whether or not it will give students an opportunity to appraise the effectiveness of individual teaching methods.

Dr. Daniel Plyler, Dean of Academic Affairs, said in an interview that the last attempt to create a unified system on campus was instigated by students, but their efforts faded with a gradual decline of interest. However, in his present position, which he has held about a month, Dr. Plyler stated that he would favor such a policy and support its implementation.

"I favor an evaluation process that involves the student," said Dr. Plyler. "My own preference is for a uniform evaluation procedure that would allow for use and interpretation (of the results) at the departmental level.

The most often used procedure on campus is in the form of questionnaires distributed to students by the instructor at the end of the semester. Dr. Plyler estimated that a "significant number of departments now provide an opportunity for student evaluations of this type." The results of these surveys are seen only by the instructor in most cases.

Though a majority of faculty members realize some value in student evaluation, many object to this practice. One of the main reasons for these objections is that there are often personality factors involved in a student's evaluation, thus causing the appraisal to become merely a popularity contest.

But Plyler maintained that the advantage of the students' responses far outweigh any disadvantages. He added that "student reactions do reflect certain aspects of the teaching process and its effectiveness."

However, Plyler went on to say, "I don't think that student evaluation should be carried to the extreme to the point that it determines whether or not a faculty member is promoted. Students should be a part of a comprehensive evaluation process, he said, and either student or administrative evaluation of faculty would be inaccurate alone.

Asked about a situation wherein an instructor receives a poor student evaluation continually, Plyler answered that this should "alert the department . . . of a problem and (it) could be solved at that level."

Dr. Plyler, who served ten years in the biology department, and was its chairman for several years, said that his department had no policy on this matter, but as an instructor he routinely inquired at the conclusion of each course as to his own effectiveness as an educator.

A random check of two departments on campus indicates that most faculty members would support a uniform campus-wide system of evaluation.

One department, which has no set policy and allows each individual instructor to decide for himself whether to provide an opportunity for evaluation, continued on page three

Under Attack

He pointed out that there are presently about 150 P.E. majors and that around 30 graduated each year. "Obviously, the school systems just don't grow that fast," he concluded. Pointing out that key positions in a number of area schools are held by UNCW graduates, he added that "they are doing a mighty good job of still hiring." Coach Miller did concede that students may not receive adequate instruction in trampoline and balance beam skills. He pointed out, however, that the department could not specialize in everything and that students did have a responsibility to undertake to gain these skills. Miller promised to work for improvement in these areas in the future. He pointed out that a specialist will be needed to teach the movement type courses. Finally, he pointed out that six members of his department had attended a state convention and two had attended a health education clinic to gain a knowledge of current developments in physical education.

Another area of student criticism has been the intermural program. Between $6,000 and $8,000 a year is budgeted for the intramural program.

Students complain, however, about poor equipment, lack of officials and the absence of trophies for winning teams. Several have questioned the use of the $6,000. They feel that they should be getting more for their money.

'Pop' Warner, Head of the intermural program, was not available for comment by press time. Coaches Miller and Brooks did respond, however. Both pointed out that new basketballs and softballs had been purchased this year. Also, some new uniforms were purchased to replace those stolen last year. In addition, up to 25 percent of the intermural budget went to pay officials and timekeepers. As for trophies, the coaches stated that they were not required and that demand for them was not that great. They pointed out that when trophies were presented in the past, students often failed to pick them up. Both coaches felt sure that Coach Warner would be glad to talk with concerned students and pointed out that the money spent on intermurals is a matter of public record. They added that UNCW has the lowest athletic activity fee at any state supported college.

The third controversial area of concern deals with the athletic program. Apparently, a number of students feel that there is an overemphasis on baseball, and to a lesser extent, basketball, at the expense of tennis, golf, soccer, and the non-existent wrestling program.

Coach Brooks, UNCW athletic director, replied to the students' charges. "We've got to keep up with the competition," he stated. All the athletic teams are competitive now, including the tennis and golf teams, he continued. "We added several soccer scholarships this year," he added. As far as the wrestling team is concerned, Brooks stated that we cannot afford to support a team. "It would take around $20,000 in scholarships to compete with big name schools such as Carolina and State," Brooks added. The only small schools in our area are Pembroke and Campbell. The larger ones such as Carolina often recruit wrestlers from the ranks of their football teams. In addition, he stated that there is presently nobody qualified to coach a wrestling team. A state cutback has prevented the hiring of a replacement for Charles Sproles, the former coach.

It is not clear what action, if any, will be taken by the dissatisfied students. They have, for the most part, elected to remain anonymous as they are P.E. majors and rather fearful of attacking the department openly. Carol Moore, an athlete who is majoring in Marine Biology, has taken the lead in pressing for needed curriculum changes. Advocates of a wrestling program apparently have no avenue open to them except continued protest.

Coach Brooks is apparently satisfied with the present athletic system. The hottest issue appears to be the intermural program. Mismanagement of intermural funds is a very serious charge, however, and the burden of proof will be on the student protestors. A check of expenditures by concerned students would probably clarify the situation.

Coffeehouse Management

Dear Editor,

I am writing this letter to the students, faculty and staff of our university. I wish to publicly thank all of the people I have worked with on the Coffeehouse Entertainment and Management Committees, and the Student Union Program Board. These people have put many hours of work into these student activities. Working with low budgets and this voluntary labor, we try to give the best entertainment for the money students pay each year. It is amazing what these few people do considering their many other commitments. Without these people there would be no coffeehouse, or events such as Super Sunday. For this I ask only two things: one is for more student attendance, the other is for more help. Without these it is possible one or the other could cease to exist. So thank you to all those who have helped and I invite anyone who would like to help. We need you now.

P.E. "1936"

Dear Editor,

In reference to the letter which appeared in the April 14, 1976 issue of the Seahawk, "Letters to the Editor," we two concerned Physical Education Majors of Junior status would like to elaborate.

There has been a great amount of concern among interested majors as to the quality of our program and faculty as compared to that of other universities in North Carolina.

To begin with, our current program offers no specialization within its field such as: movement exploration which is now in "full swing" at the elementary school level; health education that is now a new field with many openings for teachers, etc.

We as juniors do not feel as if we are qualified to go out into the public school system and do an adequate job. Also, fact proves that it may be almost impossible to find a job teaching physical education in this country after graduation from this university. In fact in the near future, it may be impossible to student teach physical education in New Hanover County. Does this tell you something?

Another concern of ours is the lack of professionalism and concern for students found within the administration and faculty of this department. To our knowledge there are only very few instructors who make the time to attend conferences and workshops throughout the year to improve themselves professionally. The remains seem to confine themselves to the physical education world of "1936."

We feel that our three years spent in this department as a whole have been almost useless. We say almost because the new classes which were added this year 1975-76 (and God knows it's about time!)

The only way this department will be improved is to let the administration and faculty know how we, as students, feel.

The reason for this letter is to show our concern and hopefully motivate others to do the same. We also fear for the future physical education majors at this university. We have been through this '1936' program and hope in the very near future the department will open their eyes to the growing field of physical education. Maybe then they will realize what they have deprived us of and strive to do better with future physical education majors at this university.

"IT'S THE SPECIAL 'GRADUATE' MODEL. GIVES THE TIME, DATE, DOW-JONES AVERAGE, INFLATION RATE AND CURRENT UNEMPLOYMENT FIGURES!"

Moore On Physical Education

Since my last letter in the Seahawk, I have received a wide variety of responses, most of which showed an apparent need for improvement in the P.E. department. Since I received no faculty response, except for those I made a point to see, I have written this letter showing only the student responses, which I received.

First, I need to clear up two points which were believed to have been part of my investigation. One is Title IX, sex discrimination. This issue has already been taken care of and I think students will begin to see its results in the near future. The other point was in concern with the Recreation Department. I don't conceive this department as being included in the P.E. department. To the best of my knowledge and understanding, Mr. Davis has developed an excellent program and will continue to improve it.

The major problem seems to center around the education program. It is my understanding that the majority of the majors, if not all, intend to end up in the teaching field. Seniors, and for that matter graduates, are complaining that they are inadequately prepared to face the teaching job. I made a reference, in my last letter, to the program being suited to the years of 1936 instead of 1976, which could result in our students teaching without the date techniques.

In elementary education, I found that our program consisted of a course teaching on how to teach games. Program of today seem to be striving towards a movement education, in which children become more aware of their bodies and its abilities. Games might be used as a last resort on rainy days. Students leaving our program must either teach in areas where it rains a lot or go to outside sources and clinics to catch up on what they should be getting through a college education.

I have not found any specific courses preparing the students for teaching Jr. High School and Sr. High School levels. The only courses I could relate to this area were the methods courses. It is my understanding that the majority of the class time is spent learning skills and rules and taking tests. How does this apply to the Jr. High School and High School ages? Are the students prepared to teach this skill or barely able to demonstrate the basic skill? How do they adapt the course for the very skillful to the non-skillful without boring one and excluding the other? Does methods teach all this?

Handicapped children are becoming more prominent in the school. They are not going to want special treatment, nor should a course be adapted to them at the risk of the other children's education. The teachers need the ability to offer a course that is designed to allow each student, including the handicapped, to develop to the best of his ability. Where in UNC-W can they develop this skill or learn to handle these problems?

Is the education department to blame for this? Not totally, if any. The basic education of a P.E. major comes from his department, just as the prospective Biology teacher learns his Biology from that department. Nationwide we are seeing students' SAT scores dropping. What is involved in this problem, I don't know, but I don't believe UNC-W needs to add to the problem by producing teachers that are apparently prepared for the 1936 era. Some of the faculty have young children. How do you want your child educated to face the modern world . . . with techniques of 1936 or 1976? I hope we can all answer that question correctly.

In order to find the students' view on the faculty competency, I used several questions. I hope each faculty member, not only P.E., but in the entire university, will honestly evaluate themselves on the basis of a few questions and to better from the student catalogue. This quote is from the 1973 issue, page 12, under the heading "The University of North Carolina at Wilmington." 2nd paragraph:

"The University at Wilmington is a community of scholars dedicated to teaching, learning and creating and to extending knowledge through research. Its objective is to stimulate a creative spirit, to fire imagination, to promote curiosity and to teach students to make valid judgements concerning activities and values as well as to think with clarity and to communicate with fluency and accuracy in the realms of empirical facts and abstract ideas."

Also, the last statement of the 3rd paragraph reads:

"As the university progresses, its special environment as well as the needs of its constituency will play a major part in the development in scope and depth of established programs and in the initiation of new ones."

How many of you, as faculty members, are violating this university policy? Some of the questions I asked the students, in order to perceive the problems in the faculty, were involving the lack of qualifications, insensitivity toward students, towards the need for change, also dedication. I used dedication in two lights.

One was dedication to teaching students in and out of the class room, and second, dedication to one's field. Are they, as faculty, satisfied with what they learned in college or are they dedicated enough to attend workshops, take additional summer courses, etc. to expand their knowledge in their field and keep up to date?

A successful faculty member is usually one who does not view his job as one that lasts from 8 am to 5 pm. If you (the faculty) show your interest in the course, this will help generate student interest; but if you view it as another course to suffer through, the students will also develop that attitude.

I want to make it clear that this is just an unprofessional preliminary report on the responses that I have received from the students. It is by no means conclusive. After talking with members of the PE faculty, they seem to be willing to help solve these and any other problems that may be in existence. I understand that a survey will be made, and I encourage every one, students and faculty, to participate and state their views on the subject.

Super Sunday

Dear Editor,

This is just to let everyone know that the Super Sunday was a great success! The atmosphere gradually built up to an all-out happening that was cautiously and effectively and yet very subtly kept on the tracks by Craig and Richard et al.

Maybe too cautiously in my opinion, when the scheduled games were called off because of overenthusiastic crowd participation. The enthusiasm was stoked by some of the best music I have heard in this area. I am very glad to see my fees spent on something worthwhile like Super Sunday. Let's have another one real soon!

With a Final Prediction

A Candidate Who Makes You Want To Vote?
Not On My Ballot

Late-bloomer Frank Church recently entered the Democratic presidential sweepstakes sporting the slogan, "At last, a candidate who makes you want to vote." Oh, but if it were so! The Idaho senator joins a list of lackluster competitors which now includes four hard-running personality snipers, one non-active candidate, and one very active non-candidate, not the menon-candidate, not to mention the five also-rans who have fallen by the wayside, nameless in the crowd.

It seems as if this campaign has been going on for years, and it hasn't gotten one bit better since it began. To add to the tedium of this primary after primary merry-go-round, the four most active candidates—George Wallace, Morris Udall, Henry Jackson, and Jimmy Carter have settled into a rut of mud-slinging until one looks as undesirable as the other. (Though Wallace still looks a bit worse.)

When Jimmy Carter's "tongue slip" about "ethnic purity" occurred the others jumped on him with full force. (Actually, I believe it a bit of political play on Carter's part that backfired—he was searching for a bit of rhetoric but failed to think through its implications.) Carter himself has been whining over an alleged "ABC" (Anybody but Carter) movement that has been mounted in New York and Pennsylvania. What Carter seems to forget is that he was the main benefactor of a successful "Stop Wallace" movement in such states as Florida and North Carolina.

The problem with this personality battle is that we don't need a personality president.

What we need is a man who has the good sense to manage the resources of the office and use them to start dealing with the issues at hand. (Unfortunately, what we have in office now fills neither of those bills.) If anyone can find such a man in the pack who has a decent chance of winning in November please point him out.

Some would point out Carter, Jackson or Udall, and yes, even a few would point out Wallace. But it's a good guess that most would point at the Happy Warrior himself, Hubert Humphrey. Let's take a look at just what they are pointing toward.

There Humpty sits high on a wall, about ready to fall into the storm below, and not even his most loyal supporters could put him back together again if he breaks once more. It's really strange that Humphrey has become so attractive this year, because he's the very same man who lost in 1972 to the wave of reform that swept the party.

He's been doing the same job in the Senate that he's done for years, and a very effective job at that. Humphrey has built up a great amount of respect in the halls of Congress and has more influence than any other member of the Senate, with the possible exception of a few committee chairmen. He would make an excellent replacement for Mike Mansfield, the Senate Majority Leader who is retiring this year.

Humphrey can do more for the country, and for himself, within the Senate than he could as president. As the chief executive, he would not be exempt from the criticisms and arguments of his former Congressional colleagues. It would be a tragedy to see Humphrey enter the campaign and lose again—that would be a humiliation difficult to recover from.

No matter what Humphrey says for the record, he's running as hard for the nomination as anyone else. He knows what he is doing, too. The only way he'll get the nomination is to remain out of the primary fights. The primaries become too personal, and tend to drift away from the issues until finally the public becomes weary of the same old faces.

The Democrats, in the aftermath of the McGovern debacle, are looking for the safest, surest nominee. Experience tells them that he comes from the top of all the opinion polls, and Humphrey's name has occupied that spot consistently.

Humphrey's biggest challenger is Carter. If the former Georgia governor can mass enough delegate strength to secure the nomination before the convention, Humphrey is finished. But Carter himself must have the strength in hand when he arrives in New York City, because if it goes to a second and third ballot, Carter will be wondering, like so many others, what could have been.

Carter's strategy seems to be to straddle a fence through the campaign in order to please all the people all the time. To a degree, he's succeeded in just that. His main attractions are his anti-Washington position (which even drew a direct shot from Humphrey) and his down-home, smiling personal appeal.

But Carter would make a poor president mainly because of a sentiment he expressed in an earlier primary campaign. Carter actually said, in effect, that the busy ordeal of campaigning did not allow him enough time to study the federal government. One question I would like answered is: if he doesn't know the inner workings of the federal government, how can he possibly continue to promise solutions to governmental problems?

Carter is a product of media manipulation. An underdog at the start of the campaign, when he won that first primary, the press made it all but official that he was the people's choice (the press loves such a surge from behind.) From the momentum that he derived from the press, he went on to collect a sizable number of primary and caucus victories and now leads the field in delegate strength. Supporters have joined his bandwagon simply because he gives the appearance of a winner among losers.

The most appealing Democrat in the race now, to me, is the one that was the last to enter, Frank Church. He is the only active candidate who is really trying to address the issues. With such a late start, he has avoided the personality battles. Of the declared candidates (and you may include Humphrey) he is perhaps the Democrats' best president timer.

After Carter and company finish tearing each other apart, Church will still have a clear slate. But he will also be untested with a large cross-section of voters. A major reservation about Church is his decision, while chairman of the Senate investigation of illegal CIA activities, to curb an investigation into a shady matter involving the Kennedy clan. This decision was clearly made to preserve Kennedy support for his presidential bid. But nowhere are we going to find a candidate above a little political maneuvering—it comes with the job.

One statement from Church that makes particularly good sense is his plan to remove tax breaks for foreign investments and provide tax breaks to business and industry for redevelopment of our cities. That's the kind of sound thinking needed in the White House.

Church's efforts may well prove to have started too late. But he will be around as a very attractive running mate. His most serious opponent for that position would be California Governor Jerry Brown. Church's more liberal record and close ties with Democratic regulars may give him an edge over Brown, the 37-year-old maverick.

Now for a few predictions, since this is the last Seahawk before the summer conventions. I remember with agony the last time I went out on a limb with predictions—not only did I fall off, but I hit the ground with a resounding "thud."

The Democratic ticket: Humphrey and either Church or Brown.

The Republican ticket: Ford and John Connally.

Don't be surprised if you hear another thud on convention nights. I'll just pick myself up, come back a little red-faced, and blame it all on Newsweek. After all, they taught me everything I know!

Letters Continued ...

Dear Editor,

I was very interested in reading Miss Moore's letter to this paper two weeks ago regarding UNC-W's Physical Education Department. It raises that department's competence. I am not a PE major and so cannot make factual comments on the academics of the department. I do, however, participate in the intramural program and feel that it is severely lacking.

How many of the students reading this paper realize that between six and eight thousand dollars comes out of their activity fees to support the intramural program? This money is used for a variety of purposes, including the purchasing of trophies and new equipment and the payment of officials. Now I ask you—how many of you who have been associated with the intramural program have seen or heard about trophies being awarded to winning teams or individuals? How, where and when are they awarded? I have never seen or heard of them. Even if they do exist, buried in the dust somewhere, do they really cost as much as we are paying for them? And what about new equipment—how many of you have seen or played with a couple of thousand dollars worth of new softballs, basketballs or volleyballs? In fact, a lot of this type equipment is also used in PE classes and should be purchased out of some other budget. And there are several sports in which the participant uses his or her own equipment such as tennis and ping-pong and some in which no equipment is used, such as wrestling. Finally, I come to the payment of officials. What officials? I saw some in basketball, some in volleyball, but none in tennis, ping-pong or softball. What this all boils down to is this—I, and several people I have talked to, cannot believe that six to eight thousand dollars is being spent on our intramural program. Now, I ask, where the hell is this money going to?

Money is the most serious problem with the intramural program, but there is also a weak internal structure which is contributing to its overall ineffectiveness. The manner in which the entire program is run seems extremely poor to me. How many of you, who have participated in intramurals, have been completely unaware of your team's schedule? Or how many of you have gone to participate in a game and found it had been cancelled, rescheduled or postponed? Both of these incidents have happened to me. In the first, my team was told repeatedly by the intramural director that there was not yet a schedule made out for our particular sport. Yet that afternoon, we discovered from another team that there was indeed a schedule and we were to be ready to play that day.

And in the second incident, involving a different sport, my team had a game rescheduled for an earlier time. Unfortunately, we were not told of the new time and had to forfeit that game. These are only two incidents; I dare say there are many more.

Perhaps this letter has started you thinking—I hope it has. It is obvious that we need a complete investigation of our intramural program, but more than that, we need a complete revamping of the entire program. J.G.

Faculty Evaluations

continued from page one reported that only two of ten instructors regularly accommodate student evaluation. The department chairman, who himself does not provide for student evaluation, said that he "would prefer to see it on a uniform schoolwide policy," and that he had no real objections to the practice.

Another department, which provides a uniform questionnaire to its instructors for their use, also stated a preference for a campus-wide policy. The chairman of this department said that he does not think that students use the forms as a means of hurting or downgrading an instructor, dismissing the effect of the personality factor, and believes that students are honest in their evaluations because the results are anonymous anyway. Another form of faculty evaluation is that by an instructor's peers, which is usually important in decisions of promotion and tenure. This is a standard, campus-wide procedure which also aids in routine improvement for department instructors.

Dr. Plyler expressed a desire to see student outlets, such as the SGA and the Seahawk, "Play an important role in the implementation of this procedure" of student evaluation as a schoolwide basis.

What is certain about this situation is that everyone concerned—students, faculty, and administrators—seems to support a campus-wide, uniform system of student evaluation and also sees a significant value in its use. With all parties in agreement, many people may wonder what or who is blocking its path to realization.

Hawks Edged by Gamecocks Win Over Campbell

UNC-W lost a heartbreaker to the University of South Carolina 9-8 but came back to defeat District 29 foe Campbell by a score of 6-4.

Two seven inning games had originally been scheduled with USC but an afternoon shower forced a change of plans and one nine inning game was played instead.

It was a see-saw affair throughout as the Seahawks led after the first inning 2-1. It was tied after two, 3-3 but in the course of the next three innings the Hawks outscored the Gamecocks to take a 6-5 lead.

USC broke loose in the top of the seventh scoring four runs but the Seahawks answered with two of their own in the bottom half of the inning to make it 9-8.

Thurston Watkins picked up his first loss of the season against three wins. He gave up seven runs on seven hits and walked six. Watkins was relieved in the seventh by Randy Prosser.

The Hawks bounced back against Campbell College and upped their district record to 4-0.

Parker Davis went the distance for UNC-W giving up 5 hits while walking ten and striking out nine.

Shortstop Swain Smith collected two hits in three at bats, scored twice and batted in one run.

The Hawks jumped out to a 5-0 lead but Campbell scored four runs in the sixth inning.

The win gave UNC-W an 18-12 record. The Seahawks are at home today against Gardner-Webb.

In the bottom of the ninth Mike Good led off with a walk and was replaced by Randy Bernhardt. Van Lewis sacrificed Bernhardt to second and that brought Herk Ivey to the plate. Ivey singled into left field and moved the runner to third.

Larry File, UNC-W's leading hitter, then hit back to the Gamecock pitcher who began a game ending double play.

The win was the 32nd against 9 losses for USC which is ranked tenth nationally.

File had three hits, including a double, and drove in three runs. Good and Yandrick also had doubles and Swain added a triple.

Third baseman Richard King made several nice plays including a diving stop on a darting ground ball.

Intramurals 76-76

"Varied" would be the adjective to describe the intramural program at UNC-W. Programs are open to men and women in all sports except football and wrestling. The officials this year have included both men and women in football and basketball in the men's and women's program.

The total participating in the activities over a third of the total student body. The program includes formal activities on a regular schedule basis and the informal "do it yourself" activities. In the regular program of scheduled activities some totals are interesting.

In Flag Football offered in the fall over 100 players on five teams took part in 20 games. The Jocks won the league with Sigma Alpha Beta, the business fraternity, the runner up.

Seven player soccer was a new sport added to the fall program this year. Six teams responded to registration and played twelve games. A team called the Locals were the winners. Some fifty men and women participated.

The Punt, Pass and Kick drew some 30 participants with the winner in the Punt category being Jay Mayberry, the Pass category Chip McDonald and the Kick category was Chip McDonald. The combined champion based on all three events was Jay Mayberry. The women's champion was Julie Barden.

Informal activities include the various clubs such as Karate, Boating and Bicycle which are student oriented. Individual activities include a number of joggers, weight lifters and weight training, gymnastics, paddle ball and individual activities. A large number of students make use of the gymnasium on Sunday afternoons for free choice activities. Several sports are included as the demand requires and in the past few years as many as 40 golfers have had a tournament. Billiards have been popular and UNC-W received national recognition for Frisbie.

Surfing has been a part of the program as has Cross Country which was a basis for the sport being inaugurated as a team sport this past fall. Archery, Badminton, Volleyball and Basketball (one-on-one) have also played a prominent role in the intramural activities.

Students registered in the P.E. 436 Intramural class serve in supervisory capacities as each student directs one activity as part of the class requirements.

In the winter season, basketball had 265 registered participants on 27 teams in four leagues. Two hundred and twenty-six games were played and the season ended with an 8 team tournament. Each league was represented with their top team and four others were chosen on the basis of record.

Division winners were: Green League - Champions; Gold League - Faculty; White League - Pi Kappa Phi; and Red League - Phoenix. In the tournament, the Champions were the winners with the AAA as runners-up and the Spades in third place. The women's basketball program was won by the Hilton's Heads followed the the 4th Floor and 5th Floor in a tie for the runner-up position. Fifty-two women on six teams played a schedule of 30 games. A Free Throw contest for men and women was also held. A year ago, Jo Francis Hilton won this event against all other men and women.

Wrestling drew 21 grapplers in for weight classes. Steve Martin won the 130-140 weight division; the 141-158 winner was Tony Harris and the 160-174 was won by Brad Lanier and the Heavyweight winner was K. Wells.

The big spring event was softball with 260 participants on 21 teams in three leagues. This included one all girls team and several teams with girls as members. League winners were: Phoenix in the Green League; Poly Science in the White League and the Superstars in the Gold League. Other activities have included ping-pong and tennis which are still in progress. The tournament in softball will be concluded on April 29.

INTRAMURAL SOFTBALL FINALS TODAY

French Navy Vs. UNC-W

In celebration of the Bicentennial and the important part the French Navy played in it, two French warships will visit Wilmington next week. A soccer match between the UNC-W soccer team and a team from the French ships has been planned for Monday at 3:00.

Jacksonville, Florida is the only other port in North America that the two ships will visit.

Entertainment

Good Wood Finishes Year

The Good Wood Tavern has quite a line-up of programs to finish out this year. On Friday, April 30, Gary Allen will perform.

Saturday, May 1, is Movie Night. The Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. is providing us with four films. First, three W.C. Fields' comedies: "Golf," "The Big Thumb," and "If I had A Million." The second movie is "Sea Safari," a sea hunt in search of the manta ray. The third is "Shadows of The Sea," in which man pits his skill and experience against the shark. The fourth film is "Salute to Louis Armstrong," when Louie was the guest of honor at the 1970 Newport Jazz Festival. All in all this should be a really great mini film festival. Admission is free.

Last but not least, we're excited about a five man band we are showcasing called the Contenders. According to their agents, Creative Nashville, "These musicians have successfully synthesized the music of the Carolinas (both lowland and hill music), Tennessee and Texas. Whether it's a cajun-like double fiddle get down or a plaintive melody of hills and love, this band will get you." We highly recommend this exam treat special! Shows will begin at 10 and 11 next Tuesday and Wednesday, May 4 and 5. There will be a 50 cents cover charge for this professional entertainment. Richard Boles

GARY ALLEN

Gary Allen Performs

Gary Allen, who loves "cool beer, warm smiles, and all music," will perform two shows in the Good Wood Tavern Friday, April 30. Allen started playing folk and country music at twelve, and has since played and sung in several rock 'n roll bands. He says that he had the chance to go to college, but wound up as a specialist on dance halls, taverns, night clubs, and coffeehouses. His music is influenced most by artists like Kristofferson, Chapin, Little Feat (Lowell George), Jesse Ed Davis, Leon Russell, and Linda Rondstat. "But," he adds, "if anyone has a Frank Zappa album handy, I can get into that, too."

Allen's shows will begin at 9 and 10 p.m.

SUPER SUNDAY

The Student Union Program Board presented their second annual Super Sunday on April 25, with the help of the SGA Fine Arts, Concert, and Dance Committees, and Donna Murray, Kathy Bunn, Teresa Finch, Debbie Venters and Susie Kelly. Attended by an estimated 400 to 450 people, the afternoon's events included music by Midnight Flier and Mission Mountain Wood Band, games and movies.

MMWB was the big attraction, however, as most of the crowd has obviously come to clog and clap to their special brand of electric bluegrass music, remembered so clearly from last year.

Not a single person was disappointed, either, for the band put on a super two-hour show, with the audience as tired and happy as its end as the band. Ever hear of MZWB fever? It was spread far and wide Sunday, thanks to the Program Board, and hopefully will bring Mission Mountain's early return to UNC-W.

Food Service Closes

The Coffeehouse Management Committee sadly announces the departure of the food proprietor, Mr. Inky Allen. Allen said that he has enjoyed his stay here, and feels that he has made many friends. Unfortunately, the volume of business each day was not enough to justify his return next fall. He will close his kitchen tomorrow evening, at the conclusion of Gary Allen's (no kin) performance. So, everyone, come to the Good Wood this last week, say goodbye to Inky and his staff, and munch out!

Student Group to Participate in Summer Excavation in Israel

By Bobby Parker

Twelve students from UNC-W will participate in an archaeological expedition this summer which will explore the site of Tel Beersheva, a biblical city located in Israel, according to Dr. Gerald Shinn of the Department of Philosophy and Religion. The expedition will be the last of seven annual excavations at Beersheva which have been sponsored in cooperation with Israel's Tel Aviv University.

The expedition is set up as an educational project with its entire work force comprised of students and volunteers. A permanent camp has been built at the foot of Tel Beersheva that consists of a mess hall, offices, work and study rooms and includes electricity, water and telephone facilities.

Excavation work is conducted until noon and the afternoons are spent cleaning and sorting the finds. Lectures on various archaeological subjects and other programs are held in the evenings. The current progress in each area of the excavation is summarized during weekly reviews of work.

The project includes not only the Beersheva site but also other excavation points in that general area of Israel. UNC-W students will work for five weeks at Beersheva and spend an additional week visiting the other archaeological sites.

While at Beersheva, the participants in the program will be instructed in every phase of the excavation, including the recording and treatment of finds. Student workers will receive course credit through Tel Aviv University and will follow their summer work with a course at this campus entitled "Archaeological Excavations in Israel." Students must take the course to receive the three hours of credit.

Any student who wishes to join the group must provide his own transportation to New York City, where the group from Wilmington will be joined by students from UNC-Chapel Hill for the plane trip to Tel Aviv. The cost for the round trip from New York to Tel Aviv will be $702, with room and board costs for the five weeks' stay at Beersheva at $175. Approximate costs for the sixth week of travel will be $100.

The excavation will be digging at the earliest levels of habitation in that area. The first settlement at Beersheva was founded in the Early Israelite period, about 1200 BC. This settlement was destroyed and a fortified, well-planned city was later constructed at the site.

Any student at UNC-W is welcome to join the group and may contact Dr. Shinn at 791-3821. Departure from New York is set for June 24 with the return scheduled on August 6.

BIG M.A.C.

The "minority affairs committee" (M.A.C.) is a new standing committee of the SGA that has the power to police the activities of other standing committees of the SGA. "M.A.C." needs members from the minority groups on campus to make it effective. Any minority group on campus that wishes to be a part of "MAC" please leave notice in the student activities office.

Delta Upsilon

The Delta Upsilon Intramural Softball Team, captained by "Tiny" Sheneman, ended up its season with a record of three wins and three losses. The fraternity would like to thank those brothers who participated even though they probably had other things to do.

Delta Upsilon Fraternity also participated in the Azalea Festival Parade, which was held on the ninth of April. "Tiny" and Frank Wullenwaber displayed the Delta Upsilon flag over Frank's Chevrolet Blazer, which was towing a race-boat in the parade.

Although the fraternity no longer has a house we still have "get down" parties like the one we had this past weekend at Hugo's.

Summer vacation will soon be upon us and the fraternity will be conducting its summer rush program. Delta Upsilon, founded in 1834 is the sixth oldest fraternity in the United States. It was founded in protest to the secret fraternities that existed then and now. Delta Upsilon is a non-secret, non-hazing fraternity. This means that we have no secret rituals and that pledges are not roadtripped in the middle of the night. We urge all interested undergraduate males to attend our summer rush. Details will be forthcoming.

SPIDER SABICH AND THAT BIG MOGUL IN THE SKY

(CPS)—Did the late skiing star Spider Sabich have a secret death wish?

Sabich, shot to death in his $250,000 Aspen, Colorado home earlier this year, spoke with Skiing magazine some time before his death. The quote is printed in the magazine's spring edition.

Said Sabich, who had been encountering some difficulty on the slopes: "You know, this is all a mind game. Maybe what I should do is step in front of a Greyhound and see if I couldn't cause amnesia. Then maybe I could get the jumps out of my mind."

French born actress Claudine Longet, former wife of singer Andy Williams and Sabich's roommate for the past two years, has been charged with felony manslaughter in the case.

Duffy Robinson

William "Duffy" Robinson, newly elected president of the SGA has made a rather startling budget request for the 1976-77 school year. Robinson's proposal to pay the SGA president a salary, has provoked strong controversy within the student senate.

Feeling that serious questions had been raised about the proposal, Robinson agreed to present his case for the executive salary to the student body.

The President pointed out that there are good precedents for such a salary. Fourteen of the sixteen state supported college campuses have some form of compensation for their chief executive. In addition, the state of North Carolina pays its governor twelve times as much as it pays state legislators. Robinson also pointed out that the SGA president had a number of duties besides direct administration of the student government. These extra duties include the North Carolina Association of Student Governments and the board of trustees of the University. These and other duties and responsibilities of the presidency require at least 30 to 40 hours of work a week.

President Robinson stated that there is presently severe discrimination against working students in the presidency. "It is physically impossible to be president and work a 30-40 hour a week regular job", he stated. While the $1,500 a year salary would not completely eliminate this discrimination, he commented that "It's a step in the right direction." The salary should allow more economically pressed students to serve as president.

Some senators have expressed fears that a salary would cause students to run for SGA president for the wrong reasons. Robinson, however, feels that it will increase interest in student elections. "The people are going to demand to know how a person stands when he is spending their money", he stated. He also hopes that the salary will make the president more available as he will be required to keep office hours. As a final note, Duffy added that the senate would be able to freeze the executive salary if the president was not properly fulfilling his duties.

Employment and Community Development

Student Interns needed to establish citizen contact, arrange meetings and publicize citizen participation. Will be required to work 20 hours a week at $2.95 an hour beginning July 1. Must provide own transportation. Experience in organizational concepts preferred, with experience in detailed research required. Resume must be in no later than May 14.

GOLDEN STATE STUDENTS HIT SILVER SCREEN IN BLUE MOVIES

(CPS)—Someone has been making pornographic movies in the dorms at San Jose State College in California for the past two years, and the productions have opened to mixed reviews.

"The whole College thing has come together for me for the first time, gushed one coed who took part in the filming. "Drinking, drugs and sex, all at once."

"Obscene behavior is clearly contrary to university policy," harumphed college president

John Bunzel, who has launched an investigation into the incident.

"I tried to be a cool reporter but I must have turned 12 shades of purple before they were through," admitted Louise Randall, a writer for the student newspaper who hunted down the action for two months and then witnessed the filming of a couple of scenes.

"Most of them are clean, well-raised, mom-and-apple-pie types you wouldn't pick as porno chicks," commented the director, speaking of the nine female students who acted for him. One male student also starred in color films which are being marketed for $1,000 each. The students were paid up to $100 for their parts, although the director said he had to hire prostitutes for the "unusual" sex scenes.

The filming went undiscovered because of an elaborate lookout system that enabled the sets to be dismantled and the crew to disperse in 60 seconds.

THE BOOT FOLLOWS BOOTIE FOR FLORIDA CO-ED

(CPS)—Committing the "ultimate sin" was enough to get a Florida woman expelled from the Florida Bible College in mid-April—a month before graduation. The ultimate sin, at least in this case, is that she became pregnant without being married.

A Circuit Judge upheld the school's decision to boot Deborah Clayton, 22, out before she could finish the four more weeks of study necessary for her bachelor's degree.

While perhaps short on Christian charity, the Bible College is long on experience with the ultimate sin. Last the college's founding president disappeared after telling the college officials that he had committed adultery with one of his students.

Essay Contest Announces Winners

The awards presentation for the Edward A. Powles Bicentennial Essay Contest was held Tuesday afternoon. The winners were: first place ($100), Robert Anthony King; Second place ($60), Curtis R. Anderson; and Third place ($40), Richard C. Weiss.

A publication called Tricentennial: Life in 2076 will include these three essays as well as three others written by: Bobby Parker, Mitchell Dunn, and Harry Charles Craft, III. The publication was produced by the UNC-W Department of English and the Wilmington-New Hanover County American Revolution Bicentennial Association. Copies are available for free in the English Department, the library, and selected places in the community.

Judges for the contest were: Mrs. Marjorie Smith, Education Editor - Star-News Newspapers; Dr. Alan D. Watson, associate Professor - Department of History; Dr. Marie A. Powles, assistant Professor - Department of English; and Dr. James J. McGovern, associate Professor and Chairman, Department Philosophy and Religion.

FUTURISTIC DRAGON T. REX

By the things that have been written I sometimes feel I am the only person in the world that likes Marc Bolan and T. Rex. I go to record stores and as sure as I am alive, there are T. Rex albums on sale from $1.97 to 2.99; where a few months back I had paid top price for them. I am told how bad his latest hit single is and how terrible this or that concert was.

After hearing these things, it is hard to say Bolan and T. Rex are one of my favorite groups, but I do. I am also proud to say I own 13 of his albums and have others ordered which I await patiently.

For a brief history, Tyrannosaurus Rex released their first single in this country in 1970. The song was called "Ride A White Swan" and made top 40 across the U.S. but never became a big hit. Following this was another single, "Bang a Gong" in 1971. This turned out to be the Rex's biggest hit as from this time to present Bolan has battled the critics.

Exactly what started this battle I cannot say, but, I do know it had something to do with the way the group was promoted. After "Bang A Gong" and the ELECTRIC WARRIOR album, T. Rex was knocked and cut dry. Everything Bolan tried to do to make it big in America was called gimmick and treated like a contagious disease.

T. Rex produced two albums during this period which I think were tops, SLIDER was the first and received such harsh reviews that the next album, TANX, was said to be aimed directly at the critics. In England he had hit after hit but in America he could not be accepted.

Because of this the group changed styles to what I believe Bolan thought America wanted. Out of this came the ZINC ALLOY (in England or LIGHT OF LOVE (in America) albums. As it turned out, the album nearly ruined him in this country and was one of the fastest albums I have ever seen to be released one week and go to the cut racks the next. With this disappointment, T. Rex has kept out of the U.S. album wise, for two years.

With the release of FUTURISTIC DRAGON I think T. Rex will again aim his magical power at the U.S. If so, I hope people in this country will give an honest listen this time around (if the record is even released here).

FUTURISTIC DRAGON is

Bolan at his tops. In listening to the album it is obvious that Bolan has returned to the quality of albums like THE SLIDER and TANX. But, it is also an improvement over these as he has learned from his mistakes with the ZINC ALLOY LP.

The sound remains very Bolan, with the simple but poetical lyrics and the pulsing guitar. It ranges from light-heavy rock to slow rock with each song holding its place the entire time. The vocals are very controlled and effective as Bolan glides through each number with the ease of a true professional.

"Futuristic Dragon" opens the LP and is spoken among the strange sound of moog and guitar. From this you know that Bolan is the Futuristic Dragon and will rock as only he does it.

"Jupiter Liar" follows and is the pulsing type rock Bolan is known for. This cut is an excellent example of Bolan's use of lyrics as he has the ability to repeat a few lines without them getting boring. It is also easy to see his improvements as compared with the ZINC ALLOY LP. The backing vocals work on this cut where on the previous album it was a fight from start to finish.

Following this is a very good rock-pop cut called "Chrome Sitar." Once again there is no fight. Nothing unnecessary. Only Bolan Boggie as it should be with the strong vocals and guitar work. A little punch and zip and Bolan controlling all the action.

"All Alone" is next and is the first time I have heard Bolan being influenced by raggie. The song is topped off with some very good sax work and drums but Bolan's remarkable uses of words make the lyrics something else.

The Bolan Boggie comes out only as Bolan can do it on the next cut, "New York City." This cut did very well in England as a single and is flat Boogie. All the characteristics of Bolan are here with his use of the backing vocals and guitar to produce the sound. This song is best when heard at full volume.

"My Little Baby" and "Calling All Destroyers" end the side and are the worst cuts on the album. The first is the best of the two but remains very pop. The guitar work is fair but does not hold up to that of the songs before it. "Destroyers" could also have been a better cut but Bolan's use of the echoed vocals is a little too much to be taken seriously.

Side Two is the best side altogether in that it contains interesting songs and some beautiful rock cuts. An instrumental, "Theme for a Dragon" opens the LP followed by another boogie song, "Sensation Boulevard." Here Bolan's vocals really give the number the needed kick.

"Ride My Wheels" follows and is very similar to the material off the ZINC ALLOY LP. This is a good example of Bolan's use of lyrics as he controls words as only a true poet could.

Following this are my favorite cuts, "Dreamy Lady" and "Dawn Storms." These are rock 'n roll love songs. The first of the two is done very fifties style with the na na background vocals and all. Bolan's voice is excellent on the song as he rocks from word to word. Dawn Storm is T. Rex style as the lyrics slide with more very well-done vocals. The quiver in Bolan's voice is very well controlled and effective on the cut.

To sum up: FUTURISTIC DRAGON is definitely an advance for Bolan. With it, T. Rex may have its chance in America again. With time, Bolan could catch on in this country. By the number of his albums he has already made, I am sure he will be around until something happens in his favor. Till then: ROCK-OUT.

JOY EXPLOSION COMES TO UNC-W

This fall the Christian Fellowship at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington will be host to the first large-scale Jesus festival here in Wilmington. September 10, 11, 12 JOY EXPLOSION will be happening on the UNC-W athletic field.

What exactly is JOY EXPLOSION and what specifically will be happening? JOY EXPLOSION will be a three day outdoor festival with music, teaching, fellowship and counseling. It will be an opportunity for students from college campuses across the state and all who wish to participate to come together for fellowship and to discover more about their relationship to Jesus Christ, and to one another.

JOY EXPLOSION will be an outreach for those who desire deeper meaning and direction for their lives; a time of becoming one with their creator. Simply put, it will be a time of joy and experience in our Lord Jesus Christ.

The UNC-W campus, being an easily accessible location for such an event, along with the availability of space and co-operation from campus administration makes it the ideal choice for this event. In addition, resident students will enjoy the convenience of the site.

We are fortunate to have Nicky Cruz as one of our guest speakers for JOY EXPLOSION. Nicky's dramatic conversion story is told in the best seller, THE CROSS AND THE SWITCHBLADE. He is author of RUN, BABY, RUN (the story of his rise from street gang warfare, drug addiction, and street life in New York City to a life with Christ), THE LONELY NOW, and SATAN ON THE LOOSE. Nicky is the founder and director of Nicky Cruz Outreach, Inc., which operates rehabilitation centers for teens in trouble.

Another guest speaker is Albert Long, a native of Durham, N.C. Albert was the second and last athlete in the University of North Carolina history to win varsity letters in football, basketball, baseball and track. He works very closely with the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and has conducted well over 500 school assembly programs in the past eight years. He has also held pre-game worship services for several major professional football teams. Prior to his commitment to full time speaking, Albert enjoyed twelve successful years as a life insurance executive before giving it all up to enter this ministry.

Heading up the calvacade of musical groups is "HOPE OF GLORY" spreading the "good news" through their contemporary Jesus rock. They have toured the nation performing in churches, high schools, colleges and concert halls with the best artists in Christian music. "HOPE OF GLORY" recorded their first album by the same title in 1973. A year later they recorded their second album, "Under the Spout Where the Glory Comes Out." Latest is their album "Same Sweet Song". It, like their ministry, presents a positive message-not to just accept Jesus as Savior but to go on and make him Lord. Their talent and special brand of music takes the contemporary sounds of today and portrays them in a meaningful message than we can all relate to.

An explosion of good sound in Jesus will take place at the September JOY EXPLOSION from such groups as:

Rick Eldridge - a guitarist and pianist who has toured extensively and has also been featured on many television shows

Son Company - A contemporary Christian group from Gardner-Webb

Don Degrate and the Degrate Delegation - a versatile contemporary group with a gospel message

Branches - blue grass and mixture of gospel from West Virginia

Charisma-Janquist - a dynamic group from Ivanhoe, N.C. that plays the now Christian sound

Reflections of Jesus Christ - a local soul gospel group from Wilmington

Nicky Cruz

Living Waters Trio - also from Wilmington
Shore-Lites - also from Wilmington
In spite of all it has to offer

JOY EXPLOSION is incomplete without one more important ingredient--YOU. This festival has been staged for you to experience and enjoy the presence of God through His people. So come and join with us--whoever you are.

New Withdrawal Policy

The following dates for withdrawal have been determined and will apply during the fall semester 1976. A student may withdraw from the university or from any course during the period of registration (August 30/September 8) without having the course entered on his record.

Students who officially drop an individual class or classes or withdraw from the university from Thursday, September 9, 1976, through Tuesday, November 16, 1976, will have a grade of WP or WF entered on their record. A grade of WF does count as hours attempted and consequently will affect the average.

Any student who finds it necessary to withdraw from the university must give written notice of his intention to the Office of the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs or the Office of the Dean of Students. A student who fails to give notice of his intention to withdraw will receive a grade of "F" in all courses.

1. Obtain a drop/add card from your instructor or your adviser.
2. Obtain appropriate signatures and grade (adviser and professor involved).
3. The schedule revision card is returned to the Registrar's Office by the student.

Students withdrawing from an individual class or classes or from the University Wednesday, November 17, 1976 will have a grade of "F" recorded for each withdrawal.

A student wishing to appeal a grade of "F" may do so by submitting all pertinent information to the Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs. The Vice Chancellor's Advisory Committee will service as the appeals committee.

NOTE: The withdrawal dates listed in the current catalogue are incorrect. The catalogue supplement is correct and will be adhered to.

Validate Your ID

ID's need validation stickers. Returning students seeking validation stickers, as well as new students seeking ID's will find them in the Student Affairs Office, Alderman 113, from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. Catalogs will be issued at this time and addresses and phone numbers taken for use in the student locator file. This file is used by the student affairs staff to locate you at your local address in case of emergency, etc.

Student Health Insurance

Anyone not having health and accident insurance is strongly urged to consider the coverage plan available under the Student Hospitalization and Surgical Insurance Plan. All students are eligible to participate, at a cost of less than $40 per year, and receive coverage 24 hours a day from August 1976 through August 1977. Applications are available in the Student Affairs Office in Room 113 of the Alderman Administration Building.

Editorial

As trite as it may sound, I feel a need to say "Welcome to UNC-W." Students, once again, are faced with the rising cost of a college education. Fees have increased by $26.00 plus the graduation fee has risen to $15.00—making it increasingly expensive to get out as well as to stay in school.

Other recent changes are:
The new dorm, called Belk Hall, has officially opened. It's slightly smaller than Galloway Hall but the rooms are more spacious in size. It's closer to the cafeteria so that dorm residents have more time to enjoy that good ole fashioned home cooking.

The road behind the Education Building and the Business building has been paved. Everyone should take note of its uniquely original name, "Street F." It's now possible for freshmen to get lost on campus and end up driving around in circles.

Some things, however, remain the same. The front entrance is still closed. Finding a parking space is still difficult. And homework is still assigned as generously as ever.

Literacy Group

An open letter to UNC-W Students, Faculty and Staff:

Because you care about people, we want you to have the following information.

The Wilmington Literacy Group, which is sponsored by Wilmington Baptist Association, will conduct two (2) Laubach Literacy Workshops September 20-24, 1976, for the purpose of training volunteers to teach persons to read. Morning sessions will be 9:00 a.m.-12:00 noon, with repeat sessions 7:00 p.m.-9:30 p.m. These workshops will be conducted in the lower auditorium of Calvary Baptist Church at 23rd and Brandon Road.

Adults, Internationals, school students of all grades, and slow learners of all ages have learned to read with the Laubach method. Wilmington Literacy Group has trained 337 tutors in 21 workshops since 1968. More than 1100 persons have been tutored.

The workshops are free. Materials needed are sold at cost for $12.50. Those wishing to attend please complete and return the registration form to the above address. If further information is needed, call 791-8916; 799-1160; or 763-5585. Anyone needing help with reading may also call either of these numbers. All information is kept confidential.

Sincerely,
Mrs. W. W. Lennon, Chairman

JFK's Death Castro Plot, Said Roselli

by Jack Anderson
with Joe Spear

Washington—On July 28, Mafia mobster John Roselli set out for the golf course. He never made it. His associates notified us that he had vanished.

Five years ago, we investigated Roselli's role in the CIA plot to assassinate Cuban premier Fidel Castro. Roselli found that we protected our sources. He came to trust us. We were the only newsmen he would talk to. That's why his associates called us about his disappearance.

We broke the story here on ABC that Roselli was missing. A few days later, his body was found, stuffed into an oil drum, near north Miami Beach.

Three Miami detectives recently flew to Washington looking for clues that might lead to Roselli's killers. They got the runaround. The FBI gave them no help. The Senate Intelligence Committee refused to let them see Roselli's latest testimony. It is stamped "Top Secret."

We can report what he said. Roselli testified that he believed Fidel Castro was responsible for John F. Kennedy's assassination. It was his first reaction, Roselli said, upon learning that Kennedy had been killed.

Roselli believed that Castro had retaliated for the attempts upon his own life. But Roselli insisted that he had no evidence that he was merely giving his own opinion. He was so guarded in his testimony that Sens. Howard Baker and Richard Schweiker accused him of holding back information.

The senators now fear that Roselli's murder may have been linked to the Castro caper.

WEEKLY SPECIAL

We have learned that Roselli was not the retired, inactive mobster he pretended to be. He was deeply involved in financial swindles in southern Florida.

He had also antagonized some powerful mobsters by talking too much to the government. It looks as if his killing was a gangland execution.

The Central Intelligence Agency, meanwhile, has given up its efforts to assassinate Fidel Castro. The last attempt was made in 1963. Yet the plotting against Castro is still going on.

As late as last May, a group of Cubans in Miami conspired to kill Castro while he was visiting Mexico City. Intelligence sources say the plotters belonged to a terrorist group called the "Pragmatistas." But they have no connection with the CIA.

KIM'S COMEUPPANCE: Kim Il Sung, the North Korean leader, has apologized for his leader, has apologized for the murder of two American officers. They were beaten to death by axe-wielding North Korean guards. Kim said the slaying was "regretful."

It wasn't much of an apology, and the United States rejected it. But it was the first apology Kim has ever made to the United States.

What caused him to back down? Here's the inside story: Communist China sits heavily on North Korea's border. Kim can't make a move, therefore, without consulting Peking.

Late last week, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger met with Huang Chen, who heads the Chinese Communist mission in Washington. Kissinger asked the Chinese to use their influence to cool the crisis.

Apparently, Kim received the word from Peking. He immediately sent a personal message to the United Nations commander, backing down.

VIEW FROM SAN CLEMENTE: Former president Richard Nixon is worried that President Ford may jeopardize his accomplishments in China.

Nixon recently emphasized this to at least two close friends. He said old Mao Tse-Tung, the founder of Communist China, is dying. It is a crucial time, therefore, for Chinese-American relations.

Yet as Nixon sees it, Ford is neglecting China and favoring Russia. Nixon believes this is an historic mistake. He thinks the United States should tilt toward China.

The former president is also critical of Ford's diplomatic efforts in the Middle East. Recent events have given the United States an opportunity, he said, to strengthen its ties with the moderate Arab countries.

This will take skillful personal diplomacy, in Nixon's opinion. It will also mean adopting a more balanced Middle East policy, less favorable to Israel. But the end result, Nixon contended, would be better for Israel.

GUARDING THE WIVES: Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter has obtained Secret Service protection for his wife and the wife of his running mate, Mrs. Walter Mondale.

The confidential request was submitted to Treasury Secretary William Simon. His chief counsel ruled that he had no legal authority to assign bodyguards to candidates' wives. But Simon said he didn't want to take a chance on the lives of the two women. Therefore, he asked President Ford to sign a special authorization.

BALKING BROOKE: The nation's leading back Republican, Sen. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts, feels he may have been used by his own party. He was asked to submit his financial records to President Ford, as one of a dozen vice presidential prospects.

Brooke refused, not because of what the records showed, but because he didn't believe Ford considered him a serious candidate. "They've bandied my name around for two years," he told us. "I told them to come back for the financial records when they were serious."

The Still Point

This column will be short. I have only three things I wish to relate.

First, welcome back to UNC-W and I hope it will be a good year.

Next, there is a full time campus ministry at UNC-W. It is sponsored by several denominations in the community and is an equal opportunity ministry (i.e., available to anyone in the campus community regardless of race, creed, color, age, sex, etc., etc., etc.)

I am generally available Monday thru Friday but also most anytime for emergencies such as sickness, personal crisis, accident, hospitalization or even death. (By the way, these things happen with increasing frequency as the number of students, faculty and staff continues to increase.) During the week you may find me most anyplace on campus: the main library reading room, any of the various departmental buildings, behind a coke or coffee in the snack bar, at the dorms, pool cue or ping pong paddle in hand at the Pub or sometimes body surfing if the waves are good.

I can most easily be reached through the Student Affairs office or on University phone, Extension 219. Because this is a mobile ministry, I am not often there to receive messages but I do promise to return or answer any calls that come in. Also be reminded that there is a Christian Fellowship which meets 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Kenan Building and the Marketplace discussion group will meet at 7:45 a.m. Thursdays in the small cafeteria dining room. There are no formal worship services on campus but I will be glad to help you find a local congregation which fits your style.

Finally, I will try to use this periodic column as a forum for issues which relate to our lives in this campus community.

Shalom,
Vivan Martindale

JOBS

The Placement Office, located in Room 113 of the Administration Building, is basically designed to assist students in obtaining employment.

This office arranges and coordinates job interviews between graduating seniors and employer representatives who are scheduled for campus visitation. Seniors interested in securing employment should register with this office early in the academic year so that they may receive relevant information and material.

Employment opportunities for other students at the university are also available through this office ranging from part-time to full-time positions. Students who are interested in gaining employment should register with the Placement Office, listing the type of work desired, special skills, qualifications and hours available for work.

News for Veterans

The Office of Veterans Affairs at UNC-W would like to welcome all returning and new students to our campus. We wish you much success in your academic as well as social endeavors. We exist to provide educational assistance, peer and professional counseling, remedial services, tutorial services, and to coordinate existing campus services to best serve the needs of the veteran students.

The Office of Veterans Affairs normally operates during the hours of 8:00 to 12:00 a.m. and 1:00 to 5:00 p.m. However, every 2nd and 4th Wednesday of the month it will remain open until 7:00 p.m. for the convenience of those unable to come by during regular hours.

The Office of Veterans Affairs would like for all veterans and dependents receiving VA benefits to check the VA bulletin board at least once a week for important VA related material and information. The bulletin board is located next to the chancellor's office on the first floor of the Alderman building.

We would like to invite all veterans and dependents receiving VA educational assistance to join the Veterans Association here on campus. The date and time of their meetings will be placed on various bulletin boards around campus.

The Tutorial Assistance offered by the VA has been increased to a maximum of $60 per month. If you are having difficulty in any subject area please utilize this service. It is not counted against your basic entitlement. To utilize Tutorial Assistance one must, (1) acquire a statement from OVA to your instructor stating your need for tutorial assistance, (2) come by the OVA for the necessary forms and a listing of persons qualified to tutor in various subject areas, (3) if you have an individual in mind to tutor who is not on the OVA listing, make sure he is certified to be a tutor by the department chairman in that subject area. PLEASE NOTE: (1) All veterans and dependents certified by the OVA must fill out a class schedule form at the OVA; (2) All changes in one's credit hour load must be reported to the OVA and the registrar's office.

For those of you in need of tutors, the VA will authorize up to $5.00 per hour to pay for a tutor. Don't wait until it's too late, apply now.

The Office of Veterans Affairs at UNC-W is requesting tutors for all courses at UNC-W. The monetary rate is $5.00 per hour for each veteran tutored.

Requirements for tutors are: (1) Enrollment in or completion of course. (2) Better than satisfactory performance in that course. (3) Availability to devote a sufficient number of hours per week for tutoring. (4) Signed certification from Department Chairman granting approval of your services as a tutor.

NOTE: Tutors may be a student, instructor, graduate, etc., as long as they are certified by the Dept. Chairman of the subject area.

In order to remain eligible for VA Educational Assistance you must fill out a class schedule form for the fall, 1976 and spring, 1977 complete with grades, no later than Sept. 15, 1976. Failure to do so will result in termination of your VA certifications and benefits.

Those of you that have not completed the requirements for a degree and your original entitlement of 36 months has expired you may be eligible for a 9 month extension. Those of you that have completed the requirements for a degree, regardless of application for graduation, are no longer eligible for VA Educational Assistance unless you have time remaining on your basic eligibility of 36 months. Contact the Office of Veterans Affairs for more information.

Veterans and dependents receiving VA Educational benefits who are enrolled through continuing education are now required to pass at least three hours their first semester in attendance and maintain the following quality point average: 1-6 hours: 1.20; 6-12 hours: 1.50; 12-18 hours: 1.80; 18-27 hours: 2.00.

If you are currently below your respective average, you are required to obtain the required average by the end of the fall 1976 semester. If you fail to acquire the required average, your VA educational benefits will be terminated. There will be no exceptions to this regulation.

The Office of Veterans Affairs would like to wish all students much success in their academic endeavors and encourage your scholastic best during the year.

The President's Message

Duffy Robinson

I wish to extend a hearty welcome back! This year I am sure is one of the most promising the UNC-W SGA has seen in its history. Programs designed to keep each of you informed, entertained, and enlightened have been, over your summer vacation, carefully planned so as to insure that the great majority will be ready for immediate implementation.

WCNU may finally make the airways on your FM band—we'll know more when the FCC lets us know.

V.I.C.E. is going public, with at least weekly news programs to be broadcast on a local T.V. station.

The Seahawk obviously is out, and under the guidance of Ms. Darlene Pearsall promises to be the most important weekly of any campus publication.

I am happy to say that insurances against financial responsibility have been established by placing all SGA purchases on the state purchase order system. I will not stand to have your SGA tax monies (activity fees) misused. Mrs. Donna J. Simmons has been hired by the SGA as an administrative assistant. She will work closely with all SGA funded activities and chairmen and will be responsible for administering and enforcing the policies of my office.

We in the SGA are happy to announce that the Concert Committee under the leadership of Walker O'Quinn has reached agreement with Beach Club Promotions to bring approximately six major shows to Wilmington this academic year. Barring any logistic complications, we'll all be listening to some of the finest music in the USA.

The Dance Committee will blast all of you stompers right out of the halls this year. Steve Shields is, and has been, working very hard to provide all with top flight groups, and maybe even a little free beer. So get ready and polish your high heel sneakers.

The Fine Arts Committee has slated for this year a terrific line-up...major movies, and they promise some very fine artistic attractions as well.

The executive branch of the SGA, at the risk of sounding pompous, is the most dynamic group of people to hit the scene in years. Our big thing is to listen, collate information, and to respond in the most responsible and quickest manner feasible, continually holding the best interest of the student body supreme. The deal is input from each and every one of you. We handle single person problems just as well as campus problems. You don't need a petition or even a problem to get in the SGA door. We listen to suggestions too. I'll be writing to all of you weekly and letting matters, political stands, and actions I take in promoting your welfare on and off campus be known to you.

UNC-W now has a national input. I have had the privilege and honor of being elected Vice President of the National Association of Students in State Supported Colleges and Universities, effective July 1, 1976. I promise to take your opinions with me to all national events I attend and to voice your majority's wishes in all matters. We have a little power now folks, let's use it constructively to form "a better and more perfect union."

Sincerely yours,
William H. Robinson
President

Freshman Elections

In addition to numerous positions on SGA committees and various Seahawk or yearbook positions, elections for five freshman Senators, class President, class Vice-President, and class Secretary will be held later in the month (date to be announced in next Seahawk).

Responsibilities will involve management of over $80,000 of student funds and many others.

Interested students should fill out a form found in the SGA office or in Student Activities Director's Office in the Pub beginning Thursday, Sept. 2. All those interested in running for office will be required to pass an examination on their knowledge of the UNC-W constitution found in the student handbook. The test will insure that those participating in SGA have a working knowledge of its organization.

Elections will be held later in September. Remember—all candidates must file for election. SGA and UNC-W need you, so rise to the occasion. These are important jobs. If there are any questions, contact: Al Harris, Student Activities Director, SGA office or Julius Metts, elections committee chairman (791-2892).

University Theatre presents "The House of Blue Leaves"

The University Theatre will present John Guare's play "The House of Blue Leaves" September 2, 3, 4 in the SRO Theatre located in the Kenan Building on the UNC-W campus. The play is produced by the Dept. of Drama/Speech and is supported by the Student Government Association which allows students to attend free of charge with reservations.

In 1971 "The House of Blue Leaves" was presented at the Truck and Warehouse Theatre in New York City and was presented with the Best American Play 1971 New York Drama Critics Circle Award.

"The House of Blue Leaves" is a fresh and original farce taking a savage poke at commercialized Catholicism, at Hollywood personalities, and at the grandiose dreams with which ordinary people choose to delude themselves.

"The plot is as volatile as the outrageously funny dialogue," said Dr. W. Terry Rogers, chairman of the speech and drama department. "The pace is frantic but beneath the surface farce there lurks an enormous insight into the actions of people."

"There is a wild mixture of humor as Artie, the central figure played by Ed Danilowicz, tries to escape his unbearable situation at home, by taking a mistress, played by Sheryl Moore," Rogers said.

They try to commit his wife, played by Debra Arntsen to an asylum (Hous of Blue Leaves) and escape to Hollywood for fame and fortune. However, complications set in and by the time the play embraces Pope Paul's Mass at Yankee Stadium, Artie's son's attempt to bomb the Pope, three young nuns invading the apartment and the arrival of Artie's Hollywood director friend, a sense of social wrong easily asserts itself.

The facial techniques, the hilariously fluid dialogue push the sincerity of the play into ridicule, to achieve a new kind of penetrating humor. The play is, simply put, a marvelous blend of tragedy and comedy.

The production is under the direction of Hal Knowles. The set designer is Allen Everhart with Tim Wesner serving as lighting designer. The special effects will be created by David Brickley.

Appearing in the cast are: Tim Wesner, Dawn Brickley, Pat White, Susan Richey, Ellen McKeithan, Pat Hardison, and Allen Everhart.

Reservations can be made by calling the University Drama and Speech Department, Ext. 332 at 8:00 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

In an effort to increase the accessibility and use of the recreational facilities in the Pub, a waiting list procedure was recently initiated. Persons using either the billiards of the Ping-Pong tables are required to limit their play to two games whenever the waiting list for their table is in effect. The procedure should prevent lengthy monopolization of these games in the future.

Waiting lists for both games are posted on the wall nearest their respective area. To obtain a table when all are in use players should sign the appropriate list and notify the players occupying the table that the waiting list is in effect.

Hopefully, players will voluntarily comply with the waiting list. Players who fail to honor the waiting list will be suspended from the recreation area for a period not to exceed two months. Anyone who encounters difficulty in obtaining a table should notify the Director of Student Activities in room 105 or the night manager.

When the waiting list is empty, there are no restrictions to the number of games that may be played. These games are available to UNC-W students, faculty and staff free of charge. All are encouraged to use them whenever possible.

Student Health Center

Open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. til 2 p.m., the Student Health Center has a family nurse practitioner on duty and a physician is on call 24 hours a day.

Students enrolled for five or more credit hours are eligible for treatment of illness or any type problems. The center is located adjacent to the main lobby of the residence hall.

the university between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. on Monday through Friday, the university nurse should be contacted at extension 339. Her office is located adjacent to the main lobby of the residence hall.

At all other times, the Wilmington Health Associates should be contacted at 763-8251. These doctors are on contract with UNC-W.

Of course, in case of serious injury, requiring immediate attention, the injured person should be taken to New Hanover Memorial Hospital as quickly as possible. A private car, UNC-W campus security vehicle or the Rescue Squad can be contacted for aid. Be sure to call the Wilmington Health Associates and ask that a physician meet the student at the emergency room. Otherwise, an emergency-room fee will be charged.

Welcome to Seahawk Country

Hi folks, let me take this opportunity to introduce you to the nation's largest fraternity—Alpha Phi Omega. APO is the only service fraternity on the UNC-W campus. By service I mean we are a non-profit organization where three purposes are Leadership, Friendship and SERVICE. If you are female, don't stop reading now. Yes indeed, we are the only fraternity that gives equal standings to females. If you are looking for more than a social fraternity, if you want to serve your school and fellow man and have a good time too, check us out (we won't be hard to find). Some past projects we have been involved in are: Displays in the Pub; Decorating for the 50's Dance; Sponsoring this year's Homecoming Queen—Teresa Finch; Helping Winter Park Voluntary Fire Dept.; Car Washes; Ushering for the Mr. UNC-W Contest; Being Mock Disaster Victims for the Red Cross; See-Saw-A-Thon; Beach Clean-ups; Speakers, and much more.

We believe freshmen are vital folks with lots of fantastic ideas. We would like for you to share with us. Our rush will be held soon. Look out for APO. Luann Ruffy

Lane Predicts Good Season

With 9 returning lettermen and a talented group of freshmen, hopes are high for another successful soccer season here at UNC-W.

Coach Calvin Lane is extremely optimistic about this year's team. "Right now, we've got one of the best teams we've had in recent years," said Lane. "For the first time," he added, "we'll have strong competition for starting positions." Lane hinted he may go to a 15 or 16 man rotating line-up, indicating plenty of talent on the team.

Leading the team this year will be two seniors, Gene Borowski and Tim Willette. Borowski was an N.C.A.A. All-Southern and NAIA All-American selection. Willette, according to Lane, has been "an outstanding goalie for the last three years." Last year's leading scorer, junior Nino Fleri, will also be a factor in the team's success this year.

Though the team is one of the best ever, there could be problems in SeaHawk soccer. One is an extremely tough schedule. Since this year the team is in Division 1 of the NCAA as an independent, the schedule includes many top-rated Division 1 schools, such as N.C. State and Carolina, plus NAIA schools, such as soccer powerhouse Campbell.

The method of selecting playoff contenders could prove troublesome this year to the SeaHawks. For the first time, a panel of coaches will choose the teams, based on record and level competition. The SeaHawks are in a tough region, competing with teams like Howard and Clemson for playoff berths.

Despite these problems, chances are good the team will be a dominant force in the region. "We have the potential," stated Coach Lane, "All we need to do is find the right 11 men for the 11 positions."

Lane concluded by saying he was pleased with student support of soccer and hopes it will continue this year. Game times are 4:00 on weekdays and 1:00 on weekend games.

Communication and Human Sexuality

In an effort to provide growth opportunities for UNC-W students the staff of the Counseling and Testing Center has planned three programs for early this semester.

The first is a series of group meetings designed to provide those students who are returning to school after some time away, and those students who are coming to school for the first time from other "careers," an opportunity to explore their reactions to the college experience. Frequently these "new-old" and "old-new" students can be helpful to each other in sharing their thoughts and feelings as they find themselves in the new environment of the college campus. Those interested are invited to meet with Dr. Jim Slager from 11:30 - 1:00 in Room 202 of the Business Bldg. on Tues. Sept. 14, Thurs. Sept. 16, Thurs., Sept. 21 and Thurs., Sept. 23. Bring your lunch if you wish.

A second group has been planned to focus on examining the process and practicing the skills of interpersonal communication. Listening more accurately, sending more honest, understandable messages and dealing constructively with communication problems are key areas to be covered in this discussion-skill practice group. This group will meet Mondays and Wednesdays for 6 sessions from 3:00-4:30 in the afternoon. The dates are: Oct. 4, 6, 11, 13, 18, and 20. Dr. Slager will lead this group which will meet in Room 203 of the Alderman Administration Bldg.

A Symposium on Human Sexuality is also scheduled for this fall by the Counseling Center, Region "O" Family Resources, the Student Health Services and the Area Health Education Council. In an attempt to consider several aspects of this significant topic, six varied programs have been planned. This symposium will be held on six consecutive Thursday evenings (7-9 p.m.) beginning sometime in October. Further announcements will be made when the exact schedule is finalized.

Other programs may be announced at a later date and students are encouraged to share their ideas about program possibilities with the Counseling Center staff. The Center is located in Alderman 217 and the phone is Ext. 242.

Crisis Line/ Open House

New Hanover Drug Abuse Committee will sponsor two training classes for people interested in doing volunteer work for Crisis Line/Open House. There will be opportunities for people who are free either in the morning or in the evening. The evening class will begin Mon. Sept. 13, at 7:30 p.m., at St. James Church, Third and Dock Sts., and will run for 5 Monday evenings and one Saturday. The morning class will begin on Tuesday, Sept. 14, at 9:30 a.m. at Crisis Line/Open House, 1002 Grace Street, and will run for 5 Tuesday mornings and one Saturday.

Upon completion of these classes volunteers will be ready to answer the 24 Crisis phones. If they are interested in doing work at our free clinic or doing face-to-face counseling, more training will be available.

Crisis Line/Open House depends on people who care. Call Crisis Line/Open House, 763-3695 for further information, or just come to the first class.

New Library Hours

Beginning with the fall semester, the Randall Library will remain open at night until 11:00 p.m. As in past years, special materials such as books on two-hour reserve may be borrowed for overnight use provided the loan transaction is made during the half hour prior to closing. Reference service will not be offered after 9:00 p.m. The complete schedule for the fall semester is as follows:
Monday-Thursday 8:00 a.m.-11:00 p.m.
Friday 8:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
Saturday 1:00 p.m. - 5:00 p.m.
Sunday 2:00 p.m. - 11:00 p.m.

Pick up Checks

Anyone receiving checks from the Financial Aid office may pick them up today. Applications are still available for Basic Educational Opportunity Grants. This program provides direct grants from the government to the undergraduate student for educational expenses. For more information, come by the Financial Aid Office upstairs in the Administration Building.

Internships for Social Science Majors

The intricate workings of the General Assembly will be the focus of a twenty-week internship designed for upperclassmen in social sciences from colleges in North Carolina. Ten students will be selected for internships this year in the program sponsored by the N.C. General Assembly and the Department of Politics at North Carolina State University.

Upperclassmen from any four-year college in the state are eligible and should send inquiries to Dr. Oliver Williams, Department of Politics at NCSU.

"The internship is unequalled as an educational experience and the legislators continually point to this program as a very valuable source of staff and research assistance," Williams says.

The interns will work as staff assistants and researchers for officers and members of the 1977 General Assembly while pursuing a parallel course of study at North Carolina State University.

They will work a minimum of 25 hours a week at the General Assembly and will take two courses on the legislative process and state government. They also will participate in weekly seminars. For their work, they will receive 12 hours of academic credit and $1,000.

The deadline for applying for one of the internships is Oct.

25. Interested students should send an application form, an official transcript and three letters of reference to Williams at NCSU.

The appointments will be made by a committee composed of the speaker of the house, the lieutenant governor and the head of the Department of Politics at NCSU, along with two other professors from other colleges in the state.

National Teacher Examinations

PRINCETON, NEW JERSEY -- Students completing teacher preparation programs may take the National Teacher Examinations on any of the three different test dates announced today by Educational Testing Service, a nonprofit, educational organization which prepares and administers this testing program.

Dates for the testing of prospective teachers are: November 13, 1976, February 19, 1977, and July 16, 1977. The tests will be given at nearly 400 locations throughout the United States, ETS said.

Results of the National Teacher Examinations are used by many large school districts as one of several factors in the selection of new teachers and by several states for certification or licensing of teachers. Some colleges also require all seniors preparing to teach to take the examinations.

On each full day of testing, prospective teachers may take the Common Examinations which measure their professional preparation and general educational background and an Area Examination which measures their mastery of the subject the expect to teach.

Prospective candidates should contact the school systems in which they seek employment, or their colleges, for specific advice on which examinations to take and on which dates they should be taken.

The Bulletin of Information for Candidates contains a list of test centers, and general information about the examinations, as well as a Registration Form. Copies may be obtained from college placement officers, school personnel departments, or directly from National Teacher Examinations, Box 911, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey 08540.

Pub

Schedule

The Pub, alias the James Student Services Building, will operate on the following schedule throughout the academic year:

Monday-Thurs 8 a.m. - 11 p.m.
Friday 8 a.m. - 12 p.m.
Saturday 2 p.m. - 12 p.m.
Sunday 2 p.m. - 11 p.m.

In addition to free billiards and Ping-Pong, a variety of table games including Yahtzee, Monopoly, Chess, Tripoly, and Stratego are available on a checkout basis through the Student Activities Office.

These games may also be checked out overnight for use outside of the Pub.

Students seeking a place to relax between classes or watch T.V. are encouraged to visit the Good Wood Tavern. The tavern is also available to campus clubs and organizations in need of a gathering place. To reserve the facility contact the Student Activities Office.

POP SCENE SERVICE: HERE'S THE ANSWER

JOHN DENVER

Q: Please settle an argument. I say that John Denver has five gold singles and my friend says that he has six. Who's right?

Richard Allen, Chatham, Mass. A: Your friend wins. Denver is the recipient of half-a-dozen gold singles, for "Take Me Home, Country Roads," "Thank God I'm A Country Boy," "Sunshine on My Shoulder," "Annie's Song," "Back Home Again," and "I'm Sorry Calypso." He sang a few of those, by the way, at a rather unique event. Denver performed five successive concert nights at the Universal Amphitheatre without fee and with the proceeds going to some 33 charities and civic groups. This first such endeavor on record by a single artist was the brainchild of Jerry Weintraub, Denver's manager, who is no stranger to unusual events. He promoted the concerts of Frank Sinatra, Neil Diamond, The Moody Blues, the Carpenters and (with Col. Tom Parker) Elvis Presley. Denver and Sinatra will appear together, for the first time in a live performance Sept. 9 when they open a week's joint engagement at Harrah's, Lake Tahoe.

BETTE MIDLER

Q: I'm a big fan of Bette Midler and I'd like to know why Hollywood hasn't discovered her yet? As the song goes: she oughta be in pictures.--Melissa Everett, New York, N.Y.

A: She's going to be in pictures--Columbia Pictures, specifically. The "Divine Miss M" will star in several upcoming films for that company, as well as develop other properties for them under a newly formed Bette Midler-Aaron Russo Production Company.

Russo is the singer's manager and also heads Bette's other film company, Divine Pictures.

ANSWERS

Q: We have been reading "Here's The Answer" column for a long time now and here is our question. Who supplies your answers? Magazines, the stars themselves or others?--Kay Peters and Pattie Bongers, Richmond, Va.

A: If the stars are available, we like to quote them directly. Otherwise, we use a variety of reliable sources, including their press representatives. If the question is about a recording, for example, we go to the appropriate record company.

CAPTAIN & TENNILLE

Q: Is it true that the Captain and Tennille upset the Queen of England at a White House dinner when they sang one of their songs? Was the song, "The Way I Want to Touch You," by any chance? Thank you.--Mary Weidenborner, Candlewood Lake, Conn.

A: The number that caused the most stir at the State

Dinner was "Muskat Love." Most of the guests, including the Queen, took the "roddent love song" in stride, but not Lady Keith, Her Majesty's lady-in-waiting. She thought it was "in very poor taste." As for the Captain and Tennille, they shrugged the whole thing off because they look upon the song as "a Disney-type thing, especially for small children."

WATERGATE REVISITED

Q: Whatever happened to John Ehrlichman since he became a Washington exile? Do you have any information on this. I would appreciate it. Thanks.--Monica le Ferre, Detroit, Mich.

A: Ehrlichman now lives in a small adobe house in Santa Fe, New Mexico. He wears a beard and blue denim shirts, works with the Indians and leads a quiet life. According to a recent magazine article, after Watergate, he read Robert Pirsig's "Zen and The Art of Motorcycle Maintenance," which he said was the key to his new lifestyle.

MICK JAGGER

Q: I would like to know whether the song "You're So Vain" has anything to do with a Mick Jagger movie? Thank you.--P. Pomanski, Winnipeg, Manitoba.

A: No. But rock legend has it that Jagger was the image in her mind when Carly Simon wrote and recorded the song. In fact, Jagger's voice is on the recording.

GOT A QUESTION? Send it to Barbara Lewis, PSS Answerperson, care of this paper. Only the most interesting questions will be used and no personal replies can be given.

Top 10

Elton John and Kiki Dee return to the top of the singles chart this week with "Don't Go Breaking My Heart," while Jefferson Starship's "Spitfire" continues in first place on the albums list. The top 10 in each category, with last week's ratings in parentheses, are:

STUDENT FEES INCREASE

After the successful campaign to prevent a tuition increase last year, most students looked forward to paying the same tuition and fees this year as last. Alas, many a seahawk was shocked to discover that they would be required to shell out a little more money in order to return to classes this fall.

Those students perplexed about the increase in student fees this year need not look for a villain. According to Mr. Robert O. Walton of the university business office, the vast bulk of the increase ($25.00) is earmarked to pay for the new gym.

Mr. Walton reported that money to build the new facility was obtained from three sources. In addition to private (gift) funds and a state appropriation, additional money was raised through bonds issued by the university.

Similar bonds are outstanding on the dormitory and the cafeteria. These bonds are being retired through room and board fees. As there is no rent for use of the gymnasium, however, this money must come from elsewhere. The 25.00 increase in student fees is to pay off the gym bonds.

Mr. Walton pointed out that "a bond liquidation fee" is charged at all state campuses. This is necessary as state funds pay only for buildings actually utilized in instruction or administration. Hence, the new classroom building will be paid entirely by state funds, but a new dormitory would not.

According to Walton, UNC-W continues to charge the lowest fees of the sixteen campuses of the university system.

The remaining increase in fees this year resulted from a

1.00 addition to the Physical Education fee. Seniors were additionally asked for a 50 per cent increase in the graduation fee (now $15.00). Mr. Walton attributed the graduation increase to inflation. He can remember no previous increase in that fee.

London Performers Come to UNC-W

The UNC-W Fine Arts Committee is bringing into the Port City on Wednesday, September 8, the Mountview Theatre School directly from London, England, for the presentation of three different plays in Kenan Auditorium.

The Mountview Theatre School's American touring troupe is composed of thirty-two distinguished English actors and actresses. This group will present a full day of activity to stimulate the theatrical community of Wilmington.

First on the agenda for this Wednesday will be an open workshop for aspiring actors and actresses to be held in the S.R.O. Theatre located in Kenan Hall on the campus. This workshop will be open to any and all interested persons and will begin at 10:00 a.m. The instructor for this workshop is Robert Bogue.

Robert Bogue is an actor turned teacher. He began his career as an actor having taken training in Montreal. "I tried to get as much training as possible," says the senior acting teacher for the Mountview Theatre Company.

An automobile accident brought an abrupt end to Bogue's acting career. But as Bogue says, "One goes on to develop other facilities," and he became a teacher.

"The education of living is where an acting teacher must begin," Bogue says. He further states that a great deal is published concerning various methods, but the only way to learn is by "just getting up and doing and involving your own method."

Bogue is working on the tour as a lecturer. He works closely with the theatre company, having coached most of its members.

At 2:30 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium, the Mountview Theatre Company will present William Shakespeare's famous comedy-fantasy "A Midsummer Night's Dream." This is regarded as Shakespeare's "magical" round that is set in a forest for lovers, fustic fairies and the mischievous puck. This classic fantasy treats of marriage, maidens and midsummer madness culminating with the hilarious love scene "Pyramus and Thisbe" acted out by Bottom and his fellow tradesmen.

That evening at 8:00 p.m. in Kenan Auditorium The Mountview Theatre Company will perform "Oh What A Lovely War." This is a musical based on the First World War, created by the famous Joan Littlewood's Theatre Workshop and more recently made into a magnificent film starring, amongst many other famous stars, Sir Lawrence Olivier and John Mills. The show will be preceded by a short, new musical as a curtain raiser, based on the war of 1776.

For a late night show beginning at 10:45 p.m. also in Kenan Auditorium, "Mixed Doubles"—an entertainment on marriage—will be presented by the same theatre company. This is a collection of eight short plays in which marriage is regarded by a bride and bridegroom until the final play in which the old man and woman are in their resting place. The plays are written by a different author, the most well-known being Harold Pinter, James Saunders, John Bowen and Alan Ayckbourne. Most of these short plays are highly amusing.

Doug W. Swink, faculty advisor of the UNC-W Fine Art Committee stated that "visit of the Mountview Theatre Company will be the highlights of the theatrical season here in Wilmington. It will afford students and those Wilmingtonians interested in theatre to meet, know, learn, respect and exchange ideas with fellow artisans."

Swink announced that tickets and seat reservations can be made for any or all of the Mountview Theatre Company's performances by calling the Kenan Auditorium box office, 791-9695, from 2 to 5 p.m. daily on Tuesday and Wednesday. UNC-W students upon the presentation of their I.D. cards will be admitted free of charge.

WEEKLY SPECIAL

Tax Revolt: 1776 and 1976

by Jack Anderson
with Joe Spear

WASHINGTON -- It was a tax revolt that led to the birth of our nation 200 years ago. And in this our Bicentennial year, millions of Americans are ready to revolt again over taxes.

They are tired of taxes that keep going up while government services go down. Taxation at all levels has jumped 65 per cent in the past six years.

They are tired of tax laws that have become too complex to understand. It takes 6,000 pages of fine print to list all the rules and regulations. Two out of every five taxpayers require professional help to figure out what they owe. So on top of the tax burdens, they have to pay accountants' and attorneys' fees.

Americans are also tired of unfair taxes. The rich usually pay less than their fair share. At least 3,000 affluent Americans, with annual incomes over $50,000, have been paying no federal income taxes at all.

The people are tired of paying the taxes of big corporations. Most oil companies, for example, pay only a fraction of the corporate tax rate. A dozen major corporations have been paying absolutely no corporate tax. Yet they have been ringing up substantial earnings. Other tax-payors, of course, must make up the taxes that these corporations don't pay.

This year, Congress promised to reform the tax laws. First the House, and then the Senate ground out page after page of tax changes. Between them, they have now produced more than 2,200 pages.

But as fast as one tax benefit was taken away from the rich, two new benefits were added. The legislation came to be known as the Christmas Tree bill. It got its name from the goodies that the lobbyists hung on its branches as it progressed toward a final vote.

It started through the legislative mill innocently enough as a tax reform measure. But by the time it cleared the Senate floor, it was loaded down with amendments.

In the dark ages, serfs labored nine months for their own needs. During the remaining three months of each year, they produced profits for their masters. Today, the average American works more than four months of each year to earn enough to pay his taxes.

And each year, the tax bite deepens, the anti-government mood sharpens and tax resistance grows. Just like 200 years ago.

ARAB WAR? Intelligence reports warn that war may erupt in the Middle East in a matter of weeks. Fighting is not expected between the Arabs and Israelis. This time, it's Egypt and Libya that are preparing to go to war.

The animosity between Egypt's Anwar Sadat and Libya's Muammar Qaddafi has reached the inflammation point. The two Arab leaders distrust and despise one another.

Qaddafi is a madcap ruler who has been using his oil bootle to underwrite terrorists. Intelligence sources charge that Libyan diplomats have used their diplomatic pouches to smuggle weapons to terrorists.

Qaddafi is believed to be behind recent terrorist attacks upon Egypt. Trains have been attacked, buildings have been bombed. An attempt was made to hijack an Egyptian plane.

Sadat has responded, according to intelligence reports, by bolstering his military forces on the Libyan border. The Libyans also are preparing their armed forces for war.

The showdown could come, the intelligence reports predict, by October. The situation, in the words of one analyst, is "getting out of hand."

Intelligence sources predict that, if war comes, the Egyptians probably will be victorious. They are battle-tested, with experience in both aerial and tank warfare.

BOUNTIFUL BUREAUCRATS: President Ford has complained that the federal government harasses honest businessmen. He has charged that more than 100,000 federal bureaucrats are engaged in regulation.

The Congressional Budget Office has double-checked the President's figures. The budget office found only 84,000 bureaucrats regulating business. That's still too many. There's too much red tape, too many forms to fill out.

But the 84,000 bureaucrats regulate thousands of industries. And most of the regulators are policing health, safety and consumer violations.

But the government agency with the most regulators is the Agriculture Department. So it's the farmers, not the businessmen, who put up with the most regulation.

MULTI-MILLION-DOLLAR MISTAKES: The Social Security Administration's computer systems are producing incredible monetary mistakes. A document, intended for official eyes only, tells of millions of dollars worth of errors.

"In a single day in August, 1975, faulty program instructions caused the computers to issue $10 million in overpayments to 1,500 people," the document reveals.

Employee incompetence often combines with computer malfunctions to create the mistakes. "Overall quality or competence, dedication or motivation and sufficiency of the working staff are below appropriate levels," the report declares.

Meanwhile, Congress has started an unannounced investigation of the SSA mishaps. The investigation, we have learned, is focusing on the employee problems and inadequate computer systems.

The Still Point

The first week has passed and I suspect that some of you are about to write a "HELP" letter home to parents after discovering you really can't eat the cafeteria food or that you must pay $12 for the privilege of using a non-existent parking place. I must warn you to beware of writing home. Most parents are glad to get the brood out of the nest and you may receive a "so you think you've got problems" letter like the one that follows:

Dear Son:

Just a few words to let you know that I'm alive. I'm writing this letter slowly because I know that you cannot read fast. You won't know the house when you come home, we've moved.

About your father, he has a lovely job. He has 500 men under him. He is cutting the grass at the cemetery.

There was a washing machine in the new house when we moved in, but it wasn't working too good. Last week I put 14 shirts into it, pulled the chain and I haven't seen the shirts since.

Your sister, Mary, had a baby this morning. I haven't found out whether it is a boy or girl, so I don't know whether you're an aunt or uncle.

Your uncle Dick drowned last week in a vat of whiskey in the Dublin Brewery. Some of his workmates dived in to save him but he fought them off bravely. We cremated his body and it took three days to put the fire out.

Your father didn't have much to drink at Christmas. I put a bottle of castor oil in his pint of beer. It kept him going until New Year's Day. I went to the doctor on Thursday and your father came with me. The doctor put a small tube into my mouth and told me not to open it for ten minutes. Your father offered to buy it from him.

It only rained twice last week.

First for three days and then four days. Monday it was so windy that our chicken laid the same egg four times.

We had a letter yesterday from the undertaker. He said if the last installment wasn't paid on your grandmother's within seven days, up she comes.

Your loving mother,

P.S. I was going to send you $10, but I had already sealed the envelope.

Have a good second week.

State government "appears headed back home to the control of the Democrats after the brief interruption of Republican Governor James E. Holshouser's administration. Perhaps his tenure can better be described as an intermission when we all could have gone out to the lobby for popcorn and not missed a thing.

Despite the do-nothingness of government, the past four years have been a period of much activity in the political background. The Republicans have divided themselves between an overboard idealogue senator and a traditionally Republican governor, thus diminishing any prospect of remaining a threat to the Democrats this November.

Their divisiveness proves that once they acquire a taste of power, they don't know what to do with it or how to keep it. It's quite amusing to watch as Republicans try to out-conservative one another, when the real differences between them are too minute to measure.

While all this bickering has been going on in the Republican ranks, a calculative but cautious Democratic Lieutenant Governor named Jim Hunt has put together a base of support which has given him his party's nomination without the necessity of a runoff. This is a feat not performed by a Democratic nominee for governor since 1960. Garnering 53 per cent of the Democratic vote, Hunt is unquestionably headed for victory in November against a Republican bearing the scars of intra-party disunity.

Though George Wood would have made a better governor because of his bold and innovative stands on issues, Hunt does promise to be a positive governor willing to move. But Wood's call for a constitutional convention, his plans to gradually diminish the state sales tax on food, and his opposition to the death penalty are commendable ideas whose time have come.

Since the Republican's hopes to retain the governorship were dim to begin with, they are virtually snuffed out as a result of the David Flaherty-Coy Privette runoff battle. Mr. Privette displayed the marks of the Reagan-Helms wing of the Republicans who could care less about the good of the party. Flaherty's 49.8 per cent showing leaves little room for a Privette victory since Jake Alexander's support (13 per cent of the vote) will largely go to Flaherty. Mr. Flaherty has rightly decided to ignore the Privette challenge and begun immediately to campaign against Hunt.

Also on the September 14 runoff ballot will be a Democratic contest for the lieutenant governor nomination. Howard Lee, the former mayor of Chapel Hill, is clearly the better candidate over state House Speaker Jimmy Green. Green, the multi-term legislator from Bladen County, is a hard-boiled politician who promised state Representative John Jordan (the third placed finisher in the first primary) a blanket endorsement for any future political race that Jordan might make, for which Green received Jordan's endorsement in the contest with Lee.

This is a most blatant display of political payoff, and if it hasn't damaged Green's image, it most certainly should have finished Jordan in state politics. It also makes one wonder how many more such political debts Green has stacked up during his sixteen years in Raleigh.

On the other hand, Lee turned down Jordan's request for such a blanket endorsement, an indication of Lee's "basically" honest character. The first black to become mayor of a predominantly white southern town, he is now the closest to becoming a statewide office holder of any black in our state's history. Though race is not the best reason to vote for Lee, it should be considered because of the impact that would result from his defeat. This would be an excellent opportunity to prove what Lee has said throughout the campaign—that North Carolinians have advanced beyond the immaturity of racial prejudice.

Though I doubt the truth of that concept, we should not let race stand in the way of this well-qualified man—particularly in the face of the alternative. The situation is reminiscent of the 1972 race for the Republican nomination for Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court when an experienced black woman lost to a fire systems dealer with absolutely no qualifications at all.

Additionally, Lee seems to have a potentially better working relationship with both Hunt as governor and the state legislature. Presiding over the Senate, Hunt had a sometimes rocky relationship with Speaker Green, and state Senator Ralph Scott, considered the most influential man in that legislative body, gave that same indication when he endorsed Lee rather than Green.

In another Democratic runoff, for Commissioner of Labor, the contest is between (or among) John Brooks, who came very close to capturing the nomination in 1972, and Bob and Jessie Rae Scott. Though Jessie Rae's name will appear on the ballot alone, she has conducted her entire campaign as a team effort with her husband, Bob. (Some of you may remember that he was governor from 1969-1972. Of course, if you feel as I do, you have been trying to forget.)

Some observers accuse the Scotts of using this campaign as a prelude to a possible run by Mr. Scott for the U.S. Senate in 1978. Whatever her husband's motives, Mrs. Scott has very few, if any, qualifications for the job. She seems to be running to merely occupy her spare time, and is perfectly content that there's nothing wrong with that reasoning.

Brooks, however, has displayed a real interest in the job as shown by his two consecutive runs for the position. He has been endorsed by the state AFL-CIO. Some say that endorsement should be a negative factor for Brooks, but a cordial relationship between the Labor Commission and organized labor would not necessarily diminish Brooks' effectiveness.

The final runoff primary is that between State Auditor Henry Bridges, the only incumbent member of the Council of State not to win renomination in the first primary, and challenger Lillian Woo, a consumer advocate with a good record of public service.

Bridges has occupied this office for 28 years, never having a serious challenge until now. He has failed, however, to make the office as effective as it could, and should, be—it has the potential to be an active check on government spending. In the same vein as the old rat of the Democratic party, Thad Eure, Bridges has stubbornly refused to step aside and allow new vitality and fresh ideas to assume the office.

Ms. Woo has come across as an impeccably honest person who has a genuine interest in serving the people of North Carolina. She is above the dirt of politics, as she proved when she resigned her position with the state attorney general's office (under James H. Carson, a Republican who replaced Senator Robert Morgan for a brief span) because she sensed political influences within the department.

In her first race for elective office, Ms. Woo has proposed many solutions to irregularities within the auditor's office, such as a uniform system of budgeting for all state agencies. She has also pledged to make the department more aware of governmental waste of tax dollars.

Although I respect her public stand that she has no high political ambitions, I am unable to suppress the thought of her very real potential to serve effectively in any state office, including that of governor. She has a sound approach to solving problems, and a personal character of utmost distinction.

For Republicans, September 14 holds an easy decision: David Flaherty. He's the best hope that the party can survive defeat without total disunity.

Republicans must realize that in order to survive, they will have to realign themselves behind their traditional leadership, as represented by Holshouser and Flaherty, and steer away from the dangers of ideological extremism, as represented by Helms and Privette.

For Democrats, the decisions are equally as clear: Howard Lee for lieutenant governor; John Brooks for Commissioner of Labor; and, most of all, Lillian Woo for State Auditor. These three candidates are superbly qualified. But what really makes the choice simple is the mediocrity of their opponents.

MARK-Almond

- back again

They are Mark-Almond and this is their music at its tops.

Their history is a long one so I will try to hit the high spots. They begin with Jazz-Blues in England in the Mid to Late 60's. It was during this time that they fell in with John Mayall with whom they cut several albums. As they broke off from Mayall they formed their own group, Mark-Almond, in 1970 or 71. Between this time and 1974 they recorded four very good albums, of which RISING is the better known. After this, they broke up in 1974 and several one-album collections were made.

Now, after more than two years, they are together again and recording new music. TO THE HEART is the first of this new music and remains very serious jazz-rock.

Interesting cuts of the LP are "Here Comes the Rain, Parts One and Two" and "Trade Winds."

Mark-Almond are back and this is one group the serious music listener should get into. TO THE HEART.

Bill then, Rock Out.

JW

The only cut I do not particularly care for is next and is called "Lift the Lid." This cut just has not got the appeal of the other songs on the album. "You're the Violin" ends the album and again the appeal is restored.

To sum up, CLOSE ENOUGH FOR ROCK 'N ROLL is a very good attempt by Nazareth to hold the spotlight from the fame of THE HAIR OF THE DOG album. The music remains well written and performed as do good recording and production. In fact, it may be close enough to hold that spotlight.

MARK-ALMOND

TO THE HEART

ABC-ABCD-945

"This album is dedicated to our friends around the world who wrote and asked us to once again become Mark-Almond. So thanks to you, we are again, Mark-Almond to the heart."

I, for one, was very glad when I found out Jon Mark and Johnny Almond had reformed their group. This is the only group I know of who can blend jazz and rock together to form some of the most beautiful songs on records. Their albums have all been electrifying with all the signs of really hard work and a musically successful outcome.

NAZARETH - Close Enough to Hold the Spotlight

Welcome back readers and welcome freshmen from where ever you came. As you see, I am back again with music and some of the wildest and best music yet. To begin SEASONGS third year, I will tell you of two fairly new LP's to hit the market this summer. Well, what can I say but, Let's Get To It.

NAZARETH
CLOSE ENOUGH FOR ROCK
'N' ROLL
A&M SP-4562

It appears to me that Nazareth has released this album in a rush to ride on the success of the single "Love Hurts" from the HAIR OF THE DOG LP. However, this may be just what the group needed, for even the worst cuts on CLOSE ENOUGH show thought for improvement and hard work.

To begin with there is no cut on the album which sticks out like a sore thumb single as did "Love Hurts" on THE DOG LP. Although some cuts would make very good singles, the cuts as a whole form a more even sound in the album. No hard rock interrupted by a heavy love song.

The album begins with an epic type song, "Telegram Parts 1-4". The song is the same old "story of a Rock 'n Roll band" thing, but dressed up with a punch and the sound of Nazareth. The punch is a verse from "So You Want to be a Rock 'n Roll Star" by the Byrds, but the rest of the song is all Nazareth and heavy rock and roll.

"Vicki" follows and is a guitar solo which is almost undistinguished from its following cut, "Homesick Again." The songs work very well together as the first sets the mood for the second, which in turn relates back to the theme in "Telegram." "Homesick" is an excellent cut and demonstrates what I call the Dan McCafferty type vocal.

"Vancouver Shakedown" ends the side and enforces the fact that the vocals and guitar work are what make Nazareth recognizable in this age of so many rock groups. Songs like this place them above many average groups.

Side two opens with two average Nazareth rockers, "Born Under The Wrong Sign" and "Loretta." Then the magic hits with the cut "Carry Out Feelings." This cut is the closest to "Love Hurts" as any on the album and therefore could make a fair follow-up single to that hit. The important thing is that "Feelings" works well in its surroundings where as "Love Hurts" was in contrast to its environment.

Tau Kappa Epsilon

Welcome back, UNC-W students. You are all cordially invited to attend a back to school party which the TKE's of UNC-W are sponsoring. For those of you who do not know of this organization, we are one of the well-known social organizations on campus. The party will take place inside the pub. A live band along with free beer will be furnished from 8:00 p.m. till 12:00 p.m. Wednesday September 11. We are now in the process of buying a house which is located on the corner of Peachtree and Autobond streets. This will be the first social function of Tau Kappa Epsilon until the opening of the new house, so come by meet the guys and enjoy a good time. Keith Furr Historian

V.I.C.E. is Coming!

Our campus V.I.C.E. Squad will be active again this year, stronger than ever. Don't panic, dormies: You needn't burn 'those' magazines hidden in that special place. Our V.I.C.E. Squad has a different function. The Video Incorporated Campus Entertainment organization has a few new things going for you. In very short time, a new color television will be installed in the snack bar. As soon as the color playback machine arrives they will start their video tape series for this fall. The complete series entitled "The Prisoner" will begin and continue, a new episode each week, through December. You may remember the series from commercial television a few years ago. Again there will be campus news reports to keep you aware of happenings, and, for the first time this year, an editorial comment on situations directly confronting the student body.

Also, for the first time in Wilmington, the V.I.C.E. Squad will have an individual relaying camp as information to the Wilmington area via the noon news on channel three. A large step for anybody.

All this and workshops training for television, both in front of and behind the camera. As a student supported organization, any student interested in working with the V.I.C.E. Squad in any capacity is welcomed. No prior training or experience is necessary. You can learn by practice with supervision. Want to be on

T.V., come on in. Contact the V.I.C.E. chairman, Carson Benson, by means of the office in the student union, or Mr. Hal Knowles, V.I.C.E. faculty advisor, in the drama department office upstairs in Kenan Auditorium.

Schedules of programming will be posted around campus. There will be an organizational meeting Friday, September 10, at 3:00 in the Good Wood Tavern.

V.I.C.E. is Coming!

Sierra Club

The Sierra Club is happy to welcome students back to UNC-W. The Sierra Club is a environmental group which believes that to protect the environment you have to get out and have run in our natural area. We run a full line of outings: backpacking, canoe trip, dayhikes, and bike trips. We invite all of you to attend our meetings. The third Monday of each month in the Marine Science Building room 150. A complete listing of outings for this fall will be on hand. Our program this month will be Mr. Jeff Dudley of the Physical Fitness Institute of America. He will speak on physical fitness and how to keep fit. A short slide show will explain Corps of Engineers plans for the North East Cape Fear River. Once again welcome and if you ever need to contact the Sierra Club, call Darryl Wiley, 763-8592.

Delta Upsilon

The Fraternity had a very good summer. We initiated two new brothers, Carl Mason and Mark George, on August 24. We also inducted one new pledge, Bill Pratt.

The fraternity had its community service project on Saturday, August 7. We assisted Project Up in cleaning Beasley Road Dump. The Wilmington Morning Star accredited TKE with the project, but this was not the case.

Delta Upsilon will be starting its fall rush on September 15 with a party at the Time Tunnel 2001 Disco. We will also be having a band party on the 17th, though the location has not been ascertained as of yet, and a third rush party at Vice-President Frank Wullenwaber's house on Wrightsville Beach.

The other fraternities are also rushing at this time, and I urge the male undergraduate population to rush a fraternity as fraternity is quite worthwhile. Be sure to check out Delta Upsilon, the Gentlemen's Fraternity before pledging any other, but do pledge a fraternity, whether or not you pledge Delta Upsilon. Thomas W. Whitfield Chapter Relations

"Ascent of Man" Series

Eight selected films from the series "The Ascent of Man" will be shown to the university community in Randall Auditorium during 12:30-1:30 p.m. on the dates listed below. The series was scheduled by Mr. Robert Duckett of the philosophy department for his class in the philosophy of science. Each of the films are narrated by Jacob Bronowski of the Salk Institute and recount history of the physical and life sciences. The series will begin with Galileo's discoveries in mechanics and astronomy and his conflict with the defenders of religious dogma. The theory of evolution and Mendel's discoveries in genetics (and the confiscation of his manuscripts by the Catholic church) will be the theme of the following three episodes. Later in the semester, films will be presented on the history of physics, chemistry and the relativity theories of Einstein. Students and faculty are invited to attend the "Ascent of Man" series.

DATE	FILM
Sept. 15	The Starry Messenger (Galileo - fact vs. dogma)
Sept. 29	Lower than the Angels (Theory of evolution)
Oct. 6	Ladder of Creation (Wallace and Darwin)
Oct. 13	Generation upon Generation (Genetics and Mendel)
Oct. 20	World Within World (Atomic - molecular theory)
Nov. 10	The Majestic Clockwork (Newton and Einstein)
Nov. 19	The Hidden Structure (History of Chemistry to Dalton)

New Director of Student Activities

As we start this school year and find ourselves in the Pub, shooting pool, playing cards, playing ping pong, or our favorite one—waiting in line to get into the bookstore, you have seen or talked with our new acting Director of Student Affairs, Al Harris. Al is a recent graduate of Appalachian State University with a Master's Degree in Counseling, and student personal services. He brings with him valuable experience learned from six years work with the Appalachian State University Student Union. His experience also entails being chairman of the concert committee and graduate advisor to the Student Union Committees.

While in Grad school, Mr. Harris plans to put this knowledge to good use here at the Wilmington campus.

To start with he will encourage all groups with active plans to use his office as a clearinghouse to ensure that five or six events are not planned for one day.

The SUPB will sponsor the first UNC-W Open Frisbee Golf Tournament on Saturday, October 9. A Frisbee Golf Tournament is a idea which has started to sweep the country. The idea started from San Francisco and has moved eastward as its devotees turn others on to its challenges. A golf course type layout is set up with a cardboard box 25 inches high and 25 inches across as the hole. Each throw of the frisbee is counted as a stroke. The tournament will be composed of foursome who will set out over the course at different times. The winner or winners will receive a prize and be recognized as winner of the first Frisbee Golf Tournament. So break out the frisbee and start warming up for this event.

A Cram House is also envisioned by Mr. Harris. The Pub would be open all night long during exam for students to study. As we all know, dorms and apartments sometimes are not good places to study. The Cram House would be stocked with coffee and hopefully it will be reality by exam time.

Mr. Harris is also working toward high quality entertainment for the Good Wood Tavern. Many of you know where it is but have not taken the time to relax and enjoy this part of the campus. Al, with the help of students, hopes to enliven the Good Wood Tavern and awaken the students to its night life.

Mr. Harris is also working as a brand of Voluntary Action Center of New Hanover County. This group works to get people together to help one another. Wilmington has many needs that you as college students can fulfill in your spare time. He will be glad to talk with you about where you can fit into this line of action and help people.

As you can see, Al has a busy time ahead of him. He believes in supportive management. In helping people on campus with student activities he will serve more as an advisor than a director.

We of the Seahawk are glad to see a person such as Al to head up this important office of Student Affairs.

Welcome to UNC-W, Al Harris!

FRESHMAN ELECTIONS

Freshmen desiring to serve as Class President, Vice President, Secretary or Senator (S) must file for election by Wednesday, September 22 in the Pub (Student Government Office or Student Activities Office). The Constitutional test must be taken by all candidates with a score of 80 per cent or better. Test will be given Thursday, September 23 at 11:30-12:30. It will be very simple. So far no one has filed.

Voting for these elections will be on September 29 and 30 along with general elections for the entire student body relating to issues important to the entire student body.

If you have any questions, call the Student Government Office or Julius Metts, Elections Chairman, 791-2892.

PUTT FOR PALSY

United Cerebral Palsy of North Carolina and Putt-Putt Golf Courses have formed an unbeatable twosome to announce the first annual PUTT FOR PALSY Hole-in-One Tournament.

The tournament, set for September 25 and 26, will be statewide and involve almost 25 Putt-Putt courses in 23 cities. Thousands of people, young and old are expected to participate in the UCP-NC event.

Golfers will have the opportunity to play for a four hour period, win giant trophies and compete for the state championship. Entrants need not be Putt-Putt champs, since there are a variety of awards to be distributed. Participants will recruit sponsors who will pledge a specific amount for each hole-in-one scored to be collected by the golfer after the tournament. Trophies will be awarded at each course to the golfer with the most holes-in-one and to the golfer with the most money collected from sponsors.

All net proceeds from the PUTT FOR PALSY will benefit UCP-NC's extensive program services for cerebral palsied children and adults. Cerebral palsy effects almost 18,000 people in North Carolina and remains the nation's number one cripple.

For more details on how you can join, stop by your local Putt-Putt course today or any participating Fast Fare.

President "Railroading" Proposals

SENATORS, ROBINSON CLASH

by Bobby Parker

In its first regular meeting of the academic year, the student senate became a hotbed of controversy that culminated in open confrontation between SGA president, Duffy Robinson and Sophomore Vice-President Ray Warren. Convening on Wednesday evening, the session's discord centered on an executive order issued by President Robinson earlier this summer that would institute purchases for all student activities with student funds under the state purchasing system.

However, as Warren later stated, his argument was not over the merit of the decision but over the manner in which it was presented before the Senate.

"It was the worst railroad job I've ever seen," said Warren, referring to the President's presentation of the proposal.

Warren charged that Robinson evaded questions from the floor about the issue, and, additionally, that Robinson was in fact out of order in presiding over the Senate.

Under normal Senate rules, the SGA Vice-President, Paul Laird, would preside over all senate meetings. Laird had opened the meeting and had recognized Robinson for a customary president's report. But Robinson remained in charge of the meeting after giving his report and fielded questions from the floor.

Under normal procedures, Laird would have returned to the podium to field questions.

However, the Senate failed on Wednesday evening to formally adopt rules and therefore, Robinson says, he could not have been out of order. Robinson later said that it was not his responsibility to have rules adopted in the Senate and indicated any action on his part to urge the Senate to adopt rules would violate the separation of powers between the legislative and executive branches of student government.

According to Warren's account of the meeting, Robinson said that state law required the SGA to move under the state purchasing system. Senator Karin Whaley confirmed that account, saying he recalled specifically asking Robinson during that meeting whether or not the proposal was required by state law.

"It was a clear question. I asked 'Is this state law?' ... He (Robinson) answered, 'yes,'" Ms. Whaley stated. But according to university comptroller Robert O. Walton, state law does not require the state purchasing system to be implemented. It is, however, very strongly recommended by state officials. Robinson stated that he had made a mistake in answering that the system was required but that it was not a deliberate attempt to mislead anyone.

According to reports, state auditors who examined SGA financial records last year were very dissatisfied with the previous system of purchasing. Robinson pointed this out when he explained why the decision was made by executive order instead of senate legislation.

The president added that it was his responsibility as the chief executive of state government to set SGA fiscal policy and that equipment expenditures during the summer necessitated prompt action before the Senate would have convened.

Warren challenged Robinson's claim that he must set fiscal policy and said that Robinson was issuing overabundance of executive orders without consultation with the Senate. Also questioned by Warren was Robinson's alleged attitude that the matter was done and there was nothing the Senate could now do to retract any action on the matter.

However, Robinson pointed out that the Senate has the power to nullify any executive order. Warren indicated that the president had offended many senators by trying to place the executive branch over the legislative, and said that his actions bordered on dictatorship.

Robinson countered these charges saying that his administration seemed too strong only in contrast to previous administrations.

Pinpointing that of last year's president, Steve Hobbs, Robinson stated that previous administrations were "weak, indecisive ... and because of (executive) inactivity, the Senate has had to bear the load of student government."

Robinson said that he will continue to work to make the executive branch an equal power with the legislative branch as set forth in the constitution.

Reports of a confrontation between Robinson and Warren after Wednesday's senate meeting have been investigated and it has been found that

Ray Warren

Warren confronted Robinson with objections to the president's procedure at the meeting. Warren charged Robinson with selecting questions from the floor rather than answering all questions.

According to Warren, Robinson then said that the matter was closed and nothing could change it. Robinson then turned to walk out of the room and Warren, by his own account, labeled such procedure "fascist." Robinson later said that he took the comment as a personal offense and turned back to face Warren.

Robinson then asked Warren to remove his glasses, which Warren refused to do, after which the president demanded that Warren retract the statement. Warren retracted the statement and later said that he had not intended it personally.

Vice-President Laird witnessed the confrontation and at one point interceded, explaining that Robinson could not have been out of order since no rules were adopted. Treasurer Mark Wax and several senators also witnessed the disagreement.

"The way the objection was put to me was that I was out of order," explained Robinson, who later confirmed that he had asked Warren to remove his glasses.

Robinson said that Warren had complained that he had not answered all questions on the matter. But the president reiterated that he had asked for any other questions before closing the matter.

"I did not fail to recognize questions from the floor," Robinson said.

Robinson recalled entertaining questions from Warren on two different occasions and said he assumed that all questions had been answered. Referring to the "little talk" with Warren after the meeting, Robinson said that he had repeatedly told Warren that he would not physically harm him. Robinson apologized to

Four Students Vie for Miss Wilmington; Miss America To Appear

Four UNC-W students will vie for the crown in Saturday's Miss Wilmington pageant to be held in Kenan Auditorium at 8 p.m. The event will feature Miss America 1977, Dorothy Benham of Minnesota as its special guest, and Miss North Carolina 1974, Susan Griffin, as mistress of ceremonies.

The pageant is sponsored by the Wilmington Jaycees and directed by Mr. Elmer Williamson. Tickets are $3.00 each and may be purchased at Belk-Beery Bookstore, King-off's, Glenn's Sporting Goods, or from any Jaycee.

The contestants who are students at UNC-W are:

Pamela Ann Bennett, 19, a sophomore majoring in therapeutic education, who will perform a tap dance in the talent competition.

Katherine Fay Britt, a junior elementary Education major, whose talent will also be tap dancing.

Elizabeth Ann Hicks, 21, a senior English major, who will perform a puppet show as her talent.

Brenda Moss, 21, a senior will bring a display of the Kung Fu fighting form as her talent.

Other contestants and their talents in the pageant are Teresa Faye Jackson (tap dancing); Victoria Pridgeon (jazz dancing); Emily Marrie Robinson (tap dancing); Bobbi Faye Barefoot (jazz dancing); Marion Gibson (piano); and Mary Vanessa Malloy (singing).

Is This A Democratic System?

Dear Editor,

Many people still wonder how a man can seize dictatorial power in a democratic system. If these individuals could have been present at the last meeting of the Student Senate, however, I am sure they would have been quite enlightened. They could have witnessed an exercise in raw power and the complete subjugation of the supreme student legislative body by a man who is not even a member of that body.

The meeting, the first of the school term, consisted of a report by President Duffy Robinson. In his report, Mr. Robinson stated that he had placed all SGA funds under the state purchase order system. He accomplished this by executive order.

Upon completion of his report, Mr. Robinson did not relinquish control of the chair to the vice-president, who constitutionally presides over meetings of the Senate. Instead, Robinson (who cannot even speak to the senate without recognition) proceeded to control the questioning of his action. When I inquired as to who was presiding, he stated that he was. So much for the constitution and the separation of powers.

I am not at all sure that the state purchase order system is a bad thing. I am quite sure, however, that any action which affects the spending of student money should not be taken without first consulting the students themselves—through their elected representatives. The constitution gives the president no power to utilize the dubious instrument of executive order to bypass these representatives. Nor does the constitution give him the power to seize control of the legislative branch of government.

To achieve his ends, the president not only attempted to control the senate chair, he also heavily utilized two incorrect statements. He stated that the SGA was required by law to submit to the purchase order system and that supplies could not be bought from the university central store otherwise. No senator rose to challenge these statements. My investigation, however, reveals both to be false. Mr. Robinson, in fact, requested and received permission to place SGA money under the system. In addition, the system is not a prerequisite for receiving supplies through the central store.

I would like to emphasize that I am in no way attacking Mr. Robinson's motives. In fact, I feel that his only desire is to do what he feels is best for this university. Many a dictator, however, has destroyed liberty in the name of high ideals.

Mr. Robinson has acted without constitutional sanction, attempted to subvert the legislative process and dealt in half-truths at best; lies at worst. While the president shows the potential to be the strong decisive leader this campus needs, undemocratic actions only serve to discredit the very programs he seeks to implement. Let us hope he will abandon them and work in concert with the student representatives to improve life at UNC-W.

Saturday Afternoon Kiddie Matinee

To The Editor:

On September 7, I attended the first on-campus film offering of the semester. The behavior of many of the students attending was such that I had to frequently remind myself that I was not at a Saturday afternoon kiddie matinee. The constant noise, occasional whoops and catcalls, and general disrespect for the serious viewer were extremely distracting. This behavior would not be tolerated in a classroom, nor even in a local movie house. I sincerely hope that at future films the students at this university will act like what they have so recently become—adults.

You've heard of Christian Fellowship and that meets a variety of needs for a variety of people but there are other things happening on campus. Have you heard of The Marketplace? You may find it almost any Wednesday morning at 7:45 AM sleepily sipping coffee in the small dining room in the cafeteria. There is a 95 cents admission charge but that is only because you can't enter the gilded doors of our cafeteria without paying your way or flashing your meal ticket.

What kind of beast walks in The Marketplace? Well, it is a group (isn't everybody these days?) which changes shapes and colors from time to time. It is an open group (well, at least we think so) which makes an attempt early in the day to bring one's brain into focus and to take a critical look at some serious ethical issues. It's probably appropriate at this point to divulge from whence came the name. The Marketplace finds itself in juxtaposition to "The Upper Room," the mystical ritualistic and/or devotional side of life. If one's inner beliefs are to be of any consequence in life, they must be brought out of The Upper Room so to speak, and exposed to the light and life of The Marketplace. Hence we attempt to examine the issues and ideas being peddled like so many wares by hawkers in the marketplace of life.

Some areas we have already touched have been science and scripture, women and the church, decision-making processes, the relationship of one's faith to the academic community, and others we may touch range from abortion to political involvement to questions of euthanasia and whatever seems important enough to look at.

You're invited to bring your body and your brains out into The Marketplace to share but not proselytize.

With some expectation,
Vivan Martindale

BYLINE: McGovern: He Said It Then

Bobby Parker

Throughout the 1976 Democratic presidential campaign, there has been one unmentionable name: George McGovern. The man who captured the party against all the odds in 1972 has been well placed in the background by those who have aspired to repeat his accomplishment in this election year.

In many ways, the success of Jimmy Carter is very much related to the success of Senator McGovern. Though Carter's appeal covers a much broader base, the campaigns of both men are symbols of changing times in American presidential politics.

Both men started their campaigns in relative obscurity, with a sparse political base to build on. Carter outbuilt McGovern, however, with more than two years of calculating planning aimed solely at this bid for the presidency. McGovern gained some national exposure in 1968 as a last minute candidate for the nomination and also was available to Washington contacts through the Senate.

Operating from an historically impotent southern base, Carter had further to go than McGovern. But McGovern had stronger competition—the likes of Hubert Humphrey and Edmund Muskie, who shared the ticket in 1968.

During the '76 primaries, Carter emerged with a winner-among-losers image to move step by step toward the nomination. He vanquished all foes, and by the end of the primaries was orchestrating a unified convention. McGovern was unable to secure the nomination, but took his fight all the way to the convention, where his cause finally prevailed.

Carter has been charged throughout the campaign with fuzziness on the issues and careful stress on the right issues before the right audience. McGovern, on the other hand, was often in trouble over his controversial stands, sometimes appearing too liberal to be elected.

Both men overcame huge obstacles; both were received cautiously by party regulars. (McGovern much more so than Carter), each man won the nomination in the primaries.

And what do you know—both men have amazingly similar positions on the issues. To illustrate, here are some portions taken from the campaign leaflets of each man. If you're a Carter fan, you may not want to hear it; if you're a McGovern admirer, it may hurt to know that the ideals that were so vigorously scorned then are now being warmly embraced by the man from Georgia who is selling them like peanuts to the American public.

These were the major positions of the two candidates. Basically the same stands were taken on every one of them. It is most ironic, however, to note their views on the economy. When McGovern spoke of a "guaranteed annual income," he was ridiculed and scorned. When Carter talks of full employment, he is welcomed to the ranks. There is no real difference between the two concepts.

In addition to those listed, McGovern pamphlets gave positions on senior citizens, veterans, peoples rights, and foreign affairs, as did Carter of energy. However, on all of the issues discussed, McGovern's discussion was almost always twice as long as that of Carter. McGovern's leaflet allotted three-fourths of the total space for issues; Carter's allotted exactly one-fourth. The remainder of the Carter pamphlet dealt with the candidate's personal attributes.

And that signifies the greatest difference between the two candidates: the differences between the two men. Carter's entire campaign was an attempt to sell his personality to America; McGovern—yes, perhaps an idealist—had a real concern for America to find solutions to the problems of the day. There was not a hint of solution in the Carter literature; McGovern's seemed centered around presenting feasible solutions to pressing problems.

Just what do we have in Jimmy Carter? An unknown quantity of unknown quality.

His election would be a gamble—but the pain of it all is that it may be a gamble we will have to take.

How is it that with a smile and an utterance of "Trust Me" Mr. Carter can espouse the same positions that buried Mr. McGovern four years earlier? It's the move of America away from caring about the problems of our country.

McGovern wasn't afraid to take controversial stands; he never straddled a fence on a major issue, and he was never accused of such fuzziness. Whatever his critics said, he was never accused of fuzziness.

Remember the burning issue of 1972—Vietnam? That's the one that first brought Senator McGovern to the national spotlight. He said it then: "I'm fed up with the old men dreaming up wars for young men to die in. The war in Indochina is the greatest military, political, economic and moral blunder in our national history. Never again should we commit our forces to war without full debate and a declaration of war."

What rational American isn't saying that now?

Carter

McGovern

Crime

"Our best defense against skyrocketing crime is a criminal justice system that can deliver swift, certain, fair and firm justice. The present system has shown itself incapable of doing any of these things."

"The first task of government is to protect its citizens' lives and property . . . there is an immediate need for a tough and effective crackdown. To fulfill this need, we must give great support to our local and national law enforcement agencies."

Health Care

"We need a national health care system, including national health insurance, that is efficient, workable and fair."

"Good health care . . . is the right of every American citizen. Therefore, we must establish a federally funded guaranteed system of comprehensive health insurance for all Americans."

Environment

"We cannot compromise the commitment of our federal government to play a significant role in the preservation of our natural areas and resources."

"Individual states cannot afford the massive task ahead. The federal government must help. Only through a major commitment by our next president to a decent environment can we fully protect our resources . . ."

Taxes

"Our tax system is a disgrace. The average family earning $10,000 or less pays a larger portion of its income in taxes than a family with an annual income of $100,000 or more. We need a fair tax system now."

"We need to reform our total tax structure. The ordinary citizen is now being asked to pay heavier taxes while many of the rich and powerful escape through loopholes . . . We need to reduce property taxes across the board."

Economy and Jobs

"Jobs for American who want to work must be our number one national priority."

"The federal government can insure a job for every American who wants to work. A McGovern administration is pledged to full employment in a peacetime economy . . ."

Defense and Wasteful Spending

"Waste and inefficiency are both costly to taxpayers and a danger to our own national existence. Strict management and budgetary control over the Pentagon should reduce the ratio of officers to men and of support forces to combat troops."

"We should cut at least $30 billion in government waste by ending the war, reducing our troops in Europe, and canceling the ABM and other needless projects. And this can be done without harming America's defense posture."

Soccer Season Looks Good

Enthusiasm for Seahawk soccer, it seems, is running at an all time high this year.

Coach Calvin Lane is extremely optimistic about the team's chances this year. "We have a fine team, with tremendous talent," he said, adding, "Everyone was in good physical condition at the start, the training has been successful, and all the players are in top shape."

The team has not been without problems, though. A scrimmage match with an outside opponent could not be arranged into their busy schedule so an intra-squad match was scheduled for Friday the 10th. The heavy rains, of course, postponed the match til Monday, meaning the team had to go three days without a practice.

The scrimmage Monday, however, was a success, with several players performing extremely well. The first match will be September 17 against North Carolina, with the first home match coming Sunday, September 19, at 1:00 against Florida Technical Institute.

Coach Lane has named a tentative starting line-up for the season. In announcing the line-up, however, he was quick to point out that he expects many players to see action.

Kissinger Urges Independence For Southwest Africa

by Jack Anderson
with Joe Speer

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger recently returned from Zurich where he met with South Africa's Prime Minister John Vorster. The two men negotiated in the strictest secrecy. Not since the Vietnam War has Kissinger been so secretive about his purposes.

However, inside sources told us that Kissinger urged Vorster to make some major concessions to the blacks. Kissinger asked him to grant independence to Southwest Africa. The new nation, of course, would be governed by its black majority. Kissinger also asked Vorster to use his influence with the white rulers of Rhodesia to submit to black majority rule.

But at the same time, Kissinger is under great pressure to help South Africa preserve its own white regime. The pressure comes from some of the nation's most powerful corporations, which have strong ties to the White House.

American industry has a $2 billion stake in South Africa. Over 300 large corporations have offices there. Another six thousand sell their products in South Africa. American banks have loaned hundreds of millions of dollars to South Africa. And trade between the United States and South Africa is steadily increasing.

This troubles Iowa's Senator Dick Clark. He is afraid Kissinger might wind up as the diplomatic champion of South Africa. Therefore, South Africa might become another Vietnam, with the United States supporting the unpopular side against the rest of the world.

So the senator has begun an examination of U.S. policy towards South Africa. He is chairman of the Senate subcommittee on Africa, and will hold eight hearings this month.

ROSSELLI REPORT We first broke the story that mobster John Roselli was missing. We reported that the only clue his abductors left was a smudge spot on the window of his car.

Roselli's body was found later stuffed in an oil drum in Florida's Biscayne Bay. The FBI has joined the Miami police in the search for his killers. We can report, however, that the smudge spot is still the only clue. The investigators have been unable to trace the oil drum or the heavy chain that was wrapped around it.

But the signs indicate that Roselli was the victim of a mob execution. The murder of Roselli, a witness before the Senate Intelligence Committee, was likely to bring the federal government into the case. The police believe, therefore, the killing had to have the approval of Florida's Mafia overlord, Santos Trafficante. Both federal and Florida lawmen, therefore, are investigating Trafficante.

The flamboyant Roselli was more than just another hoodlum. He masterminded the attempt to assassinate Cuban Premier Fidel Castro for the Central Intelligence Agency. He used elements from the Havana underworld in the plot. They were Cubans who had been left behind after Castro closed down the Mafia's gambling casinos in Havana.

It took a high Mafia leader to make the arrangements with the Havana underworld. Roselli brought in the Chicago Godfather, Sam Giancana, to set up the assassination attempts.

The whole scheme was almost exposed over Giancana's love for a woman. Giancana was in Florida helping to plan the Castro killing when he learned that his girl friend had struck up a romance with a Las Vegas comedian.

The enraged Giancana wanted to fly straight to Las Vegas and take care of the comedian. The CIA talked him out of it by promising to bug the lovers' room and give a full report to Giancana. A private eye was hired to plant the bug. But unhappily, he was caught.

This resulted in an investigation that might have exposed Giancana, Roselli and the Castro assassination scheme. We have learned that the CIA quietly intervened with the Justice Department to block the investigation. The bizarre episode has been hushed up all these years.

SHIP SHORTAGE : During the recent Korean crisis, the Navy moved the aircraft carrier Midway into Korean waters. The move was intended as a warning to the North Koreans not to violate the 23-year armistice.

But classified documents cautioned that the Navy was short of ships in the Far East to back up a military play. Many of the ships are also run down. They are manned, in some cases, by incompetent crews.

With the close of the Vietnam War, the Navy's combat crews have had no one to combat. They are at loose ends, whiling away their time. Living conditions aboard ship have deteriorated. Therefore, morale is low, discipline lax and efficiency poor.

The classified documents show that the fleet has been neglected, with infrequent practice runs and inadequate equipment. Routine refueling operations at sea, for example, have resulted in half-a-dozen collisions since the Vietnam War. At best, the fleet is only in fair fighting condition.

Yet the admirals always manage to squeeze enough money out of the budget for their own comforts. No less than President Ford has complained, according to confidential White House minutes, that the military brass deliberately cuts muscle instead of fat when he orders a budget reduction.

Lee Announces Campaign Staff

Howard Lee, the first primary leader in the Democratic race for Lt. Governor, today named Luther Jordan, Kenneth Mills, and Aaron McCrary as his student coordinators at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

Luther and Aaron, both residents of Wilmington, were graduated from New Hanover High School. Kenneth, from Hampstead, N.C., was graduated from Topsail High School. Mr. Lee, in announcing 46 student coordinators, noted that these coordinators represent organization at every major college and university and numerous community colleges across North Carolina.

Mr. Lee stated, "I am extremely pleased by the student response to my candidacy. As Mayor of Chapel Hill, I actively sought to involve students in the governmental processes. The work of these student volunteers has been instrumental in insuring a victory on September 14th.

JOY EXPLOSION Was A Success

On September 10, 11, and 12 numerous people gathered on the athletic field for JOY EXPLOSION, a religious revival on campus.

Two bands that everyone enjoyed were (above) Hope of Glory from Houston, Texas and (below) Charisma-Janquist from Ivanhoe, N.C.

Commander Dave Harris of the USS Pueblo spoke to the crowd Saturday night. He spent 1 1/2 years as a POW in North Korea.

J.L. Williams and The New Directions helped to bring the weekend to an end (above). Lead singer for Hope of Glory challenged the people (left).

Book Sale is Now Over

The Book Sale is now over. On behalf of the UNC-W Business Club I would like to thank all the students who participated in the fall edition of the Used Book Sale. It was the biggest success of any fall book sale yet and you, the students, are primarily responsible. A very special thanks goes out to SGA president Duffy Robinson and his staff for their gracious hospitality and use of their facilities and also to Al Harris, the new Student Activities Director for his support.

It takes involvement by many people to make such an undertaking a success and we sincerely desire to serve all students and will look forward to serving you again this spring.

Student Nurses

The nursing students started the new school year off with a Big Sister-Little Sister picnic, given by the senior class. Each senior nursing student takes on a little sister from the incoming freshman class. The picnic was a big success. It was held at Kathi Fogleman's home in Porter's Neck. The menu consisted of: hotdogs cooked on the grill, chili, potato salad, pork 'n beans, potato chips, pickles, and iced tea.

The SNA (Student Nurses' Association) is growing stronger this year. The local SNA held its first meeting August 19 to elect new officers. They are: Bek Gibson, President; Ruth Sharpe, Vice-President; Cynthia Ingram, Secretary; Kathi Fogleman, Treasurer; and Brenda Roop, Publicity Chairman.

Our local SNA is very active on the District and State levels. As is evident by their involvement. Nancy Jackson is president of this district. Ruth Sharpe is secretary. Nancy was Student Nurse of the Year from this school and this district. Debra Lewis is editor of the "Hypodermic," the state newsletter.

We are proud of our student nurses for getting involved. UNC-W will be host to the first district SNA meeting, to be held Sept. 18. This District No. 9 includes James Sprunt, Southeastern Comm. College.

Coastal Comm. College, Sampson Tech., Fayetteville Tech., and UNC-W. SNA serves "to aid in the development of the individual student and to urge students of nursing, as future health professionals, to be aware of and to contribute to improving the health care of all people."

Keep your eyes and ears open for more news about upcoming SNA events.

Joe Smothers Comes To The Coffeehouse

JOE SMOTHERS began playing local bars and coffeehouses around Boone, North Carolina in the late 60's while he was a student at Appalachian State University. Together with Michael Coleman, he began to spread out and play concerts and coffeehouses throughout the South. In 1972 they formed the band FRIED CHICKEN and WATERMELON with musicians Tom Ross and Clay Buckner. Soon after, they auditioned for and were accepted on the Bitter End Coffeehouse Circuit. This was a company set by C. Shaw Smith and Marilyn Lipsitz to help folk artists that show talent and promise in the field of folk music. Some of the artists who were associated with the Circuit were JIM CROCE, JERRY JEFF WALKER, JOHN DENVER, BREWER and SHIPLEY, and DON MACLEAN. For two years FRIED CHICKEN and WATERMELON toured colleges in the North, Mid-West, and South where they appeared with such acts as DOC AND MERLE WATSON, THE NITTY GRITTY DIRT BAND, EARL SCRUGGS, GORDON LIGHTFOOT and other acts in the folk field.

When FRIED CHICKEN AND WATERMELON disbanded Joe went on to join the band FROSTY MORN, which included Doc and Merle Watson, Bob Hill, and Mike Coleman. With the band Joe played guitar, autoharp, washboard and vocals. Joe has recorded on two albums with Doc on the United Artists label. They were DOC WATSON MEMORIES (UA-LA432-H2) and DOC AND THEY (UA-LA601-G). For two years Joe traveled with Doc and Frosty Morn all over the U.S. and in the spring of 1976 they did a tour of Japan.

Now that Frosty Morn has disbanded Joe has gone on to do what he does best—playing and singing his songs and his friends' songs in a way that only he can.

Joe Smothers will be performing at the Good Wood Tavern Thursday, September 16 through Saturday, September 18. There will be two shows each night at 8:00 p.m. and 9:00 p.m. with an additional performance at 10:00 p.m. on Saturday. Admission for each evening will be 50 cents. Bring your own beer and wine: Beer—72 ounces maximum, wine—32 ounces to 14 per cent alcoholic content maximum.

X-rated film Policies

(National On Campus Report)

Students want them and they make money. These are the reasons that more and more campus film programs are including X-rated pictures in their fare.

In an effort to find out more about the extent of X-rated film programming on the nation's campuses, the film committee of the NEC (National Entertainment Conference) recently surveyed their member institutions. The 192 colleges and universities that responded to the survey reported showing a total of 11,000 films of all types last year.

Although there have been some hassles, apparently there is not a great deal of campus concern about potential problems of showing X-rated films. The survey reports that of the campus film programmers responding, 63 per cent had not investigated local statutes regarding such films. Only 25 per cent of the schools had a formal policy regarding the showing of X-rated films.

"Legitimate" X-rated films ("Clockwork Orange," "Last Tango in Paris") are being shown at 78 per cent of public college campuses, 80 per cent of private colleges and only 36 per cent of church-related schools, according to the survey.

Hard-core X-rated films such as "Deep Throat" are shown at 12 per cent of public institutions and 24 per cent of private colleges. No church-related college reported showing such films.

TV NEWS

By Kim Garfield (Pop Scene Service)

Richard Hatch replaces Michael Douglas

As Michael Douglas' successor on "The Streets of San Francisco," Richard Hatch will undoubtedly become a household name. But the good-looking Californian is much more concerned about being judged a good actor than voted TV's next superstar.

He's also hoping that his new co-starring role opposite Karl Malden will inject "a new spirit and a new energy" into the four-year-old hit series.

"That's necessary for any show, no matter how successful," said the 5'11", dark haired, blue-eyed Hatch.

"I'm not as laid-back as Michael Douglas; I think I'm much more intense. My relationship with Karl Malden will be different than people are used to, but I think once the show gets past the awkward phase, it'll turn out real good."

Hatch is not taking over the Douglas character. He plays Dan Robbins, who'll be introduced via a two-hour special when "Streets" begins its new season on September 23. Douglas, "Steve Keller," decides to go back to school to study criminology, thereby leaving the door open to return as guest star from time to time.

"Dan Robbins is a simple, outdoor kind of guy," Hatch explained during a break in filming on the real streets of San Francisco. "He's a back-packer, he doesn't dress as 'spiffily' as Steve Keller, he drives a van, eats health foods and likes to get away from it all."

Hatch feels that Dan's character he can easily identify with and as the season unfolds, the character will evolve more and more. As he put it: "It's not a supercop-type show. The men are more human and more vulnerable."

New Fledgling Editor Prepared for Job

by Bobby Parker

The new Fledgling editor settled into the swivel chair behind her desk ready for the interview that had been squeezed in between meetings with the Director of Student Activities and several of the new staff members. The steady, rhythmic rocking of her chair seemed an indication of the energy and determination which were emanated as she discussed the job before her.

A senior working on a double major in English and History, Linda Houghton is quietly but resolutely laying the foundations for the 1977 Fledgling. Though she has never had any experience on a yearbook staff, she points to her past service as a reporter for the Seahawk and past and present positions on the Atlantis staff as experiences that will help her in her new job.

Ms. Houghton is a "left brain" as many experienced Fledgling staffers as possible to help ease her burden. Pointing to a "really good" advisor, Ms. Gwen Croom, she also credits last year's editor, Darlene Pearsall, for filling her in on many of the details of the job. SGA President Duffy Robinson has also cooperated well, Ms. Houghton stated.

Asked about plans for the 1977 yearbook, the editor replied that there would be a full staff meeting next week to discuss ideas. She will also ask campus organizations to submit thoughts, and a questionnaire will be distributed to students to get a broad range of suggestions.

"I'd like to have as much input (into the book) as possible," she commented.

As for the shape of the 1977 staff, Ms. Houghton revealed that an abundance of six potential photographers, a student life editor, a business manager, and an advertising manager have already signed up. She has plans to tap two associate editors and would like to have a staff organizer to coordinate the entire staff.

An appeal for more staff members was then issued by the editor, inviting all interested students to drop by and speak with her about the prospect. She would prefer a staff of 15-20 people to work with.

Emphasis will be placed on creativity in the production of the Fledgling, and Ms. Houghton said she had that idea in mind when choosing staff members.

"I tried to pick a variety of people, from different segments of campus life," Ms. Houghton said.

She also indicated that she will incorporate more writing into the book this year, and will retain, or perhaps increase, the number of cartoon drawings in the '77 Fledgling. Another priority would be a unified theme to be carried throughout the yearbook.

When asked about subscriptions, which were implemented this year to offset financial difficulties, Ms. Houghton expressed a desire to eliminate the $5.00 charge to students, but said that a definite decision about subscriptions would come later after consultation with other staff members and an examination of the financial situation.

Another new idea under consideration is to have the yearbooks published in time for a late spring distribution instead of the usual August date. However, this would mean little or no coverage of the spring semester. To offset this drawback, Ms. Houghton said that options include a summer supplement to the book or carrying coverage over to the next year's book, as is done in most high school publications. She reiterated, however, that these were only tentative ideas to be given careful consideration.

Summing up her feelings about the task ahead, the new editor expressed a desire to "motivate people to get involved" in the yearbook's production.

Youth Revival

A warm welcome is extended to all students of UNC-W to share in special youth services September 17, 18 and 19 at Calvary Baptist Church, 23rd Street and Brandon Road. A dynamic young evangelist from Campbell College who has led in outstanding youth crusades throughout the South, David McLaurin, will be leading in these services. Services will be held nightly at 7:30 p.m. and 11 a.m. on Sunday the 19. Transportation will be provided upon request by calling the church office at 762-5608 or 762-0020.

Puppeteers' Workshop

The Port City Puppeteers will sponsor a workshop in puppetry at the Community Arts Center beginning Oct. 6. The class will meet on Wednesdays from 4:30-6:30 p.m. There is no fee. The class includes making puppets, working with them, writing scripts, designing scenery and putting on the final production.

Sponsored by the Lower Cape Fear Council for the Arts and the Wilmington Parks and Recreation Department, the organization is looking for persons interested in the arts to tour with the group beginning in October. Call Beth Hicks after 2 p.m. at 762-7246.

New Financial Aid Director Moves In

by Curtis Ward

A new face can be seen by students seeking financial aid at UNC-W. He is Mr. Joseph Capell, the new Director of Financial Aid.

Mr. Capell came to UNC-W from Louisburg Junior College where he served as Director of Financial Aid for over five years. His overlapping duties there also included two years as Director of Admissions.

Originally intent on teaching after graduating from Wake Forest and Southeastern Theological College, he became interested in counseling, which led to his job at Louisburg.

When asked what he enjoyed most about his work he stated that it was the "contact with students and the college atmosphere."

Married to a native Wilmingtonian, the new Director has two daughters, ages 6 and 3. His leisure activities include watersports, tennis and vegetable gardening. His wife is a registered nurse.

While in college, Mr. Capell worked some in Austria and traveled through Europe

"roughing it, travelling second class" with a diet that often consisted of only cheese and bread. He says he would like to return there sometime with his family, but under better conditions. He spent two years in the Army assigned to Fort Bragg.

According to Mr. Capell "a sensitivity to the student is the most important part of this job. Unfortunately, the flow of paper work can often get in the way." Anyone who has applied for financial aid can understand and appreciate his attitude.

Fullbright-Hays Applications Open

The 1977-78 competition for grants for graduate study abroad offered under the Mutual Educational Exchange Program (Fulbright-Hays) and by foreign governments, universities and private donors will close shortly. Only a few weeks remain in which qualified graduate students may apply for one of the $50 awards which are available to 54 countries.

Most of the grants offered provide round-trip transportation, tuition and maintenance for one academic year; a few provide international travel only or a stipend intended as a partial grant-in-aid.

Candidates must be U.S. citizens at the time of application, hold a bachelor's degree or its equivalent by the beginning date of the grant, have language ability commensurate with the demands of the proposed study projects, and good health.

Application forms and further information for students currently enrolled in UNC-W may be obtained from the campus Fulbright Program Advisor, Dr. Sparks, who is located in K-107E. The deadline for filing applications on this campus is October 1, 1976.

PLAYBOY'S 1976 STUDENT POLL: THE MOOD ON CAMPUS

In 1976 Playboy Student Survey reveals that although college women are becoming more sexually active, the percentage of male virgins on campus is rising. In the 1970 Playboy survey, 49 percent of female students graduated with more than their brains intact, but by 1976, this figure had dropped to 26 percent. Yet, in the same period, the percentage of male virgins rose from 18 to 26 percent. This parity indicates the end of the double standard, observes Playboy—now women can, if they want to, while men don't have to.

The three out of four coeds who get it on, get it on with a vengeance, Playboy findings show. Their activities equal those of men in every form of sex—except masturbation. Although the poll reveals 29 percent of the women consider simple friendship sufficient grounds for sexual intercourse, most student sexual activity today takes place within fairly monogamous relationships. Fifty-five percent of women and 47 percent of the men questioned had a life-time total of three or fewer partners.

Senate Controversy Sparks Confrontation

Warren on Thursday said that he considered the incident forgotten.

Warren, however, plans to challenge the constitutionality of Robinson's executive order in the student courts. He said that he wants the matter cleared up one way or the other and expressed concern that executive authority would become too powerful.

Robinson had not been reached to comment on this late development, but during an interview, he reminded this reporter that he could take Warren to the student or civil court for slander. The president indicated that he would not pursue the matter in court, however.

Robinson said that he wished to "do everything in my power to operate in a good, solid relationship with the Senate." He added, however, that the Senate was, historically, an inactive body and that he felt the best way to insure student government action would be a strong executive. He said that the system of checks and balances must work both ways and that "I don't owe them anything" in urging them to keep their end of the relationship.

Although only one-half of the twenty-four senators attended the hastily-called Wednesday meeting, a random survey of several senators indicated a similar dissatisfaction with Robinson's performance, particularly on Wednesday night. Many said they felt Robinson was trying to railroad the proposal through and avoid as many questions as possible. One senator said that she felt many proposals were being railroaded, and another stated that the executive order was

In spite of the fact that many students look upon college as a kind of sexual testing ground, conservatives need not fear that the increase in campus sexual activity is another sign that our moral fabric is unwinding. A full 60 percent of students disagree strongly with the statement "I hope to have an open marriage which would include extramarital sex." Another 57 percent disagree strongly with the statement "I'm not interested in marrying. I hope to have a varied sex life, including a number of affairs."

Students offered some surprises on other issues, too. Although both politicians and the general public are busy denouncing Big Government, students say they want more Government intervention in almost every area of life, particularly in enforcement of pollution laws.

Seventh percent favor handgun control, and almost half want to restore the death penalty. Students generally favor stricter laws, heavier penalties and mandatory therapy for hard-drug users. (Only marijuana and alcohol escape this prohibition.)

being "overused" by Robinson and that he was trying to overturn the Senate.

However, another senator said that executive orders were not being overused and that she agreed with the proposal in question. The same senator also accused the president of "playing dictator" and added that "we are capable people" in the Senate who should be consulted more often.

Another senator said that she would reserve judgement on Robinson's performance, emphasizing that "he is doing things." One member of the senate said that most of her colleagues were "playing government" and weren't really interested in student welfare.

She added that, in her opinion, Robinson was out of order at Wednesday's meeting and that he avoided some of the questions.

Almost all students (94 percent) support equal economic and political rights for women, while 79 percent oppose any move to restrict women's right to abortion. In fact, 67 percent of Catholic students questioned oppose the so-called right-to-life amendment.

Only 58 percent of those polled were optimistic about the future. Seventy-five percent agree that there has been a shift toward conservatism among students, yet judging from the statistics, most students have a different definition of conservative. It appears that the New Morality of the Sixties has become the dominant moral code of the Seventies.

COMMUNICATIONS CONTEST

NEW YORK, N.Y., Sept. 6.—Philip Morris Incorporated has announced its eighth annual Marketing/Communications Competition for college students. It was also announced that the program has been expanded to accommodate a large increase in response from the academic community, evidenced by a doubling in the number of participating schools over the past two years.

This year Philip Morris will offer separate awards to graduate and undergraduate students, recognizing the varied degrees of training and levels of experience between the two. A $1,000 grant will be awarded to the winning committee in each division; runners up will receive $500 grants, and other finalists in each category will receive special merit awards.

The purpose of the program is to provide students with a practical and realistic business project, bringing them into direct contact with the business community. Entries may deal with any aspect of the broad area of marketing/communications related to Philip Morris Incorporated, its operating companies or any of its non-tobacco products.

Student chapters of professional societies, regular classes or ad hoc committees of no less than five students and a faculty advisor may submit proposals. They should include the purpose and objective of their program.

In addition to the grants, two student representatives and the faculty advisor from each of the winning and runner up committees will be invited to be Philip Morris's guests at corporate headquarters in New York or at another corporate location to discuss their proposals with Philip Morris executives.

A distinguished committee of marketing/communications experts will judge selected entries. They are: Eugene Kummel, chairman of the board, McCann Erickson; Mary Wells Lawrence, chairman of the board, Wells, Rich, Greene; Arjay Miller, dean, Stanford University Graduate School of Business; William Ruder, president, Ruder & Finn; and James Bowling, vice president and director of corporate affairs, Philip Morris.

Philip Morris Incorporated, one of the world's largest cigarette companies, includes Philip Morris U.S.A., which produces Marlboro—the number one selling cigarette in the world, Benson & Hedges 100s, Parliament, Virginia Slims, Merit, Saratoga 120's, Philip Morris regular and Commander, Benson & Hedges Multifilter, Alpine, and other cigarettes, and also makes the Personna Double II cartridge shaving system, the Flicker ladies' shaver, the Lady Double II, and Personna and Gem razor blades; Philip Morris International, which manufactures and markets the company's products through affiliates and licensees abroad and exports cigarettes around the world; Miller Brewer Company, brewers of Miller High Life and Lite brands; Philip Morris Industrial, which makes specialty chemicals, paper, and packaging materials, and Mission Viejo Company, a new community development and home building concern in Southern California and Colorado.

THE CARPENTERS

A KIND OF HUSH

CARPENTERS

A&M

By first impressions, the Carpenter's new album, A Kind of Hush, is no different from any of their previous albums. The cover shot shows us that the Carpenters still remember how to smile. This album, like its predecessors, contains a few hit singles. Even the overdone "oohs and aahs" are present. Still it has had a few changes.

The singles, There's A Kind of Hush, and I Need to Be in Love are not bonafide hits by Carpenter standards. For a group that used to turn out Top Ten hits with every release, times are hard. Both singles were lucky to make it into the Top Thirty.

It's no surprise that There's A Kind of Hush did not do very well. This tune was a hit in the Sixties by Herman's Hermits, and the Carpenter's rendition fails to add anything to it. I suspect that the Carpenters were trying to fit it into the same mold that made Please

Mr. Postman a hit. Unfortunately, There's A Kind of Hush lacks the magic ingredient.

Also lacking magic is Richard's own I Need to Be in Love. This song along with the other two originals on A Kind of Hush are the album's weakest tunes. All three fail to come up with any memorable melodies. At best I Need to Be in Love reminds you of some past Carpenter hits.

A Kind of Hush does have its good points. Karen and Richard are slowly leaving the Paul Williams and Burt Bacharach school of songs behind. Jackie De Shannon has been around for ages, but her name on the Carpenter's album is a new addition. Her song, Boat to Sail, is wrecked by poor lyrics. The phrase "De Shannon is back" at the end is a poke at the Captain and Tennille's "Sedaka is back" from Love Will Keep Us Together.

Sedaka has not been forgotten on this album either. You might recall the blow up that occurred when the Carpenters fired Sedaka out in Las Vegas. Well, the Carpenters have buried the hatchet with their recording of Neil's hit Breaking Up Is Hard To Do. This is the fast version of the tune that took Neil to Number 1 in 1962. The slow version that Neil released last year owes much of its success to Richard Carpenter's string arrangement. There is very little change on the Carpenter's version when compared to the original.

If A Kind of Hush has an ace up its sleeve, it has to be the Thirties tune Goofus. This number bounces along at a pleasant pace and is a bit of a change in the Carpenter's repertoire. Making Goofus their next single was a smart move. If this single makes it as big as it should, then the Carpenters might be willing to take more chances next time around.

Rounding out the album are a few ballads. Though nowhere near classic tunes in the Close To You sense these tunes prove pleasant vehicles for Karen's voice.

This album will no doubt please you if you have enjoyed the Carpenter's past recordings. If a change is what you are looking for you won't find it here. I hope someday that the Carpenters will branch out into a wider spectrum of music, but at the moment they are staying put. Steve Harvey

HENRY GROSS RELEASED

RELEASE

LIFESONG - LS - 6002

If you have, like I have, recently gotten the last two Henry Gross albums you will find that they are very opposite. Whether you like solid rock or mellow rock will determine which album you like the most.

To begin with, let's start with his second A&M album, PLUG ME INTO SOMETHING. The sound on this album is somewhat hard rock with a little of the "athens sound".

On this album, Gross concentrates on his guitar work, which is very well done. A good example of this is the opening cut, "One More Tomorrow" and "Southern Band." These cuts almost rely on his guitar style and vocals. The guitar is hard charging and these cuts remain the best on the album. In fact, they are some of the best from either album.

The album somewhat has the "southern rock" sound but is, what I think an improvement over that sound. I say this because Henry Gross does not imitate the sound but uses it as a means of a beginning point. What he does with the sound is add his own style to it to improve it. He does not just imitate the Allman Brothers as do many groups associated with that "sound".

RELEASE is totally different from PLUG ME IN in that there is not one cut on the album which shows Gross' ability to play guitar. The album relies very much on just vocals and song writing. What is strange is that most of the material was written in 1975, in the same year the PLUG ME INTO SOMETHING album was released. I wonder how he could have been doing two styles that are so opposite at the same time.

Of course, RELEASE contains the hit single, "Shannon" which I feel sums the album up in that it is good mellow rock. There are two exceptions on the album which are more like the material from PLUG ME IN. They are "Springtime Mama", the second single from the LP, and "Something In Between."

The latter of these two is one of my favorite cuts and somewhat explains the reason why this album is different, for it is here we are given the idea that Gross has settled in between the hard and soft rock sound.

RELEASE is just this type sound; in between hard and soft rock. If he stays with this style and continues to produce songs like "Shannon", fame will likely increase more over the next year or so. Henry Gross' next album should tell in which direction he will go. Til then, Rock-Out. J.W.

PARKING SITUATION EASED

by Curtis Ward

Due to cooperation between students, administration and security the parking problems many experienced during the first weeks of class are under control, according to Charles Long, Chief of Campus Security.

Chief Long said that students seem to be cooperating for the most part in getting the situation under control. Many students have begun parking in the "South 40", the tennis parking lot, at Chief Long's direction.

One student stated. "It seems that they (the Security) have sold more decals than they have parking spaces for students." (However, Chief Long contradicted this statement when he said, "There is ample space, but it is not necessarily convenient space for the student." He went on to list the "South 40" and the marine sciences parking lot as examples.)

One solution a few driving students have found is bicycles. They pack their bikes their cars until they reach campus and then travel between classes by bicycle until they leave campus. A much larger group make exclusive use of bicycles.

There have been a few reports of students parking in faculty space, but for the most part, violations have been for parking outside of designated areas and lack of decals.

Until Sept. 13, most tickets issued were warning notices. Chief Long referred to this period as an "educational program." The first fine after this is usually excused but still recorded.

They strictest enforcement concerns disabled parking spaces.

The $12 parking fee paid by students and faculty is often questioned as to its use. By law, decal fees' use must be directly related to parking, and traffic, such as maintenance and improvements of parking lots and campus roads and new parking lots. One such lot is scheduled for the near future and will accommodate 400 cars.

In the meantime, temporary parking has been established at several locations on campus, including Reigelwood Drive near the dorms.

Chief Long is confident the situation is improving. "Our problems," he concludes, "are not getting worse, but are being alleviated. In comparison to other universities, we really don't have a problem."

New Degree Program in Planning Stages

by Bobby Parker

Several new degree programs are in preliminary development stages at UNC-W, including some at both the graduate and undergraduate levels. According to Dr. Daniel Plyler, the university's academic dean, these programs must undergo a somewhat lengthy evaluation by officials of this campus and officials of the entire state university system.

Under state directives the new programs must be formally approved by the UNC Board of Governors and administrative officials of the system. Requests are received from each individual school and are granted in conjunction with the long-range plans as determined by university administrators of the entire system.

The Board of Governors first authorizes each institution to lay preliminary plans for requested programs. After those plans are made, the institution presents them before the Board again for final considerations.

Such plans must justify the program as beneficial and must include estimates of the costs of additional staff and equipment that will be needed.

The degree programs requested by UNC-W to the Board of Governors included three graduate studies: elementary education, administration and supervision (education), and marine biology. Two of these were approved for the planning stage; marine biology was rejected.

Also requested were five undergraduate programs: parks and recreation, special education, mass communications, social work, and criminal justice. Of these, parks and recreation, special education and mass communications were approved for planning.

Dr. Plyler said that planning for these programs was in the initial stages although he indicated that progress was more advanced on the graduate programs. He also stated that it would be at least another one or two years before any of the programs were implemented.

The planning for the proposed graduate programs is being done by faculty members, both in and out of the department concerned; representatives of area school systems; and administration officials of this campus. Planning the undergraduate programs are personnel within each department concerned and staff members of Dr. Plyler's office.

As to student interest expressed for the proposed degree programs, Dr. Plyler said that many students had inquired about each one, and that there are many students presently attending UNC-W who hope to graduate with degrees in these newly implemented programs.

Senate Meeting Cancelled by Laird

by Bobby Parker

Several students, including Seahawk staff and at least one Senator, were left waiting at the doors of an empty room Thursday evening—a room that supposedly would house the second regular meeting of the student senate. What these students didn't know was that the meeting had been cancelled by SGA Vice-President Paul Laird.

Laird explained that the meeting was cancelled for several reasons. It would have been a special session, Laird said, since the constitution only requires the Senate to meet once every two weeks.

In addition, Laird stated that there was "no pressing business" before the Senate that could be resolved at a Thursday meeting. Asked why the meeting was originally called, Laird said that he was following the routine set by last year's senate, which met weekly.

Another reason for cancelling the meeting was to allow SGA attorney-general and court justices to take the constitution test. This being done, Laird stated, the Senate could act on their nominations at the next meeting.

During the weekend, however, the Vice-president found it necessary to take a telephone vote of the Senate on the allocation of $2000 to the Rowing Club. Laird said that the club needed to purchase some equipment that would not be held past Tuesday (yesterday).

Asked if this allocation would not be considered "pressing business," Laird said that he did not know of the situation until Friday night.

Sophomore Vice-president Ray Warren has charged, however, that the main reason for cancelling the Thursday meeting was to avoid adverse publicity stemming from the recent controversy that has surfaced between some senators and SGA President Duffy Robinson.

The Seahawk and the campus video tape committee (VICE) had planned to send reporters to cover the meeting.

The Vice-President said that he hoped the situation would be settled between the "warring" factions before next week.

The controversy centers around a confrontation between Robinson and Warren. Warren has charged Robinson with "railroading" his executive orders through the Senate without consultation with any senators. Robinson has countered that he is only trying to act as an equal power in student government with the Senate.

When asked about these allegations, Laird said that he was in no way trying to prevent public coverage of the senate meeting, and that these meetings had always been open to all students.

Laird did say, however, that the Senate was at present an "unorganized" body and that he had checked carefully as to the legality of a telephone vote.

(The vote was 16 "yes", 1 "no", with 1 abstaining.)

About the elimination of any possible floor debate on the allocation, Laird said that each Senator was given the option to postpone his vote if the senator wished to do so.

Laird also said that the Senate's failure to adopt formal rules of operation was an "oversight" that would be corrected at the next meeting. He said that he did not think that Robinson was out of order at the first meeting in fielding questions from the Senate floor.

The Senate will meet as scheduled next week in Room 218 of the Chemistry Building on Thursday at 7:30.

letters to the editor

"The Voters of This Great State . . ."

Dear Editor,

I would like to comment on the article BYLINE: AND MOST OF ALL LILLIAN WOO the September 9 Seahawk. This article seemed to be somewhat of an endorsement of several candidates. I would like to state my opinions on the crucial race for lieutenant governor. I realize that my personal opinions may be somewhat biased, but not nearly as one-sided as the opinions stated in the article. I think that I have legitimate reasons for my endorsement of Jimmy Green.

The voters of this great state showed CLEARLY who the better candidate was. If you size up the candidates by qualifications, then Jimmy Green would definitely be the choice. Jimmy Green's successful experience as speaker of the house well qualifies him for the similar position of lieutenant governor. The voters were given a specific choice of the candidates: Jimmy Green, somewhat conservative, experienced with the legislative process and leadership at this level; and Howard Lee, somewhat liberal with no experience with legislation or state politics.

I challenge the ridiculous proposal to vote for a candidate because of race. Yes, Jimmy Green was elected by an overwhelming margin, but not because of race. I personally believe the overriding factors in the election were candidate's experience and stands on specific issues.

How can one propose that Lee would work better with potential Governor Hunt and the state legislature? Jimmy Green has served for 16 years in the legislature and has gained the respect of practically every legislator. Ask Benny Schwartz, local representative what Jimmy Green has done for North Carolina.

Do you know who vigorously fought in the General Assembly for Wilmington College to become UNC-W? Yes, it was that so called "hard boiled politician", Jimmy Green. GREENBACKER Mike McGuinness

SCIENCE FICTION EDITOR

Dear Editor:

I am writing this letter to express my extreme disappointment with your coverage of the recent meeting of the Student Senate. I was in attendance at this meeting, and must say your reporter, Bobby Parker, would better qualify as a science fiction editor than his current status as columnist. His report on the meeting was bias, factual, and very subjective. Mr. Parker expressed his own opinion in the article and not the hard, cold facts as needed to be covered.

The headline read "Senators, Robinson Clash". From my seat in the room I noticed only one Senator upset and ready to clash and that was Sophomore Vice-President Ray Warren. The other Senators listened to Robinson's remarks with interest and questioned him in a proper manner. Mr. Warren continued to talk during Robinson's speech, shouted out objections while Robinson tried to talk, and in general was completely out of order during the entire meeting. I have never witnessed a more immature, disrespectful, impudent display of behavior than Mr. Warren's at this meeting. His immature actions should not be allowed in the Student Senate where there is serious business to be transacted upon. In fact, I strongly suggest the Senate look into a possible censure of Mr. Warren due to his behavior. He is not representing his constituents in an efficient manner, and if he cannot conduct himself in a business-like manner while the Senate is in session then he should be impeached.

The Seahawk's overblown and inaccurate coverage of this meeting is just another example of poor journalism by the newspaper staff. Interested students should take the time to attend a Senate meeting in the near future to observe for themselves what really goes on. Most of the Senators are concerned about Mr. Warren's unruly actions, but they do not know what to do with him. I noticed one Senator pat him on the arm at the meeting and beg him to please calm down and shut up. He did neither. The Senate should form a committee to examine the incident, and determine what action, if any, should be taken against Mr. Warren.

The students of UNC-Wilmington finally have a SGA President that is aggressive and not afraid to make decisions on his own. This does not mean he is "railroading" his proposals as Bobby Parker and Ray Warren suggest. I say let the three branches of our student government work in harmony under the constitution with the proper checks and balances of power on each. I am glad to see the Student Government Association gain more power, but we must handle this responsibility in a mature manner or we could lose it never to be regained again.

Respectfully yours,
Roger W. Wiggs
Student

EDITOR'S NOTE:

Congratulations on your nomination for the position of Attorney General and thank you for your UNBIASED opinion.

To the Editor:

Assuming that the article in last week's Seahawk entitled Playboy's 1976 Student Poll etc. contained an accurate poll of a typical cross-section of students, history indicates that the United States or the students involved don't have a much longer future if the trend continues. No wonder 58 percent of the students polled said they were not optimistic about the future. They have no right to be (either their temporal or eternal future). Looking back in history at ancient Judah and Israel (not modern), we see that the Lord sent the prophet Jeremiah (about 500 B.C.) to bring some hard news to the people. (Remember not long before during the reign of Solomon, Israel was one of the greatest nations in the world with kings from many nations paying it homage. This was a few hundred years after the Lord had led them from bondage in Egypt.) The hard news was that they had "polluted the land with their whoredoms," harlotry, idolatry and wickedness. (Jeremiah 3:1-10). The Lord pleaded with His backsliding people to return to Him, repent, and keep the commandments. The Lord declared about "His people, they are wise (prone) to do evil, but to do good they have no knowledge." (Jer. 4:22). But the people continued to rebel against the Lord and killed the prophets of the Lord and raised up their own false prophets. (Jer. 1:30; 5:31) "Shall I not visit for these things? saith the Lord; shall not my soul be avenged on such a nation. And so Judah was delivered into the hands of the Babylonian army. Many were destroyed by the sword and the remaining ones were carried away into captivity. (Jer. Chapters 6-23).

Or let's look at another nation which was considered the greatest nation in the world at its peak which lasted more than 200 years: Rome. For decades, no foreign army had power to overcome the well trained, efficient Roman legions. Yet when the people of Rome became morally corrupt seeking after carnal and worldly pleasures, they fell easily into the hands of the "barbarian" armies because they had become worse than the barbarians themselves. This was the beginning of the dark ages.

There are many other lessons to be learned from history. The people of the United States enjoy greater liberty and freedom than any other people in the world but it was bought with a price. That being the blood of many of our ancestors in defence of these freedoms. The chastity of a woman is her greatest possession. A man should be willing to protect a woman's chastity (not take it away) even if it means he has to lay down his own life.

The Savior taught us that it was said by them of old times, Thou shalt not commit adultery; But I say unto you, That whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her hath committed adultery with her already in his heart. (Matt. Chap. 6) Sex has a place and that is within the sacred bonds of marriage. The gift of procreation, bringing children into the world, raising families is one of the greatest joys and responsibilities in the world. (I might add that as a male I am thankful for the young women on campus who dress modestly which helps the young men keep our thought clean.)

I'm thankful for the hope and principle of repentance found in the Gospel which allows all men through acknowledging, confessing in prayer to our Father in Heaven and asking for His forgiveness, seeking to repair what harm we have done, and then forsaking (not repeating) the sins and wrong we have done in the past. If we are sincerely repentant we can begin to be healed by the atoning blood of Jesus Christ. If we continue to keep the commandments in humility we will be blessed as individuals and as a people.

Sincerely,
Julius Metts
Senior

BYLINE: Ford-Carter Race: Bleak Hopes for the People

A column of personal comment
by Bobby Parker

What once seemed an inevitable landslide for Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter has suddenly turned into a very real two-man race in the November presidential election that offers us as unexcitable a choice as the spring primaries. President Ford has closed the gap with a combination of his own subtle good points and his opponent's gradually surfacing flaws.

Actually, this comes as no surprise. It was only a matter of time before the opinion polls began to even out and Mr. Ford became a viable contender to retain the job he now holds. The President had to learn, by trial and error, the advantages of his position and how to use them effectively.

Carter is becoming more and more the politician that he so avidly proclaimed not to be throughout the pre-convention campaign. His strategy of projecting an image instead of running on issues is gradually losing steam.

During the primaries, people were willing to vote for Clean Jimmy. He was something different—a protest to politics-as-usual, not unlike the role that George Wallace has played all his political life. Voters didn't really take the primary seriously, until the end of the season when they saw what Carter's wins had done for him.

If you look back you'll see that most of Carter's defeats came in the latter primaries—granted, against a different slate of opposition. But Mo Udall and Henry Jackson were no lesser candidates than Frank Church and Jerry Brown. Udall and Jackson just got trampled in the rush to Carter. When voters finally realized just what they were rushing to, Church and Brown were there to reap the profits.

Beginning with his acceptance speech at the Republican convention which has now become a Ford legend, the President has slowly but steadily closed in on his Democratic opponent. The Ford organization finally began operating as if it was organized.

The selection of Senator Bob Dole as Mr. Ford's running mate was also a step forward—it neither angered conservatives nor moderates within the party. Dole is proving himself a good Ford teammate by doing what the President can not—that is, exploiting Carter's weaknesses.

The fourth, and perhaps most important, factor in Mr. Ford's favor are the forthcoming debates. Though they may not seem "presidential", neither does Mr. Ford. It's a gamble he was forced to take by reason of being our nation's first appointed president.

In comparison to the Kennedy-Nixon debates of 1960, one might think that Carter would have a clear edge this year. Kennedy, like Carter, was more or less an image and both men had (or have) religious problems to overcome. In contrast, Nixon, then a dull sort, had been the General's puppet for eight years and couldn't escape his predecessor's shadows.

Mr. Ford, not exactly a puppet, is more accurately a pawn of his predecessor. The only reason he became vice-president was because he (not unlike Dole) offended no one, and John Connally wasn't available. And, of course, he carries the haunts of Nixon that he'll never be able to shake.

But Carter is not a Kennedy, Ford is not a Nixon, and 1976 is not 1960. Voters are more sophisticated, more numerous (remember those 18-year-olds) and, if these debates can generate as much enthusiasm as 1960, will not be likely to vote for an image as they will on the issues.

And since hardly anyone knows exactly where Carter stands on the issues, he'll either have to come out with a stands-over-image strategy or face being whallopped in the debates.

Neither man is a very good speaker. Mr. Ford is dull and rhythmic; Carter is mumbled and choppy. It's as irritating to hear Mr. Ford build up like a train as it is to hear Carter run and stop, run and stop.

As long as Mr. Ford keeps going along as quietly as he has and Carter shies away from hard stands, Ford will have the advantage. Carter can only evade so many questions so many times.

It's a sad situation. If Carter would simply take the stands of the Democratic party as his own, he would be on the side of the people and have no problem. But he seems to want to say, "I'll do it my way, or take my ball and go home." And if he keeps it up, that's exactly where he's going to be next January.

The main reason Carter should leave the image politics alone is that Mr. Ford has it wrapped all over Carter in this category. In fact, it's the President's only plus. Even his sharpest critics give him that much. There are just too many questions about the real Jimmy Carter; too many comparisons can be made to Nixon. His supposed ruthlessness, the sense of self-destiny, and most of all, that tight circle of confidants are particularly troubling.

On the other hand, Mr. Ford's executive inactivity is exactly the reason he should be replaced. He is simply marking time in office (there couldn't be a better man for that job). At best, he can't hurt us in another four years.

So, essentially what we have are two men running for president, each on the wrong attributes. If Carter's positions (that is, the Democratic positions) could be molded with Ford's personal character—voila, the perfect president.

We can dream of such a coalition, but it's useless. We could look for alternatives, notably Gene McCarthy, but he doesn't really have a chance of victory.

Somehow we must face the reality—such as it is—of a choice between Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter. There is still much to be said in this campaign. But the prospects of ending up with what our country really needs are bleak indeed.

Observations on the North Carolina Primaries

It's enough to make me cry. Looking back at George Wood, Howard Lee, Lillian Woo, George Breece—North Carolina Democrats passed by them all. The most talented people to appear on any ballot I've seen this year (perhaps longer) and they lost.

Instead, we are willing to settle on a less than mediocre slate—Jim Hunt (I can live with); Jimmy Green (I can't live with); Henry Bridges (absolutely disgusting); and Thad Eure (we'll get him next time). Why did these exceptionally qualified candidates lose? Simply because North Carolina is not willing to move more than an inch forward at one time. Our inch for 1976 is John Brooks, the Labor Commissioner nominee.

George Wood (governor) dared to be different; Howard Lee (lieutenant governor) dared to be black; Lillian Wood (state auditor) dared to be a woman; and George Breece (secretary of state) dared to be young.

You just can't do that in North Carolina and expect to win.

Do you really know what happens when business profits go up or down?

If we citizens don't understand the basic workings of our American Economic System, how can we make intelligent decisions about it? Every American ought to know what this booklet says. It's easy to read, interesting—and free. For a copy, write: "Economics", Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

SEAHAWK SPORTS

An unidentified Seahawk attempts a steal from Florida Tech.

Tennis Team Aims High

A tough schedule awaits a young and talented women's tennis team.

"This year, we have lots of potential and are strong in both singles and doubles play," stated Jane Batson, entering her fifth year as head coach of the women's team. She also commented on the relative youth of the team, pointing out the fact that the majority of her team are sophomores.

At press time, Brenda Kalevas was the number one seed, with Theresa Hege as number two and Marth Richardson as number three. Patty Canter, Sheri Cousins, and Carolyn Bender round out the top six. Coach Batson added, however, that four other girls on the team could contest the six for the top seeds.

The women face an extremely tough schedule this year. Opponents include the University of North Carolina J.V. squad and St. Mary's College, both noted for their strong tennis programs.

For the first time, financial aid is being offered to the players. Thus far, three are playing on partial scholarships.

All in all, it appears this could be a very successful year for the women's team. "If we play to our potential, we could have a very good year," stated Coach Batson.

Soccer Off to Rough Start

Lady Luck continues to plague the Seahawk soccer squad.

Before the season, the squad was unable to schedule a scrimmage against an outside opponent leaving the team (which has nine freshmen) totally cold for the start of the season. Then, to make matters worse, the Seahawks had to begin the season against, in the words of Coach Calvin Lane, "two of the toughest teams we'll face this year," Carolina and Florida Technical Institute.

The Seahawks traveled to Carolina to face the Tarheels, who downed them 5-0 in a game closer than the score indicates. The Hawks were down only 3-0 when, with only minutes to go in the first half, Carolina scored on a free kick and took control of the match. In the second half, UNC-W played a much better game and made several good shots at the goal before being stopped by Carolina 5-0. Coach Lane commented that several players, including Tim Willette, Rod Becker, and ChiChi Mercatta, had outstanding games.

For their first home match, the Seahawks faced a very tough and very physical Florida Technical Institute squad. The Hawks played a much better game than they did against Carolina, yet lost to Florida 2-1 in overtime.

UNC-W was leading 1-0 when Florida Tech tied it up with only 8 minutes left. Florida went on to score the winning goal with just four minutes left in overtime.

For the Seahawks, Vince Lindenschmidt scored the goal, with Gonzalo Rada assisting. Coach Lane also cited the performances of Tim Willette, Gene Borowski, Tim Gribbin, and Gil Castella.

Playing two such physical teams in a row, injuries have piled up. Freshman Dave Fuller suffered a cheekbone fracture and will be out for the season. Also on the injured list are Tom Buffington with a jammed toe, Lenny Branson with sore back muscles, and Steve Paul with a sprained ankle. It is uncertain yet how much time these three will miss.

Coach Lane is still optimistic about the team's success this year. They leave Thursday for an exhausting six-day road trip to Florida, playing the Citadel, Rollins, and Stetson during their travels. "I feel we have the potential to win all three games," said Coach Lane, adding, "Winning all three would really help turn our season around." He also added he felt the team still had the talent and ability to carry them through a winning season and possibly a playoff berth.

Volleyball Bounces On

In the past two years, the women's volleyball team has placed first and second, respectively in the state playoffs. It appears this year should be no different.

Coaching the team this year is Ann Kraft, in her first year as volleyball coach. While she expects her team to be a state champion contender, she points out she is unaware of other team's strengths and weaknesses as well as her own. "We'll just have to wait til our first game to see where we really stand," she commented.

Their schedule is not that difficult this year. This is due to the fact that we are classified a "B" division school in volleyball. Smaller colleges comprise "B" division, while larger schools are placed in the "A" division. Guilford and Pembroke are expected to provide the most competition for the Seahawks.

The team roster originally numbered 12 players, but with two players being lost to eligibility that number has been cut down to 10.

These include Deborah Jean Smith, Kathryn Stuart Davis, Gloria Goure, Lois Kathryn Bunn, Elizabeth Emily Massari, Carol Ann Moore, Joanne Wood Gentry, Barbara Lynne Blackburn, Phyllis Larne Creech, and Melissa Bennett. Their first home match will be Saturday against Chowan College. Game time is 2:00.

Ch-Ch-Ch-Changes

Beginning this issue, you'll be seeing some major changes here in the sports section of the SEAHAWK.

The first of these is a change in coverage. The SEAHAWK sports staff intends to bring you up to date on all sports events here at UNC-W. New emphasis will be placed on girls' athletics and intramural activities.

Next is the addition of several semi-regular features. These include: Jock Talk—a column giving information about future sports activities and dates to remember, and Spotlight—each week(?). Spotlight will focus on a new and/or different sporting activity. Examples—hang gliding, rugby, and skateboarding.

There's still room for anybody who wants to become a part of this expanded Seahawk sports staff. Simply drop by the Seahawk office, located upstairs in the Pub, and let us know. Spaces are filling up, so act now.

McDonald's new eggs and sausage. The breakfast folks are scrambling for.

Come in and try McDonald's new eggs and sausage for breakfast and you won't have to scramble tomorrow.
That's because we'll have two fluffy fresh Grade A eggs scrambled for you. Along with a tasty of sizzling hot pan-pat sausage. And a buttery toasted English muffin with jelly.
You can get the entire big hearty breakfast for a very, very reasonable price. And, you can get your favorite juice, coffee or milk to go along with it.
So, step in at McDonald's for breakfast tomorrow. And avoid the usual morning scramble.

CLUB NEWS

Frank B. Hall

There will be a meeting of the Frank B. Hall Philosophy and Religion Society at Ballentine's on Friday, October 1 at 6:30 p.m. This is open to all philosophy and religion majors and all other interested people. At this meeting the society will be honoring Dr. Bob Solomon, as a guest speaker. His topic will be myths and emotions. A brief business meeting will take place before the lecture. Officers will be elected and future plans for the society will be made. Please come if you can.

Chess Club

The UNC-W Chess Club will meet Wednesday, Sept. 22 at 6:30 in Hoggard 212. Anyone interested in playing or learning how to play is welcome.

Biology Club

The first meeting of the Biology Club for 1976-77 was called to order September 14, at 11:30 a.m. in room 151 at the Marine Biology building.

The first order of business was a slide presentation by Dr. Padgett, who is this year's Biology Club advisor. Following the slides, the Club voted on officers. The following people were elected: Mike Kinny as President, Bill Fox as Vice President, and Connie Bowen as Secretary-Treasurer. The last order of business was the serving of the refreshments!

Connie Bowen

Dive Club

The Dive Club of UNC-W will meet in room 120 of the Marine Science building at 7:00 p.m. on Wednesday, September 22.

Beliefs Discussion

Next Wednesday September 29 at 7:45 AM in the small dining room of the cafeteria, Dr. McGivern will discuss the relationship between one's personal beliefs and a university department of philosophy and religion.

Tau Kappa Epsilon

TKE's are coming alive on campus.

Big things have already begun to happen, with even better things to come! Our welcome back party was on September eighth in the Pub. Everybody had a good time drinking beer, while the band, "SKIFFLE" kept the place rocking. We are looking forward to an overwhelming year in intramural football, having organized an outstanding roster of players.

For our service project this year, we are planning a push-a-thon with the proceeds going to a reputable charity still to be decided. Our new house is on the way to becoming a realization with the papers waiting to be signed. The best rush ever is still being put together, so continue to read this column for the dates of more to come.

Delta Upsilon

We had a very productive rush last week. There were some very good parties at the Time Tunnel, The Patio and at F. Wullenwabers at Wrightsville Beach. We will be having an organizational meeting for a Little Sisterhood this Thursday, upstairs in the library at 7:30 p.m. All interested girls are urged to attend. Little Sisters are entitled to the social advantages of a fraternity.

ty without the cost.

Delta Upsilon is a non-hazing non-secret fraternity. We practice open rush so that any interested undergraduate male may rush at any time. If you missed our rush parties last week, but are interested, contact one of the brothers of Delta Upsilon Fraternity. Thomas W. Whitfield

ROWING

CLUB

The UNC-W Rowing Club will hold an organizational meeting for new members on Wednesday, September 22, at 7:30 p.m. in the Chemistry-Physics Building, Room 218. Anyone interested in rowing for competitive, recreational and/or other aspects is urged to attend. This year, with the help from the Student Government Association and area businesses, the Club may be able to compete in the spring Intercollegiate 1977 Rowing Season. The possibility of acquiring a brand new eight-oared varsity racing shell also exists. Both men and women may become members.

S*E*X

Would you like to get into S*E*X?

S*E*X is the Society of Enterprising Xenophiles (Xenophiles being lovers of the strange and unusual), a Science Fiction appreciation club being organized on the UNC-W campus.

It will have an organizational meeting Thursday, Sept. 23, at 7:30 in the Good Wood Tavern.

So... If you like Science Fiction, STAR TREK, or Fantasy, come on over and give S*E*X a try.

You'll get a bang out of it.

Fledgling

There will be a meeting of the Fledgling staff Wednesday at 5 o'clock in the annual office. The yearbook contracts will be discussed along with a discussion of theme for the 1976-77 yearbook. All interested students are urged to attend.

Friday, Sept. 24, will be the final day for you to pick up your annual. The 1976 yearbook will be issued from the office of Student Activities Wednesday through Friday, 1:30 to 4:30. Remember, this is your last chance to get a yearbook. Your subscription receipt is not required.

Arts Council

The Council of the Arts is looking for students to assist them at their office. Duties involved would include answering the phone and some typing. Interested persons should call the Council at 762-4223.

HELP!

The Seahawk needs a second typist. Inquire upstairs in the Seahawk office. Located in the Pub.

The following items have been found around campus and may be claimed at the Student Activities Office in the student union.

- A ladies wristwatch (found in Alderman Building)
- A beige wallet, ladies.
- A pair of wire-rim prescription glasses.
- A pair of chrome sunglasses.
- A variety of books, notebooks and keys have also been turned in.

Student Buying, Media Habits

College newspapers got high marks in a recent survey into the media and buying habits of today's college students. Of all students surveyed, 88 per cent said they had read their college newspaper within the past seven days. The figure was more than 93 per cent for students in the "traditional" collegiate age group of 18-21. For students over 21, college newspapers were less important with only 76 per cent saying they had read one within the week.

Only 58 per cent of the students had read a city newspaper, 83 per cent had watched television, and 92 per cent had listened to a radio within the week of the survey.

The survey was undertaken by a private research organization for CASS Student Advertising of Chicago, an advertising sales representative firm for college newspapers.

Surprisingly, perhaps, college newspapers were rated the "most honest and credible" medium by 30 per cent of the students while magazines scored 21 per cent and T.V. only 6 per cent in this category.

Magazines most read by students include: Time (36 per cent said they had read the latest issue), Playboy (34 to 50.2 per cent of men and 14.5 per cent of women students), Newsweek (31 per cent), Reader's Digest (28 per cent), and National Lampoon (27 per cent).

The second part of the survey revealed student buying habits. That part has not yet been released in its entirety but some advance highlights include:

Joe Smothers was the first coffeehouse performer this year. He performed Sept. 16-19.

The 9.1 million student market has a disposable income of more than $10 billion.

50 per cent of college students have a part-time or full-time job.

60 per cent either owned or had access to a car.

40 per cent had purchased a record album, tape or cassette within 30 days.

96 per cent said they had taken a trip out of the city during the previous year. 40 per cent had traveled by plane, bus or train. 84 per cent of the students had taken a vacation or pleasure trip and 28 per cent had taken five such trips within the past year.

BEST SINCE "LAWRENCE OF ARABIA"

The story of a lovely American widow who is kidnapped for political ransom by a handsome, ruthless Berber pirate and rescued by Teddy Roosevelt's U.S. Marines, it stars Sean Connery as the Arab chieftain in a characterization unlike any he has done before; Candice Bergen as the courageous and captivating American; Brian Keith in an amazing look-alike, act-alike portrait of Teddy Roosevelt; and John Huston as Secretary of State John Hay.

Filled with panoramic action and seasoned with romance, "The Wind and the Lion" is explosively written and directed by gifted young John ("Dillinger") Milius and produced by Herb Jaffe. Huge battle sequences, some staged on vast desert vistas not seen since "Lawrence of Arabia" mix with fascinating personal stories to create a sweeping family entertainment.

It all begins in the early 1960s when the American widow, Mrs. Pedecaris, is abducted from her Tangier home by Raisuli, the last of the Berber pirates. He plans to ransom her for land and honor, to unseat the corrupt Sultan and to drive foreign soldiers from his country. In Washington, D.C., President Roosevelt and his Secretary of State, John Hay, agree that the rescue of Mrs. Pedecaris would help the President's chances of re-election. So a squadron of U.S. Marines is dispatched to Morocco. In the meantime, Mrs. Pedecaris is treated most kindly by Raisuli, who admits he will set her free eventually, ransom or no ransom. And she finds she is beginning to like this man, who can kill one minute and pray the next, and the other-world existence of his palace. The obstinate Beshew, the power behind the Sultan, is forced finally to accept most of Raisuli's terms when the Marines storm the palace and seize control. Before the military chess game is over, Mrs. Pedecaris saves Raisuli's life, paying back a similar favor.

"The Wind and the Lion" was filmed entirely in Spain and presents a wealth of scenic beauty and sweeping action punctuated with some brilliant romantic and dramatic relationships.

"The Wind and the Lion" will be shown Tuesday, Sept. 28 in Kenan Auditorium at 8:00 p.m. Admission is 50 cents with I.D.

'The Prisoner' Presented

Each week, the Vice Squad presents a different episode of The Prisoner in the snack bar, Monday through Thursday, 11:30 through 12:30.

The week's episode is "A, B, & C".

In brief: The Prisoner is the subject of an experiment to manipulate his dreams.

To amplify: Why did the Prisoner (PATRICK MCGOOGHAN) resign from his highly confidential job? The desperate efforts to extract the truth from him take a new turn when "no. 2" decides to take the risk of subjecting him to an experimental process developed by "No. 14" in which his dreams can be penetrated. Under the influence of a wonder drug, his sub-conscious thoughts can be converted into electrical impulses and finally into pictures on a television screen.

No. 2 is convinced that the Prisoner was going to sell out. He wants to know what he had to sell and who would have been the buyer. Computed research has boiled the potential buyers down to three people. His dreams must take him to meet each one in turn. "And then," No. 2 points out, "we'll know what would have happened if we hadn't got to him first."

The Still Point

In the year of the Ph.D. there was a parable:
"The Little Boy Who Wanted To Fight Fires"

Once there was a little boy who ever since he could remember wanted to be a fireman. The shrill of the siren and the deep rumble of the racing firetruck had filled his dreams, almost every night. Deep in his heart there was a longing to someday be able to help people; to save people from the ravaging grasp of a fire. It was not the whim of childhood fantasy. He was the childhood fantasy. His was the unmistakable call of destiny.

Growing up never changed his mind.

To be sure, he had gone through all the indecision and doubts of adolescence, the well-meaning questions of friends and family who "wondered whether he could be happy as a fireman." But he never wavered. He was to be a fireman. He was to put out fires.

Oh, how he longed for the day when he would no longer be a spectator, but could participate actively as a firefighter. Now all he could do was watch.

Then the big day arrived. He was accepted at one of the best fireman schools in the country. For three years he immersed himself in his schooling. He spent hours honing his skills on practice fires. He studied firefighting theory long into the nights. His teachers were world-renowned.

But still, after all these years, he had never fought a real fire. As graduation approached, he realized that long-awaited moment was within reach.

But suddenly, he began to have doubts. For the first time in his life, he was unsure, afraid, and worse yet, ques-

WEEKLY SPECIAL

Kissinger's African Diplomacy Makes Ford Nervous

by Jack Anderson
with Joe Sperr

WASHINGTON — President Ford has issued strong public statements supporting Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. But in the privacy of his oval office, the President is nervous about Kissinger's African adventures.

Ford's advisers are convinced that the President lost the Texas primary last spring because Kissinger was too outspoken against the white Rhodesian regime. Now they are worried that Kissinger will get the President in trouble again with his African diplomacy.

One of Kissinger's objectives is to bring the blacks to power in Rhodesia by peaceful means. He is also bringing pressure on South Africa to grant independence to its Southwest African territory. This would become the new nation of Namibia, under black rule.

This support of black aims in Africa has upset vocal conservatives, who are threatening to abandon President Ford in November. So the President has been watching Kissinger's operations in Africa with increasing wariness.

TAX HAVENS: Thousands of rich Americans hide their income in secret foreign bank accounts. They use the bank secrecy laws of foreign governments to cheat the Treasury out of taxes. The taxes they escape paying, of course, must be made up by the rest of us.

These foreign countries are known as "tax havens." They are located around the globe in such places as Switzerland, Hong Kong, Gibraltar and the Caribbean Islands.

Criminals use these tax havens to deposit millions in illicit, untaxed profits. Giant multinational corporations also hide huge sums in secret foreign accounts.

The bank secrecy laws in these countries protect the tax-evading depositors. Of course, this attracts the shady money. It's good business for the banks and good economics for the governments.

But it's bad economics for the United States. Yet believe it or not, the Internal Revenue Service is helping to protect the tax evaders with foreign bank accounts.

The income tax forms used to ask the taxpayers whether they kept any foreign bank accounts. If they lied about it, they risked going to prison.

But the Internal Revenue Service mysteriously eliminated the question from the tax returns last year. This key question could trip up the big-money tax evaders.

Now, however, Rep. Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, has introduced legislation that will force Internal Revenue to put the question back in the tax forms.

POISON PROFITS: The Environmental Protection Agency is supposed to keep poisons out of the air we breathe and the water we drink. Yet the agency has refused to accept evidence that two of the most widely used pesticides can cause cancer.

Under federal law, the EPA must set standards on pesticides. Preliminary testing at the National Cancer Institute indicates that Endrin and Toxaphene cause cancer in rats and mice.

Yet environmental czar Russell Train refused to accept the evidence. He even ignored his own agency's study, which showed that Endrin caused cancerous tumors in rats and produced birth defects in hamsters.

The agency has proposed standards that at least would decrease the amount of Endrin and Toxaphene released into the environment. But the agency has refused to police production. Waste from the factories that produce the pesticides, meanwhile, enters our rivers.

Why won't the EPA crack down? It would reduce the profits of the chemical companies, which manufacture 122 million pounds of the two dangerous pesticides every year.

FEDERAL NAG: The U.S. Export-Import Bank is subsidizing a race horse. Its name is "Boydon Hanover." The New York owners have sold the horse to a stud farm in Christchurch, New Zealand, for $135,000.

The Export-Import Bank is bankrolling half of the mortgage on the horse. This comes to $87,375. The other half is financed by an Australian bank.

A spokesman for the government-supported Export-Import Bank told my office that the bank usually handles cattle transactions.

But occasionally, he acknowledged, the bank will finance breeding stock sales. It has a heavy interest, he admitted, in a horse named "Boydon Hanover."

ILLEGAL LOTTERY: The Navy's Public Works department has been operating an illegal lottery for three years. The lottery has been conducted during government time, on government property. Yet the profits went into the pockets of the Navy officials who ran it.

The Navy was unaware of the lottery's existence until we alerted them. The lottery has now been closed, and Admiral Ralph Carmahan has ordered an investigation. A Navy spokesman confirmed that the lottery was a clear violation of federal regulations.

tioning whether he ought to be a fireman at all.

It was then that one of his professors suggested he travel to Europe and study under one of the greatest fireman theorists of all time. He would be recommended by his professors and would receive the finest training available. It would last two years.

The not-so-little boy decided to travel to Europe, and for two years he exhausted himself in dedicated study and became one of the most brilliantly educated firemen in the world. But all he had ever done was put out practice fires. Once again, graduation loomed before him. And once again he was haunted by indecision. He knew all about fires and could tell anyone how to fight one; in fact, he knew so much he began to feel that his superior knowledge did, in fact, place him a notch above "ordinary" firemen. He became increasingly concerned that he might have to fight fires with "uneducated" firemen which could result in him being exposed to unnecessary danger.

It was then that he was offered a position to teach at one of the most respected fireman's schools in the country.

He accepted.

And for twenty-five years, he taught with honors and received recognition worldwide. He died last year and when they read his memoirs they came across a strange passage written while on his deathbed:

I lie here today reviewing my life. I still remember my dream, my passion to be a fireman. More than anything else I wanted to put out fires . . . but I realized something today. I have never put out a real fire. Never.

Closed Fields

Director of Athletics Bill Brooks has announced that the athletic fields will be closed to motor traffic at night and on weekends henceforth. Two walk-in gates will remain open as usual, however, so that students may have the use of the facilities.

The decision to lock these gates was made due to continued destruction of the fields by cars and motorcycles. Coach Brooks said that the walk-in gates near the baseball field and the one near the gym would remain open for students' use.

Buckley Amendment Protects Students from Damaging Records

Your student record, the first file of personal information gathered about you, is designed to record your academic achievements and to aid educators in planning your schooling. However, this record is "permanent" and its use or misuse may influence later decisions about you.

What if your record said you were a "slow learner," "Hyperactive," or a "discipline problem?" Until recently those labels and evaluations, even if they were inaccurate, could be sent to a potential employer or college admissions office without you even knowing that this specific information was in your record.

Your student records include more than grades and attendance marks. The results of intelligence, aptitude and psychological tests, observations by teachers and counselors, your family background and reports of behavioral problems are all included in your student record, one of the most extensive records kept about you.

One grade school teacher wrote the following in a student's record: "A real sickie-abs., truant, stubborn, and very dull. Is verbal only about outside irrelevant facts. Can barely read (which was a large accomplishment to get this far). Have fun!"

More than one-half of 54

school districts responding to a 1968 study said they allowed prospective employers and government agencies access to student records, but only a few of the districts would let children or parents review their own records.

Some comments are inaccurate or misleading. A second grade teacher wrote that a boy had "exhibitionist tendencies" but later admitted that this categorization resulted from a single incident when he hurried from the bathroom with his pants unzipped. The comment was discovered in his record when he was in junior high school.

Labeling a child as a "problem" or "mentally retarded" or "on medication" in the early years without supporting evidence can later result in denial of college admission or a lost job opportunity.

Until recently, when students were granted access to their own records, opinions, rumors and value judgements remained in their files without any possibility of review, challenge or correction. However, the very same records were available to the military, juvenile courts, credit agencies, the CIA and the FBI.

Now, under provisions of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974, popularly called the Buckley Amendment, schools receiving federal funds must allow students over 18 and parents of younger students to examine their school records. A student's record also is protected from disclosure to outsiders unless the parents or adult students give their written permission. A record of requests for records must be kept by the school.

The law says that a request by a parent, adult student or former student to examine the student's record must be honored within a reasonable period, "or not more than 45 days."

If you have any incorrect, misleading or inappropriate information in your file, you can challenge it. A formal hearing may be requested if school officials, after informal discussion, do not correct, remove or explain the objectionable material.

Regulations proposed by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare may require schools to inform parents annually what records are maintained, the person responsible for the files and who may obtain the records without consent and for what reasons.

All public and private schools—elementary, secondary, colleges and universities—face the loss of federal funding if they fail to obey the law.

You cannot examine all your records. The private notes of a teacher, provided they are kept by the teacher and not placed in your record, cannot be reviewed. Similarly, records kept by a law enforcement unit (e.g., campus security force) separately from your other records are not open to you.

Adult students do not have access to their own medical or psychiatric records or their parents' financial records.

Students may waive their right of access to confidential recommendations written after January 1, 1975, with respect to admission to an educational institution, application for employment or receipt of an honor. Waivers must be in writing, and students must be notified at their request of the names of all persons submitting such confidential statements, including persons who send in unsolicited letters.

These statements may be used only for their originally intended purpose (college admission, employment, or receipt of an honor, whichever category is designated in the waiver.) Under no circumstances may an institution require a waiver as a condition of admission, receipt of financial aid, or other benefits and services.

Some outsiders still can review student records without a student's or parents' consent.

Teachers or other officials of the same school who have a "legitimate educational interest" in your record do not need written permission to review it. Your records also are available to officials of another school if you seek enrollment, the financial aid office if you apply for aid, and to certain educational data gathering and testing organizations.

Information may also be released without your permission to "appropriate persons" in an emergency when necessary to protect the health and safety of the student.

The Buckley Amendment does not restrict the type of information in a student record. You may still be referred to as a "problem child", but now you may examine your record and challenge any comments you believe to be misleading or inaccurate.

What You Can Do

1. Ask to examine your student record.
2. Ask the school's administrator that any inaccurate, misleading or inappropriate material be removed.
3. If you request is refused, ask for a hearing.
4. Complain of any violation of the Act to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, 330 Independence Avenue, S.W., Washington, D.C.

Enforcement of Traffic Violations and Safety Program

Due to the increase in accidents on our main arteries and parking lots on campus, and the potential danger that exists as a lack of enforcement of the motor vehicle laws of the State of North Carolina in the past, mainly the violation of speeding and operating under the influence, disregard for stop signs, it has become necessary for this office to implement a more rigid enforcement program pertaining to these matters. It is not the desire of this department to issue citations to operators of vehicles, causing them to bear the expense of fines which will be handed down by the courts upon conviction, but it is a sworn duty of each Campus Policeman to enforce the laws of the state of North Carolina. The maximum speed of twenty (20) miles per hour on campus of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington unless otherwise posted, though it may seem to be set low, this has been determined before being made law, as being the maximum allowable speed to ensure safety for vehicular traffic, pedestrian, bicycles, and property. The necessity for this enforcement has become possibly through the lack of enforcement in the past which probably has contributed to an increase in accidents recently, most of which have been or very easily could have been of a very serious nature.

We feel that if we allow this situation to exist or get worse situation to exist or get worse we will be negligent in our responsibility to the students, faculty and staff and to the University, if we do not do what is expected of us by doing that which is necessary to insure protection of life and property. We first ask the operators of vehicles to stop for a second and weigh the advantages of gaining a few seconds from one end of the campus to the other, against the possibility of killing or injuring some innocent person, or maybe just the chance of being delayed by officer in writing the citation to court. We feel that through this letter to the operators of vehicles on campus and erection of radar and other advisory signs on campus, as part of an educational program prior to actual enforcement, we will get the cooperation of all concerned. In the event selective enforcement is still needed after a period of observation, we will begin checking with the assistance of the Wilmington Police

Radar units and upon this violators will be cited to court. C.N. Long

STEVE MILLER BAND

FLY LIKE AN EAGLE

CAPITOL ST - 11497

The Steve Miller Band has been around ever since I became a serious record buyer. If counting, FLY LIKE AN EAGLE is the tenth album by the group in its various forms.

For some history, Steve Miller was born in Wisconsin and later moved to Texas. While in Texas, he played in several groups with Boz Scaggs in the group's prerecord days.

The band was formed in 1968 and was somewhat classified with the San Francisco sound. CHILDREN OF THE FUTURE was released that year and contained the group's first hit "Living In The USA," which was made while Scaggs was still with the group.

Next was the SAILOR LP, BRAVE NEW WORLD, YOUR SAVING GRACE, NUMBER FIVE, ROCK LOVE, RECALL THE BEGINNING - A JOURNEY FROM EDEN and then the excellent collection album, ANTHOLOGY, in 1972. With this string of successful albums, it was not until 1973 and the release of the JOKER album that Miller hit Top Ten.

Now, after almost three years, the Steve Miller Band has released FLY LIKE AN EAGLE. This album is somewhat different in sound yet remains excellent as far as the material goes. It is traditional Steve Miller with some modern rock added.

Opening the album is the "Space Into" which leads into the title cut. Here, Miller introduces us to the newer sounds he is now incorporating into his music. "Fly Like An Eagle" continues with this addition which gives the album a space age type sound. This cut is one of the best on the album.

After this, we land on earth again and find "Wild Mountain Honey". This cut is very well produced and contains very good work in a harp and triangle type sound. Organ work is very well done also with a very good total effect.

From this we fly to "Serenade." This cut is more traditional Steve Miller Band and concentrates on vocals and guitar work. Like this also is the present single "Rock 'N Me," where "Take the Money and Run" is more like the material from THE JOKER LP.

The last three songs on the album are the most interesting cuts, the first being a very well done adaptation of Sam Cooke's "You Send Me". The second of these is "Sweet Marie" and features the great James Cotton on harmonica. This cut is very close to Miller's early work. The last of these three is "The Window" where Miller returns to his space age sound.

To sum up, FLY LIKE AN EAGLE, the Steve Miller Band's first album in three years, shows some very good improvements over the JOKER LP. However, Miller did not sacrifice much of his original sound to gain this improvement. The album is just well done mellow rock, Steve Miller style. Till then, ROCK-OUT. J.W.

VIVA! ROXY MUSIC - ATCO

BRYAN FERRY EXTENDED PLAY - ISLAND

Most people are probably only familiar with Roxy Music through their moderate hit "Love Is The Drug". This disco-oriented single unfortunately is not the true representation of Roxy Music. So to give their newly gained audience a better glimpse of their sound Roxy has released a live album. It spans their whole career starting with their first single "Pyjamarama" up to their last album "Siren".

Roxy has picked a varied bunch of tunes to present. I have only two complaints with the selections. One is that they have neglected to do anything from what is theirs and probably one of the Seventies' finest albums "Stranded." By overlooking this album, Roxy is holding back their best ace.

My second gripe is that some of the songs they have picked are too long. Even a die hard fan like me begins to get bored with these tunes after five minutes or so. "The Bogus Man" sounds like Boris Karloff doing rock and roll. It's random instrumentation is annoying. The only way to keep going through "In Every Dream Home a Heartache" is to pay attention to its Randy Newmanish lyrics. This tune shows lead singer, Bryan Ferry, singing of his love to an inflatable doll. A bizarre subject for the likes of John Denver, but an everyday occurrence for Roxy Music.

Some of the tunes that are a little easier to enjoy are "Out Of The Blue" and "Both Ends Burning." Both move at a steady pace and are probably the closest thing Roxy has in the way of true rock and roll. "Both Ends Burning" is marred by the female vocalists that accompanied Roxy on their last tour.

While having only one hit in America, Roxy has had several hits in England. "Pyjamarama" is not quite as good as the original, but since "Viva! Roxy Music" is the first album to contain it, I guess we should be grateful. The other hit that shows up is a clever dance number "Do The Strand".

"Viva! Roxy Music" is an interesting introduction to any newcomers to the Roxy camp. As for the older fans, the original versions of these tunes are still the best.

Up until the mid-Sixties, Extended Plays (Eps) were a common item. An Ep is a single with four tunes instead of two on it. They usually come in a sleeve with a picture of the artist and liner notes—sort of a cross between an album and single.

Bryan Ferry has decided to use this idea for his latest solo venture from Roxy. As in the tradition of his two solo albums, Bryan has done only cover versions. He has picked a wide spectrum of artists to do.

With a driving line, Ferry turns the old Everly Brothers' "Price of Love" into a hard rock number. Jimmy Reed's "Shame, Shame, Shame" is given a "Memphis" feel to it. For a softer number, Ferry has done Gallagher and Lyle's "Heart on My Sleeve." Only his version of the Beatles' "It's Only Love" is bad. The rest are interestingly arranged and well done.

While this Ep is currently available through import shops, the songs will appear on Bryan Ferry's forthcoming album "Let's Stick Together." Steve Harvey

BELK HALL DEDICATED

by Bobby Parker

Belk Hall, the dormitory opened to students at the beginning of this academic year, was formally dedicated Thursday morning at 10:00 in front of the new housing facility. Mr. Irwin Belk, a member of the North Carolina family that has given much support to the university system, was assisted by UNC-W Chancellor William H. Wagoner, in cutting the ribbon to officially open the dorm.

Approximately fifty persons, including students, faculty, and staff, attended the ceremony. Dr. Wagoner welcomed the spectators and expressed pride in UNC-W's growth and in the Belk family for their support of state higher education.

Wagoner also announced that a third dormitory for the campus was under study and said that our university enjoys the distinction of full occupancy in our housing facilities. He went on to cite two individuals as the co-fathers of UNC-W: Dr. John Hoggard, who founded the original two year Wilmington College, and Mr. Addison Hewlett, Jr., who began the legislative drive for appropriations for this institution.

After the invocation rendered by UNC-W professor of philosophy and religion Dr. Frank Hall, Mr. Hewlett gave brief remarks on the progress of the university. Mr. Hewlett is a former speaker of the North Carolina House of Representatives and is presently chairman of the UNC-W Board of Trustees.

Mr. Hewlett termed the new addition "another step forward in the life at this institution."

Dr. Wagoner then introduced Mr. Belk, the chairman of the Belk Foundation, who addressed the ceremony briefly. He is a member of the Board of Governors of the university system.

Mr. Belk remarked that "of all the sixteen branches (of UNC), the architectural set-up (of UNC-W), with the similarity of all buildings, is probably the most beautiful."

Dr. William Malloy, Vice-

Chancellor of Student Affairs, spoke next, noting that this year there had been 1400 inquiries about on-campus housing with a total capacity of 600 students. He also recognized Col. James K. Clark, Director of Auxiliary Services, who was credited for much work on the realization of the facility.

A ribbon cutting completed the ceremony, and everyone was then invited for a tour of the building. A reception was also held with cake and punch being served on the ground floor of Belk Hall.

Among other UNC-W officials attending the dedication were Helena R. Cheek and Ralph H. Parker, Deans of Students; Charlie King, Assistant Dean of Students for Residence Life; Mike Good, a senior student who is the chief residence assistant for Belk Hall; and SGA President Duffy Robinson.

The dormitory was constructed at a cost of $1.4 million, and has a total occupancy of 200 students.

Student Senate Discusses Many Issues at Thursday Meeting

By Bobby Parker

The UNC-W student senate met in regular session on Thursday night at 7:45 in Room 218 of the Chemistry-Physics Building. Vice-president Paul Laird presided over the meeting which discussed a variety of issues.

Almost immediately after the meeting was called to order, the Senate formally adopted rules of operation which are necessary to conduct the meetings. The legislative body had failed to adopt such rules at the last meeting and some questions had arisen as to the procedure.

SGA President Duffy Robinson was then recognized to give the president's report in which he recommended the creation of a campus consumer affairs division through which students could channel any complaints about local businesses. Robinson cited the absence of such a facility in the Wilmington area, and Vice-president Laird later appointed a committee of Senators Ray Warren, Cindy Buxton and Greta Lent to investigate this proposal.

Robinson also recommended that the Senate relinquish ownership of some unused Seahawk equipment, stating that it should be given to area high schools or sold as scrap metal. The equipment involved includes typesetting tables that are no longer used for the Seahawk. Senator Dawn Brickley requested that all university departments be given first refusal on the tables before they are given away.

The President then apologized for his "misbehavior" concerning the recent controversy between himself and Senator Warren. He stated that "at times I tend to become direct" in seeking approval of his proposals and expressed regret for any "Genghis Khan-type techniques" that he had used in his dealings with the Senate.

Robinson cited Senator Warren as "an active part of my administration" and added that he feels Warren now "realizes he has a constitutional power to issue executive orders."

A financial report by Treasurer Mark Wax followed with a full statement of the SGA's monetary status. Total SGA assets were listed at $102,650.63; total senate allocations to date were $89,366.38.

A proposed allocation for the Fledgling was tallied at $5,391.64, but was later reduced to $4326 due to expected advertising revenue yet to be collected. The Senate later approved the latter figure. This left a balance of $8,958.25 in unencumbered funds for the SGA.

The allocation was to be used to pay the last installment on the publication costs of the 1976 yearbook. That year's editor, Darlene Pearsall, reports that there were sufficient funds allocated in 1976 to cover all costs but SGA officials "zeroed out" the Fledgling's account, returning the money to the general SGA account.

Four new campus organizations requested charters from the Senate. They were the Baha-i Club, Campus Computing Club, Senter Sidelis Society, and Recreation Majors' Club. A discussion ensued on the practice of chartering religious organizations, such as the Baha-i Club, as SGA activities. The Senate decided to defer action on all four charters until more information could be obtained about their organization.

Consumer Affairs Office Investigated by Senate

The student senate is investigating the possibility of creating a consumer affairs branch of the SGA. This consumer department would work in cooperation with the attorney general's office to investigate student complaints.

In order to gauge the demand for such services, the senate needs to hear from the students. Any student who feels that he has encountered unfair or discriminatory treatment from local merchants or realtors should contact Greta Lent (room 307 of Belk Hall), Cindy Buxton (room 424 of Belk Hall) or Ray Warren (791-6263). Written descriptions of the incident may also be brought to the SGA office, upstairs in the pub. Student response will, in large part, determine whether the proposed consumer department becomes reality at UNC-W.

Elections will be held on Thursday, Sept. 30 and Friday, Oct. 1. Freshman senate positions and a proposal that would provide a $1500 salary for the SGA president will be decided. Students may vote at tables in the pub, the cafeteria or the Biology Building from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

letters to the editor

CHEERLEADING AD DISGUSTING

To The Editor of the SEAHAWK:

I find the cheerleading advertisement printed in the September 22, 1976 issue of the SEAHAWK disturbing. The ad, a simple drawing of a male cheerleader balancing a female cheerleader at his hip in such a position that her left leg extends at his approximate eye level, reads: "From a man's point of view, it's great! Cheerleading!"

I have no objections at all to cheerleading, nor to cheerleading gymnastic stunts in which male cheerleaders, by virtue of relatively greater strength, lift female cheerleaders onto their hips and shoulders. And I certainly support the existence of a sexually balanced cheerleading program. Interested and talented men should have the chance to be cheerleaders: interested and talented women should have equal chances to be the athletes out on the field.

However, I do strongly object to what seems to be an advertisement based on sexual innuendo: the man in the drawing has a "point of view" which allows him a clear view of his partner's upper thighs and underwear. Is that what's so "great" about male cheerleading? I certainly hope I am misreading the implications of this ad. If I mis-read it, however, perhaps others did it too.

A university environment certainly can be an ideal place for women and men to try to break out of old role patterns and deal with each other on bases of honesty, equality, and complete respect. If men and women cheerleaders relate to each other on these terms, I too, will agree that cheerleading can be "great" for men.

Sincerely,
Ms. Judith Sealander, lecturer
Department of History

DECEIVING AND OFFENSIVE

To The Editor:

Words can sometimes be vague and deceiving and unnecessarily offensive: I found the recent ad in the Seahawk, which featured a silhouette of a male cheerleader holding a female cheerleader, with the caption, "From a man's point of view, it's great! Cheerleading!" to be unduly offensive. Neither the silhouette nor the caption were individually offensive, however, together they were brazenly sexually suggestive.

Words, depending upon their intent, may have various meanings. For example, the word case may mean a receptacle as in "a case of beer," arguments in support of as "a case for birth control," in the event of as "in case of fire," or in an instance of a disease as in "a case of diphtheria." Context helps us to understand the use of these words. Sometimes, however, contexts are vague and the imagination wanders. The term "point of view" for example, may mean "beliefs about," "individual perspective to a problem" or a "visual vantage point." The use of "point of view" in this ad suggest a visual vantage point rather than the other interpretations and is thereby sexually suggestive: More responsible editorship of the Seahawk should prevent such problems in the future.

Jackie J. Adams

VAGUE AND SEXUALLY SUGGESTIVE

To The Editor:

The effort on the part of the Physical Education Department to recruit male cheerleaders is commendable, and the majority of the advertisements being used for this purpose are very effective. However, I think that the advertisement in the September 22 issue of The Seahawk (page 7) was questionable in its intent and thereby offensive to some students.

An advertisement should be a well-defined statement of its sponsor's position. For example:

"From a Student's point of view, it's great! Cheerleading promotes school spirit and boosts team morale. Interested men should contact . . ."

It is for THESE reasons that men and women should be encouraged to join the cheerleading squad. The advertisement in The Seahawk should have clarified this position and should not have implied less honorable motives. In the context of the advertisement the wording was vague and sexually suggestive.

It is unfortunate that such a successful campaign should be marred by thoughtless advertising.

D. Brickley
Sophomore Senator

From A Man's point of view, it's great! Cheerleading!

Interested men contact Mrs. Batson in the gym or Jack Meshaw in room 221, Belk dorm!

EDITORIAL

I personally selected the editorial cartoon which appeared on page two of last week's paper. It showed an elderly man "exposing himself" to a female student.

I created the cartoon on last week's amusement which had two people in a dark room with the caption, "David, are you sure this is required to pass Biology 105?" I received no comment on these two cartoons except to the fact that they were extremely funny.

The ad on the "Club News" page, however, was neither created nor selected by myself nor anyone on the Seahawk staff. It was submitted by a male student who simply wanted to advertise for other males to join a cheerleading squad. I found nothing wrong with the ad due to the fact that I did not read passages out of context. (Besides, the male is looking straight ahead and not upward.)

It was run full size because I felt the lack of interest in male cheerleading was due to the large amount of apathy on campus. Apparently I was mistaken. The problem with many people on this campus is not apathy—it's misdirected enthusiasm.

I've decided to re-run the ad—primarily for three readers' enjoyment (or should I say vivid imaginations?) So . . . have fun, girls! Study the ad carefully, imagine what you want, and then repent by saying three Our Fathers and two Hail Marys. It's you who have sinned—not the Seahawk.

Getting on to a FAR more important subject: this week, the students will have to decide whether our Student Body President should be paid for his services. Those students who still think of UNC-W as "Wilmington College" will probably cry a boisterous "no." Those who think of the school as a growing university, however, will recognize that an executive salary is a step in the right direction.

Despite popular belief, editors of campus publications and SGA officers are not presently paid a salary. Scholarships of $110.50 per semester are almost the only reimbursement they receive for their time and efforts.

Working a minimum of ten hours each week, they average about $.80 an hour. Thus, to take on the responsibility of any leadership position on this campus, you have to be either insane or independently wealthy.

It's time that things changed. Allowing our SGA president a salary is a good start. Vote "yes" on Thursday and Friday.

If you approve the salary and later change your mind, the money can be retracted by student referendum. If you vote "no," however, there's no turning back. d.p.

BYLINE: THAT MOST INTRIGUING REPUBLICAN

A column of personal comment by Bobby Parker

There are not very many Republican office-holders in this country who are good for much other than a stiff argument with a Democrat (or in many cases, with a fellow Republican). Howard Baker is one; Jacob Javits, Lowell Weicker, and Barry Goldwater are others. And we may as well include Jerry Ford.

But the Republican who is fast becoming the most intriguing phenomenon that party has to offer is Vice-President Nelson Rockefeller.

Rockefeller has always been an outspoken politician, but his newly acquired status as a lame-duck vice-president, who no longer harbors hopes of being number one, has afforded him more freedom than enjoyed by any person in political office today.

The best move Rocky ever made was when he announced that he would not run with President Ford in 1976. Though that decision was definitely prodded by Ford, it is my guess that it was more Rockefeller's own decision than most people think.

There was perhaps a rekindled shimmer of hope for Rocky when he was appointed Vice-President by President Ford. After all, Mr. Ford had promised not to run for a full term, and that vice-presidential chair would have been a good base to launch one last drive.

But it was all over for the 68-year-old Rockefeller when Ford decided to run. There was talk of a Rockefeller surge in case of a hopelessly deadlocked Ford-Reagan convention. The battle-wise Vice-President had no part in this, however, and supported the President—the man who deserted him only months earlier—who he had.

It was back in 1960 that Rockefeller, then governor of New York, first came into national prominence as the leader of the moderate wing of the Republican Party. Richard Nixon, that year's Republican nominee, recognized Rocky's powerful position both at the convention and in the general election.

Nixon needed New York's 45 electoral votes; no Republican had ever won the White House without that state. Rockefeller was determined that the party's platform would contain some input from his side, and threatened to fight it out on the convention floor. Wishing to avoid a convention fight, Nixon met with Rockefeller and later faced charges of surrendering to Rocky on many platform planks.

Nixon offered that year's vice-presidential nomination to the Governor, but Rocky wasn't interested. All this was done despite Rockefeller's outspoken criticism of both Nixon and the Eisenhower administration. That doesn't sound like the vindictive Nixon we now know.

Perhaps Rockefeller is best remembered for the 1964 Republican convention when he squared off with arch-conservative Barry Goldwater, the party's eventual nominee. Rocky spoke to that convention, only to receive boos from his audience. An example of Rockefeller's determination to speak his mind is that he refused to yield the podium when his allotted time had expired. He remained at that podium to deliver the last word, waiting as long as necessary for the crowd to quiet.

It was also revealed recently that Rockefeller was offered the 1968 vice-presidential nod by none other than Democratic nominee Hubert Humphrey. His acceptance was thus not limited to his own party.

One of the darkest blots on the Vice-President's record is the Attica prison riots that occurred during his reign in New York. Rocky is often held responsible for this celebrated tragedy. But it is unrealistic to pin one man with the responsibility in that situation. Attica was a product—one of the culminations—of the unrest of the Sixties, and the fault lies not solely in New York but is shared by all America.

Of course, the portrait of Rocky would not be complete without mention of his latest episode. Campaigning with Bob Dole in New York, the Vice-President "responded in kind" to hecklers in the audience. Newspapers across the country carried Rockefeller's photo the next day—with middle finger upright toward the hecklers.

Who would have ever imagined a vice-president of the U. S. United States issuing that "obscene" gesture in full public view. No one but Rocky, with his ever-present grin.

And why not? Any other American provoked as was Rockefeller, would have done the same.

I'll never forget during the campaign in this year's Wisconsin primary. George Wallace was met by students wearing masks of Arthur Bremer, the man who gunned Wallace down in 1972. Expressing disagreement is one thing; behavior such as that is sick, disgusting and cruel.

Such was the heckling that Rocky encountered. After all, the man is our vice-president. He's not any better than any of us because of that. But he does deserve a certain amount of respect for the office he holds.

Whatever Rockefeller's future, he's enjoying the best years of his public life right now. He has shown himself a man of principle, who harbors ambition but does not let it rule his career. And that, in itself is an American phenomenon.

DEBATE SCORECARD

by Bobby Parker

The Great Debate turned out not so great. That is to say, we are no better off than we were before Thursday's opening round.

Most analysts either called it a draw or gave Ford a slight edge. Here's how the SEAHAWK's resident politico sized up the match:

On the whole, both men came across as the image they have given all year—in other words, there were no surprises.

Carter appeared as the unorthodox, trying to persuade us that he is a leader with vision, but giving us vision without substance. He is still pleading "trust me," and refuses to be more specific than he's already been.

Mr. Ford came across as a decent, honest man who is trying his best. He wants us to believe that it's not his lack of leadership but the Democratic Congress' lack of initiative that's causing our country's problems.

For those who are interested, here's how I scored the two. (Points given on a 5-point scale.)

On Unemployment

Carter - 2; Ford - 4

Ford scores when he challenged Carter to defend the Humphrey-Hawkins bill employment bill that Carter had earlier endorsed. Carter made no mention of that bill in his presentation. Carter did well in citing the need for immediate relief of unemployment, but Ford did well pointing out the advantages of private-sector jobs.

On Presidential-Congressional Relations

Carter - 4; Ford - 4

Both men did well to defend opposing views—Carter criticized "stalemate" government, Ford warned of one-party domination. Ford scored on the veto issue, calling Carter's bluff when the challenger charged that the President had used more vetoes per year than any president. Carter scored when he noted that Eisenhower and Nixon had better relations with Democratic Congresses.

On Taxes

Carter - 0; Ford - 5

Here's where Ford scored greatest, citing that the tax laws that Carter called a "disgrace" were written by his fellow Democrats in Congress. Carter was fumbling to cover his "median income" blunder of last week.

On Government Reorganization

Carter - 1; Ford - 2

Carter presented his standard fare of reduction of the state bureaucracy in Georgia, but Ford showed his homework when he challenged the actual effectiveness of Carter's changes.

On Nixon and Watergate

Carter - 3

Carter hurt himself by trying to unjustly link Ford to the Nixon administration.

On Pardons for Draft Resisters

Carter - 2; Ford - 2

Ford had a little trouble defending the Nixon pardon against his refusal to pardon draft evaders.

The Closing Remarks

Carter - 4; Ford - 0

Carter returned to his standard "government-as-good-as-the-people" theme, though his presentation came across as that of a compassionate man with vision. While Carter was probably at his best, Ford was at his worst.

Total Score: Ford - 13; Carter - 10

SEAHAWK SPORTS

Seahawk Soccer Suffers Setbacks

Hard times have fallen upon the Seahawk soccer program, with both losses and injuries mounting rapidly.

The Hawks returned yesterday from a six-day road trip, where they played the Citadel, Rollins, and Stetson. The Citadel and Rollins games were both lost by close margins, with results of the Stetson game not available at this writing.

To start the series, the Seahawks traveled to Charleston, where they met a stubborn Citadel squad that defeated them 3-2 in overtime. Of this game, Coach Calvin Lane commented, "We had total control of the game, but we just couldn't put the ball in the goal." UNC-W had a total of 32 shots at Citadel's goal, an indication of their total dominance of the match.

Gonzalo Rada scored the Seahawk's first goal, with an assist by Steve Paul. Chi Chi Mercata scored for UNC-W in the second half, with an assist by Rada.

On Saturday, the team met Rollins, a perennial soccer powerhouse in the south. In a match which almost went into overtime (it would have been the Seahawks third straight game decided in overtime) Rollins' first goal came with two minutes thirty seconds left in the contest, with the second goal coming at the 54 second mark.

Coach Lane was not particularly upset by the team's loss. This was due partly to the fact that Rollins has a strong soccer program year after year, and partly because of the tiring conditions when the goals were scored. "Toward the end of the game, both teams were very tired," he said, adding, "It was a matter of whoever scored first won the game."

Several players, according to Coach Lane, performed exceptionally well during the first two matches. These included Gene Borowski, Vince Lindenschmidt, Tim Willette, and Tim Gribbin.

Injuries continue to plague the squad. Fullback Rick Hayes was added to the injured list after the Citadel game. Fullback Tom Buffington and Forward Lenny Branson, both expected to start this season, are still out with a jammed toe and sore back, respectively.

The Seahawks returned to Wilmington Tuesday, yet are on the road again Thursday for a match against Atlantic Christian College. Game time is 7:30.

First-Game Jitters Prove Too Much for Tennis Team

Opening match jitters proved costly for the UNC-W women's tennis team, as they were downed by Meredith College 7-2.

"We just played a sloppy game. It was the first college match for most of the team, and our inexperience really showed," stated Jane Batson, head coach of the women's team.

"There were some players," added Coach Batson, "who played exceptionally well." These included: Cherry Cousins, who won her match 7-5, 6-1; the doubles team of Brenda Kalevas and Theresa Hege, winning their match 9-7; and Terry Kirby, who lost her match but still played extremely well for her first inter-collegiate match.

Coach Batson is still optimistic about the season, despite the first-match loss. "We can now look back and see where our mistakes are, and correct them in time for the tournament," she stated.

The tournament being referred to was the Eastern Regional Invitation, to be held in Fayetteville, October 1 and 2. Teams from all over the state will be competing, including Pembroke, East Carolina and Campbell. The team is hoping they can work out their jitters at the tournament and be ready to play once the season gets started good.

Jock Talk

This column is just what the title says: Jock Talk.

If any jocks or non-jocks (we're not prejudiced) want to get an announcement in the Seahawk regarding anything even vaguely associated with athletics, simply drop it by the Seahawk office by 5:00 on the Friday before the Wednesday you want it to appear. Simple enough. Please put JOCK TALK in big bold letters at the top of the page so it won't get put anywhere else in the newspaper.

Remember, be sure to watch this column for all the news about sporting events here at UNC-W.

Volleyball Nabs Two Victories

After suffering natural first-game jitters, the women's volleyball team has molded together and begun playing top-rate volleyball.

(Editor's Note: In order to fully understand this article, a brief explanation of volleyball scoring is in order. Three matches are played each game with the winner of the match being the first team to score fifteen points. Whichever team wins two of the three matches wins the game.)

The women's first match was in Raleigh against Peace College, which took the Hawks by surprise and beat them.

Coach Anne Kraft attributes this loss to the fact the team as a whole had little, if any, inter-collegiate volleyball experience, and it took this first game for the players to realize what inter-collegiate volleyball was all about.

Next match for the team was last Thursday against arch-rival Pembroke. There was some worry about this game, for earlier Pembroke had soundly defeated the same Peace College squad that had defeated UNC-W. There was no need for worry, though, as the Seahawks downed Pembroke in close matches. "We simply played on their mistakes," said Coach Kraft.

By now, the women were beginning to jell as a team. This is evident by the margin by which they defeated Chowan College in their first home match last Saturday.

Optimism still runs high for the women to retain their state championship title. "The competition is a lot better than I expected," stated Coach Kraft, adding, "But I still think we can win."

The team's next game is a 3-team event on October 5 in Rocky Mount. Atlantic Christian College and Wesleyan College will be participating.

"The girls have high hopes for this tournament," said Coach Kraft. "We can win, but we have to play to our potential."

Currently, the starting lineup for the game consists of Joanne Gentry, Betsy Massari, Carol Moore, Melissa Bennett, Phyllis Creech, and Debbie Smith.

(CPS)--Scientists have seen the writing on the walls and have concluded girls are now scribbling more graffiti than boys.

Psychologists crawled through the bathrooms at four large midwestern schools and discovered that female graffiti artists are penning four times the amount of graffiti as their male counterparts.

The girls wrote mainly romantic inscriptions, the Journal of Social Psychology reports, except in upper income areas where the writing became more erotic.

PULL A TOOTH, BLOW YOUR MIND

(CPS/ZNS)--Patients who visit one British dentist have no need of fearing bothersome novocain shots--instead they are treated to a psychedelic "trip" at his office, complete with visions of flashing lights.

The patients of Dr. Alex McMaster aren't acidheads; they're using an unusual new pain-killing technique that works without drugs.

McMaster administers "psychedelic amnesia" with a pair of goggles that are hooked up to an electric current. The current stimulates the brain to produce alpha waves, which deeply relax the patients, who then lose the ability to feel pain.

In addition, thousands of tiny, flashing colored lights suddenly appear in the goggles, simulating a psychedelic trip. The technique works on more than 50 per cent of his patients, the dentist says.

(CPS)--During the 60's, many universities boasted of their liberal programs that offered pass/fail grading, independent study and other academic alternatives. Faculty members became more willing to give high grades, to the delight of students concerned about tough academic competition.

But recent publicity concerning grade point "inflation" has prompted administrators to crack down on grading policies. And a recent study shows that this crackdown is apparently working.

In fact, student grade point averages declined last year--for the first time in a decade--according to a recent survey of 135 colleges and universities. The report shows that average grades dropped from a peak of 2.77 in 1974 to 2.74 in 1975. The average in 1965 was 2.44.

Professor Arvo Juola of Michigan State University, who conducted the study, cited faculty awareness of grade inflation and the addition of pluses and minuses in combination with letter grades at many schools as causes for the decline.

A few years ago, explained Juola, many schools attempted to make grades "more humane." They lengthened the time students could take to drop courses without penalty, added pass/fail options and some dropped D and F grades altogether.

Now, however, the liberal trend has been reversed, the study shows. Of eleven schools which had dropped D or F grades, six have restored those grades in the past two years.

A large number of major universities had recently added pluses and minuses to grading systems, including the universities of Michigan, Wisconsin, Ohio State, Indiana, California at Santa Barbara and Boston College, said Juola.

Another recent study showed that 45 per cent of the students surveyed at Kansas State University said that tougher grading policies would have no effect on their overall satisfaction with the university. Sixteen per cent of the students said that stiffer grading would decrease their willingness to recommend Kansas State to others, while another 16 per cent said their sense of satisfaction with the university would be increased by tougher grading.

However, the same survey, taken by Donald Hoyt, the director of educational resources at Kansas State, also showed that most faculty members regard grade inflation as a "bad thing." Most, however, were not enthusiastic about tightening grading policies--possibly, Hoyt said, because students were worried about competition for jobs and graduate school slots.

HOMEWORK, HOTPLATES AND
HOWARD JOHNSON'S

(CPS)--Some first year students at Purdue University may be writing home this fall to their families on stationary from Howard Johnson's or Holiday Inn.

Motels are increasing their business in college towns. But students are not abandoning themselves to hedonism. They just need a place to live.

Faced with soaring enrollments and housing shortages, some colleges are turning to untraditional forms of student housing to meet their needs. Many schools are reluctant to build extra housing because enrollments are expected to decrease sharply by 1980.

To cope with the housing shortages--at least, temporarily--schools such as Purdue University in Indiana and Washington University in St. Louis are housing students in local hotels and motels.

The students receive rent discounts of up to 75 per cent from the motel and hotel owners who appreciate the steady off-season business.

Although the Purdue and Washington motel and hotel dwellers pay rents comparable to those charged students living in other off-campus housing, they have no kitchens. Some eat at regular dormitory cafeterias on campus, which in some cases are two miles or more from campus. A one-bedroom motel unit or apartment shared by two people costs about $200 a month.

Student
Supreme Court

by Cynthia Ann Johnson

In the past, the Student Supreme Court (SSC) was the highest court established by the constitution of the Student Government Association (SGA). It was composed of five members appointed by the SGA president with approval of two-thirds majority vote of the Student Senate. All cases involving student infractions against the policies and rules of the UNC-Wilmington campus were liable to prosecution before the SSC.

As for the present, the SSC is thought of by many as an inactive body. This is a distortion of the truth. The SSC is kept alive by one sole survivor who is residing as chief justice, Leonard Hutchins. There are hopes of acquiring four rookies. These new members will be requested to attempt an intense effort in overcoming major responsibilities in this judicial branch of power.

To become involved in SSC, one must be a member of the UNC-W student body as a full-time student and achieve a minimum score of eighty per cent on the student constitution test.

The student court has the power to discipline students for wrongdoing. Their authority extends to the point of expelling students.

EXORCIST COMES TO CAMPUS

While still a student at Georgetown University, William Peter Blatty read of the unusual 1949 episode in which a 14 year old child in Maryland and subsequently became fascinated with the subject of diabolical possession. Two decades later he transmuted the 1949 case into "The Exorcist", a novel that sold over 6,000,000 copies domestically and has been translated into 18 languages.

Under the direction of the gifted William Friedkin, that book has now become a dramatically compelling film starring Ellen Burstyn, Max Von Sydow, Jason Miller, Lee J. Cobb and Linda Blair.

"The Exorcist" reveals the fear and the anguish surrounding demonic possession while it explores the fundamental nature of evil and its irrational, violent, persistent infestation of man.

"The Prisoner" Presented in Snack Bar

Each week, the Vice Squad presents a different episode of The Prisoner in the snack bar, Monday through Thursday, 11:30 through 12:30.

Episode 4: "THE SCHIZOID MAN"

In Brief: Efforts are made to split the Prisoner's personality and make him believe he is someone else.

To Amplify: "No. 2" puts into operation the most far reaching effort yet to break the Prisoner when the Prisoner's double is brought into the village.

It begins when a girl, "No. 24", displays a close telepathic understanding with the Prisoner, their minds so closely attuned that she is able to identify all the cards he selects from a pack. During this game, the only mishap is when she accidentally knocks something on to his left hand and bruises a finger nail.

The Prisoner finds himself undergoing a strange transformation. Put into a state of electronic hypnosis, he undergoes a form of brainwashing which changes his tastes, his right-handedness to left-handedness, and even his instincts. He even awakens to find himself looking different, with a moustache and darkened hair. The calendar has been put back several days to indicate that only one night has passed instead of several days. Everyone in the village, from "no. 2" downwards, greets him as "no. 12" instead of "no. 6".

Meanwhile, the double has assumed the identity of the Prisoner and is living in his house. Brought face to face with him, the bewildered Prisoner summons all his will-power to fight against the steadily mounting evidence that he is someone else, but finds that everything the double says and does provides the Prisoner with more confirmation that he is "no. 12" and simply imagining that he was once "no. 6".

The drama is played out with bitter realism, even to "No. 2" playing that he believes the Prisoner to be whom he says he is and that other man is masquerading. But, by degrees, the Prisoner comes to realize what has happened and how it has been achieved and, unwittingly, it is the girl with whom he has such a close understanding, and who has helped to try to destroy him who provides him with the clue to it all.

The drama reaches a tragic climax, enabling the Prisoner to convince "No. 2" that he is really the double and that the Prisoner has not his death. Arrangements are made for him to leave the village, his work completed. The door to freedom is open for the Prisoner at last, but for a cruel twist of fate. . . .

15 BIG ONES

THE BEACH BOYS
WARNER BROS.

Talk about getting sand kicked in your face! The new album from the Beach Boys is a real letdown. I had high hopes for this one since it featured the return of Brian Wilson, the head Beach Boy. Not to mention that it's been three years since their last studio album.

The main problem seems to be the lack of material. Most of the material was written by Brian along with some help from cousin Mike Love. Brian has written some of rock's greatest songs. His classic ballad "Surf's Up" was called by Leonard Bernstein one of the greatest pieces of music ever written. That talent that enabled Brian to write such great music is sadly nowhere acknowledged on 15 Big Ones. Only two of the originals are worth noting.

"It's Ok" is the second single culled from the new album and reminds you of some of their hits like "Help Me Rhonda" and "I Get Around" in its spirit. If you saw the recent TV special by the Boys you might remember this tune done with a choir. As far as other originals go it's pretty slim pickin'.

Mike Love's ode to the Maharishi "Everyone's In Love

With You" comes off as insipid with its overdone cuteness. This is also the problem with Al Jardine's "Susie Cincinnati" which has appeared twice before as a B-side. "Had To Phone You" reminds me a little of "Beach, Doing Nothing", but it is not as memorable. "The TM Song" is only worth listening to for the beginning. It has a fake argument very similar to the ones that filled up space on the early Beach Boys albums. "Back Home" can only be taken as proof of Brian's inability to write good lyrics.

Half of the album is old standards from mainly the Fifties and early Sixties. Unfortunately the Boys seem to have used little imagination in their picking. There is no need for another version of "Blueberry Hill" or "Palm Springs Park" especially when there is no effort put into it. These songs sound dull and lifeless when compared to the originals. While it was a hit single the Beach Boys' remake of "Rock and Roll Music" pales when compared to the Beatles'. What should be a rockin' dance number comes off as a half hearted dirge. Brian's admiration for Phil Spector shows up once again with his version of "Just Once In My Life." The wall of sound that Spector has built into his trademark is recreated with extreme care. Too bad Brian didn't put as much into the vocals. Those once perfect voices crack and falter when climbing the register. For such perfectionists as the Beach Boys it is criminal to allow such a glaring mistake to go by. If you can't sing it, forget it and go on to the next song.

The cover by Dean Torrence (of Jan and Dean fame), is nicely done with an interesting array of photos from the Beach Boys' past inside. As for musicians, it is old homes week. Ex-Beach Boy Bruce Johnson shows up along with former Beach Boys, Captain and Tennille. Brian Wilson's top fan, Roy Wood, lends a hand with his band Wizard. Brian's wife, Marilyn, is present as is Ricky Fataar, another Ex-Beacher. Mike Love's TM buddy, Charles Lloyd, adds some flute. But most of all Brian is on it. The only people missing are David Marks and Charles Manson.

It may sound like I'm not too happy about this album, but that is not the case. Even at their poorest, the Beach Boys have got a lot of people beat. In this age of musical depression, a new Beach Boy album is a welcome sign. Surf's up. Steve Harvey

MANFRED MANN'S EARTH BAND

THE ROARING SILENCE

WARNER BROS. BS - 2965

For those of you who were around last year, you may remember my very promising review of Manfred Mann's Earth Band and their album NIGHTINGALES AND BOMBERS. Now with another year we find a new album by the group which is far superior to the one before it and, in my opinion, one of the finest albums made this year.

It seems the group has now gotten everything it needs to be a well rounded modern rock group. BOMBERS lacked several things which the group now has. First, BOMBERS had too many instrumentals and most of the vocal cuts were very weak. The EARTH BAND have solved these problems on THE ROARING SILENCE in that there is only one instrumental (and it is even stronger than those on BOMBERS) and that they now have a strong lead singer, with Chris Thompson, as well as fairly strong backup singers.

Another improvement is the addition of a new lead guitarist, Dave Flett. Flett seems to work better with Mann than Mick Rogers did, in that his guitar work fits Mann's keyboards.

As with NIGHTINGALES AND BOMBERS, THE ROARING SILENCE opens with another Bruce Springsteen song, "Blinded by the Light." It is very interesting to once again hear how the EARTH BAND has adapted a Springsteen song. Other than a few bars of chop-sticks, the song is done very well and is a perfect opening cut. Everyone in the group works to make a contribution to the song, with Mann's Moog work and Flett's guitar work adding the extra kick.

Following this is a cut written by Mik Heron of the INCREDIBLE STRING BAND. Again, the group have taken a song written by someone else and done a remarkable job at fitting it to their own style.

"Singing the Dolphin Through" is a slower cut than its forerunner yet is quite heavy in spots. Mann, Flett, and Thompson each have a solo on the cut which makes the song longer but not boring. Sax is added on the cut also and is done by Barbara Thompson.

"Waiter, There's a Yawn in My Ear" ends side one and is the instrumental cut on the album. Here, Mann relates back to a very Jazz-Rock type sound.

Side two opens with "The Road to Babylon" which is different than anything on the album. I hate to say it, but this cut reminds me of material on a Rick Wakeman album, particularly on JOURNEY TO THE CENTER OF THE EARTH. The one advantage Mann has over Wakeman in this type sound is that he knows that by hogging the show the song would get to a person. So here you have artistic sound with everyone doing his part and not just one man ruling.

"This Side of Paradise" follows and has one fault in that the lyrics are a little weak. "Starbird" is next and has the same fault but both are saved by the group's musical abilities and strong vocals.

"Questions" ends the side and is written by drummer Chris Slade and Mann. Here, the lyrics run as deep as the music and the group's working ability is at tops. "Questions" is a smooth rock song with the beauty rock music can be as its theme.

To sum up: THE ROARING SILENCE is a remarkable rock album. Manfred Mann's Earth Band, who have been together in name for four or five years, have finally reached a workable form of music and group. They have learned to mold the music of others as well as their own music to the style they do best. If all rock groups could do this, there would be no bad rock groups. Till then: ROCK - OUT. J.W.

Investigate the Baha'i Faith

In Persia, in 1844, a man called the Bab (meaning the gate) arose proclaiming that the promised one of all religions would soon appear. His new embryonic faith spread with such alarming swiftness that the decadent governmental and religious leaders arose to destroy it, fearing they would lose their stifling grip on the populace. This intense prosecution ultimately resulted in the martyrdom of the Bab and over 20,000 of his followers.

In 1863 Baha'u'llah (meaning the glory of God) proclaimed that he was the one foretold by the Bab, and that his teachings would ultimately bring about the establishment of a new world order based upon love, justice, and unity—the promised "kingdom of God earth" awaited by the people of all religions!

Baha'u'llah was also extremely persecuted for his teachings, spending most of his life in torture, prison, and exile. He eventually was sent to the notorious prison city of Akka, in Israel, and died near there in 1892.

Baha'u'llah, speaking as God's messenger for this day, has left a wealth of writings which clearly state the essential truths necessary for the ultimate survival and progress of the human race. The Baha

Faith, whose members are striving to implement these truths in their lives, today encompasses the globe. You are invited to investigate these claims. There will be a public information meeting and movie on Wednesday, Sept. 29 at 8:00 p.m. in Marine Science room 150.

Last Tuesday, the twenty-first of September, we inducted five new pledges, Michael Evans McGarvey, William Bennett Coleman, Mark Andrew Hanula, Richard Lee Witcofski, and Robert Street Uzzell. After they successfully complete their pledge period they will be initiated into the fraternity.

Bill Pratt was initiated into the fraternity last Sunday night, September 20. It took him the better part of an hour, but he finally finished the traditional 240 ounce mug. Also on the twentieth, the undergraduate fraternity was challenged to a softball game by the alumni. The alumni won 7-5.

The first organizational meeting for the Little Sisters was held last Thursday, Sept. 23. Things look very good, and we should have a very productive sisterhood by the end of the fall semester.

WEEKLY SPECIAL

Ford Vetoes Electric Car Legislation

by Jack Anderson
with Joe Spear

WASHINGTON — On Sept. 1, President Ford vetoed legislation that would have promoted the development of an electric car. He cited a Transportation Department study, which called the future of electric cars "rather bleak."

The study, we've discovered, was based heavily upon information from General Motors. Of course, General Motors has a huge financial stake in producing gasoline engines. Our White House sources admit that the real reason for the President's veto is his close ties to the auto industry. As a Michigan politician, he is on intimate terms with top auto executives.

There is reason to be suspicious of the General Motors Transportation Department study that the President quoted. An independent study, conducted by General Research of California, claims the prospects for an electric car are excellent.

POLITICAL PROFILES: Capitol Hill is populated with politicians of all shades. I usually report on the villains in the drama of government. But Congress also has its good guys.

Sen. Phil Hart, the Michigan Democrat, is the most honest member of Congress. He is known among his colleagues as the saint of the Senate. They have voted to name the next Senate office building after him.

The most intelligent senator is Jacob Javits, the New York Republican. His speeches sometimes go right over the heads of his colleagues.

Sen. Charles Mathias, the Maryland Republican, is often called the conscience of the Senate. He votes his convictions, whatever the consequences.

The most cantankerous member of the Senate is 71-year-old Carl Curtis, the Nebraska Republican. But lately, he has been trying to brighten up his image. In place of the rumpled suits he used to wear, he has been appearing in an apple-red sports jacket and white shoes.

The loudest member of Congress, without dispute, is Bella Abzug, the congresswoman from New York. She is known on Capitol Hill as "Bellowing Bella." She can swear like a longshoreman, usually at the top of her voice.

Sen. Joseph Montoya, the New Mexico Democrat, is the vainest man in the Senate. Once, he furiously scribbled notes during a televised Senate hearing. An aide peeked over his shoulder to see what he was writing. The paper was covered with the word, "Montoya. Montoya. Montoya" over and over again in big bold letters.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, the Arizona Republican, is the Senate's tinkerer. He drives an AMX sports car, equipped with a compass, wind meter and telephone — all personally installed by the senator.

POLITICAL PETITION? On Sunday, Oct. 3, about 49 million Catholics will be asked to sign a petition as they leave Mass. They will be asked to pledge their support of the Catholic stand against abortion. From the names on these petitions, the Catholic clergy will also recruit volunteers to work in the anti-abortion movement.

This is timed exactly one month before the election. It is sure to hurt the Democratic candidate, Jimmy Carter, who stresses contraception as an alternative to abortion.

Abortion has become a major campaign issue. Yet the President really has no power to prohibit abortion. It would take a constitutional amendment. This would have to be passed by three-fourths of the states.

SUBSIDIES FOR DESPOTS: America was once regarded as a refuge for oppressed people. But today, American aid is used by several dictatorships to suppress human rights. The United States helps to subsidize some of the most brutal regimes in the world.

In Haiti, for example, the U.S. government helps to train soldiers for search-and-rescue missions. Here's how they put their training to work.

An unsigned, typewritten letter, critical of President Duvalier, was traced to a small resort town. The next day, four helicopters full of soldiers descended on the town. They arrested 28 of the town's most prominent citizens. Two days later, 27 returned. The missing man has never been heard from again. Meanwhile, the mortality rate in Haiti's prisons, according to Amnesty International, is probably the highest in the world.

BUREAUCRATIC BUNGL: Two toxic pesticides, Kepone and Mirex, have made headlines lately. There is evidence that they cause cancer. The Environmental Protection Agency, therefore, has banned the indoor use of Mirex and intends to ban Kepone.

No agency should understand the danger better than the Food and Drug Administration. It has experts who are supposed to keep up to date on poisonous chemicals. Yet, believe it or not, the FDA planned to use Kepone and Mirex to exterminate the roaches that infest its offices.

The FDA officials, who drew up the bid request, told us they weren't aware that it called for the use of Kepone and Mirex. The officials thanked us for calling it to their attention. So happily, our investigation stopped FDA from using the cancer-causing pesticides.

DISTAFF DEBATE: The two presidential candidates, Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter, have held their first debate. We tried to promote a more informal discussion between their wives. We thought the public would like to hear Betty Ford and Rosalynn Carter discuss the distaff side of the presidency.

We would like to hear them exchange views and talk about their husbands. But unfortunately, the First Lady wanted no part of it. Betty Ford does not intend to engage in a public debate or discussion with Rosalynn Carter.

New Head of English Department

Curtis Ward

Wisconsin winters are a far cry from North Carolina summers as Dr. Brooks Dobson, the new chairman of the English Department, has found.

Dr. Dobson who came to UNC-W from the University of Wisconsin at Oshkosh, says he will miss the Wisconsin winters but otherwise is enjoying the change of scenery. He, his wife, and his two-year-old daughter, are looking forward to the pleasant spring and fall weather Wilmington offers.

The idea of teaching at a small school such as UNC-W appealed to Dr. Dobson. He believes the school has a very bright future. I welcome the opportunity to be a part of it. "The English Department is interested in new ideas. We have proposed courses in Science Fiction and Literature of the Sea."

He is also very impressed by the pleasant, courteous and friendly attitude of the local residents, especially the students. "I find the student approach very refreshing."

Our campus is quite different from the larger one Dr. Dobson last taught on. The general spacious layout and uniform architecture appeal to him.

Despite the fact that he will miss the readily available ski slopes of Wisconsin, Dr. Dobson is very pleased with his new job and has great hopes for the future.

Student Senate

Several executive nominations were also confirmed. Roger Wiggs was approved as Attorney General and Frances Jackson and Ed Cahill were approved as Associate Justices of the student court.

The method of sending senate legislation to President Robinson for his signature or approval was also discussed, with Robinson noting that no legislation had yet passed his desk. The President suggested that all senate motions be written and filed for later reference. Senator Karin Whaley observed that the senate rules provided that major motions be sent to the President at his request.

A discussion of the proposed executive salary for the SGA president also occurred with Senator Warren suggesting that a letter of endorsement for the proposal be sent to the students via the Seahawk. Senator Whaley, however, said that the Senate as a body does not endorse the proposal and no action was taken on the matter. The proposal will appear on the ballot in SGA elections Thursday and Friday.

Senator Brickley then stood to voice objection to a recent advertisement in the Seahawk which she found to be sexually offensive. The ad in question was to encourage male students to try out for cheerleading. Senator Brickley recommended that the Senate send a "letter of concern" to the Seahawk regarding the ad to suggest more careful editorship of the paper. Senator Warren pointed out that the Senate could not act on behalf of the female students on campus without an indication of the students' objections. This would necessitate a polling of all female students. Warren said, and no action was taken on the matter.

Shoe Buyers Beware:

Earth Shoes are Not for Everybody's Feet

In the beginning there were no flat places. Primeval men and women padded about in bare feet in soft earth, their heels sinking into the ground as they walked. No one knows what happened when the ground froze.

Thus began the gospel of the negative heel shoe, as espoused by Anne Kalso, the originator of Earth Shoes. Cloistered in a "yoga monastery" in Santos, Brazil, Kalso examined the sunken-heel footprints of Brazilian Indians in the sand. Taking the local natives as examples of unspoiled humanity, she concluded that we're meant to walk with the heel lower than the rest of the foot and our weight back, in a rolling motion.

Instead, we pound around in flat shoes on flat pavement all day, and our feet and spines take a constant beating. The idea became leather. A shoe was born. And, as with all true religions, imitators followed—about 85 at last count.

Since they first appeared in the United States in 1970, Earth Shoes have been the center of a storm of controversy. From all accounts they will either cripple millions or bring the Second Coming.

"Unhealed Shoes Heals Bad Posture," "Earth Shoes: Walk to Better Health," "Earth Shoes: A Cosmic Home for Your Feet," blare some recent articles by college newspaper reporters who seem intent upon re-writing Earth Shoe PR one degree better.

"This shoe will cripple everyone who wears it," says a body movement and posture instructor in equally strident tones quoted in the New York Times. And doctors—everyone seems to have found a podiatrist to support his own point of view.

Where does the truth lie, or in this case, stand? Perhaps we won't know for another generation, when everyone wearing Earth Shoes either kicks over with paraplegia at 50 or hikes on to a ripe 120. So with not all precincts reporting, here is what two studies conducted so far and my own research have found:

Room to Move. For those who can wear negative heel shoes, the greatest benefits do not come from the negative heels, but from the fact that the shoes don't cramp your toes together. A bit mundane when compared to Brazilian Indians prowling the beaches on their heels.

According to a study last year by the California Podiatric Medical Center, Earth Shoes have a wide space for your toes which will relieve the symptoms of five common foot problems—all various types of corns, bunions and callouses. This study was quick to note that the shoes do not cure or correct anything, they only make the foot with these problems feel better.

The same finding was confirmed by a joint investigation of the California Public Interest Research Group (CALPIRG) and the UCLA Peer Health Counselors, which concluded that the shoes represented a "good trend away from platform, high-heeled or pointy toe shoes." But that was where the kudus ended.

The Myth of Negativity. What, then, do the negative heels contribute? For between one-fourth and one-third of the population, they contribute constant pain, said both California studies. Those with very flat feet, very high arches or shortened calf muscles will never be able to adjust to negative heels.

The shoes will likely cause foot ulcers in diabetics, said the Medical Center study—strong stuff from them since Kalso helped fund the study. Anti-Earth Shoe doctors claim that the shoes will aggravate back and foot problems in anyone suffering from obesity, strokes, arthritis, slipped discs or other chronic spinal problems.

The pro-negative faction has less to work with. Anne Kalso seems to have assumed that since high heels are bad, negative heels must be great, but no one has come up with exactly why.

Negative heels throw your weight back and at least initially straighten your posture. But after the "break-in" period, when the Achilles tendon in the back of the foot is stretched out, you can hunch over again with the best of them.

What value derives from stretching the heel cord? "Toning the muscles cannot be bad," said one doctor, but he admitted that no lasting benefit will occur without exercising other foot, leg and back muscles.

The Arch of Triumph (and Defeat). The same criticism goes for the shoe's built up arch. A good arch support fitted to your foot will help your weight shift properly from heel along the outside of the foot across the mid-foot to the toe. But if you were walking badly before, and arch support won't change your bad posture without corrective exercises.

If you already walk properly, Earth Shoes will probably let you continue to do so. But so will other low or no-heel shoes with good arches or even customized arch support inserts at about one-third the price.

Ironically, some negative heel shoes won't even deliver good support for your $40 to $60. Earth and Nature shoes have good arches, but Roots are almost flat. "There's no break-in time," cheered the saleswoman in the store I visited—that is, there's almost no difference between Roots and regular shoes, aside from and regular shoes, aside from the doubled price.

Tom McAnn's Exersoles and other department store take-out other department store take-out other department store take-offs also have virtually no arch support and cash in on the earth-like appearance of what are really glorified tennis shoes.

The Path of No Return. Once you pluck down your backs, you're stuck with most negative heel shoes, whether you can wear them or not.

Kalso's Earth Shoes still sell by mail order, an indefensible sales tactic considering the damage the shoes could do to those who shouldn't be wearing them for any reason.

In addition, while it takes most people two weeks to adjust to the shoes, most Earth Shoe stores have only a ten-day trial period. Some stores will let you return the shoes as long as they're not dirty, that is, worn only on carpet where you can't tell it's they're working anyway.

Neither Roots nor Nature Shoes have a return policy, nor did the stores I visited ask me whether I was a diabetic or had any chronic foot or back problems.

Don't even consider negative heel shoes if any of those things plague you. After that, it's up to you. No one can say how our ancestors walked—or even ran—so the "more natural" claim of the shoes doesn't hold up. You may find negative heel shoes more comfortable or you may not, but they will not bring you back to nature, closer to the earth or to any other state of organic purity. They will not dissolve concrete.

The President's Message

In view of the Senate allocation of $1500.00 for a Presidential salary for this, and on-going years (via legislative precedent), I feel personally responsible to relate the facts to each of you.

Everyone will have an opportunity to vote yes or nay for the salary when it is presented during freshman elections the last of this week.

The first and probably most insignificant reason for student body adoption, is that currently fourteen of the sixteen constituent campuses pay an executive salary. UNC-W and UNC-G are excluded. How, via scholarship fund NC-G remits approximately $1700.00 per year to their SGA President. Here at UNC-W, the President is awarded $211.00 per year (in tuition scholarships) for the performance of his duties. Comparatively, this is hideously low. I don't think direct correlations can be made between the amount of salary paid and overall SGA performance.

However, Appalachian State University's SGA remits around $17,000.00 per year in Executive branch salaries, ranging from $2000.00 to $500.00. There are no SGA Presidents throughout the state that will not argue that Appalachian's SGA is the most dynamic happening.

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill pays its President approximately $2000.00 per year for the execution of his executive duties. An argument here is that UNC-CH, with 25,000 full time students, presents more responsibility and time to the job. This is basically unfounded however. As a matter of fact, UNC-CH SGA with its myriad of committees and executive assistants (most of them paid) probably swings the work load meter the other way. In other words, I wish I could pay assistants to act in my stead in many instances. But this is impractical, if not impossible at this stage of student enrollment, to accomplish such a task at UNC-W.

Currently, the UNC-W SGA operates its entire administrative staff (including travel expense for everyone, office supplies and machine expense) from approximately 5 per cent of the total SGA budget. An executive salary account will raise this figure to approximately 6.5 per cent of the total budget. This is an unheard of low percentage for administrative operations of any non-profit organization anywhere. For comparison sake, the National Student Assembly (the oldest and only registered student lobby in the U.S.) now uses 51 per cent of their total budget for administration purposes.

What's it going to cost you? This is usually the basic question involved in any salary request. I can truthfully say, momentarily, it will take 48 cents per year, from total activity fees of $96.50 of each student. But the real cost (economic opportunity cost) lies in what other areas of the SGA's activity arena could the money help finance? With a surplus last year of $29,000.00 and expected surpluses of $15,000.00 this year, one certainly could assume the program area is optimally funded.

I think no student on this campus would shun the thought of having an effective SGA President. One who is free from externalities to execute properly and efficiently his sworn duties. Before my election, in the past two administrations, I continually heard cries of ineffective, indecisive and inactive leadership. The inactivity in some cases was forced. For instance, approximately 90 per cent of all students on this campus work at least part time to subsidize their education expense. Many Presidents in the past have had to water down their effectiveness by working outside the campus environment. I personally (up to this point) have and refuse to continue to do this. Therefore these aforementioned economic opportunity costs, or what a President forgoes to adequately fulfill one's duties, is very high. It is estimated, that 30-35 on campus hours per week, not counting an assortment of 5-10 hours per week of off campus duties is a mean approximation, of time spent to be at least adequate as a SGA President. So it has been for former Presidents and will be for the future ones.

The passage of the Executive salary by the student body will significantly reduce the total opportunity cost, and dramatically increase the effectiveness of the execution of Presidential duties.

Further, a salaried Chief Executive position would serve as a stimulus to bring the best talent available to the position.

The student body would have ample reason to demand specifics from candidates on the relevant issues. Consequently, there would be an increase of student and candidate activity. This increased activity would continue after election day and throughout the year, as the students would possess a concrete mechanism to insure executive efficiency.

In my mind, Economics, the faculty and students alike espouse one favorite and very true slogan. "There's no such thing as a free lunch." When you pick up that ballot, think of that slogan, and very simply decide for yourself whether 48 cents per year is worth an effective SGA. William H. Robinson President

VOTER TURNOUT HITS 5.8%

By Bobby Parker

With an extremely low voter turnout and a misprinted ballot, SGA elections were held last Thursday and Friday to elect freshman class officers and decide a schoolwide referendum concerning a proposed executive salary for the SGA president.

The voting total for freshmen was 63 out of 919 enrolled, or 6.8 per cent. Voting on the salary referendum totaled 197, or 5.8 per cent of a 3,389 total enrollment.

The ballot misprint occurred in the freshman class officers election where the presidency, vice-presidency, and five senate seats were being decided. The names of Glen Downs, candidate for class president, and Tommy Long, candidate for the senate, were inadvertently switched with Downs' name appearing in the senate column and Long's name in the presidential column.

The mistake was not noticed until after about 3 hours of voting and both candidates received votes in the wrong columns. The only confusing results, Downs and Debbie Averitt were actually the only two candidates for president.

There were only five candidates for five seats in the senate, but because of the misprint six students received votes. Clint Myers polled 45 votes, Joseph Zalkin and Doug Shaleford 34 each, and Frances Deluca, 31. Despite being listed wrongly on the ballot, Tommy Long received 31 votes and Glen Downs polled 10. The seats were won by the five candidates receiving the most votes.

Parks Griffin was the only candidate for freshman vice-president and received 47 votes to win that office.

As for the executive salary referendum, the proposal was defeated by a 114-83 margin despite the strong endorsements of SGA President Duffy Robinson and several student senators. The measure would have provided a $1500 salary for the SGA president similar to those paid at other universities of the UNC system.

Sophomore Vice-President Ray Warren indicated that he would attempt at this week's senate meeting to have the proposal resurrected for another vote in hopes of a higher voter turnout.

TESTING CENTER OFFERS TWO PROGRAMS

In an effort to provide varied growth opportunities for UNC-W students the staff of the Counseling and Testing Center has planned two programs to begin in the next week.

COMMUNICATIONS SKILLS

A group has been planned to focus on examining the process and practicing the skills of interpersonal communications. Listening more accurately, sending more honest, understandable messages and dealing constructively with communication problems are key areas to be covered in this group which will have a discussion skill practice format. This group will meet Mondays and Wednesdays for 6 sessions from 3:00-4:30 in the afternoon. The dates are: Oct. 4, 6, 11, 13, 18 and 20. Dr. Jim Slager will lead this group which will meet in Room 203 of the Alderman Administration Building.

HUMAN SEXUALITY SYMPOSIUM

A symposium of Human Sexuality scheduled for this fall is being cooperatively sponsored by the Counseling Center, Region "O" Family Resources, the Student Health Service and the Area Health Education Council. In an attempt to consider several aspects of this significant topic, six varied programs have been planned. This symposium will be held on six consecutive Thursday evenings from 7:00 p.m., beginning October 14 and running through November 18. The meetings will be held in the King Hall (Ed.-Psych. Bldg.) Auditorium and the format will vary from session to session.

The schedule for the Sexuality Symposium is as follows: Oct. 14 - "Sexuality and Communication"--Film & discussion; Oct. 21 - "Anatomy, Physiology, Contraception & VD"--Dr. Mike Manus, New Harover Mem. Hosp. Ob-gyn Resident; Oct. 28 - "Sex Role Expectations"--Kay Tiblier and UNC-W Sex Roles Class; Nov. 4 - "Psychology and Sexuality"--Dr. Clark Vincent, Marital Life Clinic, Bowman Grey Med. School; Nov. 11 - "Ethics and Sexual Behavior"--Panel discussion; Nov. 18 - "Sexual Problems"--Dr. Oliver Bjorksten, Sex Therapist, Charleston S.C.

ABSENTEE BALLOTS NOW AVAILABLE

Students who are registered to vote in their home voting precinct may apply for absentee ballots between October 4 and October 27 if they will be away from their home on election day, November 2. This application must be made at the Board of Elections office in the county in which the voter is registered.

Only those who have registered before October 4 will be eligible to vote in the November election.

Applications may be made by mail or by a member of the applicant's immediate family.

All students who wish to vote in the upcoming national and state elections are urged to obtain their absentee ballot as soon as possible.

CHAIRMEN MEETING

All chairmen of SGA funded committees are required to attend a procedural meeting Wednesday, October 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the Goodwood Tavern located at the Pub. Any questions, contact Mark Wax or Al Harris.

ENGLISH BOOK SALE

A book sale will be held Wednesday and Thursday, October 6 and 7, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. beside the cafeteria. The sale will be sponsored by the UNC-W English Club for the UNC-W Jessie Rehder Memorial Fund.

There will be a large selection of books from fiction to non-fiction, classics, oldies--but goodies, suspense, humor, history and much more. All the books are in good condition, many are new, and most are hard-cover editions.

From 9-12 Wednesday, all hard-cover books will be $1. From 12 to 3, the price drops to 50 cents or 3 for $1. Thursday all books will be 25 cents or 5 for $1.

There should be a book for every interest, so stop by the book sale Wednesday or Thursday. Take a good book to lunch.

“WHO’S WHO” NOMINATION SOUGHT

Nominations for the 1976-77 publication of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges are now being solicited.

Qualifications include upper-classmen whose academic standing, participation in extracurricular activities and campus and community service are decidedly above average.

Nominations may be submitted by students, faculty or administrators. Each name submitted should be accompanied by a brief biographical sketch emphasizing especially the qualifications of leadership, scholarship and service. Time is of the utmost importance. The nominations should be turned in to the Office of Student Affairs by Friday, October 15, 1976.

Those who visit the student union building are probably familiar with this cat. She has lived under the pub for over a year.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Vegetarian Thanksgiving Dinners Around the Country

Letter to the Editor:

We are looking for fellow vegetarian workers. If you are or would like to be involved in some sort of vegetarian action on your campus would you let us know.

This fall there will be a network of UNTURKEY or vegetarian Thanksgiving public dinners around the country.

Vegetarian Thanksgivings save grain for some of the 50 million hungry, save animals from going terrorized to an unjust death, save humans from food poisoning, intestinal cancer, kidney disease, and other hazards of animal flesh.

The laboratories on your campus, if it is a typical one, are involved in some of the kinds of research which have happened elsewhere. E.G.,

At the University of Calif at San Diego, pigs are forced to run a treadmill till they drop of exhaustion.

At Harvard several years ago, pigs were dropped alive into 800 degree boiling oil for eventual compilation as research in The Bymposium on Burns. At the University of Rochester, at Wayne State, Etc., dogs were strapped into Blalock Presses and into crash cars, to see how much pressure could be taken before bones broke and skulls were crushed.

We are animal liberationists, world hunger activists, and disease fighters. All can be accomplished through vegetarian work, either on campus or with us. We work for $5 a week and room and board. Come on aboard. Call 703-524-4646 or write to Box 32323, Washington, D.C. 20007.

Sincerely,
Don Wilson, Nellie Shriver, Billy Mick, Emma Wood

More Sinners

Dear Ms. Editor:

As one of "We Girls" I feel the need to respond to your responses to the three imaginative women who were disturbed about the cheerleading ad you printed. Whether the intent of the ad was or was not sexually suggestive is something of which I cannot be sure. However, it does possess the possibility of being offensive and sensitive editorialism should recognize something which might be unnecessarily offensive.

I've sinned too!

NO PERSONAL ANIMOSITY

Editor:

Recently, SGA president: Duffy Robinson and myself were involved in a serious disagreement. Contrary to popular belief, however, there is no personal animosity between the president and myself. After the first senate meeting (in which both Robinson and myself lost our tempers the president and I were able to calmly and rationally discuss our differences and to reach a consensus. We agreed, that to a certain extent, both of us had handled the situation in an improper manner. Last week Robinson publicly apologized for certain of his actions. I would like to take this opportunity to add my own apology to Mr. Robinson and to the student body.

Although I had attempted to present a factual statement of opinion, my recent letter to the editor contained several unfortunate allusions to the character of President Robinson. Any inference that he had purposely planned to sabotage the workings of the student senate or had deliberately lied, was incorrect and regrettable.

As I stated before, Duffy Robinson is an extremely hard working individual with the potential of becoming the strong forceful leader the SGA so desperately needs. I hope the student body will continue to support him in his efforts to make student government a viable force in the working of this university.

BYLINE: Kelley Doesn't Belong in Political Debate

A column of personal comment
by Bobby Parker

The recent allegations leveled at FBI Director Clarence Kelley are no more than overzealous reactions from reform-minded politicians who see the situation only as a political opportunity in this election year. Even that most compassionate of compassionate politicians, Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter, jumped into the ring to throw a few jabs at Kelley, finding time for a couple of jolts at Kelley's boss-and Carter's opponent-President Gerald Ford.

The charges against Kelley were that he accepted expensive gifts from his subordinates and that he used FBI carpenters to build cabinets and drapery valances for his Bethesda, Md., home. As it turns out, the charges are trumped-up propaganda that the political opportunists (Carter included) gobbled up without full understanding of the circumstances.

It seems that when moving three years ago upon acceptance of the Bureau job, Kelley had trusted several of his subordinates to help his wife with the moving process. Mrs. Kelley was at that time ill-dying of cancer.

Those very subordinates, no doubt accustomed to performing personal chores for their boss during the reign of J. Edgar Hoover, were later found to be responsible for bringing the Bureau carpenters in without Kelley's knowledge or approval. (In fact, Kelley proved his innocence two weeks ago when he reimbursed the FBI $335 for the carpentry work.)

Carter was notable leading the charge, saying that knowing what he did, (which wasn't much), he would have fired Kelley, and President Ford should have done the same. The Democratic nominee has since toned down his attack as his politically motivated comments backfired.

It is not the first time that Kelley has faced criticism out in public. Reformists (no, I don't mean reformers) who blindly expected sweeping changes overnight to rid the FBI of political abuse that surfaced during Watergate have often charged that Kelley was moving too slowly in that direction.

No one doubts the basis of these unjustified charges; they came from politicians who are looking for issues (if I may dare to call this an issue) which these sensationalists can use to promote their own political futures.

The fact is that Kelley has been doing a damn good job. Sure it's been slow, but we can't expect to bring down what Hoover spent nearly 50 years building to his own personal taste.

Hoover held more power for a longer period of time than any man in the history of our country. There's no better proof to the theory that power corrupts.

Hoover took the organization, back when Calvin Coolidge was president, after the Warren Harding administration left it with scandalous undertones. The Director for 48 years, he accepted the job with the express condition that he would have a free hand in overseeing its operations.

It was unwritten law, and well understood, that no one bothered Hoover. After all, he supposedly gathered secret files on every one of those who were in any position to do anything about his methods.

Congress routinely approved his budget requests without questions. Eight presidents—Republican and Democrat, conservative and liberal—never thought seriously about replacing him.

During the last years of Richard Nixon's first term when many of Hoover's improper actions began to surface, some of Nixon's closest advisors wanted to dispose of Hoover. But the President refused to turn the Director out. Hoover had built up quite a following with his tough character over the years and remained popular with the American public despite the political climate.

The Watergate scandals brought out new revelations about the FBI—reports of presidential abuse, illegal burglaries, domestic spying, and secret files. The 77-year-old Hoover died just when the sordid stories began to come out, and he probably couldn't have picked a better time to go.

Nixon's choice to succeed Hoover—no one could replace him—was L. Patrick Gray. But Gray was destined to become the first direct casualty of Watergate, being forced later to withdraw his nomination. It was during Gray's tenure as acting director that the Watergate burglary occurred, and Gray, trusting Nixon and his men, did not press an investigation into the matter.

Much to Gray's credit, however, he did resign honorably without unnecessarily dragging out the affair. That's when a Kansas City police chief named Clarence Kelley was tapped to clean up the FBI mess.

A former FBI agent of 21 years, Kelley first went to Kansas City to clean up a similar situation. In due time Kelley straightened out the Kansas City force, curbed the city's growing crime rate, and resisted the dirt of Missouri politics all the while.

Kelley has undoubtedly uncovered more than he cares to believe since coming to the Bureau. But he has been honest about it all the way—even admitting that he is not certain that illegal burglaries are not still being carried out within the FBI.

What Kelley has told us is that he's trying his best to rid the agency of politics. It must be frustrating when critics are impatient with the visible results.

But what these critics can't—or won't—understand is that the enormity of the task before Kelley is going to take a while to complete. It's got to be an inside job too; no amount of executive or legislative pressure will do any good.

Clarence Kelley has stayed away from politics all his life. One of his closest aides once said that he didn't even know if Kelley was a Democrat or Republican.

What we do know is that Clarence Kelley is a good man who is industriously tackling one of the most monstrous jobs in American public life. And no one—not Congress, not Jimmy Carter, not even President Ford—should find it necessary to drag him into the political spectrum that he so desperately needs to steer clear of.

NETTERS SCORE

AT TOURNEY

Inexperience seems to be the key problem for the Women's Tennis Team.

"We have the potential, but just don't have the experience to go along with it," stated Jane Batson, head coach of the team. "None of our players are bad; we just don't have the know-how."

They team's season has just started, with only one dual match and one tournament completed. Coach Batson hopes that these two events will give the girls enough experience to make the season a successful one.

This past weekend, the women traveled to Fayetteville to participate in the Methodist College Fall Tournament. Facing such tough squads as High Point, Guilford, and East Carolina, the squad managed to place only one member, Sherry Cousins, in the quarter-final rounds.

The doubles team of Kim Hunter (playing her first match) and Carolyn Bender also played exceptionally well, just missing advancing into the quarter-finals.

Tuesday, The Seahawks played a tough Pembroke squad in a match that Coach Batson said, "should be a really good match." Details are not available at this writing.

Next match for the team is this Friday against Atlantic Christian College. Game time is 2:00.

HAWKS DOWN STETSON

This past week has been a frustrating one for the soccer squad, adding both a win and a loss to their record.

The win, which was the first for the Seahawks, came against Stetson in the final game of their six-day road trip. UNC-W totally dominated this game, winning it 4-1. Ironically, Stetson's only goal was scored by the Seahawks. Late in the game, a fullback attempted a pass to our goalie, but threw it over his head. According to head coach Calvin Lane, this is not as unusual as it sounds.

Gil Castilla opened the scoring drive 15 minutes into the game with a cross by Gonzalo Rada. Fifteen minutes later, Vince Lindenschmidt scored with an assist by ChiChi Mercado. In the second half, Nino Fleri scored on a punt by goalie Tim Willette, and Lenny Branson put one in at the 27 minute mark with an assist by Gonzalo Rada.

Three days later, the Seahawks met a fired up Atlantic Christian College squad, and were downed 3-2. ACC took a 1-0 lead at halftime, but UNC-W came back 10 minutes into the second half with a shot by Rada and an assist by Eddie Brook. Atlantic Christian scored their final two goals by the 30 minute mark, with the Seahawks' final goal coming on an unassisted shot by Danny Winters.

The score is not an indicator of the game, for the Hawks totally dominated the match. This is evidenced by their 30 shots at the opponent's goal.

Scoring leaders are already emerging, even with the season not half over. Gonzalo Rada's two goals and six assists give him a commanding six points. Vince Lindenschmidt and ChiChi Mercado follow with two points each. Seven players are tied at one point each.

Needless to say, Coach Lane and his squad are disappointed with their 1-5 record.

"Realistically, we should be 4-2 at this point," said Coach Lane. As for the rest of the season, Coach Lane added, "We still have the skill and the talent; all we need to do is put it all together."

Alka-Seltzer Football Fumbles & 'Fizz'les

Find yourself putting a ready on class projects? Don't despair — instead, put that punting knowledge to use in the Alka-Seltzer Football Fumbles & 'Fizz'les game. If you do tackle this contest, you might score and win one of the exciting prizes.

Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder

To enter, simply fill out the grid-iron below and predict the handicaps and final scores on the seven upcoming college football games listed. Jimmy "The Greek" has provided his early handicaps on the outcome, specifically for this contest. We'd like you to take a pass at upstaging the famous football analyst's educated guess.

Grand Prize: Super Bowl
In this first round, students from around the country will predict handicaps for the competition. The top 50 entrants will each receive a new Odyssey 300 electronic TV game featuring tennis, hockey and smash. Those 50 winners will be eligible to compete for the Grand Prize: a trip for two to the Super Bowl Game held in the Rose Bowl on January 9, 1977. The trip includes game tickets, airfare (from anywhere in the U.S.), hotel accommodations and expenses for two days in Pasadena, California.

So, why not take a pass at this contest? No purchase is necessary. No penalties will be given and clipping is allowed (just clip this entry form from the paper, fill in and mail). And, if all these numbers make your head ache and turn your stomach sour, remember Alka-Seltzer for a little 'after-the-game' relief.

Alka-Seltzer Football Fumbles & 'Fizz'les
Official Rules — No Purchase Required.

Contest Entries

1. Print or type on this official entry blank your name, address, zip code and school.
2. Print or type for each of the 7 football games listed below: A. — your handicap predictions for each game, B. — the grand total of your handicap differences, and C. — predictions of the final score for each game. (See sample entry below.)
3. Enter as often as you wish, but entries must be mailed separately. Mail your entry to: Alka-Seltzer's Football Fumbles & 'Fizz'les, P.O. Box 4818, Chicago, IL 60677. Only one prize per person will be awarded.
4. Entries must be postmarked no later than October 22, 1976, and received no later than November 5, 1976.

Judging

1. The fifty entries that come closest to predicting the grand total of the handicap differences will be judged winners in the first round. In case of ties, those entrants who predict the highest number of individual game handicaps correctly will be chosen. In case of further ties, entrants will be judged on individual game score predictions.* In addition to receiving a new deluxe electronic TV game valued at $80.00, they will receive entry forms for the second round — the Texas-Arkansas game to be held December 4, 1976. For that game, the fifty winners will be asked to predict a handicap, the final score and total yardage gained by the winning team. The Grand Prize winner will be selected on the basis of handicaps. In case of ties, the judges will look first to the predictions of the actual score and secondly to the predictions on total yardage gained to determine the winner.* All winners will be chosen by Advertising Distributors of America, an independent judging organization, whose decisions will be final. All prizes will be awarded. Winners will be notified by mail. The odds of winning are dependent on the number of entrants.

2. All entries become the property of Miles Laboratories, Inc., its representatives and its agencies. None will be returned or acknowledged.

3. List of winners will be sent to entrants who send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Alka-Seltzer's Football Fumbles & 'Fizz'les, P.O. Box 3431, Merchandise Mart, Chicago, IL 60654. (Do not send request with entry.)

4. The Grand Prize winner must accept prize by December 10, 1976. If for any reason the winner is unable to use prize, a cash prize of $1,200 will be awarded.

Eligibility

1. This contest is open to residents of the U.S.A., except employees and their families of Miles Laboratories, Inc., its affiliated companies, its advertising agencies and Daniel J. Edelman, Inc. It is subject to all federal, state and local laws and is void in the states of Missouri and Florida and where prohibited by law. No substitution of prizes will be permitted. All taxes are the responsibility of the prize winner.

Contest sponsored by Alka-Seltzer and Miles Laboratories, Inc., Elkhart, Indiana.

If necessary, random drawings will be held to determine semi-finalists and Grand Prize winners.

The Mind-Boggling, Never-To-Be-Forgotten Movie Orgy

University of North Carolina-Wilmington will be included as one of the stops on a cross country tour of college campuses by a zany, nostalgic film extravaganza called "The Mind-Boggling, Never-To-Be-Forgotten-Or-Believed Escape To Movie Orgy." The two big hours of fun and campy memories is sponsored by the Jos. Schlitz Brewing Company, and will be shown on Friday, October 8 at 7:00 p.m. outside the Pub. (Alternate Site: inside the Pub). There will be free beer for students presenting their UNC-W ID.

S.U.P.B. is presenting the frolic, and with Schlitz paying the bills admission is free.

"Escape to Movie Orgy" comes here complete with segments of many of your favorite childhood TV characters, movie classics (and duds), cartoons, crazy commercials, and bombshell bloopers. It is a veritable bonanza for trivia freaks, nostalgia buffs, and lovers of just a plain old good time. Loaded with clips that pop on and off the screen with a certain comic madness, the Movie Orgy could aptly be called "A 2001

Splice Odyssey."

In addition to the entertainment and beverages Hanover Distributing Company will provide a free Schlitz coaster, yo-yo, frisbee or beach-hat while the supply lasts. During intermission there will be drawings for nine Schlitz coolers. Be sure to bring your UNC-W I.D.

The Schlitz-sponsored Movie Orgy is currently in its seventh successful year, having played to over 350,000 on college campuses and military installations around the country. Campuses continue to ask for the film year after year. It retains its popularity and appeal because of an unusual facelifting which adds new elements but keeps in some of the favorites of the year before. Added to that, people simply seem to enjoy taking another look at the things that captured their fancies and fantasies as kids.

So hop aboard the time machine, grab your pillows, blankets, and popcorn, cheer for the good guys, heckle the bad, but above all, don't miss this exciting "Escape To Movie Orgy."

THE PRISONER

Each week, the Vice Squad presents a different episode of The Prisoner in the snack bar, Monday through Thursday, 11:30 through 12:30.

Episode 5: "FREE FOR ALL"

In Brief: The Prisoner stand for election as the new "Number Two", but finds that even a candidate for this top position has no freedom of speech.

To Amplify: Is it a genuine democratic election, as is claimed, or just another trick? The Prisoner views it all with satirical amusement when the election for a new "Number Two" is announced and the present "Number Two" suggests that he should stand as a candidate.

He accepts the challenge, however, and "Number Two" is one of the most enthusiastic among those applauding them when he makes his first election speech.

The election campaign is pursued with all the accepted trappings of brass bands, rosettes, speeches, interviews, meetings--but one thing he cannot learn is to what country the successful candidate would owe allegiance. He is warned not to get too curious or too personal.

Carried away by his own enthusiasm he makes a speech which, "Number Two" tells him, is a breach of etiquette: He must now undergo The Test.

It is a truth test, operated by an electronics machine. By the time he emerges he realizes that he has been the subject of exhaustive brainwashing, but he is still master of his own mind to the extent that he makes a desperate effort to escape from the Village. He even gets out to sea in a speedboat, but an aquatic Rover foils him.

Back again in the Village, he is in the midst of the campaign. He finds himself saying just the things expected of him... eventually gaining an overwhelming victory in the election. Now he has control. He can free his fellow prisoners. But his captors are not ready for defeat yet...

First Dance of the Year

7th of May

The dance committee has begun the year with a big blow out dance. This occasion takes place Saturday night, October 9, at the B.P.O. Elks Club at 5102 Oleander Drive. The "7th of May" from Charlotte, N.C. will be providing the music that everyone will be pleased with, whether it be beach, top 40, disco; whatever they have to offer. The dress is semi-formal or leisure suit. We hope to duplicate the success we had at last year's homecoming dance. See ya there.

SPECTORLATING

PHIL SPECTOR WALL OF SOUND VOL. 5

RARE MASTERS

Phil Spector was the first producer whose name was bigger than the artists he produced. By making hits with the Ronettes and the Crystals, he moved the role of producer from just another album credit to the master creator. Starting out as a hit recording artist (To Know Him Is To Love Him), Spector soon realized there was more going on with producing than with recording. Apprenticing with Leiber and Stoller, Spector studied art of making a "hit sound." After playing a small part in the recordings of the Drifters and Coasters, Spector struck out on his own. Continuing his experimentation with the recording studio as an instrument, he produced minor artists with little success.

In 1961, Spector finally produced two big hits. One was the Paris Sisters' "I Love How You Love Me" and the other was the Crystals' "There's No Other Like My Baby." While the Paris Sisters were to fade out of the story, the Crystals along with the Ronettes and the Righteous Brothers became Phil's biggest artists. From 1961 to 1965, Spector produced such chart toppers as "Da Doo Ron Ron, He's a Rebel, Be My Baby," and "You've Lost That Lovin' Feeling." Using a technique called a "Wall of Sound," he turned a few instruments into an orchestra. This, combined with songs by Carole King, Ellie Greenwich, and Cynthia Weil, provided hits up to 1966. What is considered maybe his greatest work, "River Deep-Mountain High," was boycotted by the media. In retaliation, Spector "retired" only occasionally producing records.

When the Beatles broke up, Phil once again stepped into the picture. Sorting through endless amounts of tape he came up with what was the "Let It Be" album. Because of his use of strings on it, Spector was criticized by the media and even McCartney. Both Lennon and Harrison were to call on Spector for producing singles and albums. While Spector once again had hits with songs like "My Sweet Lord" and "Imagine" his best and biggest years are the early Sixties.

RARE MASTERS is an import album on the Phil Spector International label. Unlike the other four albums in the Spector series, this one is not devoted to any one artist or contains any hits. This is not to say that the music is not good. What it contains is unreleased recordings that were released in small quantities or not at all.

Many of Spector's top writers are represented here and one cut is credited to a then-obscure writer, Harry Nilsson. The artists range from big names like the Ronettes to smaller ones like April Stevens. All tracks can be identified as early Sixties music and Spector productions. The best cuts are by Darlene Love who was also part of Spector's Bob B Soxx and the Blue Jeans. For anyone into the Spector sound, this album of rare tracks will be a godsend.

BE-BOP DELUXE

MODERN

MUSIC
ST-11575

This album is as good as any Be-Bop have done to date. Their style still remains Modern Rock with Zips back to 50's and 60's Rock as points for departure.

MODERN MUSIC is the fourth Be-Bop Deluxe album and is the second to hit the market this year. The themes and sound or the album remain much as the one before it SUNBURST FINISH.

The album opens with "Orphans of Babylon." The song is basically about Bordon in the Space Ages as Space ships cross the sky. "Twilight Capers" is next and is very similar to the work on the SUNBURST Album. This song demonstrates one of the qualities I like best about the group as some of the guitar work is plucked and not picked. As usual, the lyrics are deep with Bill Nelson's vocals being the focus point.

"Kiss of Light" follows and is a little different than the first two cuts. The song seems to have three main musical themes with some very good guitar work tying up the loose ends. This song world makes a good single for its top 40 qualities.

"The Gold at the End of My RAINBOW" and Bring Back the Spark bring side one to an end with the first being a very good Be-Bop Deluxe type Love song. Here again, Nelson's vocals and guitar work hand in hand with the guitar tying the lyrics together.

"Bring Back the Spark" is basic rock with the Modern Be-Bop sound added. At times it sounds as if it were written just to end this side.

Side two opens with a Mini-Rock opera, Modern Music. Opening this is "Modern Music" which begins with a dial being turned and hearing parts of other Be-Bop Deluxe songs. This part of the Opera is my favorite as the lyrics and music are very good. The other parts of the Opera get boring fast and do not show much work.

In "Modern Music" we find the main character is missing his girl. He then finds himself wondering if she is "Dancing in the Moonlight (all alone)". Thus for the opera is quite good until he visualizes their "Honeymoon on Mars". Then he gets "Lost in the Neon world". Here he fights the creatures of the USA and we have the "Dance of the Uncle Sam Humanoids". A reprise of "Modern Music" brings the opera to an end.

"For Bidden Loners" brings side two near an end and is a very good cut. "Down on Terminal Street" follows and is a well written song.

All in all, MODERN MUSIC is what Be-Bop Deluxe is all about. The music is Modern Rock in every sense of the word. Yet this album shows no improvements. If you have heard sunburst finish or FUT-urama you have heard the sound on this album. Even then Be-Bop Deluxe can not be beat at what they do. Till then Rock-Out. J.W.

CLUB NEWS

Biology Club

The second Biology Club meeting was called to order Sept. 28, 1976 at 11:30 in the Marine Science Building in Room 151. There was an enjoyable talk and slide presentation on China by Julius Metts. Also there was some talk on fund raising methods.

The next Biology Club meeting will take place on Oct. 9, 1976 in the Marine Science Building at 11:30 in Room 151. There will be a slide presentation by Frank Chapman on some of his Underwater Photography. Everyone is invited.

You don't have to be a Biology Major to be in our club! Come one, come all--all refreshments will be served!
